At that time a resolution was passed in favor of coeducation. A student committee, headed by Harry Parham, president of the student body at the University of Florida, was chosen to work on information and statistics to present to te Citizens' Committee on Education, a legislative body.

A comparison of Gainesville Honor Court and the FSC government and how much of their principle could apply to the honor code and judiciary here was also considered during the panel discussion.

Student Government

After the report on the state convention, Sarah Lewis and Ann Carolyn Allison reported on the Southern Inter-Collegiate Association of Student Government meeting which they attended last weekend at East Carolina Teachers' College in Greenville, North Carolina.

Sarah and Ann Carolyn reported that there was much discussion on the way student governments are run. They found that many colleges have the same problems as FSC, the only difference being the larger size of FSC. Some of the problems brought forth were those of percentage voting, methods of nominating students, and honor systems.

Political Science

Dr Marion D Irish, Miss Lucretia Ilsey, and Miss Daisy Parker will honor seniors in the political science department at a coffee this evening at 7:30 in the home of Miss Irish. Approximately 70 students have been invited for this occasion.

Choral Group Holds Tryouts This Week

The college choir, now being organized by Herman Gunter of Tallahassee, who joined the faculty of Florida State College before the first session of summer school, will be composed of men and women interested in singing sacred choral literature. The choir will also present radio broadcasts over WTAL and has been asked to give a choral demonstration at the Music Teachers Association meeting to be held here November 4-8.

Try-outs for membership and for accompanist were held Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday nights for girls, but the results will not be made known until sometime during the week-end.

Approximately 25 men attended the meeting for them Monday afternoon and according to Mr Gunter "the number and attitude of those who came is very encouraging."

Mr Gunter, who is a graduate of the University of Florida and the School of Sacred Music, Union Theological Seminary in New York, came to this campus from Ohio State University, where he was in the voice department. While there he was also minister of music at the Indianola Presbyterian church. He is a teacher of voice and conducting here.

Tallahassee AAUW Invites Membership

A meeting of the American Association of University Women will be held Tuesday, October 8 at 8 pm in the Longmire Building at which time all persons eligible for membership in the national organization are invited to join the Tallahassee branch.

Of the two types of membership, national membership requires graduation from a recognized college or university. Associate membership may be obtained with the completion of at least two full years of academic work in an acknowledged college or university.

Local dues are four dollars for national membership and two dollars for associate. No one eligible for national membership may elect associate membership.

If there is any doubt as to eligibility, Mrs W L Blair may be contacted for information at 2267 or Miss Mary Schornherst at 918.

Last Day For YW Enlistment

Membership Accepted 'Til 4:30 This Afternoon

Today is the deadline for students to join the Young Women's Christian Association at the enlistment table in lower Westcott, according to Joyce Petty, president. The table will be open from 8:30 a m to 4:30 p m and Y members will be there at all times to answer questions regarding the program and projects of the YWCA. Membership dues are one dollar a year and should be paid when joining.

The annual recognition service for new members is scheduled for next Tuesday night at 7:15 in Westcott auditorium. Members are instructed to wear white and to meet in the main hall of Westcott at 7 o'clock.

Most of the work of the Y will be done through four major commissions. Each girl may join the one of her choice according to her individual interest. Each of these groups will in turn be divided into smaller groups to work on specific projects on the campus and in the community.

The worship commission headed by Ellen Koenitzer and Janice Wilson will work in three major fields—worship programs, Bible study, and study of various churches and religions.

Willardeen Pulliam, chairman of community service, hopes to be able to work with girl scouts, Y-teens and other high school groups. Through field trips and other devices she plans to develop a better understanding of how the community is run.

Social responsibility under the leadership of Barbara Beckman will be concerned with education and action on the various political, economic, and social issues. Barbara says she would like to get started soon on the organization of a league of student voters.

Martha Vail McDonald with her committee on growth of persons will conduct what the president calls in a broad sense a search for a mature philosophy of life. It includes understanding oneself and one's interests more completely, creative work in plays, poetry and music.

Even though today is the last day for girls to join YW at the table, Joyce stressed the point that anyone who is interested in working with Y can come up to the Y room on the second floor of the Longmire building any afternoon between the hours of 1:30 and 4.30. Some member will be there to explain the program to those who are interested.

Senior Investiture Planned for Oct 29

Senior Investiture will take place Tuesday evening, October 29, in one non-compulsory session of convocation according to senior class president, Jean Cole, who requests that all seniors be measured in room 445 Library for their caps and gowns before the deadline on October 14. At present the senior class is making plans for this traditional ceremony, and a meeting of class officers will be held later to decide upon a speaker for the Investiture Service.

Jean has also announced that elections will be held at an early date in order to replace the officers who have left senior class office vacancies by not returning to school this fall. The date for the election will be announced next week.

At the first meeting of Senior Hall, Ann Parker was elected chairman for the coming year and Caroline Pruitt, secretary-treasurer. Senior hall privileges and policies were also adopted at this time.

Attention Please

The humanities staff has requested that because of the serious shortage of copies of the Iliad and the Aeneid in the bookstore, that all students owning one or both of these books arrange to rent or sell them to humanities students. Those desiring to do this should contact the humanities department, box 1077, or post lists of the books in freshmen dormitories.

Jazzmen—Let's Go!

Can you play a tenor sax?

Take it easy, boys, this isn't just another way to get extra KPs—musicians are needed to play in the new dance band being formed at Dale Mabry to play for college parties and dances.

If you're a trumpet player, if you used to bother the neighbors with a tenor, alto, or baritone saxophone, or even a big bass fiddle; just look up Edward Morgan, barracks 701, Dale Mabry.

Instruments can be furnished for players who don't have them, together with a complete swing library. Players will also be paid for every engagement.

Alexander to Head Distaff

Extension of Senior Privileges Discussed

May Alexander, senior, was unanimously elected editor of the Distaff, campus literary magazine, at the first senate meeting of the College Government Association Wednesday afternoon, according to Dahlia Santos, president of the Senate.

A discussion of senior hall privileges, a report from the steering committee, nominations for handbook committee chairman, and nominations for president and vice president of several campus residences were also on the agenda of the first fall meeting of Senate.

A discussion of extending senior hall privileges to all seniors, regardless of whether they are living on or off campus, was begun by Shirley Rodgers, senior representative to Senate, who presented such a recommendation to the Senate. Following discussion on this question the Senate voted that the chair appoint a committee to delve into the problem before any action is taken.

The Senate steering committee announced the acquisition of constitutional handbooks from various schools in the United States, Canada and Hawaii to aid in guiding action on constitutional amendments. Since there were not enough student applicants for the constitution committee, however, the election of these officers will be held at a later date. Chairman Janice Richey said, "We had hoped there would be a much greater student response than has been indicated."

Names available of those nominated for vacancies in campus offices are:

Vice-presidential nominees are: Barbara Farrar, Ellen Koenitzer, and Jane Carol Levy, Gilchrist; Jo Ann Long, the Village; Campus-side and Hillside, still to be named; Betty Wilkinson and Gwynn Poucher, Dale Mabry freshmen: Nancy Barber and Nancy Baker, Dale Mabry upperclassmen.

Names of other nominees were unavailable before time of publication.

Appointments Will Be Made Soon

All students who did not sign up for their annual pictures at registration will have an opportunity to sign up for them next week. A booth will be provided in lower Westcott for this purpose, and will be the last time that students will be able to make appointments, announced Louise Sims, Flastacowo editor.

Everyone is reminded to keep all appointments as new ones cannot be made. Everyone must take her coupon with her for the appointment.

Freshmen, sophomores, and juniors will wear long sleeved shirt-waist style white blouses when having their pictures made. Seniors, who are to have sorority pictures taken will do likewise when having the sorority pictures made. Caps and gowns will be worn for senior class pictures.

Freshmen who are interested in working for the Flastacowo should watch for the announcement of the time for interviews, stated Louise.

FSC President Reviews Five Years on Campus

"After five years I am thoroughly convinced th quality of our student body can't be excelled. The students are fine citizens and equal to any emergency that confronts them, and they have exhibited the most wonderful spirit during the years of making adjustment," are the words of President Doak S Campbell as he enters his fifth year this month as president of Florida State College.

President Campbell feels the one thing that marked his period of presidency was emergency. Our student body has increased fifty per cent during the last five years. The most recent problem is taking care of the new students not admitted to the University of Florida. Approximately five hundred men students are enrolled here and have access to our campus facilities. Housing, recreation, and hospital care are provided for them at the Dale Mabry base.

When questioned if the present enrollment of men students will promote co-education on our campus, Dr Campbell replied that it was up to the legislature entirely in deciding this question. He feels at the present men students seem happy with our campus life.

Although Dr Campbell remarked as he took his position as president five years ago that there would be no major changes made in the school, one can readily see the progress and advancement made under his administration. During the war three large houses were moved from the Capital square area for housing the increased number of students. Along with this we have bought three houses, built Magnolia, the Lodge, and completed the third floor of Reynolds hall for four hundred additional students.

This year marks the completion of a wing in the history building and the school has begun construction on a new dormitory. Another evidence of expansion is the completion of the north end of the physical education building, large music building, library, and class rooms.

Substantial changes in the curriculum have been the development of the Day Nursery school, the extended internship program, and a committee to deal with improving the curriculum, in addition to the expanded graduate program through the Graduate council. The school has changed from the semester system to the quarter system.

According to Dr Campbell, plans are underway and rapidly maturing for greater expansion of our institution. He hopes to enlarge the faculty and departments even more in the future. Throughout his discussion, Dr Campbell proved to be most encouraging about the future, implying that the student body can expect many more improvements and developments of the college now that the war emergency is over.

President Campbell arrived on our campus October 1, 1941. He received his doctor's degree from Peabody College, did graduate work and obtained his master's degree from Indiana university.

Phyllis Greife Takes New YW Post Here

First Professional Director In Ten Years or More

Miss Phyllis Greife of Cincinnati, Ohio, comes to Florida State College this fall as the first professional director for the campus Young Woman's Christian Association in over ten years, according to Joyce Petty, president of YWCA.

Miss Greife is also serving as a residence counselor in The Village.

According to Joyce, she is well-trained for YW work by her varied experiences since she finished school as well as by her work with student YW at Ohio Wesleyan university while in college there.

Miss Greife majored in psychology at Wesleyan with a minor in philosophy. After her graduation there she spent one summer at the University of Chicago where she studied under Carl Rogers.

"Since graduation," said Miss Greife, "I've just ambled around from place to place and have not had any permanent job."

Among the many jobs she has held are: hospital employee, church secretary, college consultant in one of the Cincinnati department stores, co-ordinator of volunteers in a Jewish hospital in Boston, counselor in Girl Scout camp, and recreational director of several different age groups in Benton House, a settlement house at Chicago.

Last September Miss Greife began traveling for the World Student Service Fund. After a training course in New York she visited approximately 50 colleges in four of the Southern states.

"The local YW," Joyce said, "has for several years felt the need of a professional worker, and the YW leaders hope that Miss Greife's stay here will give the continuity and effectiveness to the program that is needed."

Members Wanted by Music Association

Cincinnati Symphony Is Future Attraction

All new students, faculty and staff members of Florida State College are urged to take advantage of the Tallahassee Civic Music Association's fall membership drive which opens today.

According to Miss Isabel McKinnell, chairman of the TCMA membership campaign, those who were unable to join the association during the spring drive will be given an opportunity to become members now. Adult and student membership dues are $6.00 and $3.00, respectively, and may be obtained by contacting Miss Fae Thompson in the college book store, Dean Karl Kuersteiner and Professor Walter Cowles of the School of Music or Miss Isabel McKinnell.

Heading the list of four attractions is the famed Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra, Eugene Goosens conducting. This orchestra will appear in Tallahassee on March 25, 1947.

On October 29, 1946 duo-pianists Arthur Gold and Robert Fizdale will open the Civic Music season, followed by Robert Hall Collins, baritone on November 18 and Benno Rabinol, violinist on February 25, 1947.

The membership cards for those who joined in the spring will be mailed to members within the next two weeks according to Miss McKinnell.

Familiar Conditions Greet Veterans at Army Air Base

"I can't take it," said the vet who had spent three years in New Guinea, "It's all these women. I'm not used to it."

"I'll admit that living in old barracks gives a nice restful atmosphere, together with all the comforts I got used to in my four years in the Infantry, which is something you can't say for every college in the country. The beds are so nice, not these soft, wide beds that you can't sleep in, but nice knobby GI mattresses that reminds me of my foxhole at Buna."

"The food here is wonderful," he added. "While I was at home I could never eat a meal. After all, when you've eaten in Army mess-halls for four years you have to admit that ice cream without a dash of gravy just doesn't have that certain tang. But here I feel right at home. These balanced meals remind me of those varied, large meals we used to get in New Guinea. K Rations, we used to call them."

"But all these women get me down," he murmured, sadly, "You realize of course, that after a certain time in a different environment your tastes begin to change. Now there I was among the New Guinea natives for three years. Naturally, my tastes in feminine beauty changed. If you have ever seen any pictures of those sweet, girlish beauties you will understand what I mean. Imagine the strain of going to school with a group of girls with these grotesque slim figures, without a decent grass skirt in the whole student body."

He shuddered slightly and added, "If it wasn't for these girls who run around in dungarees and sloppy shirts I don't believe I could stand it."

"By the way," said our reporter, "Where do you live out at Dale Mabry?"

"Oh," smiled the vet, "I live in the Phaychiatric Ward."

Dean Reveals Contemplated Rule Changes

Ban on Smoking in Rooms, Automobile Ownership May Be Lifted

New Convocation System Inaugurated Tuesday

"If students, through a committee, can work out an acceptable plan for safety, and can assure compliance with these regulations, the rule of no smoking in the dormitory rooms will be lifted," announced Dean Olivia Dorman in CGA assembly Tuesday night. "Moreover", she added, "if a suitable plan which meets the approval of Executive Council can make adequate provisions for increased traffic and storage, students may be permitted to maintain and operate cars while living on campus."

Use of the cars will be limited by the social regulations of the college, she stated. Students who desire to keep a car on campus should secure permission blanks to be sent to their parents from the residence hall office.

Miss Dorman then stated thet because of the presence of male students on campus no activity which takes place in the Longmire building, Sweet Shop, Mecca, residence hall parlors, or any other place on campus will henceforth be considered a date.

"Saturday night Jennie Murphree, Reynolds, and Bryan halls will hold open house to officially welcome the university boys to campus," Miss Dorman continued. "Punch will be served at all three of the halls, and there will be dancing in the recreation rooms. The freshman girls from the Village and Dale Mabry will participate in the activities."

New Convocation System

Under the new checking system which was initiated last Tuesday, there will be a compulsory assembly on the first Tuesday of each month in Westcott auditorium. Students who attended the first assembly found six stations arranged numerically on second floor Westcott where they gave Sophomore Council girls their as-

Handbook Changes Enacted Last Year Impress Students

This year sees some welcome changes in our handbook of special interest to upperclassmen. Among them are the new regulations concerning assembly and the lifting of riding restrictions for upperclassmen. Now we have only one compulsory convocation per month, renamed CGA assembly. A new checking system has also been established. No longer do we have to crowd through a mob to find the proper sophomore council girl before we can join our friends in adjacent seats. Now we may merely have our numbers checked before entering the auditorium and find our seats together immediately.

Another relief is in store. No longer must we go rushing through the dormitory, searching for a friend with nothing to do or a date on foot before we may leave with our own dates in cars. Nor must we go through the often exasperating procedure of arranging our dates with approval hours in order to get our rides approved before leaving.

However, what brings most joy to a sophomore's heart is the extension of unlimited dates to her class, especially now that Tally has become, in a sense, co-educational.

Yet another joy is occasioned by the elimination of regular compulsory house meetings. They will be called in the future only when necessary. Although we knew they were coming up that first Tuesday every month, somehow they never ceased to be something of a nuisance upon arrival.

Not least among these changes is the omission of the little article in which we were informed that a conversation of over ten minutes with a young man was a date, for which we must be signed out.

Warren Absent

Miss Kay Warren, assistant dean of women, is attending Columbia University in New York for the fall semester.

During her absence Mrs B F Whitner, Jr. will be assistant dean. Mrs Whitner is the former Miss Katharine Byrd who was a councilor in Landis Hall a few years ago.

FSC Expands as Veteran Overflow From Florida U Is Housed at Dale Mabry

500 Men Are Supplied With Cafeteria, Bookstore, Gym, Post Office; First Steps Taken To Form Student Government

Nearly 500 veterans, overflow of the crowded Gainesville campus, are attending Florida State College at the University of Florida branch at Dale Mabry Field, approximately five miles from the Tallahassee campus. The field was expanded only a few weeks ago from an organization intended to house 300 young women. It will include not only housing for the men students, but also classrooms, a complete gymnasium, cafeteria, book store, and post office with bus service provided at all hours.

The first of a series of weekly assemblies, to be used in forming a student government and giving out announcements, was held Tuesday. First steps toward organization have already been begun with the election of a representative from each barracks for the meeting next Tuesday.

Intramural sports are to be worked out for the men, featuring a basketball team which may play neighboring high school teams. Only the touch variety of football will be played this year, but a number of sports are to be offered, including tennis, golf, softball and a horseshoe team.

In order to keep the high school students out of the Longmire building, passes will be issued to the University branch students bearing photographs, and unless other men have an invitation from a particular girl they will be asked to leave.

Barracks furnished at Dale Mabry are former officers' barracks, a good deal closer to the comforts of home than the one-room hutments or 30-man rooms which most of the students here occupied while in the service. While the beds are the old familiar army variety, students are also given closets, chests of drawers, and mirrors.

Classes for the men are provided on the base in addition to the regular FSC classes on the campus. Off-campus classes are held in 20 classrooms converted from hutments near the men's barracks.

A recreation hall similar to the one in the Longmire building is now being furnished in the old officers' club with a juke box, dancing floor, and soda fountain for the use of men and girls living there. Tennis courts and other recreational facilities are also planned.

FSC Enrollment Reaches 3040

Upperclass Students Now Housed on Campus

A total enrollment of approximately 3040 students, including 500 men, has been announced for Florida State College and the Dale Mabry branch of the University of Florida. Registration will continue until Saturday for men, but only women taking overloads will be permitted to register after Tuesday, according to Miss Eva Mae Atwood of the FSC Registrar's office.

Some delay in registration of University students was occasioned by the administration of General Education Development tests.

Residence arrangements for the increased number of women students at FSC have been made without converting social areas such as clubrooms and smokers into housing assignments. "For the first time in five years temporary assignments have not been given to students in the social areas on campus," said Miss Edith McCollum, director of residence.

Four houses at Dale Mabry field are being used as living quarters for 280 girls until campus accommodations are available. Those units are named for four branches of the service, Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard. The social area for all Dale Mabry students is the former officers' club. Buses commute to the Tallahassee campus at intervals of 15 minutes.

"At the end of the spring quarter 175 upperclassmen had not received room assignments for the fall quarter which began Monday, but they were given special consideration and rooms have been found for all of them in the residence halls by cancellations from other students," said Miss McCollum.

College Orchestra Consists of Coeds

By BOB COOKSEY

Mr William Presser, associate professor of violin and music theory, has announced the formation of a college symphony orchestra, to consist of both men and women student musicians.

One concert will be given by the college group each year as the climax of training by Mr Presser, formerly a member of the Rochester (N Y) Philharmonic Orchestra for several years. No definite date has been set for the concert in the current year, but Mr Presser stated thet he is hopeful of taking full advantage of the enlarged school enrollment and turning out one of the finest symphonic orchestras in the history of the college.

Mr Presser, who is to direct the orchestra, said that all students interested in winning a berth on the orchestra could contact him in the music building for further information. He has publicized an appeal especially for those students capable of playing cello, viola, string bass, and other instruments to help make up this symphonic orchestra.

Mr Presser is one of the seven new members added to the faculty of the college's school of music

Contest Deadline

Deadline for entries in the annual freshman writing contest conducted by the Distaff, Florida State College student magazine, has been set for November 1, according to May Alexander, newly elected editor. Contributions from all students, including upperclassmen and men enrolled at the Dale Mabry Universty extension, will be welcomed for the fall Distaff issue, with same deadline date of November 1.

Original articles, short stories and poems, previously unpublished, may be submitted to the Distaff through campus mail. Freshman winners in those three divisions of the contest will be invited to join the Distaff staff, and all contributions, contest entries or otherwise, will be considered for fall issue publication.

Day Students Meet To Elect Chairman

The first meeting of the day students' organization will be held in the Day Students' lounge, Longmire building, October 11, at 4:30 p m. This meeting is compulsory to all members since committee chairmen will be elected at this time. Planning of activities for the year will get underway with increased participation of day students in intra-mural activities stressed.

Already underway are plans to secure a lounge for male day students, according to President Doak S Campbell. He stated that it is hoped arrangements can be completed in the next few days and be made available for their use. Lockers will be provided if they can be obtained.

There are 182 women day students and, as a result of the co-education, a number of men day students. The officers of the women day students are: Alice Gehan, president, Marion Hazel Johnson, vice president, Nancy Koelliker, secretary-treasurer, and Betty Green, social chairman. The men have not organized as yet.

New Staff Members

The addition of four new members to the staff of Florida State College Business office was announced yesterday by R K Shaw, business manager of that office. They are Abner Alverett, Jr., William E. Loftin, Mrs Mary Louise Richey, and Mrs James Diffenbaugh.

Alvrett will hold the position of auditor and has lately been connected with the finance department of the United States Army. Loftin is assistant business manager for the Tallahassee branch of the U of F. Mrs Richey and Mrs Diffenbaugh, former graduates of FSC, are members of Loftin's staff.

sembly numbers for checking. The list of checked numbers was later compared with a list containing names and corresponding assembly numbers to determine absences.

The first convocation of the year, to be held Tuesday at 7:30, will feature skit by the Women's Recreational Association and members of the Odd and Even Demonstration committees. These convocations, as contrasted with the regular monthly assemblies, will center around entertainment programs such as traditional college events and will not be compulsory.

These convocations will be under the supervision of a central committee of which Anne Fielding is chairman. Assisting Anne are Marjorie Mallard, Martha Abbot, Pat Grant and Janet Robertson. A larger group made up of one member from each of 27 organizations will work with this committee.

New Cafeteria Will Shorten FSC Lines

The opening of a cafeteria for boys at Dale Mabry this week may help solve the dining hall problem here at Florida State College, said Miss Anna M Tracy, head dietitian, when questioned about the overcrowded eating situation.

She continued by saying that one of the main reasons for the congestion is the resetting of the tables due to limited space, and the fact that approximately 3,200 students crowd into the college dining hall to try to get their daily nourishment.

Miss Tracy concluded by saying that she hoped to have the situation straightened out in the very near future.

This year's arrivals in the psychology department are Mrs Helen M James, instructor in psychology, and Mrs Marie Wheatley, assistant professor of psychology.

The geography department adds this year Mrs Winnifred Fischer, lecturer in geography, and Mr Benjamin Moulton, assistant professor of geography.

The only addition to the School of Commerce is Miss Marian A Lambert, assistant ' instructor in commerce. However, others are expected very soon, according to Miss Louella Richey, head of the department of commerce.

New to the department of physiology are Miss Margaret R Limroth, assistant instructor in physiology, and Mr Jess H Wheeler, lecturer in physiology

New additions to the sociology department are Mr Milton R Charles, assistant professer of social work, Mr Thomas P Monahan, associate professor of sociology, and Mr Lester S Pearl, assistant professor of sociology.

In the department of botany and bacteriology are new additions Miss Loretta C Ellias, instructor in bacteriology, and Dr C S Nielsen, associate professor of botany.

The library science department has one addition, Miss Elizabeth L McLaughlin, acting associate professor of library science

In the art department Dr Cleta O Robbins, associate professor of art, is a newcomer.

This year's addition to the zoology department is Dr Henry M Stevenson, assistant professor of zoology.

There are two arrivals this year in the mathematics department, Colonel William R Toney, lecturer in mathematics, and Mr George D Avant, lecturer in mathematics, first quarter.

The history department adds this year Miss Claudia L Salley, instructor in history, and Dr Ruth Bourne, lecturer in history.

New counselors are Miss Mary Helen Burns, Reynolds Hall, Miss Sara Cloud, counselor and director of social activities, Landis Hall, Miss Lois Goldman, Jennie Murphree Hall, Miss Phyllis Greife, The Village, Miss Ola B Whitehead, Gilchrist Hall, Miss Edith Aber, Dale Mabry, and Mrs Fay N McCoy, Dale Mabry.

Other newcomers are Mr James Carr, director of housing, Tallahassee branch, University of Florida, Dr Louis Shores, director of division library training and service, part-time, Miss Dorothy Ann Cook, director of kindergarten, and Dr J Broward Culpepper, director of division of educational research and service.

Pol Sci Internees

Dr Marian Irish, professor of political science, has announced the appointment of two internees in public administration for the fall quarter. Robin Hill is to interne in the office of Tom Watson, attorney general, and Barbara Wickham will serve in the office of R A Gray, secretary of state.

Interning students are selected from senior political science majors who have maintained a good scholastic average and demonstrated an interest in public service. They receive academic credit for their practical experience, but they perform their routine office tasks without financial remuneration. Through observation and inquiry they are expected to learn the total responsibilities and functions of the department to which they are assigned. In addition to regular office work, they are given directed collateral reading in the division of political science.

Robin is the third interne to serve in the office of the attorney general, and Barbara will be the seventh interne in the office of the secretary of state.

Taylor to Direct Publicity At FSC

Miss Betty Ann Taylor of Tallahassee, a former Flambeau editor and graduate of Florida State College, will become acting publicity director next week upon the resignation of Miss Bertha Bloodworth, who has served here for the past two years.

Since her graduation, Miss Taylor has served in the United States WAVES. Miss Bloodworth expects to join her family in Gainesville where she has accepted a position on the University of Florida Board of Examiners.

Red Cross Elects

Chairmen of the various Red Cross committees have been selected, and the organization will start functioning Monday, Barbara Wickham, campus Red Cross leaders, announced this week.

Various committee chairmen include: Pat Yates, public information; Flossie Gwens, volunteer special services; Betty Kennedy, junior Red Cross; Anne MacDonald, nutrition; Emily Phillips, first aid and accident prevention; Dottie Hahn, disaster relief, and Jeanne Zewadski, life saving and water safety.

Registration Reveals High Stamina of FSC Students

Loud clamorings and impatient sighs mingled intermittently with the sounds of scuffling feet. An occasional short silence was almost immediately punctured by the rasping scretch of a pen hurrying across a schedule card, or a wail of despair from a disappointed coed who found she had signed up for the wrong class at the wrong time, and was lost in the recurring pandemonium. Everywhere could be heard the vague buzzing of many voices and the usual sound effects to be found in any large crowd.

This was an event . . . and what a staggering one! Lines doubled, tripled, and even quadrupled. Lines formed, broke, and formed again, to be replenished by a seemingly endless procession coming in increasing numbers from outside.

It seemed to be another world. Inside the history building all was push, clamor, and confusion for nearly five weird hours. From one room on one floor, to a different room on yet another floor, and to still another, became a familiar routine in which the lines moved in monotonous procedure. The never ending routine took on all the mechanical qualities reminiscent of zombie-land. The air grew stale with the reek of dust, pencils, chalk and books. Many of the experienced students, determined to come through calm and collected, lounged against the wall, and resigned themselves to the dreariness of waiting. But, in the end, even these evidenced distinct signs of prolonged physical and mental agony. The experience of first quarter registration will long be remembered—in the nightmares of FSC's stalwart students.

"Tepee" Party, Burger Fry Begin Religious Activities

Religious activities are already underway on campus and with the record enrollment of women and the appearance of 500 males, more students are expected to participate than ever before.

Events for the year were launched with a Baptist Union Pre-School Retreat at Silver Lake near Tallahassee, September 18-21. According to Faith James, student secretary, sixty-one BSU officers were present to help with planning of activities for the year guided by the theme for the year, "Thy Will Be Done."

Enjoyed by over 300 Baptist students was a unique "Tepee" party for freshmen at the BSU Wednesday, September 25. An Indian motif was developed throughout in the invitations, decorations, games and refreshments.

Sunday night, October 6 in Ruge Hall, the Episcopal student group has planned a reorganization of the Canterbury Club, according to Mrs Frances Luce, student secretary. At this meeting the student vestry will be introduced. An every-member canvass is planned to be held in the hall October 8-12. A banquet will be held in the hall October 18. This will be followed on the morning of October 19 by a faculty vestry breakfast. Long-range planning includes a Christmas cantata program in the week before the Christmas holidays.

Thirty members of the Canterbury Club and guests enjoyed a hamburger fry Sunday night, September 29, in back of Ruge Hall. Afterwards, the group sang vespers around the campfire.

An event for freshmen will be a party to be held in the Presbyterian church in town October 11. Also scheduled by the campus Presbyterian group is a Christmas Cantata program before the holidays according to Miriam Wilson, student secretary.

The Methodist group is holding a series of supper parties honoring freshmen "little sisters" and their big sisters; the first of these was held Tuesday night in the student house under the direction of the freshmen advisory committee. These suppers will be held for a two weeks period, according to Alpharetta Leeper, director of the Methodist organization.

Library Training Offered as Major

For the first time this year library training and service is being offered as a major at Florida State College. Under the direction of Dr Louis Shores, who formerly headed the library school at George Peabody College in Nashville, this department will train students for positions as public, college, school and special librarians.

This new department will also offer services to public school and community libraries through workshops, leadership for short work conferences and consultant services. A series of speeches concerning library work will also be offered to stimulate interest in this field.

Courses in library science previously offered at FSC were designed to train only public school librarians and could not be taken for a major.

Intramurals Games Begin Monday, 4:30

Volleyball Is First Sport; Managers to Meet

Practice for volleyball, the first intramural sport scheduled for this quarter, will begin Monday afternoon at 4:30 on the outdoor volleyball court.

Other intramural games planned for this quarter are basketbial, tennis and badminton.

"We hope to have good intramurals this year with all organizations represented," said Ann Stambaugh, intramurals manager.

A meeting of athletic managers or representatives of all sororities, dormitories and organizations who are interested in the intramural games will be held Monday afternoon at 4:30 in room 402 of the Longmire building. "The purpose of this meeting," said Ann, "is to outline plans of the intramural games for the year."

LEST WE FORGET

Stoogents! Do you remember a little fracas we had on campus at the beginning of third quarter last year? There were mumblings and grumblings beard on every side, criticizing the ambiguities of our constitution and calling for amendments, for re-vision, for a new constitution.

It seems that the memory of college students is all too short. In assembly last Tuesday evening, the steering committee of Senate called for candidates for a constitutional committee—just 12 members from each class were to be elected—and the number of people who volunteered fell far short of that. Twelve sophomore, ten juniors, and eight seniors had volunteered when Senate met at 4:45 the next afternoon. Now we ask you, is student memory that short? Were we only fooling ourselves into thinking we wanted to do something about our government last year?

The election has been postponed in hopes that people will take time out to remember how necessary changes seemed last year, and to realize that those changes are still needed this year.

The steering committee has announced that membership on the constitutional committee will carry no point load. It will take but two bours time per week. There will be no grade requirement. Interest is the only requirement to be met for candidacy.

Platforms—either a general statement of interest or ideas on specific issues—are needed to aid the student body in choosing those people they wish to have represent them. There will be no death penalty for deviating from a stated idea if a better one arises in the course of working. These platforms—not over 150 words—should be in the Flambeau office hy 5 o'clock Wednesday, October 10. These statements will make you a candidate for the committee.

IF enough interest is shown by enough people volunteering, ballots will be distributed in upperclassmen dormitories the following Monday nigbt. A majority must vote in this election to make it valid. (Remember?)

This election will not be held unless sufficient interest is sbown.

Let's not let this chance slip through our fingers. We have a golden opportunity open to us. Let's seize it while the way is open.

WELCOME, FRESHMEN

Once again it is time to welcome a new batch of freshmen to the Florida State College campus. There is a noticeable difference between previous freshmen classes and that of this year, but essentially they are the same—they are all starting out on the long, hard grind of college life.

These first weeks may seem confusing to all. The addition of the Tallahassee branch of the University of Florida has altered the entire makeup of our campus and we cannot be expected to change overnight from a woman's college to a semi-coeducational school. We will undoubtedly make many blunders along the path of adjustment, but "to err is human."

You freshmen who are beginning this strange new life will find vast reservoirs of knowledge which are waiting to be tapped. Books and periodicals which can be found in the library will help you keep abreast of international events, while attendance at Student Senate, student forums, lectures, and CGA meetings will be of aid in understanding our campus.

You will find many traditions existing on this campus —torch night, Senior Hall, Class Day, etc—we bope you will found better ones.

Yon will be exposed to many varying opinions, some of which are good, some not—we hope you will consider, weigh, and formulate your own ideas.

You will be able to meet life more capably through experience gained in scholarly pursuit and campus activity —we have faith in you.

ONCE MORE

Senior Hall once more poses a difficult problem to be solved. It has passed from the stage of casusl selection into an all-inclusive body of seniors who can meet a tangihle requirement set forth in the standing rules of the college, but even with proper qualifications some seniors have been excluded from enjoying the privileges and responsibilities that by rights should be theirs.

The Gold book states that "all persons rated as seniors by the registrar's office except those who are classified as mature students may be members of senior hall."

This year, due to the critical housing conditions on campus, there are many seniors who cannot be placed on senior hall. These people desire to live as part of the group assuming personal and collective reponsibilities for college welfare.

Because we are a growing institution and these are critical times, there seems to be little hope of our housing situation easing up so that the same exclusion of people from senior hall can be avoided in the next few years.

Student senate passed a recommendation this week to have a committee appointed who would look into the problem of senior hall and bring a report of their findings back to the senate. Perhaps they will find the privileges and responsibilites of senior hall are out-dated as belonging to the segregated majority who live in a specified area. Responsibilities cannot be designated to lie on one floor of a building and not on the others wben all other qualifications are equal. It would seem that now is the time when senior ball should cease to exist as a principle of our college communal living and that senior privileges should take its place.

MILESTONE

The smiling announcements from the convocation platform last Tuesday night concerning new student regulations, thougb perhaps relatively unimportant in themselves, told a waiting student body of the increasing liberality of interpretation of campus rules.

The actual underlying meaning of these announcements was that students at FSC have been given the chance to prove themselves worthy of being responsible for themselves and to themselves. As maturing men and women preparing ourselves for life in a mature world we must take most seriously this consideration given us by the college. Not only is this a manifestation of increasing trust but it becomes in a much larger measure an obligation and a responsibility to uphold that faith for those who placed it in us.

The changes in the smoking and automobile-ownership regulations possibly loom largest in the collective mind of the student body. They are important only in that they are indicative of the increasingly cooperative attitude of both students and faculty toward each other. In the last stages of dissolution is the old grownup-child relationship, and in its place has appeared the realization of a far more sturdy bond of cooperation and mutual respect. It is only through this attitude that any social order can ever hope to build toward good government and responsible citizenship.

We pledge ourselves to uphold and further this stride into the better way of life for this our society.

Men and women of FSC—you have crossed a barrier; you have passed a milestone.

TRIAL RUN

Floride State College for Women is grateful to the unalterable fact of the Gainesville bousing sbortage, which caused us to become "Florida State College for Women and Men," temporarily at least.

Aforesaid unalterable facts notwithstanding, we must all recognize an even greater and more real benefit to be gained. At Dale Mabry Field and on the campus of FSC are the proving grounds of a plan long favored and openly supported and urged by Florida's college students, over 10,000 strong, her foremost educators and laymen, and many of her Congressmen.

The memories of the struggle between pro and con, Congressman and lobbyist, at Congressional session two years ago are still fresh in the minds of all participants; sneers and insinuations as to the resultant low grades and morals of college students of the future still rankle, as, no doubt, do the epithets "reactionaries," "old fogies," "tyrants," "blind idealists," and "Victorian cranks" applied to those opposing. The battle has threatened to become a showdown, and real bitterness and some spiteful actions might have been precipitated to the detriment of all concerned, and to the probable indefinite postponement of any coeducation plan for Florida.

The gesture of placing men of F S C's campus means more than the relief of the Gainesville housing shortage. It also means circumvention of any need for showdowns, bickering and bitterness, and compromises student eagerness for the new plan with grownup reluctance to take such a revolutionary and expensive step without assurance it would work. The students have been given a chance to prove the system will work to greater advantage for all, and officialdom is given a chance to observe, weigb and consider the facts from an actual "guinea pig trial."

> Bear in mind, all ye students, the things we want we must earn, and we must earn by solemn resolve on the part of each to make the new system work well, and by then carrying out that resolve to the best of our separate and collective abilities. Bear in mind, too, what depends on the success of your efforts. We students of Florida have no doubt of the success of the plan in the long run, but we have only a short run in which to convince our legislators of its efficacy.

Shouldn't be too hard, eh, just making your guests welcome and part of the family?

Sharpie the Fifinella

Sharpie has passed on. Long live Sharpie!

In the last year, students of this campus have had the 'most all knowing service of Sharpie, Harpie, and Sharpis II.

But now, Florida State College is blest with a new personage--Sharpie, the Fifinella. That's us folks. Kilroy's girlfriend who has been with him everywhere and knows all.

Quite a deluge of mail awaited us when we arived this week. It took three people three trips from the PO to bring it all to our headquarters. Now, there's hardly room for us.

Since it will be impossible to answer each one of the queries this week (we're orly planning on a twenty page paper), we'll try to answer the ones of the most general interest.

Our first letter, signed "Neglected", states that co-education in theory is fine. But five hundred boys aren't quite enough for 2700 girls. Even if they were friendly boys. "Neglected" says that the boys just stare at her without ever smiling or speaking

Disi Lusioned wonders about the fact that even after that luscious Convo—er, general assembly—there was no traffic jam of upperclassmen eager to work on the constitutional revising committee.

Our observation is that it's the weather and the time of the year. The sweet breeze probably cooled off the remembrance of our last spring's heat.

We consulted Kilroy on this matter. His observation on the subject is that "Neglected" is either a double for "Lena the Hyena" or the boys are bashful. After careful thought, we decided to recommend that one of our worthy campus clubs sponsor a Friendship Week. During this week, it should be a House Council offense not to smile and speak to members of the opposite sex.

"Bewildered" writes that she can't find the section in the Gold Book that tells her how many students have to ride with you on a date at night, what the limit on week-ends for sophomores and juniors is, and the conditions about visiting people in town. And it was so easy to find last year when they had a special little chart. What "Bewildered" wants to know is, did the section get lost at the printer's?

Ah, no, my bewildered upperclassman. This summer while we were away, the good fairy has been at work. That section is there, but in a greatly changed form. And Sharpie, on behalf of a large part of the student body, would like to offer a licorice stick to the good fairy who worked so faithfully while we played.

One of the guys who live out at Dale Mabry and is new to the campus is having trouble remembering what his FSC date can and cannot do and when she has to be in. "Why do the girls have so many restrictions?" he wonders.

Bless the dear boy. Kilroy could tell you that the girls have so many restrictions because you boys have none.

Speaking of rules, Ann Arehey writes that she is in favor of abolishing all rules and government and living in anarchy.

Maybe so, bnt Senior Hall's inhabitants would rather live in Landis.

Our last letter comes from a "Frightened Freshman." "All week long I've been watching the Sophomore Council girls carry trunks and suitcases for freshmen, walk miles on tours of the campus, and check rolls in Convo. among other things. My problem is what did they do, and how can I get out of that in my sophomore year?"

Dear "Frightened Freshman." That is a probiem. We suggest that you talk with your junior councelor and sophomore council girl about the facts of this life

Then if you still are not free from fear, write us again. Kilroy and Sharpie the Fifinella are always willing to help a freshman avoid fate. It is too bad that you were not here last year. Many of the faculty members here then could have given you better advice than we can.

Students, Sharpie and Kilroy are always ready to help you with any of your problems. But write early, for we have a limited time and space.

The Adventures of Sophomore Council Or "When the Lights Go on in Bryan"

The lights in Bryan parlor were dim and the hour was late—2 a m to be exact. Huddled together were nine sleepy Sophomore Council girls whose all-important duty was to welcome freshmen—in the middle of the night.

"I can see it all now," murmured someone. "There'll be dozens of girls with dozens of suitcases."

"And they'll probably all be assigned to the lodge."

"Well, I said I gained too much weight this summer. When I get through carrying freshmen's trunks maybe I will have become my nice skinny self again. Ya' know, though, the whole business of being a Soph Council girl is fun. Hey, don't murder me yet!"

"Here they come—I think," yawned one blue-jacket, peering out of half-closed eyes.

Summoning up all their energy the nine girls made their ways to the door with welcoming smiles To the bewilderment of all only two frosh came tramping in. Nine sleepy sophs put two sleepy frosh to bed amid laughter which verged on hysteria.

But the sole occupants of Bryan parlor that night were not our sleepy friends. Two letetr-writers (frosh, of course) did not escape the eyes of soph counselors Mary Calley and Shirley Hargraves.

"What are y'all doing here?" drawled Mary.

"Oh, we're afraid of our room. It has bugs! And we're not tired —and we want to stay here to wait for our roommates. They're coming in the morning," voiced Aileen Miller and Dorothy Michelson.

"Bugs? In Bryan?" questioned Shirley, a former Bryan resident. "Let's go see."

It's not known exactly what they found, but when last seen the two soph council girls were directina the two freshmen to Gilchrist for the night.

Among the more interesting and exciting activities of soph council girls during freshman week was their trip to Dale Mabry for the traditional "Goodnight, freshmen dear" singing. After singing to the girls they just couldn't leave without serenading the men. The lyrics were changed to "Goodnight, fe-l-lows" just in case the "fellows" wouldn't appreciate the original version.

Approximately six girls were on duty each hour at Dale Mabry to assist those arriving there at the beginning of freshman week The girls also delivered handbooks to students and aided students during registration.

Where Can an Alien Go to Register?

Junior Wolves Handbook, Tally Branch

"Date 'em all," said Dean McBride to the men's assembly last week. "Remember how lonely you were overseas, and how some of the Red Cross girls got to thinking that giving you a date was a super-special favor. You don't want to get like that yourselves."

Just remember Washington's advice. No entangling alliances.

I Don't Want No More of College Life

After standing in line not less than a million miles in the Army, it isn't any more fun than it ever was, but if we don't learn anything else in college we'll be awfully good at standing in bread lines.

Give Me Five Minutes More

Don't send for the stretcher bearers when some guy comes into one of your classes a few minutes late, out of breath and looking like somebody at the wrong end of a 20-mile hike. He's just one of those poor boys who have half of their classes at Dale Mabry and half of them on campus.

He Must Have a Fast Bicycle

Don't let this keep you awake nights, thinking, but if this is the first year that there have been any men on the campus at Tallahassee how is it that Kilroy has already been here before us?

Program Will Begin

Although no definite beginning date has been determined as yet, Florida State College will again broadcast its Garnet and Gold radio programs from station WTAL this year.

The programs are expected to follow the pattern of former years, news, music, and skits, plus a transcribed theme-song.

Students Speak . . .

The most obvious question of the week on the Florida State College campus seems to be "What is your reaction to the semi-co-education plan that is being fostered here this year?"

Now, of course, the very obvious retort is "Swell." But rather than just let it go at that let's see what profound thinking individual students are doing on the matter. A cross section of ideas have come from boys as well as girls, seniors as well as freshmen, and residents of Dale Mabry as well as of this campus.

Betty Hunter, Senior—Landis:

"I think that now that we are used to seeing men on campus it is a very good thing. It brings about masculine competition with the feminine minds which is good in any intellectual institution. I think it will make a lot of girls happier who come to the college unused to the former cloister-like existence which held sway here."

Bill Fussell, Freshman—Dale Mabry (Bill, incidentally is a married man who's wife is attending a business college and while his views are purely objective they represent a part of what the student body is thinking):

"From what I've seen I think it is coming along very well. The boys are well satisfied with the new situation. I think the boys came to FSC for three reasons. First, there were the boys who came out of service who weren't able to enter any other college and had to come here; second, some came just to have a good time because this is the beginning of co-education and FSC, and lastly there is a small group who came purely to obtain an education for the future."

Virginia Sapp, Senior — Sigma Kappa house:

"I think that co-education is going to make this school more liberal in many ways. I think it is more normal for boys and girls to go to school together. I think they ought to build a dormitory for the men on campus or else give them the new one that is being built. Dale Mabry is too far away and too inconvenient."

Lucy Wellington, Sophomore—Gilchrist:

"I think that co-education has warmed the cold cockles of the hearts of the faculty. It is making our college more liberal. The teachers are finding, I think, a more responsive group to teach in having mixed classes. I think it should continue and grow so that someday there will be an equal number of boys and girls."

Jim Turner, Junior—Dale Mabry:

"I have no objection whatsoever to this co-education deal. My only objection is to the place where the men have to live and when they get that fixed up it will be fine. I would much prefer to be here than at the University of Florida. (Jim wanted to add that his roommate owns a car and some of his other qualifications, but there just wasn't room).

Laura Simpson, Sophomore—Magnolia:

"I think it is the only thing to have. I think that when you graduate from college you are supposed to be prepared socially as well as educationally for the world, and the world includes both men and women. The presence of men on campus contributes a necessary part of our education."

Pat Lannom, Freshman—Bryan:

"It isn't any different from what we had in high school only there's less of it, so it isn't hard to get used to. I would like to see the college made co-ed permanently. The small number of boys we have now would feel more at ease if the ratio were equal. I came up here with so many ideas of how strict FSC was and now that the boys are here I find that it is just like the school I left behind.

Annual Reception Honors Campbell; Welcomes Freshmen

Baskets of seasonal flowers and fern formed the setting for the annual receptions held for President Doak S Campbell last Tuesday and Wednesday nights in the Longmire building.

President and Mrs Campbell, Miss Olivia Dorman, dean of students, Sarah Lewis, president of the College Government association, Rosetta Carver, chairman of judiciary, and Mary Louise White, freshman adviser, received the freshmen, transfer students and men from the Tallahassee branch of the University of Florida. Other guests were faculty members from both institutions, staff members, local ministers and student secretaries.

Officiating at the end of the line were Mrs Katherine Byrd Whitner, assistant dean of students, Miss Edith McCollum, director of residence, and Miss Anne P Pope, head freshman counselor. The guests were formally introduced to the officials in the receiving line by the student presidents of residence halls, Juanita Krentzman, Jimmie Rogers, Alva Ray, and Anne McInnis, and Alice Gehan, president of day students' organization.

On the first evening of the reception Miss Dorothy Brown, Miss Lois Goldman, Mrs Pauline Mansfield, and Miss Phyllis Greifs served at the refreshment tables, and Wednesday night Miss Leila Allen, Miss Mary Helen Burns, Miss Edith Aber, and Mrs Fay McCoy officiated.

Floor hostesses at both affairs were counselors for upperclassmen dormitories, members of the executive council of the College Government Association, student officers and members of the Florida State College faculty.

Recital Presented By Music Students

The second in an annual series of recital programs sponsored by the School of Music will be held next Thursday afternoon at 4.30 in the recital hall of the music annex, according to an announcement from Dr Karl O Kuersteiner, dean of the school of music.

The first of these student recital programs was given yesterday afternoon. All students, faculty and friends will be welcomed at such future presentations, said Dr Kuersteiner.

The flag of Denmark, a white cross on a red field, is the oldest national flag, and has been in existence since the 13th century.

Library Hours

A corrected schedule of hours for the library is as follows:

Athletes' Feats

By EVELYN SHEA

They say "When in Rome do as the Romans do", so I'll start this year off by welcoming all the new additions to our campus and to the Flambeau staff. Glad to see you Co-eds!

Now that FSC has men it seems only fitting that they should inaugurate a Men's Recreational Association to allow for sports and recreation for the fellas' here at Tally. Many of the boys are physical education majors and consequently will have to referee, coach and participate in sports. I understand that Dean McBride is willing to help this idea along, so Co-eds that's the man to see. Good luck and here's hoping that a good system can be worked out.

STRICTLY FOR THE GALS . . .

With over 1,100 new EVEN freshmen here this year, the girl's athletics should get off to a rousing start. Beginning this Monday, Green and Gold gals will have a chance to show their prowess in archery, modern dance, hockey and soccer. On Tuesday all loyal ODDS will begin practicing for the big Thanksgiving games.

Leaders for the Odd-Even sports this quarter are Elaine Gavigan, soccer head, Virginia Palmer, Odd soccer leader, Marion Floyd, Even hockey captain, Nita (Squatdrop to you) Nord, Odd hockey leader, Sis Myers, Odd modern dance head, Ann Shull, Even modern dance, Pep Stanaland, Even archery captain and the Odd archery leader is to be elected this next week. All these girls are capable and responsible leaders and if they are an indication of how the teams are going to be come Thanksgiving, the outcome will be anybody's guess.

Cheerleaders practice also starts this Monday so all you gals interested in being Odd or Even cheerleaders come on out on Landis green.

JOKE OF THE WEEK . . .

Last Friday when F Club wore their F's some new and uninformed Co-eds accosted several members of the club and wanted to know if they played football or were thsy Florida cheerleaders. What, no F standing for Flambeau this year??? And that's thirty for now except let's all go out this next week and help produce a winning team.

Tarpon Tryouts

Training classes for would-be Tarpon Club Minnows were held on Wednesday at 4:30 and Thursday at 5:15, while today's class starts at 4:30 to continue through 6:15.

Saturday night plunge period will be the last opportunity to practice before try-outs, which will be held on Monday and Tuesday at 5:15.

New pins, in the form of silver tarpons with blue sapphire eyes, have arrived and ars now being worn by Tarpon members.

Life Saving Corps Gives Pool Show

Marynell Goldman New Head; Corps to Meet Monday

Have you newcomers noticed the girls standing around the sides of the pool in red bathing suits? Those are the members of the Lifesaving corps.

Yesterday afternoon the Lifesaving corps began its activities for this year by giving a demonstration of swimming, elementary forms of rescue, and canoeing for ths members of the freshman orientation swimming classes. Other things the corps will be doing throughout the year are supplying senior lifesavers to guard the pool, providing guards for weekends at camp and various other excursions, providing instructors in water safety to assist the physical education faculty in teaching the swimming classes, and arranging extra-curricular courses for lifesavers and water safety instructors. The various dates for these events will be announced later.

Mary Nell Goldman, captain of the corps for this year, says there will be a meeting of the Lifesaving corps on Monday at 7:30 in the Longmire building. All members of the corps and the lifesavers with the exception of the new fall members, who have not been initiated, are urged to be present. Other officers of the corps are: Joyce Cayce, first mate, Anna Horne, second mate and Grace Bradley, third mate.

Freshmen, Juniors Have Camp Outing

By JANICE RICHEY

The freshmen dormitories are still buzzing with talk about the outing at camp last Saturday. Busload by busload, freshmen and juniors left for an afternoon and evening of relaxation after a busy Freshman Week.

Bopie Whitaker, junior counselor in Bryan, was in charge of the arrangements. Recreation included swimming, volleyball, softball, horseshoe-pitching, and ping-pong. A supper provided by ths college dining hall was served buffet-style on tables by the lake.

After supper, the juniors presented a burlesque of freshman week and led the group in singing Dean Dorman, who initiated plans for the outing, was there to welcome the girls, and Dr Katherine Montgomery, head of the physical education department, told the history of Camp Flastacowo.

Co-Eds May Bring Change In Girls' Athletics at FSC

By NANCY WRIGHT

Having boys on the FSC campus will probably bring about a few interesting changes in our sports program. Although soccer, archery, hockey, and modern dancing, the sports for this season, will remain ostensibly the same as far as their playing goes there will probably be some changes in the outward appearance of the players.

Will the players remain bloomer girls or will they take on a more sylph-like appearance perhaps in a silk jersey creation? Alcohol rub-downs will probably be replaced by a touch of Tabu behind each pearly ear.

Besides these and other ingenious changes in physiognomy used at the discretion of the players, there will be more exercising of the eyelashes than the biceps on the playing field.

The prospect of having male spectators brought this comment from Virginia Palmer, Odd soccer leader, "We'll flirt, of course!" Pep Stanaland, Even archery leader, said "We'll shoot a mark that'll put William Tell to shame." This veiled statement could mean that the archers intend to use Tally U targets with apples on their heads.

Briefing the teams on playing tactics at quarters could sound like this.

"Did you see Joe in the third row on the end?"

"Yes, and your mascara is running."

The conventional towel and water bucket will, no doubt, be replaced with elaborate beauty kits and a hair-dresser in attendance at all times. All in all, it can be predicted that this new light which will be thrown on sports will bring out hidden facets in FSC team players.

"This Is Tally" Is Playnight Theme

Dancing to Begin at 8 o'Clock Saturday, October 5

"We have big plans this year for playnight," said Nancy Mac Edwards, chairman of playnight, "and we expect a huge crowd."

Dancing will last from 8 to 9 p m and skits will be given from 9 to 10 p m every Saturday night in the gymnasium. "This is Tally" will be the title of the skit given tomorrow night. The idea of the skit will be to explain and demonstrate all organizations on campus.

Some ideas for future programs are, Sadie Hawkins Day, Truth and Consequences, and a wild west show.

Tot Carter is secretary of playnight for this year, Betty Dixon and Joanne Zewadski, property committee; Mil Vernon, Amelia Pavese, and Leola Blake, light committee; Bebe Parker, Myranell Rogers, Helen Stone, and Betty Strickland, publicity committee; Sis Miller, Lucille Ossenkop, and Joyce Cayce, program committee; Anna Kay Horne, and Barbara Lindsey, chaperone, committee.

Membership Drive Sponsored by IRC

A membership drive will be held by the International Relations Club Monday and Tuesday in lower Westcott, Dee Gardner, club president, announced this week This drive will be followed on Thursday evening by an informal meeting of club members in the Longmire building at which Dr Marian Irish, professor of political science, will be guest speaker.

Camp Flastacowo Open to Boys Now

Camp Flastacowo is open to the Tally U boys every day in the week, announced B J Gardiner, president of Women's Recreation Association. On Tuesdays and Thursday they may also spend the night there. Bathhouse facilities for the men have not been arranged yet, so they'll have to dress beforehand if they plan to swim. "This is the first of several provisions," said B J, "of a recreation program being planned for male students on campus."

Playnight in the gymnasium tomorrow night is the first joint activity of what will probably be called the Men's and Women's Recreation Asociation. A skit about campus clubs called "This is Tally" will be the main event.

WRA officers and Mr McWilliams, physical education coach for the boys, are meeting today to plan further co-ed recreation activities.

Novelty Parties Entertain Freshmen; Alumnae Back For Rush Week Activities

Sorority activities began this year with rush week parties, which included dinner parties and novelty presentations, to welcome freshmen to the campus of Florida State College. Alumnae and former students are visiting the various houses and participating in most activities.

Alpha Chi Omega entertained Friday night with a formal reception, at which patrons, patronesses, and alumnae were guests of the chapter. Saturday the Alpha Chis presented a "night club" party held in the Carnation room of their house. Sunday at the Cherokee hotel a fashion show set to music and skit entitled "Alpha Chi and Alpha Cholera" were presented to the rushees. Actives who participated in the entertainment include Pat Harrison, voice soloist; the Alpha Chi trio, Jane Arnold, Mary Hart, and Pat Harrison; Dip Brown, dancer; and Jane Arnold and Virginia Der Garry, pianists. Visiting alumnae include Frankie Lewis Ryan, Gainesville; Rosemary Hubbell, Panama Canal Zone; Louise Rampey, Pensacola; Jean Austin, Mary Budd Holmes, and Eloise Steele, Jacksonville; and Jessie McCalla, Orlando.

Alpha Delta Pi had extensive redecorating done during the summer. An alumnae, Mrs Gallaher was the interior decorater. Doris Corry, president and Jean Simon, rush chairman attended the national Alpha Delta Pi convention in Colorado this summer. The A D Pi's entertained Saturday with a luncheon at the house, at which they presented a skit on the "Gay 90's", depicting what happened to vaudeville. Sunday at a weiner roast in the back yard the do's and don'ts of what to wear on the campus were shown in a fashion show. Sunday night the entertainment consisted of a pantomine of popular songs. Monday at the Floridan hotel a skit was given on the history of A D Pi.

Alpha Gamma Delta presented their traditional Esquire skit on Saturday with the members as months of the year on the calendar. A spaghetti dinner was served on Sunday at the house, and on Monday the rushees were taken to the Three Torches tea room. Sarah Pepper, an alumna, entertained by playing the piano and singing. Sunday a skit entitled "The Alpha Gam Girl" was presented. Visiting the Alpha Gams during rush week were Betty Blue Stewart, a national officer, and Sarah Pepper Willis of Tallahassee.

A skit was presented Saturday by the Alpha Xi Deltas with the members dressed as song titles Sunday, talent shows were given. Some of the actives participating were Marian Hopson, pianist, and Judy Courtney, and Billie Kaczinski, singers. A skit based around facts about the sorority was also given. The Alpha Xi's have two transfer students, Betty Tucker from the University of Kentucky who is living at Dale Mabry, and Frannie Michael who was graduated from Iowa Wesleyan and is doing graduate work at FSC. Visiting alums included Mary Lou Sterchi from St Augustine and Betty Godfrey from Shreveport, Louisiana. Mrs Hertwig from Pennsylvania is the new house mother.

The Floridan Hotel will be the scene of the Chi Omega pledge banquet Wednesday night. The pledges will then be presented to the alumnae visiting here.

Alumnae, members and pledges were present at a dinner Sunday night at the Silver Slipper and on Monday night at the Chi Omega house. Alumnae visiting during rush week from Tampa are Margaret Sparrow, Laura Pratt, Dolly Sutton, Nan Rhea Chackleford and Mrs Herman Harris. Kathryn Steed of Orlando and Patty Bates from Jacksonville are also here for rush week.

Delta Delta Delta entertained during rush week with various parties including the traditional reception featuring the Tri Delta quarter, a novelty fashion show, a lightflash party presenting a Crescent Night Club, and a skit entitled, Life in a Sorority House. Other entertainment consisted of a Tri Delta legend and a Tri Delta wedding.

Alumnae visiting the Tri Delta house during rush week are Mrs Blanch Spaton from Gainesville, Ruth L'Engle of Jacksonville, Mrs Carl Miller from Orlando, Mrs Emily Morgan Miner, Orlando, Mrs Helen Rudisall and Mrs Babby Beckworth of Tampa, Mrs Marion Berry from Tallahassee, Marjorie Morrison, DeFuniak Springs, Mrs A W Ramsdell of Plant City and Mary Julia Bailey from Tampa.

Delta Phi Epsilon highlighted their rush week activities with a banquet at the Cherokee Hotel last Sunday night. The president, Esther Argintar and house mother, Mrs W E Murr were speakers at the dinner. A sketch book program was presented under the direction of Eileen Murinson for a mixed crowd Saturday night, when all enjoyed an evening of dancing and entertainment.

Present at the formal reception held Friday evening were Delta Phi patronesses Mrs Abe Gross, Mrs Lewis Turner, Mrs Sam Robbins, Mrs Lou Gibbs, Rabbi and Mrs Ernest Lorge, and Mrs Ben Horne. An alumna at the reception was Mrs Harold Mendelson, formerly Lillian Sleet. Also returned this year to complete her college course is an alumna, Mrs Anita Gilbert.

Delta Zeta redecorated during the summer in their sorority colors, rose and green. Mrs H G Stewart, and alumnae presented the House with two original oil paintings. Among the rush parties were a mother goose party, with members dressed as characters from mother goose rhymes; a southern plantation party, with the hostesses wearing old-fashioned gowns; and a style show depicting a weekend at the Phi Gamma Delta house in Gainesville. A formal banquet was given at the Cherokee Hotel with the traditional rose service in conclusion. Alumnae visiting during rush week include Lorene Nickolson, Amsterdam, Georgia; Sue Hitton, Jacksonville; and Mrs F W Williams, Tallahassee.

Kappa Alpha Theta visitors here to assist with rushing were, Margo Roberts, Miami; Claire Gray, Savannah, Ga; Julia Nell Monticello, Jeanette Leslie, Tallahassee; Marian McEwen, Miami; Ann Avery, Miami; Mary Byron, Pensacola; Phy Thompson, Vocelle, Tallahassee; and Mary McCann, Jacksonville. Entertainment consisted of several skits which were "Theta Through the Ages", "Dr Swing", and "Even Greener" and Songs by Joyce Stroberg, Claire Gray, and Helen McCann. Monologues were given by Kay Harrison.

At the Kappa Delta house on Saturday when Nancy Wright was in charge of entertainment, a skit entitled "Oh Woesland or Our Roseland" was presented. Sunday Mary Nell Thrower presented a minstrel, "KD Cotton Gin". Monday Dorothy Martin was in charge of the "White Rose Ceremony" Alumnae back for KD rushing were: Sara Jane McKelvy, Jacksonville; Peggy Grimsley, Columbus, Ga; Ruby Plant, Tallahassee; Mary Shelly Carr, Monticello; Josephine Anderson, Monticello; Jean and Lois Wilson, Tampa; Patty Folsom, Tampa; and Tedy Parker, Pensacola.

Pi Phi alumnae here for the week-end were Jean Yothers, Orlando, Louise Brown, DeLand and Esther Kerr, Jacksonville. Saturday the Pi Phi's presented a fashion show entitled "Dream," with Ann Carter as mistress of ceremonies. Sunday a minstrel, which was a take-off or Spike Jones, was given. A program with the Varga calendar girl as its theme was given Sunday. Monday was "Heaven Night" at the Pi Phi house.

Entertainment during the Phi Mu rush parties last weekend consisted of a skit with Barbara Lanford and Zeane Lanier, a reading, "The Waltz", by Laura Simpson, and songs by Laura and Hazel Clarkson. Alumnae back for rushing were: Mrs Warren Blackburn, formerly Della Rhodes, of Jacksonville; Alene Goodman, of Miami; Mrs W D Hollins, Jacksonville, Hazel Clark, Jacksonville; and Elizabeth Cassels, Plant City.

Sigma Kappa alumnae back for rush week were: Lynette Patton, Jacksonville; Betty Bryson, Tallahassee; Sara Ellison, Doris Dunaway and Fay Hall, all of Tallahassee. Pricilla Clark Selver, Clearwater, and Beebe Winters Kazanzas, Pensacola Entertainment by the Sigma Kappa girls consisted of a can-can skit, a fashion show, songs by Dallas Stever, novelty numbers by Drew Gannon and Virginia Sapp, and a progressive room party.

The Zeta Tau Alpha girls had as their alumnae guests during the week-end Mrs Harry Mills of Jacksonville and Myra Pattishall, also of Jacksonville. A skit with a radio serial as its theme was given Saturday. Sunday an amateur program was given, and Monday a candlelight service was held. Calista Hatcher sang.

Senate Holds Nominations, Discussions

Steering Committee Head Tells of Disappointment In Candidates' Response

Committee For Senior Hall Rules Extension Appointed

A tentative election of dormitory officers, nominations for chairman of the auditing committee, continued discussion concerning the Constitution Committee, formulation of rules governing the Senate meeting, and various reports were on the calendar of the student senate meeting Wednesday afternoon in the Longmire building.

Dalia Santos, chairman of Senate, has called the next meeting of Senate for Wednesday, October 16. Of particular interest to the student body will be discussion of whether Sunday dancing will be permitted. Also on the agenda is the report of the Senior Hall committee.

Constitution

Janice Richey, Constitution Steering committee chairman, stated that student response in applying for candidacy for the constitutional alteration committee was disappointing. Only five seniors, 12 juniors, and 13 sophomores had written the platform which had been designated as a prerequisite for candidacy. Because of this, Senate voted against the written platform (in a straw vote), thereby making anyone who applies eligible for candidacy if the steering committee accepts this recommendation.

There is a minimum of 12 needed from each class to serve on the committee, and since there has been an inadequate number to stage the election, Senate decided to take action in the matter and delay the issue until such time as an adequate number qualify. Sarah Lewis, CGA president, read a letter from Dean Olivia N Dorman, chairman of the Faculty committee on Student Affairs, in which the faculty gave approval of the constitutional changes committee and offered any faculty aid necessary to the achievement of the desired ends of the committee.

Dormitory Election

It was necessary that the election of dormitory presidents and vice-presidents be on a tentative basis because names of those elected must first go through the various administrative offices as a check for scholastic and other qualifications.

Those elected for house presidents were Annette Maples, Parkside; Patricia Yates, Campuside and Hillside; Dot Bishop, Dale Mabry freshmen; and Nancy Barber, Dale Mabry upperclassmen.

1946 Flastacowos To Be Distributed

The Flastacowo staff has just received word that the 1946 annual will be ready for delivery some time next week, Louise Sims, editor of that publication announced.

The annuals will be distributed by the sophomore council girls on the bottom floor of the Longmire building. Due to a delay on about 300 of the covers, there will not be enough for each student to receive one at this first distribution. Annuals will be given out on the basis of first come, first served, said Louise.

All annuals should be ready for distribution in the near future, according to Louise, but the staff decided that it would be better to give out the ones they have rather than to delay the whole student body any longer.

Geography Club Has Annual Member Drive

The annual membership drive of the Geography club will be held Tuesday and Wednesday at a booth in lower Westcott.

All students interested in geography and related subjects are invited to join this organization, according to Nicky Sartoris, club president.

The booth will be open from 8:30 to 12:30 before lunch and from 2:30 to 4:30 after lunch.

Speech Clinic

Any student who has a speech problem and wishes help in speech improvement, free of charge, contact Miss Elizabeth Thompson in room 108 History at 3:30 on Mondays or 11:30 on Thursdays. In case of a conflict, drop a note, including your schedule card, to the Speech Clinic, box 1024, and an appointment will be arranged.

U of F Branch Plans Self Rule

Intramurals and Shows Discussed at Assembly

"Since we have no traditions to guide the organization of the University branch," said Dr Otis McBride at the second of the weekly men's assemblies, held last Tuesday, "we are going to be guided by experience, creating only such rules as we find necessary."

Conduct in the dormitories has been exemplary, added Dr McBride, the only complaints received so far being about a few radios that were turned on too loud during the hours for study. Dr McBride also emphasized the fact that since the majority of the students at Dale Mabry have been in the service they are old enough to take care of themselves, and interested enough in their studies to make good students without the kind of supervision necessary for high school graduates.

A provisional for student government was offered, including a president for each class and a president for the entire student body. Barracks which had not already elected a student representative were urged to do so as soon as possible, since there was much business for which they were necessary, and which was being held up until all the barracks were represented.

Intramural Sports Planned

A barracks representative will also be elected to head each unit in the prospective intramural sports program. Teams will be formed by each barracks, with the exception of 701, the largest, which will be divided into the two separate floors; and the two smallest, which will be combined in order to give them a fair chance against the larger units.

Day students will be organized into three groups for competition with the other intremural units.

The gym is now open to students who wish to try different sports, with complete equipment available for boxing and other athletics.

Identity Cards to Be Issued

Pocketbook size identity cards will be issued to all male students at Dale Mabry, in order to prevent non-students from using privileges such as the college busses and the Longmire building.

They will also be stamped by the business office for use in the Speech Department To Present Comedy

Tryouts for "Arsenic and Old Lace," the first speech department production of the year, were held Wednesday night and last night in the Augusta Conradi theater, but the cast has not as yet been announced. This play will be presented under the direction of Miss Yvonne Cody, instructor in speech, within a few weeks.

The cast for "Arsenic and Old Lace" will include three women and eleven men. This play, written by Joseph Kesselring, has had a long and successful run on Broadway and was made into a motion picture starring Priscilla Lane and Cary Grant. It is the humorous story of two elderly women who poison a long series of lonely old men in order to put them out of their misery.

Two of the five plays to be presented by the speech department this year will be given before Christmas, according to Miss Cody. She also stated that a musical comedy is being considered for the final production of the year.

Stardusters Needed

The "Stardusters," FSCW's all-girl swing band, is in the process of reorganization, it was announced by Betty Jean Allen, who is in charge of the band at this time. Membership for the band is complete except for several players in the saxophone section, and Betty Jean requests that all saxophone players who desire to join, contact her as soon as possible.

Students Learn Language In New "Casa de Espanol"

Do you know that there now exists on this campus a place where 15 FSC students speak only Spanish? This unique place appropriately called "The Spanish House" and situated directly behind the library, was started only this summer.

The purpose of the new plan is to give girls who have finished Spanish 203 the opportunity to practice and to learn to speak Spanish. These girls are under the guidance of Miss Carmen Rivera, a native Puerto Rican and faculty member, who sets the correct example in her native tongue and no doubt eases the conversation over the "rough spots."

The new venture was a big success during the summer, and the girls enjoyed many social activities including an invitation to Gainesville extended by the club Los Picaros. The girls eat one meal a day at the Spanish table and participate in a social hour afterward, at which they sing Spanish songs, play Spanish games and in general "forget" the English language.

If you are having trouble learning to play bridge, think of the pitfalls involved in trying to make yourself understood in Spanish at the same time. In the complexities of the Spanish language you would find yourself taking a bath in soup instead of soap which would at least present a slightly different twist to the activity set aside for Saturday night.

The girls at Spanish House might easily be called the most ambitious gals on campus. A few of the activities that they plan to carry out are a play to be given in the Little Theater, a dance, a radio program to be presented over WTAL, and an Open House. They would also like to form a Spanish club on campus which would be open to all Spanish students. Visitors are welcome at all times whether you would like to carry on a conversation in Spanish or just see the house. Better study your idioms though because its an excellent place to exhibit ignorance as well as knowledge.

La Meri to Dance Here

Tickets to Be Distributed For Both Red, Blue Series

Reserve seat tickets for the performance of La Meri, exotic dancer, will be distributed upon presentation of either red or blue season tickets Monday through Friday of next week from 3:30 until 5:30 pm in the basement of the Longmire building. All students, including men enrolled under the Tallahassee branch of the University of Florida, are eligible to attend this performance.

La Meri will appear at Florida State College on Friday and Saturday, October 25 and 26, the first program being for those holding red tickets and the second for holders of blue ones. Dressed in a variety of foreign costumes, she will present the native dances of various lands during her appearance here.

In her repertoire La Meri includes Hindu dances, the Hawaiian "Alekoki", the Arabian cafe dance and the Javanese "Slendang". She also presents a variety of impressionistic dances.

La Meri has appeared in Mexico, South America and the important capitals of Europe. Following study under Tarasoff, Volinine and others, she made her debut as a classical dancer in 1926.

Education Article Published by Vance

"What Schools Can't Teach" by associate professor of English and Journalism Earl L Vance, is the lead article in the autumn number of the Virginia Quarterly Review, which is just out.

Professor Vance has had numerous other articles on education published in such journals as the Bulletin of the Association of American Colleges, The Education Record of the American Council of Education, the American Association of University Professors Bulletin, and other journals. Articles of his on the press have previously appeared in the Virginia Quarterly Review and in other periodicals.

The main thesis of the present article is that schools and colleges are attempting to teach numerous things, particularly vocational subjects, which they cannot, in fact, teach satisfactorily. Instead of attempting to teach the technical and routing aspects of vocations, Professor Vance suggests that all vocational curricula make education, but education with a special slant, their objective, thus minimizing the strictly technical aspects of their teaching.

Publicity Skit Is Convocation Theme

A joint publicity skit presented by the Women's Athletic Association and the Odd and Even Demonstrations was featured at the first convocation of the year held Tuesday evening. Humorous presentations of the four sports now in season, archery, hockey, soccer and modern dance, were also given at this time.

During the Odd's portion of the program "Tabby the Cat" was sung by a trio consisting of Laura Simpson, Hazel Clarkson and Betty Thones. The Odds also presented a large sign advertising their demonstration.

A classical number sung by Joan Daye featured the Even presentation of talent. Dorothy Butts, as the Lauren Bacall type, and Connie Savage, as the Lucille Ball type, exemplified the characters that the Evens are seeking for their demonstration.

Dr. Irish Defines IRC To New Members

Gardner Announces Goal Of 100 Members Met

"The objective of the International Relations Club is to acquaint students with international news and politics," stated Dr Marion Irish, professor of political science and faculty sponsor of IRC, Thursday at the reception which was held in the Longmire building at 5 o'clock.

Dee Gardner, president of IRC, announced that the goal of a hundred new members was reached during the membership drive which was held last Tuesday and Wednesday in lower Westcott.

"Moreover," Dee added, "a larger percentage than was expected of these new members are boys from the Tallahassee branch of Florida University."

"There have been no definite plans made for the year as yet," continued Dee, "but there will be lectures, debates, programs, and parties throughout the year to make the IRC a more interesting and profitable organization than ever before."

Senior

Dr Elizabeth G Andrews, director of personnel, requests all girls, expecting to graduate the first or second quarter, to report to the personnel office within the next two weeks for a check of their records.

Tally U Boys To Give Dance At Dale Mabry

Sophomores to Be Guests At Student Union

Student Band to Be Featured; Men to Present Floor Show

The first dance to be given by students of the Tallahassee Branch of the University of Florida will be held Saturday night from eight to twelve in the Student Union at Dale Mabry, honoring sophomore girls of Florida State College and all the girls who live at Dale Mabry.

Arrangements for the dance are under the direction of student committees. Special invitations have been sent to Governor Millard F Caldwell, Dr and Mrs Doak S Campbell, Miss Olivia Dorman, dean of students, all school academic deans, and Dr William T Edwards, registrar.

Music for dancing will be furnished by a student dance band formed under the direction of Mr Robert G Smith of the music department. He states that the band has developed into a "solid sending" crew.

At intermission there will be a floor show under the emceeing of Milton Flack, said to resemble Frank Sinatra. A skit, tap dancing number, song numbers by a girl and a boy vocalist, numbers by a song trio, and other acts will be presented. Arrangements are under the direction of Ed Morgan, program committee chairman.

Decoration of the Student Union hall under the supervision of Gordon Higginbotham will display a fall motif.

Transportation by bus will be furnished for the sophomore girls, leaving from the campus at 7:30 p m. The reception committee under the chairmanship of Neill Stanfill, will be the hosts. Buses will return to the campus at 12 o'clock.

James Diffenbaugh will be in charge of committee arranging refreshments.

Tickets are being sold by various men students and only men need them. They may also be obtained at the office of Otis McBride, dean of men, and will be sold at the door at dance time. Admission price is fifty cents.

Three Classes Meet To Fill Vacancies

Nominations of two senators and a faculty sponsor are on the agenda for the first meeting of the sophomore class today at 4:45 in the Longmire auditorium. Elections will be held on Monday, October 14, according to Polly Tuttle, class president.

The first junior class meeting of the year was held Tuesday in the Longmire building. Nominations for chairmen of the Junior-Senior Prom was the main business.

Candy Jones, Janet Robertson, Franklin Smith, Jeanie Booth, and Dottie Smith were nominated for that position.

The first Senior class meeting of the year was held Monday, at which time two important announcements were made by Jean Cole, president of the senior class.

Comet Makes FSC Students Star Gazers

"Star light, star bright . . . my goodness, it's red . . . and it's falling!"

"Oh-h-h-h. Look."

As thousands of meteors, shed by the comet Gracobini-Zinner lit up the Tallahassee sky, students at Florida State College took the presented opportunity to do a bit of "star-gazing." The campus took on the appearance of a section struck by the plague. Everywhere prone figures were seen; gazing fixedly into the star-shot sky. Tilted heads watched one of the most brilliant astronomical exhibitions of the century.

Miss Elizabeth Lynn, astronomer at FSC said that although the celestial show began early Wednesday evening, the biggest display came between 10:40 and 10:50 p m. During that time Miss Lynn said she counted more than fifteen meteors per minute.

"They look like they're chasing each other, there are so many falling," one gazer remarked.

"Look at that orange one . . . and that red one. I've never seen anything like this," another gasped.

"The next time I start to wish on a star I'd better be sure it really is a star," was heard as light flashes brought an end to an evening's "star gazing."

Pay Increase Given Student Assistants

Base Rate Now 40c Per Hour, 50c Payed Two Groups

An increase, beginning this quarter, in the basic pay rate for all student assistants has been approved by the Scholarship and Loan Committee, as announced by Dr Elizabeth G Andrews, personnel director.

The basic pay rate is now 40c per hour, an increase of 33 1-3 per cent over last year's wage. In addition, two special rating groups paying 50c per hour have been created for those classed as "A" typists and for juniors and seniors experienced in a special field of work. In order to secure classification as "A" typist the student may take a test given once each quarter, at a time convenient to the Commerce Department, to determine the eligibility of students for the following quarter.

In the west dining hall this year students in the cafeterias are employed by the hour at the 40c rate instead of by the scholarship plan. Only the freshman dining room now has full time dining room scholarships which are the equivalent of board. The eleven ushers, selected by Miss Annie M Tracy, head dietitian, also receive equivalent of room and board.

Chopin Concert Here

Stanley Fletcher, pianist, will present an all-Chopin request performance at Florida State College Monday, November 4 and Wednesday, November 6, under sponsorship of the Artist Series.

All students who wish to request Chopin numbers for this performance are asked to contact Dean Karl O Kuersteiner of the School of Music by tomorrow at noon in order that these requests may be transmitted to Mr Fletcher.

Varied Facilities Are Provided for Rapid Conversion of Base into College Campus

Boys have often been around construction jobs when they were underway, but for a construction job to get underway around a boy is probably something new in the field of building.

This apparently unique method of building was employed at the Tallahassee branch of the University of Florida when some of the boys arrived before their rooms were prepared.

Dr Otis McBride, dean of men at Dale Mabry, said that "when we first arrived here, carpenters hadn't even begun to work on the men's dormitories. Since that time, thirteen dormitories have been provided to house over five hundred students. All these were reconverted from old army buildings ranging from mess halls and dispensaries to the psychiatric ward."

Dr McBride, who was a major in the air transport command while serving in Africa, is especially experienced in personnel work. As dean of men, he has supervision over personnel problems, discipline, recreation, residence, class attendance, and scholastic achievements.

According to one of the male students, the boys were told to space themselves and their "gear" in the large barracks room and partitions would be built around them.

The two story buildings, which formerly had only one room upstairs and one down, are now divided into 40 or more compartments accommodating approximately 80 students. Contrary to the earlier situation, there are now, reportedly, more than enough rooms to accommodate all the boys and girls living at the former Dale Mabry air base.

Most of the newly built rooms boast of furnishings consisting of double decker bunks, two folding chairs, one portable closet and one chest of drawers. One student cheerfully announced that tables for each room were expected in the near future. Mechanical conveniences consist of one 40 watt light bulb and steam heat for each room. Each of the two floors in the buildings has three showers.

A number of the students have expressed appreciation for the facilities which have already been set up to care for their needs. Among these are a cafeteria, mail distribution center, laundry accommodations, bank and gymnasium.

Those who attend classes at the former army base will, for the time being, write on their laps and warm their toes at a pot-bellied stove. The average sized classrooms, which hold about 30 students, are furnished at present with a table for the instructor, folding chairs for the students and a coal burning stove. Outstanding features of the classrooms, according to one student, are blackboards and good lighting.

Most of the students contacted said they were well pleased with the progress that has been made in converting the base to a college campus. They are even more pleased, however, at the prospect of further improvements, for the future holds promise of bowling alleys, a movie projection room and a recreation room complete with snack bar and dance floor.

One boy summed up what seems to be the prevailing attitude among residents of the new campus when he said, "Just wait till we get fixed up out there! It's really going to be swell!"

Test to Be Given

The English examination for juniors will be given again on Saturday, October 12, at 8:30 a m in the Augusta Conradi theater for those students who missed it previously, announced Dr Hazel A Stevenson, professor of English.

Dr Stevenson explained that this examination is open to all juniors, seniors who have not taken the test, and third-quarter sophomores. This test is required before senior status is officially attained.

AAUW Meet Held Tuesday

November Program Plans, Activities Discussed

The first fall meeting of the American Association of University Women was held Tuesday night, Oct 8, at the Longmire building, FSC.

The meeting was a planning session in which the program for the coming months was outlined, newly appointed committee chairmen were presented, and general problems relative to the year's activities were discussed.

The program, set forth by Miss Edith McCollum, vice president and program chairman, will open with a private meeting at Camp Flastacowo, Tuesday, Nov 12, and will include a program of Christmas music and stories in December and a spring reception honoring members of the graduating Senior class. Other program themes will be the Inca collection, legislative information, and announcement of winners in a Creative Arts contest.

Committee chairmen listed by Miss Marjorie S Judy, president, are: education, Mrs Edgar L Morphet; international relations, Dr Marian Irish; social studies, Miss Edna Van Syoc; creative arts, Mrs Sidney Snow; economic and legal status of women, Mrs Herman Kurz; membership, Mrs William Blair and Miss Mary Schornhurst; fellowship, Miss Gertrude Meet; legislative, Miss Dairy Parker; local scholarship, Dr Venila Shores; and hospitality, Miss Grace Fox.

The membership drive, now in progress was discussed, and it was pointed out that national membership in the AAUW is open to Tallahassee women who are graduates of an acknowledged college or university, and associate membership is open to women who have completed two years at an acknowledged college or university.

Following the business meeting a social hour was enjoyed.

Interviews Started For New Freshmen

The freshman interviewing program began yesterday morning with 17 interviewers from the senior class, selected by Dr Elizabeth G Andrews, director of personnel, gathering the information to go into the records of each new student at FSC.

Dr Andrews requests that any student who has had her schedule changed so that they will be unable to come at the appointed time, check with the personnel office and have different arrangements made to agree with the schedule.

The program will be carried on for three or four weeks, according to Dr Andrews, and the hours of interrogation were set between 8:30 am and 5 pm at the personnel office in Westcott. The data gathered by the senior interviewers will be enlarged as the student progresses through school.

This program is not to include the male student population of the school, but it was announced by Dr Otis McBride, dean of men, that their interviews would probably get underway within a week.

Freshmen May Join Flunkies Tomorrow

All freshmen who desire to do the important unseen tasks around the campus of Florida State College can sign up for Freshmen Flunkies in lower Westcott starting at noon tomorrow and continuing through the next week.

Freshmen Flunkies is made up of three committees: typing, poster making and miscellaneous. The latter consists of decorating and errand running.

In a freshmen meeting, to be held Tuesday, October 22, the general and sub-committee chairmen will be elected. In working with Freshmen Flunkies the freshmen have their first opportunity to become active in the College Government association of FSC.

3081 Students, 506 Men, at FSC This Year

Total Registration Exceeds Other Years at Tallahassee But Less Girls Than in '45

Dale Mabry Women's Dorms Ease Year's Housing Problem

A total enrollment of 3,081 students has been announced for the fall quarter at Florida State College and the Dale Mabry branch of the University of Florida. Of this number, 506 are men enrolled in the U of F branch.

This total registration is larger than that of any previous year, but the number of girls enrolled is smaller than usual. At fall registration in 1945, 2,844 were registered, corresponding to only 2,575 girls here this year.

The housing situation is less acute now than in any past year, since accommodations for 280 girls have been established at Dale Mabry Air Base. Girls there have been given opportunities to move on the campus, although housing on the base is permanent. "Having accommodations at Dale Mabry is proving much more satisfactory than having smaller houses in Tallahassee," stated Miss Edith McCollum, director of residence. "Improvements are constantly being made both for added comfort and to aid in the appearance of the buildings."

Deadlines for changes in room assignments and in registration for students with underloads are both this week. Arrangements for changes in rooms must be made before noon Saturday, October 13. Registration of students taking underloads will be continued through the first of next week.

Band Increases With Male Members

Musicians Still Needed For Many Essential Instruments

"An increase in both quantity and quality of the Florida State College band this year is noticeably apparent," says Annette Vitsky, chairman of band publicity.

For the first time there are men in the concert band; the marching band is still an all girl organization. As one ex- GI phrased it, "We've had enough drilling to last us several life times."

There is still room for latecomers into the group. Anyone interested should contact Owen Sellers, director, or Robert Smith, assistant director, who is beginning his first year on the FSC faculty. Especially needed are oboe, tenor, sax, and bass.

Concert rehearsals are held every Tuesday at 4:30 and Thursday at 7:30. Drill rehearsals are held on Mondays at 4:30.

Several forthcoming trips are being scheduled. One to Panama City to give a concert sponsored by the Lions Club; another to Gainesville sponsored by the U of F band. The dates for these are still tentative.

A party for old and new band members is being held tonight in Landis recreation hall. Emily and Elizabeth Harper, co-social chairmen, will be in charge.

Chinese Display Now in Library

Bright red letters forming the caption "China's Independence—October 10", head the library's current information center this week.

Commemorating that nation's anniversary, a committee from the International Relations Club, headed by Dee Gardner, has arranged a display based on ancient and modern China. The spirit of the display is well expressed by a cartoon bearing the slogan, "God made us neighbors; let justice make us friends."

Fiction and factual books and pamphlets by Lin Yutang, Pearl Buck, Nora Wain and other authors outstanding for their contributions on China fill two tables. In order that the student may grasp China's geographical scope, a map of that country has been posted on one wall.

Also on display is a volume by Kurt Wiese entitled, "You Can Write Chinese." Closely resembling a child's alphabet book, the volume provides illustrations as a means of conveying some of the more common characters used in written Chinese.

Campus Police Work Long Hours at Variety of Jobs

The familiar badge and uniform of the campus policemen may look friendly, but they mean business! This year, with increased population on the Tally campus, the policemen are busier than ever before. Not only does the campus cop execute the usual police duties, but he is fire warden and chief of traffic control. Also, among other tasks, he patrols the campus, locks the buildings, controls the campus lights, and escorts any late-to-arrive co-ed to her dormitory.

At Dale Mabry Field, there are two dozen of the busy blue-clad men who work together 24 hours a day, coming on duty with clock-like regularity every two hours. Their jobs are similar to the policemen's jobs at FSC.

Here on the Tally campus are two deputy sheriffs who perform other jobs during the day on campus, but who are subject to call if needed. There are four night watchmen who work from 7 pm to 7 am.

Perhaps it is the night watch men who have the more difficult job. Theirs is the duty of tact while being businesslike as various goodnights are said by co-eds to their dates. One of the night watchmen was heard to remark sadly, "Light flashes seem to be the most popular times of all." Another chimed in, "Yes, especially the last one!"

Glee Club Adds 90 Members

Virginia Der Gerry Elected President of Group

Ninety members of the Florida State College Glee Club have just been selected from tryouts held Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday of last week, announced Etta L Robertson, director of the group.

The following officers were elected: Virginia Der Gerry, president; Daphne Rowe, vice president and publicity chairman; Ann Townsend, secretary and treasurer; and Jeanette Chapman, business manager. Eleanor Bragg of Tampa is accompanist.

Those chosen for the Glee Club are: First sopranos, Alice Wheeler, Mary Jane Kirst, Mary Lois Conn, Doris O'Neill, Paula Teagarden, Sorale Brameister, Bettye Kent, Betty Houlihan, Jeannelle Brown, Dixie Kennedy, Betty Owen, Maurice Wilson, Joyce Stroberg, Nina Craig, Joan Daye, Barbara Marlin, Jacqueline Cox, and Juanita Coleman. Odd-Even Shows

Men to help in the traditional Odd-Even shows, to be held at Thanksgiving, were requested by Nancy Wright, for the Odds, and Ioa Lee Rentz, for the Evens.

Men are needed for singing or speaking parts, as well as scenery painting, backstage work, and any special work at which they may be talented.

New Bulletin Board

A new bulletin board for the men is to be erected in Westcott hall, the board at the Administration building having proved unsatisfactory for reaching the entire student body, especially the day students.

The new board will carry duplicate announcements of the original board, and will be supplemented by boards to be put up in each barracks at Dale Mabry.

Anne Singleton was appointed by the chair to form a senate association committee to suggest ways to present Senate material to the student body in CGA assembly.

The Senior Hall committee, appointed by the chair, and designated the task of uncovering possible problems which would develop out of permitting all seniors, regardless of residence, the privileges of Senior Hall, reported that no definite progress had been made. Serving on the committee are: Shirley Rodgers, chairman; Herkie White, Anne Hunter, Harriet Kirk, Rachel Chambers and Betty Gardiner.

Barbara Randolph was elected chairman of the handbook committee by unanimous ballot. This committee assimilates, edits and revises the FSC handbook which contains information regarding rules, regulations, and traditions.

Senate Rules

Also decided on were the rules regarding Senate meetings. Regular meetings, to be held in the Longmire auditoruim, will commence at 4:45 and end at 6. Senators must be present during the time stated in order to be counted present. Three cuts on the basis of one per quarter will be allotted each senator. No subs can be used. A fine of fifty cents will be levied upon any senator who overcuts.

14 Married Veterans Housed In Unit 700 at Dale Mabry

By LAURA LEE BUTLER

The noisy clatter of moving furniture, a "wet paint" sign adorning a shiny, gray door, the faint, lingering odor of burnt toast. These things indicate the air of domesticity that is fast becoming a part of Unit 700, one of the two dwellings which house Tally U's married veterans.

Here 14 couples, overflow from Gainesville's housing shortage, have set up housekeeping in a series of two-room suites. Together with the four couples with children who live in apartments at Unit 600, they represent approximately three percent of Dale Mabry's veteran population.

Former barracks 700 contains no lounge or other sitting room, its suites are tiny and lack plastering of any sort, and its small, antiquated water fountains persistently refuse to work: but despite minor difficulties, a spirit of cooperation and a determination to "make a go of it" seem characteristic of this segment of America's GI students.

Upstairs, in a suite equipped with new, modernistic furniture provided by the college, live Mr and Mrs Charles Tobias, who, alone among the couples in 700, are both attending college.

Helen, a merry-eyed brunette, was also a student at Florida State College before her marriage to tall, blond Charles, who served in the European theater during his two and one-half year army career. Now a junior, she is majoring in social work. Her husband, unlike most veterans in 700, is entering college as a sophomore.

"I cook Charlie's breakfast on a hotplate here before dashing off for those crowded buses and my early morning classes," Helen explained when asked about their daily routine at Dale Mabry. "Because my classes are scattered throughout the day, I seldom get back again before six o'clock, which is just in time to start cooking supper. All in all," she concluded, "It's a pretty hectic life—but we love it."

Downstairs, in a suite ominously numbered 13, are Mr and Mrs Wiley Douglass, as well as two couples from across the hall who had crowded into their tiny, 15-foot room. The Douglasses, both veterans, both former Navy pharmacists mates, discussed the laundry situation.

Mrs Douglass motioned toward the long rows of white shirts flapping gayly in the breeze. "The school provides us with plenty of clothes line," she commented, "but they apparently forgot all about laundry facilities. We have to wash clothes in a bucket."

In a more serious vein, Mrs Douglass explained that she does not plan to take advantage of the GI Bill of Rights herself, but, like many other veterans' wives at Dale Mabry, expects to work either at the college or in Tallahassee. Her husband, who wishes to major in pharmacy, will take his basic general courses at FSC and then transfer to Gainesville.

Saturday Freshman Open House Day

500 U of F Students Attend Receptions, Dances

Three freshman dormitories, Bryan, Reynolds and Jennie Murphree, held open house last Saturday night for the 500 men students from the University of Florida, with other freshman girls from Dale Mabry and the Village acting as co-hostesses. The evening's entertainment began at 7:30 and lasted until first light flash time at 11:15. Punch bowls were provided in each of the three parlors, and there was dancing in the recreation rooms of Reynolds and Bryan, as well as ping-pong, card games, and checkers in Bryan.

In Reynolds hall half of the hostesses were girls from Dale Mabry, and the others were freshmen and junior counselors from Reynolds. The reception room of Reynolds, where dancing was held, was decorated with vines and vari-colored flowers.

Forty students from the Village were co-hostesses with forty from Bryan, enabling them to work in shifts during the evening for the "at home" in Bryan parlor. Committees in charge of decorations and refreshments were also made up of representatives of the two dormitories. Vines and crepe flowers were used to cover the posts, staircase, and mantle, and throughout the recreation room. Dancing was also a feature here during the evening, as were ping pong, checkers, and card games.

In Jennie Murphree parlor guests gathered around the piano to hear everything "from Bach to Boogie" when an unidentified U of F student gave an impromptu concert, of which a feature was "I'm Goin' Back to Jacksonville". Since many of those listening were from that city, this song was quite well received, and encores were granted.

Miss Pope, resident counselor of Bryan, summed up the opinions of the other resident counselors and committee workers in saying that "A great many more attended than had been expected, and all agreed the evening was a great success."

Contest Rules Announced

Magazine Offers Guest Editor Awards This Month

National collegiate competition for the annual Mademoiselle college board and guest editor contest will be open until November 1, according to an announcement from the personnel office.

Contestants for college board membership must submit a trial report, consisting of approximately two typewritten double spaced pages, on any phase of campus life, academic courses, fashion, fad, activity, organization or trend. A snapshot must be submitted with complete data regarding college and home addresses, class year, college major and minor, other interests and extracurricular activities and any paid or volunteer jobs held. These must be mailed to the College Board Editor, Mademoiselle, 122 East 42 Street, New York 17, New York.

Other qualifications for board membership are: applicant must be an undergraduate attending an accredited college or junior college; must be available to work during the month of June, 1947, in the offices of Mademoiselle helping to put out the August college issue. Students can earn while learning during this month, and Mademoiselle pays railroad fares to and from New York.

The twenty most outstanding college board members will be selected as guest editors for 1947. These girls will attend Mademoiselle's first career forum sponsored by the jobs and futures department, which is designed to help college girls clarify their aims and ambitions and find locations.

The forum will provide students with the chance to evaluate themselves vocationally, there will be interviews with people who are professionally successful, and discussions will be held with career alumnae on the problems of post-college plans.

Fake Snake Scares Four Feminine Fans

A silent terror stalks the streets of Tallahassee. Several groups of girls hurrying down College Avenue to see their dearly-beloved Van last Friday night were victims of the terror.

Gaily swinging down the sidewalk never imagining the underfoot danger approaching the first group of four walked fearlessly onward. Suddenly a terrified scream chilled the already cool air. Three more of the same yells made the temperature drop even lower. For there, slithering across the sidewalk, rattling and hissing menacingly, was a huge snake. Or so it appeared to be until two giggling small-fries darted from behind the shrubbery to claim their rope and rehide it to literally scare the living day-lights out of some more unsuspecting Tally gals. And they did too—as other screams proved.

In the darkness the rope was reported to most realistically resemble a snake, and the fact that it was pulled through crackling leaves accounted for the hissing and rattling. Wonder if the snake crawled across in front of the girl and her date? Might have proved most delightful to the date.

Steffens Stumps Stupid Student

The space of time between registration and the starting of classes drove one girl even to the point of trying to find a good book to read.

The library was open, but books were not to be checked out.

"Does anyone have a good book that I can read?" pleaded one junior.

"I have the Autobiography of Lincoln Steffins that you can borrow. And it's a very good book," offered her companion.

"The Autobiography of Lincoln Steffins?" the junior repeated. "Who wrote it?"

Editor's Note: We are wondering if said junior successfully passed the junior English exemption exam!

Language Classes Learn From Records

Use of Oral Practice, Records Based on Army Experience

The modern language department is for the first three weeks teaching orally all first year modern language classes without the student seeing any of the written language.

"This new method of study is based on experience gained from the Army Specialized Training program," said Dr D L Canfield, head of the Modern Language Department.

Special emphasis is being placed on pronunciation, accentuation, and intonation. "This oral approach is being used to help modern Language students speak the language without confusing the pronunciation of the written language by pronouncing it as one would pronounce English," said Dr Canfield.

Records are placed at listening periods held every afternoon, Monday through Friday. The records played at these listening periods are composed so as to include all the sounds of the particular language being recited. Records are to be put in dormitories and given to students who have their own phonographs so they can study the pronunciation of the language they are studying. "Students can imitate the sound of a language better by hearing it than by seeing it," said Dr Canfield.

There are a good number of veterans taking French and German who learned something of the languages while they were stationed overseas, but Dr Canfield said that only one veteran passed an exemption test.

Critical Book Shortage Faces FSC Student Body

By WINIFRED LANE

Along with boat-cabin residences, greenhouse classrooms and stadium convocations in other colleges over the country, GI students are a little short on textbooks. After just one week of fall session at Tallahassee's Florida State College and new University extension, the situation is summed up when Gordon Wheeler, bookstore manager, says "The campus may be crowded but textbooks don't contribute to the crowding!"

Only 19 copies of Homer's Iliad have yet been received for a humanities class enrollment of well over 500. Some of the deficit is being filled by second-hand soliciting and changes in class schedules, but many students, especially among the 1500 freshman men and women, are bound to face barren desks in the near future.

Wheeler says that six to nine months estimated delivery date is now the rule, and a promise of "maybe next summer" for textbook orders is not unusual.

In the chemistry and accounting departments of the FSC campus this year many students, 50 percent in the case of one book, are being forced to use paper back "ghost" copies of texts, containing only a portion of the full number of chapters. Orders were placed last June to cover the estimated increase in needs for girls to be enrolled at FSC this fall, but no provisions were made for the unexpected number of men students at the University branch here until just before opening the school session, according to Wheeler.

Textbooks in the fields of biological science, social studies, classic art, and English grammar are especially desired at the present time. In some instances no part of the orders placed for this year have been filled. (The immediate need for a large number of copies of Homer's Iliad and Virgil's Aeneid is sufficiently urgent that faculty requests Tallahassee townspeople to call 872-R if any copies are available).

A branch of the campus bookstore is to be opened at Dale Mabry in approximately three weeks but will carry only such school supplies as paper, pencils and notebooks because of the extreme shortages in all textbooks. Supplies of the other school materials, particularly zipper notebooks, are also to be quite limited.

Difficulties apparently extend throughout the publishing industry, according to one representative of a national textbook publishing company. "Labor and material shortages, specifically paper or wood pulp, may delay orders in the near future even though presses keep running day and night," he said.

Athletes' Feats

By EVELYN SHEA

Sports practices for the Thanksgiving games got off to ang this week with a large number of girls out for both DD and EVEN teams. Both rival sides can boast experienced players with the ODDS having the edge in the sports r this first quarter.

Looking at the ODD hockey team prospects, Nita Nord, ader, is assured of having an entire team with skilled girls each position. This is the same hockey team that handed e EVEN hockey team a 4-0 drubbing last year.

However, Marion Floyd, EVEN leader, has an enthusias-c freshman group which she things can't be beat.

The Odd Soccer team under the leadership of Virginia almer, is in the identical position that the Odd hockey team except that the EVENS triumphed over that team last anksgiving 6-2. Football Field' Is Welcoming Theme

A party for freshmen and new ulty members in the physical cation department was the Health, Recreation and Phy-al Education association get-ther this quarter. "Football ld" was the theme, and the nasium became Tally Bowl r the occasion.

The guests were divided into ups of eleven with a captain each "team." Folk dancing ected by Miss Grace Fox, in-ructor in physical education, gan the activity. Each group nt from one teacher to anoth-r for several minntes of recrea-on and getting acquainted.

After refreshments were serv- Dr Katherine Montgomery, ad of the department, and Miss a Mowles, president of the as-ciation welcomed the new fac-ty members and physical edu-ion majors. Nita Bowles com-ented "We were surprised at e large number who came and that the party was a big ccess."

SC Sends Three Delegates to Meet

The Alpha Chapter of Florida Beta Kappa sent three dele-tes to attend the council meet-s of the United Chapter of Phi ta Kappa at Williamsburg, Vir-ia on September 9 and 10.

The delegates were Miss Miriam lson, Presbyterian student sec-ary Miss Daisy Parker, instruc-r in political science, and Dr. ella L Shores, professor of his-y. While the delegates attend- the meeting they were the sts of William and Mary Uni-ity where they lived in one the college dormitories and at the college refectory.

Minnows Selected

New Tarpon Club minnows. who were selected at try-outs on Monday and Tuesday and who held their first meeting on Thursday afternoon at 5:15, are Helen Hoerger, Bette Barnes, Jane Carol Levy, Rosa Lee Davis, Jane Shirley and Margaret Swanson.

Housing Authority Advises No Buying

Because we are in the midst of as serious a real estate inflation as this country has eevr seen, it is folly to buy or build a home in the present market, according to Miles Colean, former Assistant Federal Housing Administrator.

"Don't build. Don't buy," Colean declares in an article in the August issue of House Beautiful magazine, a publication which ordinarily encourages the construction of new homes.

Recognized as America's leading housing economist, Colean hits straight from the shoulder in his advice to prospective home builders or buyers when he states in the article:

"It's strange for a home magazine to recommend this. But if it's the truth, we should not be afraid to say so. No other advice makes any sense now. Except under the direct necessity, stay out of the housing market. You can't win except on the shortest of deals, and you are almost certain to lose in the long run."

Colean points out that any builder or buyer in the present market only adds to the pressure on prices and that not only will they lose but they will be forcing others to lose.

"If you buy or build now, you face the grim outlook of losing in dollar value and quantity value," he declares. "Not only will you yourself lose, but you will be helping others to lose, too, for every buyer added to today's prices adds to the pressure on prices. Hole in where you are, if you possibly can, till the storm sweeps by.

"This is hard advice to take after four or five years of waiting and planning. It is particularly hard advice after the fair prospects we could glimpse a year and even less than a year ago. But the discouraging fact is now plain: we are in the inidst of as serious a real estate inflation as the country has seen.

"Inflation—dangerous inflation—is here now. Watch, look, and stop. There is an old saying, 'To the starving man all bread is good.' Today's building bread is bad. Be sure that you are starving before you take it."

Evans and Kirlin Receive Fellowships

Provides Two-Year Student-Teacher Career at FSC

The first graduate fellowships that have been offered in the department of physical education have been granted to Miss Lura Beth "Babe" Evans, a 1946 graduate of Florida State College, and Miss Betty Kirlin, graduate of Ursinus College in Pennsylvania. The fellowship provides for the girls to be part-time students and part-time teachers.

"Babe" Evans of Orlando is a former president of F Club and member of Esteren on this campus, and a member of Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities. She was graduated from this college in June with a B S in Education.

Betty Kirlin of Allentown, Pennsylvania, was graduated from Ursinus College in 1944 with a B S in Physical Education. She was president of the student body and a member of Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities. Foe the past two years she has been Recreation Director for the Miami YWCA.

The fellowship provides for two years of graduate study and teaching. At the end of that time they will receive master's degrees in education.

FSC Cuties Cheer For Florida Teams

History is in the making! FSC's seven campus cuties wearing white skirts and sweaters with orange and blue F's, will be leading the yells this year for the University of Florida team.

Eddie Hill, head cheerleader at Florida, arrived Tuesday to pick the lucky seven from thirty girls competing for positions as cheerleader. From five o'clock 'til seven Eddie racked his brain trying to judge, but, lo and behold, such vim and vigor displayed by Dot Wynn, Ann Shull, Sidney Conner, Hank Trezevent, Charlotte High, Dot Ring, and Rachael McInnis caught his eye . . . and you'll see 'em in action when the Gators and Hurricanes meet.

It'll be the first time in the history of either school to have both boys and girls leading the cheers for the state team. Homecoming, the 19th of October, will mark their first demonstration, and if you didn't hear the screaming and commotion going on in front of Landis when the girls tried out, you're urged to make the game and see for yourself.

Dorm Meetings Held

Designed to set the pace for the year, house meetings this week introduced residence counselors and house officers, who explained their duties and discussed the specific aims of their particular dorms. In addition to this, skits presenting and defining house council were given in all freshman halls.

Concluding the meetings was an explanation of the rules and regulations pertaining to fire drills.

Dripping Downpour; Shining Sun Start Season for Odd-Even Play

The Odd-Even sports season got off to a rather wet start last Monday afternoon. Due to the downpour most of the Even turn-out was limited to pushing a pen to sign the lists for try-outs. However, Elaine Gavigan's soccer team aspirants retired to the little gym to get a few pointers on tactics.

Tuesday afternoon King Sol was shining brightly and a large number of loyal Odds turned out to begin the season's practice.

Since there has been some discussion about how the men would react to the women· sports, the first thing done was to see if there were any masculine observers or or in the vicinity of the fields. We weren't disappointed—ah yes, there was a man out—well a kind of a man—a little boy of about six from the Dem school. He rode his little tricycle around and paid not the slightest attention to the clack-clack of the hockey sticks and the dribbles of the soccer players. The Evens did a little better—late Wednesday afternoon as soccer scrimmage was going on and everyone was quite bedraggled as a result of the afternoon work-out a car full of Co-eds came up and stopped. At this stage of the game the players were concentrating on getting the ball through the opposing team's defenses so they couldn't very well stop to repair their make-up as their womanly instincts demanded. After watching a few minutes the fellas drove off.

A few of the freshman hockey players are relieved to learn that it is a foul in hockey to raise the stick aoove the shoulder. That decapitated character that walked across the stage the other night in Convocation made them quite dubious about whether to sign up for hockey—it seems that their heads and teeth are quite dear to them at this stage of their lives.

Some were skilled and others were anxious to learn. Arrows were flying everywhere from the bunkers to the Magnolia Hall. Miss Sitton the Odd archery coach tells us that although she has a lot of new material, she expects to have a crack archery team in a few weeks. The newly elected Odd archery leader for this year is Kit Johnson.

One and two and three and kick and turn and jump—this goes on when the Evens and the Odds seek to express their feelings and moods in modern dance.

So, all in all the season has started out with plenty of interest, even though the elements are trying to out-do the two sides.

Mixed Groups May Make Camp Trips

That mixed groups may go to Camp Flastacowo on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 3 o'clock to 7 o'clock was one of the major policies made when the Committee on Camp Policies met recently. However mixed groups will not be allowed to spend the night there.

The committee also designated all vacant week-ends now on the calendar to be reserved for the men. Although men will not be permitted to go to camp on the weekend when other organizations are there, they may swim on Tuesdays and Thursdays at camp if they wear their suits to and from Dale Mabry.

Dining Committee Members Appointed

Although it has received little or no publicity, because it was organised at the end of the spring quarter, last year, there is now a committee on campus, headed by Miss Annie M Tracy, chief dietitian, through which students may voice their opinions in connection with dining hall problems.

This committee is composed of one representative from each residence hall who works with Miss Tracy in trying to solve problems pertaining to the dining hall. Students now have the opportunity to talk over "gripes" and to make suggestions for their remedy with committee members. These complaints and suggestions will be relayed to Miss Tracy in committee meetings.

Life Saving Classes Are Offered Here

At last what the water-inclined upper classmen (men and women alike) have been waiting for is here—the Red Cross instructor's course in Life Saving and Water Safety. Wouldn't advise everyone rushing at once, however, for there are a few prerequisites for prospective instructors which include: being at least nineteen years of age, holding a current senior life saving certificate and having had this certificate for a year prior to the present time, and being of good health. Old instructors and those who have never completed the instructor's course are urged to participate.

The purpose of this course is to train teachers to instruct Red Cross swimming, life saving and water safety courses.

The classes will be held on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Friday afternoons from 5:15 to 6:15 in the college pool. The first meeting will take place in the second floor lecture room No 202 in the gym on Tuesday, October 15, and all prospective members should be sure to be there and be ready to go into the pool. In case these hours are not satisfactory to the group, adjustments can probably be made.

Journegan Heads College 4-H Club

Clairice Journegan was elected president of the college 4-H Club at a meeting of that organization Wednesday evening in the Longmire building. Newly selected sponsor for the club is Miss Joyce Bevis of the state Home Demonstration Extension Service.

Parties, picnics and camping trips are among activities planned for the coming year. Regular meetings of the club will be held on the first Monday of each month.

Leaders Elected for Intramural Sports

Volleyball Begins Monday Amarene Thompson Directs

Sports leaders for intramural sports were elected yesterday as a plan to increase enthusiasm for intramural games this season. Amarene Thompson will direct volleyball, Rosa Lee Davis will lead basketball, Jeanie Booth will head badminton, and George Pihos will sponsor tennis.

Practice for volleyball will start Monday, October 14, with games beginning the following week. This year, rules limit participation only to girls who are not physical education majors or who do not play on an Odd-Even team in the sport in which they plan to compete.

"We should have a very successful season," said Ann Stanbaugh, intramurals manager, "and we want to urge all dormitories, sororities, and other organizations to participate."

Extra-Curricular Riding Class Added

Horseback Riding Course Offered to Student Body

As a new addition to the curriculum of the Physical Education department this year co-ed classes in horseback riding will be given. Miss Marjorie Martin of the physical education department will be the instructor.

This will be an extra-curricular activity and will cost $11.00 per quarter. The classes will be held on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays and will be limited to five students each hour. There will be only two classes a day which will be scheduled, if possible, in the morning.

Not more than 30 students a quarter can take riding because of the limited number of horses and the limited staff.

The date for classes to begin has not been given out yet as a list was passed around last year soliciting the required number for the riding classes and it has not been checked this year for possible vacancies.

Anyone who is interested should see Miss Martin at her office in the gymnasium and she will let her know about any vacancies that occur.

Cashin' In

By JOHN CASH

The nation's collegiate sports scene is rapidly becoming a whirlwind of confusion, for some of the supposed football powers have either been humiliated in defeat or outplayed even though winning.

Alabama, the Rose Bowl champions, narrowly squeezed by Tulane and then luckily defeated South Carolina, though the statistics were in favor of the Carolina team. Last year's national football kingpin, Army, has been given some rough moments, too, in their contests with Oklahoma and Cornell.

A new king has picked itself out of the doldrums and moved swiftly to the spotlight, Texas. Winning its opening games by topheavy scores, the Longhorns have stamped themselves as the number one eleven in the nation.

Top Teams

In a poll by Associated Press sports writers the country's top ten football squads are:

1—Texas
2—Army
3—Notre Dame
4—Michigan
5—U C L A
6—Alabama
7—Pennsylvania
8—Georgia (x)
9—Tennessee (x)
10—Northwestern
x—tie

Leading Games

The current week's top pigskin encounter will pit Army against Michigan at Ann Arbor. Both teams are undefeated and rank two and four respectively in the AP poll.

Other leading frays will match Duke and Navy at Baltimore, Georgia and Kentucky at Athens (Friday night), Texas and Oklahoma at Austin, UCLA and Stanford at Los Angeles, and Florida-Venderbilt at Nashville.

Glorida Gators

The Florida Gators, though making many costly mistakes outplayed Tulane and is rated an almost even chance against Vanderbilt on Saturday. Broughton Williams, Florida end, is the country's leading pass receiver—having caught 12 passes for a total of 229 yards.

World Series

Now we turn away from the football scene and focus our spotlight on America's favorite pastime, baseball and the World Series, between the Boston Red Sox and the St Louis Cardinals.

Both the Red Sox and the Cards have won two games at this writing. Harry "the Cat" Breechen of St Louis has thus far grabbed the pitching spotlight. It was Breechen's magnificent four-hit shutout on Monday that evened the series at one all.

Dave "Boo" Ferias and Tex Hughson each pitched tight games in notching the two Red Sox wins, though Rudy York helped them out of trouble by slamming a home run in each of the two games.

St Louis displayed a terrific batting punch in smashing out a 12-4 win yesterday to deadlock the series at two games apiece.

Howie Pollet and Tex Hughson are the probable starting pitchers in today's game. The two teams move once again to Sportsman's Park in St Louis on Sunday.

Rosalie Oakes Talks At YWCA Program

Regional Officer Delivers Address on Purpose of YW

Rosalie Oakes, Regional Secretary of the Young Women's Christian association, was the featured speaker at the annual YWCA recognition service for new members on Tuesday night at 7:30 in Westcott auditorium.

Also included in the program was a litany on the purpose of the YWCA which was presented by Phyllis Greife, executive director of the association at Florida State College. Joyce Petty, president, gave the meditation and Jimmie Rogers issued the call to worship. Joyce Carlton sang "The Lord's Prayer" and the processional and recessional were played by Edith Smith at the organ. The program was ended with the circle around the fountain singing "Follow the Gleam," the YWCA theme song

Miss Oakes is making her annual visit to the FSC campus this week during which time she is meeting with the officers and commission chairmen in the YWCA to help formulate program emphasis and projects for this school year.

SPIRIT OF THE WEEK

CONSTITUTION
HEY CONSTITUTION COMMITTEE
Let's start with a little revision!
J. Sharer

● OPPORTUNITY KNOCKS BUT ONCE

Apparently the memory of the average Florida State College student is shorter than had been supposed. Four months ago the entire campus was united, as it has seldom been, in the common desire for a new constitution or extreme revision of the present one. Last year Senate called numerous special meetings and worked long hours; senators and students discussed the matter not only in the meetings, but wherever students gathered; a special committee—the Senate Steering Committee—was elected to work over the summer months and formulate a plan of procedure.

It was decided that the purpose of the Constitution committee, which was to be elected as soon as possible after the beginning of the fall quarter, was "to seek student opinion by conducting all general committee meetings openly, as: (a) forums to be participated in by the student body, and (b) meetings with discussion only by members of the committee." The second function of the committee was "to serve as a fact-finding board" while the third function was that of proposing constitutional amendments which would be presented to Senate by the Senate Steering Committee.

A few pessimists shrugged their shoulders and said that the matter would be forgotten over the summer, but their opinions were scoffed at. Imagine anyone thinking that the students would forget things like the spring elections and the disqualification of a candidate! ! Why, now was the time to accomplish all those things that had been crying for clarification in our constitution. It was utterly unthinkable that the opportunity would be passed up! !

Now, four months alter, the election for the 12 members from each of the senior, junior, and sophomore classes have been postponed twice because of the lack of sufficient interest. Are the changes less necessary than last year? Have the ambiguities of our constitution straightened themselves out over the summer months? Are the evils of our government any less dangerous?

Senate has voted to postpone the elections until such time as enough people are in the running so that a representative cross-section of the student body may be elected to the committee. To date, 20 sophomores, 12 juniors, and 9 seniors have submitted platforms. From these figures it seems evident that although the 12 juniors would fulfill the requirement for that class, they would not be truly representative. And it seems that the seniors should be more interested in guaranteeing better government for future classes and making it possible for those prospective seniors to avoid such things as the election fiasco.

Protestations concerning the necessity of submitting platforms have been heard from many sides. It would seem that some basis of selection would be congruent with the general principle of true representation of student opinion. It is true that many are undecided as to a definite platform and generalities may be stated; however that would seem to be more desirable than the usual voting on Susie Smith because her name has been heard more often than Mary Jones.

Two hours per week has been estimated as the time committee meetings will take out of many already-crowded schedules. But is it not true that the busy person can usually find time to do just one thing more?

This is our chance! An opportunity which seldom comes more than once is knocking at our door. Surely we are interested enough to let it in? ? ?

● THE FLOOR IS OPEN

Outlets for public opinion and the expression of those opinions are quite numerous for the interested Florida State College student. There are forums on international affairs; there are discussions that blossom everywhere; there are Student Senate metings which prtain to our college community; there is "or Forever Hold Your Peace" in the Flambeau.

Senate meetings are one of the most important government functions on campus. There we see an actual government in action. We see the people we choose to represent us and the movements they either aid or defeat. To attend Student Senate is a lesson in the functioning of a legislative body. But this is not the outstanding feature of Senate. Th outstanding feature is the unusual privilege of allowing speeches and ideas from he gallery. Any student may be recognized by the chair and present ideas on any problem that may be confronting the legislators. It is up to the students as individuals to attend these meetings and be sure that their government is functioning as thy would like.

Then for the general opinions that should be presented to the student body, is offer "or Forever Hold Your Peace." This column is open to one and all who feel that they have something to say. The only stipulation is that the editor of the Flambeau must know who is writing.

The exchange of opinions on major problems confronting us is the prime factor of forums. These are the planned meetings where ideas brought forth in discussion everywhere are presented. Cardinal Newman said that the exchange of ideas and the process that goes with it is one of the advantages of a university.

There is no reason why ideas should lie dormant. A sleeping idea can never accomplish anything. Let's bring them out into the open where the best of them may survive.

● THE PENDULUM SWINGS

Our college world has opened again, and soon we will be lost in a maze of books, classes, term papers, and weekends. We are both eager and reluctant to get "back into the swing of things."

Many times American college students have been criticized for a tendency to segregate themselves from the outside world and live in an ivory tower of campus activities and gold fish bowls. It seems too easy to lose one's self in the flurry of activity close at hand and too difficult to assume the role of an interested participant in the happenings and affairs that lie beyond the college gates.

Surely an international incident in the Balkans or a political shake-up in Washington is as important as our new student constitution or our Odd-Even spirit. Surely forums on pertinent ideas and events are as important as Wednesday afternoon teas.

As citizens of this state, this country, and this world, we should not lose track of events that may change our destinies and alter our lives. As informed citizens, we must not!

The world has grown smaller through progress, and the college campus must expand to encompass the results of this progress. It is now time for us to assume our responsibilities in the scheme of living.

Sharpie the Fifinella

Attention: Mr and Miss FSC, let's go to press! This is Fifinella, the gal who knows all, sees all, and repeats all.

Now, Kilroy, my boyfriend, dropped into the Sweet Shop the other nite to buy me some gum. And guess what he told me! There on the screen porch, said he, braving the cold wintry winds sat ten little girls buddled over their coffee cups. The warm notes of "South America Take It Away" drifted out into the frigid nite air and chilled the resort of all latecomers. Now, I know how the gal who signs herself "Miss Frigid" felt when she penned this complaint. "Why can't that drafty porch be boarded up for the winter season?" inquires she.

Well, Kilroy tells me that it's because of the infallible law of diminishing returns which means as long as you all take your drinks and sit out thar . . . well, it costs money to buy boards, you know.

Here'e a note from a gal who signs herself "A-lert." It reads: "Bein one off yur self apointted spies I hav a bit of juicy news for you're column. I was hanging on a picture wire bihind a pictur in sum peeples room last nite. One off the people wass a senor who was not living on sener hall becas she had not taken thet junor English exam. She was mad becas she had Sat Behind two senors who were living on sener hall when she tuk te exam about ten days ago. She wants to know is thet fare, and I do too."

Deer A-lert: Kilroy was there, too, sittin' right behind her. And was he fuming! "It ain't reet!" said he. Kilroy asked me to tell that neglected senior just to follow him. Believe you me, he kin get her anywhere, even on Senior Hall!

Ah, here's a letter from another senior. Saye she: "I decided to go to my class meetin' last Monday afternoon, bein' as I didn't have anything else t'do. When I walked in 303 Westcott, I thought to myself, I must be in the wrong place . . . so many people . . . must be freshmen! But no, they were my classmates. Seniors are wonderful these days, aren't they?"

Fifinella feels sad this week . . . very sad. The meager amount of platforms turned into her paper by the few who are running for the Constitutional Committee is really pathetic. If you are interested in helping to make your government better, please run in the election of members to the Constitutional Committee. And Kilroy adds a warning. "You'll be sorry, if you don't," says he.

Last hut not least, Embarrassed writes us: "My date and I were out at Dale Mabry the other nite lookin up a friend. We stopped to inquire at one of the barracks housing part of the feminine population. On the porch were girls in . . . ah . . . in very informal attire (namely, pajamas). Now, I ain't conservative . . . BUT . . ."

Fifinella fully agrees. Something should be done to remedy the situation.

COLLEGIATE COMEBACKS

Speak Of Embarrassing Moments

A group of ex-GI's walked into their 201 German class, greeted the teacher in the native tongue, and were exchanging "achs and ichs" in swift manner when a sweet young thing in the back row grabbed her books and while going toward the door screamed hysterically, "I'm in the wrong room."

• • • •

Many's the teacher who has received a masculine reply when he/she called on a Miss Smith.

• • • •

And then there is the poor modern history prof who attempts to teach the vets about the campaigns of World War II. The girls report a disadvantage in learning the Europear rivers—the fellows do not only know where the rivers are but also how the water in each one of them tastes.

Signs Of The Times

The Garnet and Gold buses that run to Dale Mabry may have the traditional FSCW on the outside, but the inside is elaborately decorated with "FSCW and M" signs. A bit unorthodox, but nevertheless timely.

• • • •

It's a small world and getting smaller all the time. The newest shrinkage is shown in a sign at Dale Mabry which points one way from FSC and in the opposite direction to the University of Florida.

Confusing But Amusing

The male Physical Education major is having no end of trouble wondering where his dressing room should be in the gym or if he should have a gym of his own out at the base.

• • • •

If a voice is heard yelling for the key about midnight, the Dale Mabry-ites can know it's not someone locked out of their abode but just one of the men in the "psychiatric ward" who has to have a key to turn his lights on and off. The fact that there are only a few keys to be had does not make the situation any simpler.

Reconversion Unlimited

There was talk of the marriage rate of FSC students increasing when the co-eds arrived, and it looks like the prophecy might come true. To date there has been one proposal in less than a week. (Don't know whether she accepted or not.)

College Comments

The Sebiing (Ala) Newe tells how the dean of women at a large co-educational college severely criticised the moral laxity of the students, announcing to the student body on Wednesday that "The President and I have decided to stop necking on the campus."

The Lass-O, Texas State College for Women daily, reports that there are 17 foreign students on their campus. They came by an exchange of TSCW etudents with those of other countries, by personal choice and by scholarship awards. The American Association of University Women sent a student from Greece to the campus, and the Instittue of International Education sent one from France. Other countries represented are Mexico, Puerto Rico, Brazil, Cuba, Hawaii, and Italy.

Said a friend to a teacher, "I'm so glad that you are planning to continue your education at the University this summer. Are you working for your MS degree?" Replied the teacher, "Yes, officially for an MS and unofficially for an M-R-S."

An honest coed at the University of Kansas came right back at the "Laws" recently. Instead of scurrying by the horde of wolfish lawyers on the steps of Green hall, she paused at their whistles and whipped out a sign. Printed on it in big red letters were the simple words: "Thank You."

It seems that Texas is another state to be hard hit by the teacher shortage. More than one-seventh of the 36,057 teachers needed in Texas this year will not be found. 4,324 classroom positions are vacant, and that many more are being filled by teachere having substandard requirements.

There's a tale going round the Iowa State campus of a certain English professor who went over to a local apartment house and asked to see the list of people living in it and also the waiting list. He didn't have to go through very many names before he found the one he was king for, and said, 'Put my name down for this man's apartment, please. I just flunked him, and he'll be dropping out f school any day now."

Many a fledgling chemist has to learn the hard way. Fellow students will never forget the look of utter horror that came across a chemistry lab etudent's face as he watched a neatly-copied-in-ink English theme dissolve in some spilled hydrochloric acid. Humble title of the theme: "The Benefits of Chemistry."

From Minneapolis, Minn. comes the statement that the greatest building boom of all time is approaching for American universities and colleges. Federal government sources estimate that the state appropriations for the academic year 1946-47 will exceed the prewar peak and general expenses may run more than 250 million dollars.

From Albuquerque, New Mexico comes the report that within 150 feet of the Tizeras canyon highway twelve miles out of Albuquerque, students at the sixteenth annual University of New Mexico anthropology field session have spent the past six weeks excavating in a Pueblo Indian ruin which was occupied from 1450 A D until a few years before the founding of Old Albuquerque.

A Native Speaks

Twenty-one girls were tapped into Spirogira and Esteren, Odd-Even clubs, Tuesday night. Spirogira ushered in 14 girls, nine sophomores and five seniors, in convocation at eight o'clock, following the Esteren club by an hour and a half. Esteren had tapped their seven junior "goats" at 6.30 in the dining hall.

Plans have been made by the "goats" of the two organizations to entertain the regular members ofthe clubs wih banquets and parties. The Esteren crew were honored by their "goats" with a banquet for the faculty and student members held Wednesday night in the dining hall, while Spirogira will be given an outing by their pledges Saturday night, October 12, Founder's Day.

The Spirogira entertainment will be organized at the add fountain oin front of Westcott on Saturday night with the "goats" to appear in black and white dresses for "goating". Various pep rallies for the Odd clan are being planned for their members, but as yet no definite date for the rallies has been set.

Spirogira

New odd taps and their activities, according to leader Frannie Myers include: Lucy Harding, Odd Sports, F Club, Sophomore Council, Freshman Carnival, Odd Dem Props, DCC, and PEA: Shirley Palmer, Odd sports, Freshman Talent Program MC, Odd Dem construction manager, Freshman Carnival, PEA.

Marjery Holm, Sophomore Council, Odd sports, Tarpon Club, PEA, and Life-Saving Corps, Marian Lobby, Sophomore Council, athletic manager-Freshman Class, F Club, Odd sports, WAA Treasurer, Color Rush and Demonstration light committee; Ann Carter, Sophomore Council chairman, Senate representative (freshman class), and Alpha Lambda Delta.

YOU CAN ALWAYS TELL A FRESHMAN:

Walking around clutching a gold book (now red and white) . . . eagerly memorizing and practising Even songs and yells . . . buying new books strictly; never 2nd hand ones . . . investing in large quantities of FSC stickers, stationery . . . fretting over schedules, overwhelmed by the difference between high school and college curricula . . . conducting unofficial "orientation" programs among themselves. . . .

TYPICALLY UPPERCLASSMAN:

Saun'ering into the Alum and Sweet Shoppe with an air of one who has done so many, many times before . . . shouting loud greetings across campus to old pals after a summer's separation . . . struggling to work out an "easy" schedule, leaving puh-lenty of free time in which to enjoy all that goes with being an UPPER-classman . . . swapping books and making "deals" on 2nd hand ones . . . a reluctance to get back to the old academic grind of Friday quizzes, term papers, sessions in the library . . . a complete absence of that "naive" look we once had . . . once back, the feeling that we've never left. . .

EVERYBODY'S DOING IT, Y'ALL:

Painting their rooms, specially in Gilchrist (remember the freshmen last year in Bryan who startled the campus by brightening up theirs with some fire-engine red paint!) . . . taking note of the men on campus, a hitherto rare sight on week-days . . . coming down with laryngitis, and this early in the game, too! . . . looking for at least one little loophole in the seemingly foolproof method for checking "convo" this year. . .

FIRST CLASS IMPRESSIONS:

Teachers' difficulties in reading colleague's handwriting on class rolls . . . troubles over books . . . a desire to rush madly into the registrar's office, after your teacher has conjured up for you a panoramic view of the year's work . . . the defeatist attitude which descends upon you as homework piles up even in the first few days . . . Education, and its price!

ONE FOR THE BOOKS:

Dale Mabry-ites who complain about having two kinds of running water: both cold! . . . the former sailor who's now planning to have a girl in every class . . . the juvenile freshman bound for the President's reception in an off-the-shoulder formal inquiring hesitantly, "Is there a rule on this campus about the amount of exposure in evening wear?" . . . the boy shocking all comers with an inquiry as to the location of the YWCA (still can't figure out why he was looking for the YW!) . . poor confused students who, during the hectic registration rush, signed up for classes straight through the luncheon hour (well, that's one way to steer clear of the inevitable gaining which goes hand-in-hand with starchy meals) . . . the aggravation of having three years of blood, sweat, and tears behind you only to have some newcomer say, "Are you a freshman, too?" . . . worse yet, the soph who helpfully told a senior that there was a rule against being in the halls after last "light-flash". Imagine! . . . the ex-service man here wondering about the advisability of writing his buddies on Florida State College FOR WOMEN stationery

The Veterans Make Their Choice

It has been a subject of speculation during the last few years as to how the veterans of World War II would organize after the war. The old organizations, the American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and the Disabled American Veterans made plans for the prospective new members, while the ideas for the outstanding new organizations, the Amvets (American Veterans of World War II) and the AVC (American Veterans Committee) were conceived and brought into being by fighting men.

Mr Sam Stavisky, honorably discharged from the Marine Corps in 1945, has been covering veteran's affairs for the Washington Post for the past year. In the September issue of Harper's Stavisky discusses these five organizations attempting to explain their present functions and platforms. He cites what he considers the advantages and disadvantages between joining one of the long established veterans organizations or of joining one of the new groups where new ideas may be freely expressed and put into practice.

According to the author the veterans who are joining any organization are making on the whole a conservative choice. Approximately 150,000 GI's in and out of service have joined the two new nationally prominent organizations while 2,000,000 have joined the Legion and more than 1,500,000 the Veterans of Foreign Wars. This is explained on the grounds that "as successful going concerns the Legion and the VFW offer services, clubhouses, experience, legislative leadership, and traditions." But the veteran must pay for this help and guidance by giving up his own ideas and upholding the traditions and established ambitions of the older organizations.

AVC

The American Veterans Committee is officially ignored by the Big Three, who claim that it is not a genuine veterans organization because it violates tradition by accepting former members of the merchant marine. It is leftist but definitely not "Commie", according to Mr Stavisky who states that its members are "veterans who demand a genuine democracy and a decent, abundant life for all citizens rather than benefits and privileges for themselves." AVC is opposed to the bonus, the peacetime draft, to the closed-door immigration policy. "On domestic issues the platform calls for restoration of wartime controls to obtain ample, low-cost housing. . support for organized labor. . ."

According to the author, the recent Des Moines convention was truly democracy in action: the delegates ran the convention and there was unlimited freedom of speech and press.

Amvets

The American Veterans of World War II association has recently been taken in as a little brother by the "Big Three". It is a mutual association of individual veterans units bound together by participation in the war rather than by ideas. Its course is cautious and conservative. Amvets has not expressed itself on as many topics as the boisterous AVC but its national commander, Jack Hardy, said in a recent speech, "What we want is jobs for everybody and the chance to earn a living. . .This country has to be run for all the people and the only way to do so is for everybody to work." Amvets, like AVC, is behind the Wyatt housing program.

DAV

The membership of the Disabled American Veterane is limited and its influence is used on legislation which affects men who suffered service-connected disabilities.

VFW

The Veterans of Foreign Wars is distinctive in that membership is limited to men who have seen service on the high seas or on foreign soil. During the war VFW championed the men by fighting for a system of stateside furloughs for men overseas.

VFW is for the bonus and like the Legion favors "universal military training, stringent limitations on immigration. . ."

Legion

Most influential is the American Legion which holds its origin in a conversation between Teddy Roosevelt, jr. and a wounded doughboy in France. It uses its influence not only to help veterans but also in the forming of national policy. Its policies are deeply rooted in tradition. But in spite of some of the black eyes which it has received "let it not be forgotten that the Legion has done many good works and is justly proud of them."

There are 15,000,000 veterans coming out of World War II who have not joined any organizations. They and their families will represent one-third to one half of the nation. Mr Stavesky thinks that, "In the latent strength of the World War II veteran, whose full voice is yet to be heard, lies the hope of national security and world peace."

With shoes once mcre so hard to get, you may find the myriad of bows and clips being shown this season a life-saver to last year's footwear. Butterfly bows, tailored buckles and ribbon twists are but a few of the prize assortment of shoe-brighteners now on display. Saddle stitching, contrasting piping and multi-colored sequins contribute a bright note.

Coed-Joe Says He Ain't Even He's Just Odd About It All

Yells of, "So it's up with the red and white, down with the green and gold," now fill the campus wave lengths again, pounding to the stiff and competing rhythm of, "Even spirits never die them bones gonna rise again." In the middle of this loyal confusion stands the bewildered coed. Is he Odd or Even? Taking a long view, however, regardless of where his sentiments might lie, he probably feels quite odd about it all. He has evidently not gotten the idea that he must of necessity don either purple trousers and a red shirt or a similar green and gold costume and fight! fight! fight!

This is but one of the numerous perplexities which must confront the scattered coeds at Florida State College for Women. He no doubt appreciates the delicate and artistic salads so familiar to the dining hall, but, in spite of this appreciation, must pass on from the meager course with the desire to sink his teeth into a steak or something of a more solid and bountiful nature. Alas, this is another woe for poor Joe.

What passes through the masculine member's mind as he joggs to and fro in the Dale Mabry buses? Could it be that his thoughts wander back to his high school days? Maybe, however, he thinks he is still traveling around the GI way. It might just seem as though he is engaged in a correspondence course. Joe obviously has various attitudes from which to choose, but it always adds up to the fact that he is a little like a student without a campus.

No tears shed for coed Joe yet. It must be remembered that constantly he is surrounded, enclosed, and suffocated by feminine charms. His luckless brothers in Gainesville can never hope to witness anything like it, Indeed, the ratio is all in his favor, making him the big coed in a woman's college. With such a crop to choose from, he certainly ought to find one who just fits the pattern; that is if he can muster up the courage to tap her on the shoulder, look her in the eye, and then mutter, "Hello."

It is recognized by all that Joe is outstanding, and perhaps that fact compensates for all else that he must endure. This distinction, therefore, is purchased at a price, for with it come other things.

It is not unusual for him to end up in a long line, which is waiting for something, without a buddy to call his own. Often fate places him in a class of fifty or so of the fairer sex, and he, the only one of his kind—how startling. Occasionally he is blessed with seven feminine guests in the dining hall all of whom are chattering on at a staggering rate about Vogue's latest.

Joe's day possibly contains all or only some of the mentioned events, and he may relish it, shrink, or just be getting acclimatized. Whatever his condition may be, however, the coed Joes don't seem to be a very down hearted bunch and are rapidly catching on to the "wheres and wherefores."

Regardless of what FSC might have done to or for Joe, it is quite an established fact that he has done two very definite things for FSC.

He has brought unprecedented spirit and life to the campus and has given it the distinction of having more coeds than any other women's college.

Religious Groups Honor Freshmen; Hold Elections

The social calendar of the various religious groups on campus is crowded with parties and elections.

In honor of the freshman and co-eds, the campus Presbyterian group has planned a Friday night party, the theme of which will be "Gullibles Travels". During Freshman week, the Presbyterian Council members served as hostesses at a tea given to welcome the freshman. The Presbyterians will have as their guest this week-end, Miss Jean Liston, field secretary for the Christian Education Committee.

In recent elections, Margery Holm was chosen social chairman and Margery Potter, president of the Westminster fellowship.

Since last Tuesday the Methodists have been holding "little sister" supper parties with twenty-five girls attending each function. These festivities, given for the purpose of familiarizing freshman with their Student house, will end Friday night. Last Sunday, students living on the alphabet floor of Jennie Murphree were hostesses at a tea given at the Student House.

The Baptist girls also have been enjoying "little sister" parties. Monday night Mary Ora Pitt and Ann Lewis entertained their "little sisters" at a popcorn party.

A future event for Baptist girls is the "coke" party which Dr and Mrs Harold Sanders are giving October 17.

The club room of the Longmire building was the scene of the Newman club's first meeting of the year. At that time Gloria Basila, club president, introduced the officers, who are: Mary Cooney, vice-president; Gloria Cummings, recording secretary; Catherine Heitsman, corresponding secretary; Margorie Blackshaw, treasurer; Mary Ann Berry, parliamentarian; Ann Parker, freshman advisor; Pat Haurihan, senior representative; Blanche Weedon, junior advisor; and Natalina Rogolina, sophomore representative.

Dr Paul Coughlin spoke briefly on the history and importance of the Newman club. Special guests of the evening were: Father Joseph Borg, Dr and Mrs Doak Campbell, Miss Martin of the physical eduaction department, and Dr and Mrs Paul Coughlin. Next Sunday a regular meeting will be held during which plans for the activities for the coming quarter will be discussed.

Fashion Flashes

Four college girls hastily entered the recreation room of the "Alum" and assembled around a table. One of the group started dealing four hands for a bridge game. Another haphazardly tossed a magazine onto a nearby couch.

Although the magazine was worn from many fingers that had flipped through the pages, and the cover was tattered around the edges, it could still be recognized as a recent issue of "Senorita"—the magazine published exclusively for college and business girls.

Suddenly the pages began to flutter and a lovely tall girl with brown hair stepped right off the cover! She wore a black sweater tucked into a brilliant-hued plaid skirt and had a wide red belt fastened around her waist. She yawned as she got up and turned lazily to page twenty-one, where an auburn haired co-ed wearing pedal pushers, with a blazer jauntily tossed over her arm, stepped off the page.

For a moment the two magazine fashion girls stared idly around the room. Their eyes came to rest on the bridge game that was in progress.

Wide Belt said, "How can they read Senorita and still insist on wearing one of those sloppy joe sweaters. Don't they know that they went out of style centuries ago?"

"Maybe they just don't care since there aren't any men around. Remember this is Florida State College for Women," replied Pedal Pushers, with the emphasis on women.

"But it's co-ed now, or partially so. Didn't you know. Oh well, let's go to the soda shop and drown our sorrows in a coke."

As they entered the soda shop Wide Belt exclaimed, "What on earth is she doing?" as she saw a girl eagerly tucking something up underneath the hem of her rain coat.

"Looks like—my goodness she's wearing dungarees under the coat. Why do girls always have to be so sloppy? They could wear these," said Pedal Pushers as she indicated her own trim attire.

After finishing their cokes, the two fashion plates wandered out of the "Alum" and onto the campus, just as everyone was coming from nine-thirty classes.

"Heavens! Will you look at those girls in boys' shirts? Their shirts are so long they don't even need to wear skirts!" shireked Pedal Pushers. "Looks like they could wear a blazer or a cardigan like the one on page thirty-five."

Wide Belt nudged Pedal Pushers, "Will you just look at those ballet shoes? The soles are even coming off!"

"How about those saddle shoes over there—the girl with the green skirt? I'll swear that they've never seen any shoe polish.

"Yeah, and the loafers look just as bad, too. Seems as if the gals could polish them occasionally," groaned Wide Belt.

The girls wandered aimlessly across the campus and finally into the halls of Bryan. "Oh Jeepers!" Pedal Pushers howled, as a girl padded sleepily down the hall in what looked like her father's "P J's."

"Let's go, I can't stand much more of this!"

"We try so hard to show them what to wear and how to wear it. They may read Senorita, but certainly don't practice any of it," the visitors wailed.

The two cover girls walked dejectedly back to the recreation room of the "Alum" and crept into their places on the pages of "Senorita."

The bridge game ended abruptly as the chimes rang. A co-ed snatched up the tattered magazine and tucked it under her arm with her load of books, and trudged onward to class wearing her baggy sweater and greyed saddle shoes.

Sweater Girl

Reducing Diet Nice for Nell, Bad for Beau

"Oh, my aching stomach!" That's the moanful phrase heard most often by the indulgent listener around Florida State College campus these days.

All of this pain is voiced by the male coeds who don't have the appetite of a canary and who are hesitant about going back through the cafteria line to ask for—not second helpings but—thirds and even fourths.

"And do you know, most of you girls leave half of your first helping on you plate! Do you have to torture and antagonize our healthy appetites by letting us boys sit there unable to do anything but stare hungrily at the food? What we want to do is to clean up every dish, bowl and plate that's anywhere near us!" That came from a 200 pound footballish-looking boy, as he made a grab for his feminine neighbor's last piece of bread.

Passing through the lunch line behind one of the local Greek gods a girl noticed the sizable portion of potatoes and meat which the boy had taken. "That should keep his energy and vitamin content up for at least two days, she mumbled to herself. But, everyone to his own opinion," they always say, for undoubtedly the boy was of a different opinion as was evidenced by the request which followed: "Could I have another slice of meat and some more potatoes?"

The horizon looks clearer for the men who eat at the cafeteria provided for them at Dale Mabry, however. Since the dietitians on FSC campus still have to remain aware that the majority of students they serve are girls, the lighter menus of soup and salad prevail as of pre-coed days. But, every dog has his day.

"I'm getting more and better food than you FSCites out at the men's cafeteria. We may have to pay a little more for our food per week, but I'd rather have that serving of ice cream with real strawberries topping it than just the plain old chocolate you had last Sunday for dinner." One of those, "I told you so."

So, gradually, the men will have those half-empty stomachs filled, and peace and quiet will reign, at least on the food front.

Home Ec Club to Have Tea Tomorrow

The annual tea given by the Home Economics Club in honor of freshmen and transfer students, will be tomorrow afternoon at the home-management house from 3:30 to 5:30. Freshmen and transfer guests will be escorted in groups to the home-management house by members of the Home Economics Club, announced "Sister" Dale, president of the Home Economics Club.

A meeting of the freshmen will be held Monday afternoon in 303 Westcott in order that they may elect their representative to the Home Economic Council.

Club Has Party For New Members

Alpha-Beta-Flo members, residents of the alphabet floor of Jennie Murphree, attended a party given by Ava Ruth Sawyer and Virginia Wilder last Thursday.

The members, who boast their own song and whistle, swapped tales of summer activities and then were served punch and cake. Those present were:

Many Graduates Wed During Summer

A sharp contrast to the activity of the majority of last year's graduates is provided by Margaret Warren, who left recently for Tokyo to accept a position with the War Department.

Other graduates of last year's class, according to information received from the Alumnae office, are now using the knowledge they won at Tallahassee as newlyweds. Ann Carolyn Allison, who married Walter B Rutland, is now living at Emory University, Georgia. Ruth Bishop of Palm Beach is now Mrs Gordon M Potter; Dorothy Carpenter of Pahokee married Vance G Benton; Della Mae Rhodes was married to Warren L Blackman; Lillian Ergle of Plant City married Thomas H Boland; and Mary Audrey Miner of Crystal Lake married Richard E Harris.

Gross Heads Hillel Officers

Rabbi Lorge Outlines Future Activities

The first meeting of the Hillel Foundation at Florida State College was held Tuesday afternoon in the recreation room of Temple Israel when old and new members of the organization were welcomed by Irene Gross, the newly elected president.

Irene introduced other officers for the coming year as: Hascia Levine, vice-president; Ruth Leonard, secretary; Dorothy R Davis, treasurer; Miriam Portnoy, parliamentarian; Sonya Heyman, cultural chairman; Pauline Marks, social chairman; Robert Greenberg, editor of the Hillel newspaper; Sarah Bramister, choir director; and Aileen Miller, social welfare chairman.

Rabbi Ernest Lorge who has recently returned to Tallahassee after serving as a chaplain in Germany was announced as the new Hillel director. Rabbi Lorge outlined plans for activities of the coming year. Ned Miller, president of Temple Israel congregation, spoke to the seventy members present on behalf of members of the Temple and offered the co-operation of the congregation for the forthcoming year.

During the meeting Irene Gross and Leonard Gilberg were chosen as representatives of Hillel to the Temple Council. Plans were also completed for regular Friday night services which will be in charge of Hillel members this Friday night. At the conclusion of services, there will be a social hour at which all freshmen will be honored by the upperclassmen.

All students of Jewish faith who were not notified about Hillel are requested to contact Irene Gross, box 903, campus mail.

DM Commuters Can't Forget Bouncin' Bus

Riding the DMC "special" once is an experience, but when you spend a large majority of your "free" time on it day in and day out, it becomes unforgettable.

Gaily painted in garnet and gold and labelled Florida State College for Women, the bus embarks every quarter hour for the campus. Equally as gay as the new paint job are the occupants, most of whom sing lustily all the age-old favorites as well as the latest in collegiate songs. Some, of course, study, making ample use of the 15 minutes spent in transit. One boy haughtily informed a curious girl, "Sure, I'm studying now. When I git home, I gotta study something else." Still others settle back quietly, eavesdropping and getting a large charge out of the hilarious conversations going on about them.

Occasionally, a hearty "Ho" comes from the rear of the bus (where the boys congregate, tho not by choice!) and "Pop" or "Uncle John" obligingly stop and let off streams of people, comparable to those who come out through those trap doors in circus cars. The number which piles off during rush hours is particularly amazing.

Now that it's an accepted fact that the grind is actually on again, Dale Mabry-ites have resigned themselves to their fate, and are rapidly adjusting themselves to the idea of catching buses "ad infinum". Automatically now they congregate at the bus stops every fifteen minutes waiting for the "bouncin' buggy" to cart them off to higher "larnin'", and when it arrives they battle their way on with all the finesse of a commuter of long standing!

Variations on a Theme of "Life Can Be Beautiful"

"The Things We Did This Summer" tucked away on the pages of memory, freshmen—I emphasize men—ah, men—took to the green pastures of Florida State College for a first quarter enlistment this week to prove the theory that "Life Can Be Beautiful".

Judging from the ex-B-17 navigators charting courses from the Mecca to the Sweet shop to the Alum and to dating areas—between classes, of course; the ex-pilots flying low on the boogie-beat; and the comment, "Well, the scenery is gorgeous", from 365 of 365 boys interviewed, eyes wandering here and there—mostly there—during our chat, I expect that life at "Tally-U" will be most beautiful this year.

"The chow doesn't compare with our boot camp specials, and it's odd that the same broken record of "Five Minutes More" grinds away at so many places on campus," grimaced some reminiscing navy men who think that double-decker bunks are killjoys in this post-war world, "but at least we don't get a deck court martial if we're late to class."

"And the girls just don't ask us for dates" is a constant wail.

On being told that freshmen girls weren't allowed to ride in cars at night because they didn't know the layout of the town and wouldn't be able to call mother if the necessity arose, a revolutionary solution was offered by an enterprising young veteran in our midst. He wants walkie-talkies for every girl so that when in difficulty she can be merely pressing a button call, "Come in Dean Dorman, Come in Dean Dorman".

"Our faces are garnet, but our hearts are gold," cried two of the bewildered many from the freshman hordes, embarrassed to learn that they shouldn't have asked. "Where do we buy our "F's" and sign up for Tri Delt sorority?"

"There Have Been Some Changes Made Today" and "That Old Black Magic" really seems to be bubbling, according to glazy-eyed students furiously making crossmarks and mysterious scratchings in a little white book after hearing in convocation an exceptional rendition of "To Each His Own" by Dean Olivia Dorman.

"Accentuate the Positive and Eliminate the Negative" is to be next to "Hail to the Caps and Gowns" on our handbook parade say gleeful freshmen—I emphasize men—ah, men—and upperclassmen strongly convinced that "Life Can Be Beautiful".

MALE EYE VIEW

By LUCIUS DANIEL

WIR SIEGEN DOCH!

Last Tuesday the men's barracks at Dale Mabry were given names. One of the suggestions for the name of barracks 701 was NOT selected. Several of the veterans of the ETO wanted to name their barracks the "Schutzstaffel (SS) House."

They claimed that they had logical reasons for their choice. "After all," one of them said, "We've already got an Army house, a Navy house, a Coast Guard house, and a Marine house. I think that in order to show our desire for friendly international relations we ought to name one of our barracks after friend Adolf's personal bodyguard." . .

BALANCE OF POWER

At least one man taking political science is getting something out of the class. When Dr Catterson mentioned the other day that being in a democracy gives you the privilege to at least regulate the laws that you are drafted by, there was some argument from the back of the class. (Where all the men were sitting, naturally.) In order to prove that disapproval of the draft law was expressed in Congress, Dr Catterson brought the fact that the majority by which the bill was passed was by only one vote.

'You mean that my vote would have changed the whole thing?" he cried, in the voice of a man discovering that he has just missed the opportunity of a lifetime.

Too bad he wasn't in Congress. Little things like that can make all the difference.

TAKE IT EASY, SOLDIER

One Dale Mabryite was explaining to another the reasons which Dr McBride gave in assembly for the buses not stopping outside the campus.

"It's like this," he said, "When the buses stop outside the campus all these civilians get on." . . . Hitch Your Wagon to a Star—bf

One of the sights on the campus last Wednesday night was all the students lying on their backs staring at the sky. Every time one of the young ladies of FSC saw a falling star she squealed with delight.

They sounded so excited that for a while you might have thought they must be catching them.

SHERMAN WAS RIGHT, BUT PEACE IS WORSE

One of the horrors of peace is to be the only man in a class full of girls. If what they teach us in Biology about protective coloration is true, by the end of this year we ought to see some of the men walking around in lipstick and skirts, and probably speaking in a high soprano voice.

Dr Wilder Accepts Infirmary Position

Dr Grace Wilder, new infirmary staff doctor, arrived on campus last Saturday, and the other staff addition, Dr M P Andrews, is expected around November 1. Eight registered nurses, full time, and one part time also augment infirmary facilities to care for increased demands this year.

Two student assistants are doing laboratory work for the infirmary, and one student assists in the office.

A new college infirmary clinic schedule has been inaugurated this quarter because of earlier classes. New hours are at 7:45 a m, immediately after breakfast; 1 p m, immediately after lunch; and 9 p m. Doors are locked at 9:45 each night.

"Messiah" Will Be Presented

Mixed Choristers to Give Early December Program

Handel's "Messiah" is to be sung by the new mixed choral group on a Christmas program planned for Sunday, December 8, according to Herman Gunter, director. Music for the orchestral accompaniment has been ordered.

Members of the choral group, composed of students from both Florida State College and the Dale Mabry University branch, were announced this week. First sopranos are Emma Neal Ayala, Ann Bache, Jauniel Irene Glover, Pat Harrison, Esther Howard, Perilie Hunt, Victoria Johnson, Cinda Kent, Doris Lamb, Pat Laney, Rachel McInnis, Ann Selden Nicholson, Doris Stallwood, Bobbie Jean Strickland, Joann Summers, Gloria Jeanne Williams, and Eloise Ziglor.

Second sopranos, Audrey Baird, Marjorie Estelle Booth, Inez Bowles, Lou Jean Crum, Mary Louise Gamble, Joyce Hanson, Billie Kacinski, Marquita Lance, Moira Long, Martha McCormack, Nancy McFarland, Carol Murrell, Mildred Nichols, Evelyn Louise Nix, Jeanne Phillips, Peggy Ann Rainey, Janet Stephenson, Bernice Strickland, Dawn Shirah, Elise Thomas, Martha Elizabeth Waters, and Martha Wheeler.

First altos are: Jane Arnold, Carolyn Sue Bush, Mary Carolyn Curtis, Priscilla Dale, Carolyn Chaires Ellis, Arlia Frink, Mary Frank Grimsley, Glenna Long, Peggy Parish, Jackie Sauls, Sally Slater, Shirley Webster, June Williams, and Lucille Wooten; second altos, Helen Beasley, Mildred Irene Coleman, Margaret Keddie, Myra Long, Imogene Lyons, Mary Sue Michael, Bessie Lou Myer, Suzanne Petit, Peggy Joan Rigell, Dot Jeanne Stalmaker, and Margaret Strum.

Accompanists are Peter Jensen and Lucille Wooten.

Cupid Is Blamed for Squirrel's Plight

Tragedy struck at noon Monday when two ill-fated squirrels fell from a tree on the south side of Westcott.

A sympathetic crowd watched as one furry creature hobbled into the bushes, leaving his wounded comrade behind.

A boy's well meaning suggestion to put the little thing out of its misery was met with a chorus of female "oh, no's", but it soon became apparent that it was the humane thing to do.

Another male observer, noticing the anguished faces of the group's fairer sex, dryly remarked: "They should have known better than to pitch woo on top of a pine tree anyhow."

Longmire Management Board Increased

Jane Gunn and Doris DuBois, members of the junior class have been appointed to work with seniors Pat Milliken and Henrietta Tresvant and faculty members on the Board of Management of the Rowena Longmire building.

Each year two juniors are chosen to serve for a two year period on this board which sets up the rules and policies of the Longmire Building.

Three Decades Bring Alarming Changes In FSC Campus Rules and Regulations

By LEMOYNE CASH

Fads and fancies seem to change constantly, and so, it seems, do the rules governing the conduct of college students.

If the rules of Florida State College in the 1914 were imposed on students of today, many moans, groans and complaints would surely be heard.

In the 1914 edition of the FSC handbook of rules and regulations appear many "do's" and "don'ts" which would seem strange indeed today. One such was the requirement that all students must attend breakfast except on Monday's. Two absences were equivalent to missing a class, and this was before cuts were allowed

Rules concerning leaving the campus to go to town, were much stricter then than now. Today, it isn't even necessary for a girl to sign out to go to town if she expects to be back on the campus by 7:30 pm. The rule in 1914 stated that: "No students except seniors will be permitted to go down town oftener than once a week and were required to sign out an hour ahead of time and return to the campus by 5:30 pm. Students who went down in the afternoons had to return to the campus between 5 and 5:30 pm, according to the time of year

Dating and dancing were also under strict control. Dancing was not permitted and girls were forbidden to receive gentlemen callers. Juniors, however, were allowed to receive callers once a month. And seniors were permitted to have gentlemen callers once a week. An order prohibiting girls from attending card parties or dances was also included.

At present freshmen may have two dates a week and they must have the approval of the residence counselors to ride in cars. Today students are forbidden to dance on Sundays or to attend dances in town.

Even movie-going was restricted in those rules of thirty-two years ago. Freshmen could attend a matinee once a month, sophomores three times a month and juniors once a week, on days when chaperones were provided. Lucky seniors could attend any matinee unchaperoned in parties of three or more.

An interesting rule which causes one to wonder what brought it about was the 1914 rule that forbade "Communications by signs, spoken or written messages with any person loitering on or outside the college premises". None of the present handbook regulations are comparable to it. Then there was the rule which said there could be no "running, screaming, loud talking and boisterous conduct throughout the buildings, and that no student could receive notes or papers through any day pupil or through irregular channels".

Ticket Distribution

On Monday, October 21, distribution of the reserved seat tickets for the second of the artist series programs will begin on the ground floor of the Rowena Longmire building. These reserved seats will be available from 3:30 pm to 5:30 pm Monday through Friday of next week, and both red and blue tickets will be honored.

Appearing as the second artist series feature will be Stanley Fletcher, American pianist, who will present an all Chopin program on November 4 and 6. Those holding blue tickets will attend the concert on November 4, and holders of red tickets on November 6.

Work Started On Committees

Smoking and Owning Cars Are to Be Discussed

Two committees have been appointed by the executive council of CGA to work on recent proposed changes in college government. Sarah Lewis, president of CGA, has announced that the following girls have been selected to study possibilities and make recommendations concerning smoking in dormitory rooms: Esther Rasmussen, Rosetta Carver, Betty Schwartz, Betty Jo McLeod, Caroline Varn, 'Pinkie' Stewart, and Betty Dixon.

Sarah said that a great deal of informal discussion has been held in several council meetings with interested groups concerning the change of the present smoking rule. The opinions are quite varied as to whether or not smoking in dormitories should be considered, and if so, if it should be allowed in certain dormitories which may not prove to be safe. There are so many ideas on the subject that, according to Sarah, the selected committee might decide to take a student poll on the situation. As yet, however, no definite research or conclusions have been made by the recently appointed committee.

Driving Privileges

Those who will consider the privilege of owning and operating cars on the FSC campus are Betsy Wilson, Emily Sheftall, Elinor Bragg, and Sally Slater. Until now only fifteen students have requested permission to maintain their own automobiles at the college. A condition which this committee will have to consider is the problem of locating an adequate parking center for these cars which would be accessible and safe but which would not clutter up the campus.

When these two committees reach their final decisions, their recommendations will be sent to the executive council of CGA, which will in turn send them to the executive council of the college for approval.

Tallahassee Gains New Radio Station

Tallahassee now has a new radio station, WRHP, with main studios on the main floor of the Floridan hotel. The station went on the air for the first time Tuesday, October 15, at 6 a m, and at 12 o'clock the Florida State College band played for the official opening. President Doak S Campbell and Governor Millard Caldwell were also present at this occasion.

Manager of the new station is Mr Frank Pepper. The station carries the American Broadcasting company network, which includes such programs as "Breakfast in Hollywood" and the Bing Crosby show. Beginning tomorrow the station will broadcast the Army football games ever. Saturday, and tonight marks the first of the local broadcasts of Leon High football games.

WHRP goes on the air every weekday morning at 6 a m and on Sundays at 7 a m, broadcasting 18 hours per day during the week and 17 hours on Sundays.

Nord, Jones Elected

Juanita Nord was elected representative to senate over Barbara Wickham in a special senior class election held this week. Candy Jones was elected over Franklin Smith as chairman of junior-senior prom in the junior election.

Finals in the sophomore class election are being held in lower Westcott today. Those nominated for the two vacant senate seats in primaries held earlier in the week are: Jean Furman, Ellen Koenitzer, Shirley Hargraves and Martha Jane Bird.

College Dairy Is Profitable, Raises Cows for Milk, Beef

By BOB COOKSEY

Besides providing gallons of fresh milk for thirsty students, the Florida State College 1,000 acre dairy last year yielded a medium monthly profit of $1,309. Today, the college herd numbers 325 head of cattle. Two hundred and thirty gallons of milk are produced daily by 115 milk cows, and more than 150 cattle are raised for beef purposes.

The dairy, begun in 1917 to solve the school's fresh milk problems, has developed into a remarkably clean and efficient organization in its 29 years of operation. Adequate records as to the daily and monthly output are kept by the dairy office. Each animal is numbered, enabling the dairymen to keep individual records. Numbered also is each division of land to aid in establishing an orderly method of opening fresh grazing lands.

Dairy land being used now contains 400 acres of improved land for the accredited college herds. The grass consists of Bahia, Bermuda grass and clover and is ideal grazing land according to J P Love, superintendent of the farm. The total acreage for the dairy is 1,000 acres.

The dairyman is M C Futch, who returned to the college dairy last January after four years of service with the U S army.

After seventeen years of operation the college decided that it needed more room for expansion of the dairy so a deal was made for the present location, formerly Governor Bloxam's farm. Prior to the transaction in 1934 the dairy had been located on the north side of Tallahassee at Tennessee and Coyle streets.

There are five barns on the premises and six homesteads for employees of the dairy and farm. To protect the barns from a possible outbreak of fire two water valves with 100-foot fire hoses in each box are spaced close to the buildings near the office.

The dairy has eight employes, headed by J P Love, superintendent of farms, and the head dairyman, Mr Futch. Love has been with the dairy for 26 of the 29 years of its existence. One other employee has chalked up 27 years of service and still another has 24 years. The employees have three saddle horses and a one-ton truck at their disposal to enable them

Seymour Talks About China

American Policy Backs Conservative Chinese

"In many ways China is as delicate a situation as we may consider now," said Dr Arthur Seymour, former head of the modern language department, in the first formal meeting of the International Relations Club this year. "Although the tendency is to regard European developments as most significant, the United States and China are actually very closely connected, and developments in one country have direct bearing on the other."

The meeting of the International Relations Club, which was held yesterday in the auditorium of the Longmire Building, emphasized the importance of China in international politics pertinent to the celebration October tenth of the Chinese national independence holiday.

"After the Chinese rebellion," said Dr Seymour," when Dr Sun Yat-Sen headed the first Chinese government, he pledged his government to three objectives for the people of China—national independence, democracy, and a decent livelihood."

Now, he continued, the national

Cut System Set Up For Freshmen Boys

First Quarter Men Restricted To Daily Class Attendance

The new cut system for men, restricting the cuts taken by first quarter freshmen, was announced in the men's assembly Tuesday afternoon by Dr Otis McBride, dean of men.

The ruling forbids first quarter freshmen to cut a single class without sending in a letter requesting permission through Dr Otis McBride to a cut committee, who will judge the reasons and accord permission or refusal. Students affected by this rule who fail to send in such a letter and receive approval before cutting a class will have their credit for that course cut by one-sixth.

In answer to a question raised by the first protest, regarding whether or not Florida State College could regulate students nominally members of the University of Florida, Dean McBride answered, "When you were sent up here your records were processed by the University and sent up here with you, and from there on FSC takes over. You're like a battalion attached to another outfit . . . you come under their regulations rather than those of your original outfit."

"The girls at Tallahassee have been living under these regulations for a long time," continued Dr McBride, "you ought to be able to put up with a little yourself."

Main point of protest by the students was that the severity of the penalty for an unexcused ab-

YWCA Adds Three To Advisory Board

Miss Betty Kirlin, instructor of physical education; Mrs Margaret C Blair, instructor in English; and Mr Herman Gunter, director of the college chorus, are the three new members of the Advisory Board of the Young Women's Christian Association. For the first time, the Advisory Board will count among its members Tallahassee townspeople. These, however, have not yet been appointed.

The Community Service Group of the Y W C A will begin work with the Girl Scout Training Course in the near future.

In order to introduce the campus and community to Miss Phyllis Greife, executive secretary, the Y W is holding an informal reception in the clubroom of the Longmire Building on Tuesday, October 22, from 4:30 to 6:00 p m.

Any students who wish to join the Y W C A and did not do so during the membership drive may come to the "Y" room, second floor of the Longmire building any afternoon between 1:30 and 3:30 and one of the members will be glad to accept their membership.

Mortar Board Will Sponsor Clinic

A study clinic for freshmen and men students has been selected as the Mortar Board project for this year and will begin Monday evening in Room 104 Library. At this clinic, which will be conducted Monday through Friday each week from 7 until 10 p m, Mortar Board members will help students with problems about their class work or about the use of library facilities.

Miss Florence R Tryon, instructor in history, has been selected faculty advisor for the organization succeeding Miss Elizabeth Thomson, instructor in speech. Other Mortar Board advisors are Dr C P Heinlein, professor of experimental psychology, and Miss Lou Miller, instructor in English.

Red Cross to Hold Drive This Week

Membership Accepted In Lower Westcott Monday Thru Wednesday

Various Committees Serve Many Interests

The Red Cross chapter of Florida State College will begin its first year of actual work when the membership drive gets underway next week. A booth in lower Westcott will be open from Monday, October 21, through Wednesday, October 23, for volunteers who wish to sign up for work on the various committees. Students who signed up during registration do not have to sign up again.

"There is a field for any interest. The preliminary registration which we conducted at the end of last quarter to give us an idea of the volunteers we might expect turned out to be successful. We hope all those students who signed up then will sign up again. They are needed to make our first year of work successful," stated Barbara Wickham, president of the organization. The FSC chapter was begun as the first college unit in Florida and as one of the first in the south on May 16, 1946, when a charter was presented to the college by H O Hill, chairman of the Tallahassee Red Cross branch.

The seven committees open for student work and the respective chairmen are: disaster relief, Dottie Hahn; volunteer special service, Flossie Gwen; first aid and accident prevention, Emily Phillips; life saving and water safety, Joanne Zewadski; public information, Pat Yates; Junior Red Cross, Betty Kennedy; and nutrition, Anne MacDonald.

Girls who have worked as Red Cross staff assistants before and who would like to volunteer for service are requested to contact Barbara Wickham, Box 989, or to call at the Alpha Chi Omega house. There is a need for these girls at the Tallahassee office downtown, Barbara reports.

One of the first projects of the year will be knitting sweaters for children overseas. This project will come under the committee for volunteer special service. Complete details will be available at a later date.

Flastacowo Staff Seeks New Members

All freshmen who are interested in working on the Flastacowo staff are asked to send a list of their qualifications to Louise Sims, Box 936, campus mail. Those who are considered best qualified will be interviewed by the editor of the annual.

Louise also stated that all students who have snapshots which they would like to have appear in the 1947 Flastacowo are being asked to submit them to Nancy Stevens, Box 578, Campus mail. Those who have failed to make appointments for their annual pictures may do so now at the Campus Studio.

Study Activities Continue Despite Blackout Tuesday

"When the lights come on again all over Gilchrist" was the song of the girls living in the west wing of Gilchrist last Tuesday night when the lights went off in the west wing at about 10 p m.

The hall lights were on, however, disclosing unusual activities for a hallway. One bright-eyed lass was getting her laundry ready, throwing clothes onto a sheet which almost covered the hallway floor.

"Lights may come and go, but studying must go on forever." This was proved true by those sitting out in the hall with notes in their hands, a home economics major successfully drawing floor plans, and a girl typing with a portable on her knees.

The general study hall ended at about 10:30 after the electrician had come and replaced the blown-out fuse, which was found by Mrs Melanie Turner, resident counselor, and Marie Moe.

Campbell Speaks About Co-education

Annual Academic Procession Highlights Convocation

"The question of coeducation will depend upon the reaction of the faculty and students to the situation as we now have it on campus," Dr Doak S Campbell stated in his address to the freshmen at the annual academic procession last Tuesday evening.

Dr Campbell expressed optimism concerning the outcome of this venture and praised both faculty members and students for their cooperation in making adjustments for the excess of students this year. He also stated that the boys and girls housed at Dale Mabry have shown excellent sportsmanship concerning the inconveniences at the base.

The theme of Dr Campbell's address was "The Challenge of the World's New Epoch". Dr Campbell said that students must learn to act intelligently and that since the quantity of necessary knowledge has increased, accuracy and precision are becoming even more important to learning.

The convocaton devotion was lead by Dr Robert D Miller. The faculty trio, composed of William Presser, Owen Sellers, and Mary Winslow played Debussy's "Romance".

Former Graduate Is Nurse in Shanghai

Joan B Kennedy, registered nurse, 1941 graduate of Florida State College sailed this summer to Shanghai, China, as an addition to the Quaker team in Honan, which is trying to rehabilitate hospitals.

Miss Kennedy received her bachelor of science degree in chemistry from FSC in 1941 and her bachelor of science in nursing from the Presbyterian Hospital School of Nursing at Columbia University. She is the daughter of the late William Grahm Kennedy who was pastor of the Tallahassee Presbyterian church from 1930 to 1940.

Dr Hay Returns to FSC After Five Years Of Government Service Here and Abroad

Profiting from a background of European travel and a knowledge of foreign languages, Dr Marion J Hay, professor of education, left Florida State College five years ago to fill several vital and very interesting roles in the United States government.

In March, 1942, Dr Hay went to work in Washington for the Censorship Bureau. This led to a position with the Office of Strategic Service, Uncle Sam's wartime intelligence organization. Dr Hay was in charge of one area of political intelligence, and, due to the nature of her work, she was able to keep contact through "underground routes" with friends in the resistance in France.

When the OSS was disbanded and its work turned over to the State Department, Dr Hay accepted a position on the faculty at New York University. The Security Council was meeting in New York City at this time, and Dr Hay went to the sessions devoted to Spain and the atomic control.

This summer Dr Hay made her thirteenth trip to Europe with Mrs Mildred Pepper, wife of the Florida senator. She served as a representative of the People's Mandate Committee and attended the plenary sessions of the United Nations conference in Paris.

Dr Hay was invited to numerous diplomatic entertainments while in France, including a reception given by the Brazilian ambassador to the United Nations representatives, a luncheon by the French Minister Plenipotentiary, and a small informal tea given by Madam Bidault at the Quai d'Orsay (the French equivalent of the White House). Dr Hay also inspected medical dispensaries, summer camps and other agencies devoted to child welfare.

"The health of the people in general," she pointed out, "is very poor. There is a lot of tuberculosis. Some of the children have not had milk since infancy. And the price of good foods is high—butter, $3.50 a pound, and eggs, 15c each—all black market, of course."

Dr Hay said that Denise and Michele Dumont, ages 7 and 9, whose father was killed in the French resistance, and their mother, together with another of Dr Hay's French friends, are expected to arrive here in November.

A friend, who died while Dr Hay was in France, had been an active agent in the French underground. In the apartment above him during the war lived some of the German Gestapo. When an aviator hiding in the agent's rooms for several days found this out, he became unusually jittery everytime the doorbell rang—there was always a chance that it might be the upstairs "neighbors."

From France, Dr Hay went to Portugal at the invitation of Ambassador Baruch, and thence into Spain, that being the only easy route by which to enter the country. Dr Hay said that the conditions in Spain are the result of governmental and army graft and mismanagement.

In Madrid, for example, there are fine, large apartment houses, unoccupied; while in other sections, whole families are crowding into single rooms, or caves, because they cannot afford to build or rent a small home.

The Spanish people are in poor health, and many are dying from lack of food. Bread, a necessity for human life, is rationed; gasoline, a luxury for the wealthy class, is not. And even though rationed, bread is obtainable only in minute quantities except on the government-controlled black markets. The black market prices are so high, said Dr Hay, that a two-pound loaf of bread, for instance, costs a laborer his wages for one entire day's work.

Upon her return to this country Dr Hay came to her home in Tallahassee and is now teaching Spanish and education as a member of FSC's education department faculty

Election to Be Thursday For Student Government Of Male Students at FSC

Nominations To Be Made at Tuesday Meeting; Three Major Parties Formed to Nominate Candidates for Class and General Offices

In spite of the slow start during the first few weeks while students were still getting used to the college, the contest for positions on the Tally student government now being formed has now become one of the most important things on campus, with nominations coming up at the usual Tuesday assembly and the elections to be held Thursday.

A strong lead in organization is held by the conventional party, which stands for accurate representation of the student body. This party has already absorbed several other embryo organizations with similar aims, making it the strongest party to date. The candidates for the Tuesday nomination meeting are: John P Sullivan, president of the student body; Milton Flack, vice-president; Dean Wentworth, secretary; Dave Burns, treasurer; Jesse Wilson, social chairman.

Next in importance is the independent party, organized in opposition to the conventional party in order to prevent the danger of party rule, according to its chairman, Lemoyne Cash. The aims of this party include the item that this election be only for the formation of a provisional government to last to the end of the quarter, since the students have not yet had time to get to know each other, and at the end of the quarter the men will have had a chance to judge the office holders and learn which are good and which need to be replaced.

There are at present only a few other organizations, all of which have not reached the naming stage yet. They are formed only for the support of certain nominees for carried positions without a platform or an overall list of candidates.

The first indication of political activity at Dale Mabry was the appearance of a pamphlet on the Dale Mabry bulletin warning of a certain "Pensacola bloc" which, according to the pamphlet, had in mind the control of the student government. The pamphlet also stated that it was issued by the Student Union party, organized to combat the "Pensacola bloc."

Cause of the rumor about the "Pensacola bloc" was a meeting of Pensacola students in order to arrange for mutual transportation for those who wished to go home over the holidays and weekends, stated Dean Wentworth, who was present at the meeting. Pensacola students are now members or candidates of many opposing parties.

Third of the parties formed at present is the Student Union party, which authored the pamphlet warning against the "Pensacola bloc." Their candidate for president of the student body is Fred Boris.

These elections will be for a president, vice president, secretary, treasurer, and social chairman for the student body and other sets for the four classes. There are seven men in the senior class, only one more than the number of offices.

Artist Series To Present Noted Dancer

La Meri to Appear in Interpretive Selections Of Foreign Countries

Program Tickets Must Be Secured by Today

The first Artist Series performance for this year is scheduled for Friday and Saturday, October 25 and 26, when La Meri, exponent of exotic dances of the world, will appear in the auditorium at Florida State College.

Both red and blue tickets will be distributed this afternoon from 3:30 to 5:30 in the basement of the Longmire building. Tickets will also be available at the box office just before the performance. Men enrolled under the University of Florida Tallahassee branch are eligible to attend under the series.

La Meri, star of the first program, left the United States as a young girl to study dances in their native lands. Her instructors have included Farasoff and Volinine of the Cecchetti, Michio Ito and Uday Shan-kar, and Jose Ottero. She brought with her the native costumes, which she uses for her dances, from the countries in which she studied. Her collection also includes a variety of shoes from foreign countries.

La Meri has danced and created roles in Paris, Vienna, London, Berlin, Italy, and the Scandinavian countries. Other appearances have taken her to countries of the Far East and South America.

She is also recognized as a musician and writer. She is the author of two recent books: "The Dance as an Art-Form," and "Principles of the Dance-Art." As a violinist La Meri formerly played in the symphony orchestra in her hometown in Texas. Poems about the life of a Texas cowboy inspired her while she was studying literature at Columbia University in New York.

Initial Tryouts For Even Dem Today

Tryouts for all parts in Even demonstration are being held in Westcott auditorium tonight and tomorrow night from 7:30 until light flash. Georgia Jaeckel, chairman of the demonstration, urged all persons who think they could take either a speaking or singing part to come to the tryouts.

The demonstrations are the musical comedies presented each year for the purpose of introducing the Thanksgiving teams to the student body. The title and theme of the demonstrations are kept secret until the show.

Georgia says that even though the lists for persons to sign up for committees are down from the bulletin board it is still not too late to get on a committee. Those who are interested should contact the chairman of the committee they should like to be on, or send their name and preference to Nancy Harn, box 986, campus mail.

The various committee chairmen are: Connie Savage, financial manager; Anne Shull, Jeani Harris, and Dru Gnann (tumbling), dance chairmen; Jo Long and Dottie Smith, costumes; Evelyn Shea, stage manager, with Betty Kennedy, properties, Jane Bryson, construction, and Lois Narovec, decorations as sub-committees; Audrey Evans, tickets.

Judy Rhodes, programs; Betty La Bree, publicity with Dip Brown, posters, and Joyce Petty, Flambeau, as sub-committees, Madge Pil[illegible] and Virginia Sewell, chorus; Louise Lake, ushers, Marcia Lel Vernon, lights; and Gloria Wells, make-up.

Juanita Krentzman, cast prompter, and Sara Lee Williams, line prompter. The chairmen of advertising and orchestral music are to be announced soon.

FSC Delegates to Attend Convention

Five delegates will represent Florida State College at the Associated Collegiate Press convention, to be held in Chicago Thursday, Friday and Saturday of next week. Those attending this meeting, which is the first such convention held since before the war, are: Shirley Rodgers, B J McLeod and Bee Dowd, Flambeau; May Alexander, Distaff, and Jean Shearer, Flastacowo.

Speakers at this convention will include Howard Blakeslee, Associated Press science editor and Pulitzer Prize winner; Dr William L Young, vice-president of the National Convention of Christians and Jews; and Kenneth Olson, dean of the Medill School of Journalism, Northwestern University. Delegates from colleges throughout the country will be present at these meetings, which are to be held at the Hotel Continental.

Freshman Program To Be Convocation

The annual freshman [illegible] program will be a part of convocation next Tuesday night. Mary Lou White, as freshman advisor and Betty Stewart, as chairman of the program committee, are in charge of the affair. The various acts will be incorporated in skit form.

Seniors to Be Told Investiture Line-up

The Senior class meeting will be Wednesday at 4:45 pm in the Longmire Auditorium, according to an announcement from Jean Cole, president.

Seniors will be informed where their positions are to be in the line up for Investiture which is to be October 29 at 8.00 pm, and Dr Shores will talk on correct academic regalia. Also, Senior cheerleaders will be selected at the class meeting.

A list of sophomores will be posted on the bulletin board in lower Westcott for Seniors to sign up for their sophomore sisters.

A drawing-room originally was called a withdrawing room, and meant a place to withdraw to.

Kesselring Comedy Coming Nov 6, 7, 8

Cast Selected for "Arsenic And Old Lace" Performance

The cast for "Arsenic and Old Lace" has been selected this week and the production will be presented November 6, 7 and 8 in the Augusta Conradi theater. The play, which is the first speech department production of the year, is under the direction of Miss Yvonne Cody, instructor in speech.

This Joseph Kesselring comedy is the humorous story of two elderly ladies, played by Elaine Parramore and Mary Ann Cannon, who poison a number of lonely old men in order to put them out of their misery. The romantic relief of the story will be provided by the ingenue leads, Dick Mitchell and Betty Cargill.

The entire cast for this play, which includes three women and eleven men, is as follows: Teddy, Herbert Sessions; Abby, Elaine Parramore; Martha, Mary Ann Cannon; Mortimer, Dick Mitchell; Dr Harper, Jack Richey; O'Hara, Paul Johnson; Klein, Benny Walker; Rooney, D L Middlebrooks; Brooky, David T Burns; Dibbs, J L Falds;

Jonathan, Frank Lewis; Einstein, Johnny Folsom; Elaine, Bet Cargill; Witherspoon, Jack Richey. Nine of the eleven male parts in this production are being played by men enrolled in the University branch here.

Torch Night Will Be Held Next Thursday

Torch Night, the traditional occasion in which freshmen are officially initiated into the fellowship of the campus, will be held Thursday, October 24, on the Westcott balcony. Freshmen, dressed in white, will carry torches symbolizing the three torches of the school emblem.

Committee chairmen appointed at the meeting of Sophomore Council Monday night are: Margaret Swanson, vice-chairman in charge of Torch Night; Betty Nelson and Ann Knight, co-chairmen of publicity; Nancy Jones, properties committee; and Mary Calley, costume committee.

San Bernardino county, Calif, with an area of 20,175 square miles, is the largest county in the United States.

Seminole Staff Snaps Male Minority In Catastrophic Classroom Closeups

Hold that smile please!

If your Saturday morning class was rather interrupted by a crowd of boys with a camera, they were intent on finding a class in session with one boy to about 25 girls. You might have guessed that they were part of the University of Florida's annual staff . . . but then again, you might have been puzzled.

The Seminole staff decided that since the 'Tally' branch of the University had to pay student fees at the 'home office' they should have representative pictures in the annual. The staff also thought they would attempt to relieve the crowded conditions in Gainesville by increasing enrollment in the Tallahassee branch. Their method was novel, to say the least.

Pictures of classes with one or two boys and bevys of beautiful gals were first on the list. Miss Roberta Akerman and Mr Earl Vance proved most co-operative. But the one or two boys in each class seemed a little on the reticent side midst many blushes and "aw shaws."

Sunday the boys covered Dale Mabry with shots of the barracks, the "mess" hall and a picture (how apropos one never knows) of a telescope pointed ever so slyly toward the girls' campus. The excited "Ah-ha," when the telescope was raised to eye brought electrified attention from the group.

More shots typifying a Gainesville week end in Tallahassee brought the weekend to a close . . . but not without mentioning the good-bye scene taken on the front steps to the tune of a waning autumn moon.

Patron Saint of Campus Spanish House Tells of Early Interest in Languages

Dr D Lincoln Canfield, new head of the modern language department, leaned back in his chair and smiled. His tall frame was relaxed in the manner of an athlete between quarters.

"I first became interested in Spanish when I lived in Nogales, Arizona — Nogales, by the way, means walnut trees—before I was even in high school. I've been interested ever since, and my interest also extends to other languages," said Dr Canfield.

Dr Canfield speaks English, Spanish, French, "some" Italian, and a little German. One of his main interests in languages is the study of dialects, especially of the English language.

Born in the midwest, Dr Canfield spent most of his early life in the real West—Arizona, California and Texas. He received his bachelor degree from the University of Texas. He took his MA and his Ph D at Columbia University, where he also taught for a while.

One of his past occupations was taking groups of "lady schoolteachers" on tours of Mexico. Said Dr Canfield, "Every summer from 1926 to 1941 I made these tours. The last time we went by car along the Pan-American highway. It was very enjoyable."

Continuing, Dr Canfield stated, "I'm very interested in sports, too. For three years during the war, when I was teaching at Rochester University, I rode a bicycle. I had sold my car. The snow and ice were pretty bad, and I fell a number of times."

Among the sports in which he participated during and after his college years are baseball, track and pole vaulting. He is also interested in photography, and prefers heat to cold.

Dr Canfield plans to remain here. He has three children, two daughters and a son. His son is on the football squad at Leon High.

The "patron saint" of the newly established Spanish house on campus said, with a final gracious smile, "And I think Tallahassee is a nice place. We like it here."

Distaff Deadline Set At November First

Contributions may now be submitted for the fall issue of the Distaff deadline for which is November 1, May Alexander, editor, announced this week. Deadline for the Freshman Writing contest, also originally set for November 1, has been postponed until February 1.

All entries for this contest submitted before the deadline for this issue will, however, be considered for publication in the fall Distaff. The winners will be announced in the second issue, and all winning contributions not publshed this quarter will appear at that time

Students Cheer As Cards Win Out

Yells, cheers, groans, and moans were audible throughout the lower floor of the Longmire Building Tuesday afternoon as tense students crowded around a portable radio listening to the final game of the World Series played between the St Louis Cardinals and the Boston Red Sox.

The static voice of the commentator continues against a steady din of screaming fans. Students crowd closer to the radio . . . one girl presses her ear against it . . . a boy nervously lights a cigarette from another only half smoked. It is the last of the eighth inning and the score is tied three to three. "Yippee! ! ! ! It's a run! The Cards have scored!" Pencils eagerly go into action to mark this new lead on score sheets avidly kept by the most intense listeners.

It's the beginning of the ninth. "A high fly down left field." "Atta boy, Doerr." The game goes on to its climactic end. The Cards have it, four to three! "Oh . . . oh, there goes ten bucks." "What do you mean? I just won twenty!"

Geography Club

The Geography Club will hold its first meeting on Wednesday, October 23, at 7:30 p m in the Longmire building, announced Nicky Sartoris, club president.

Immediately after the meeting a reception will be held at which time the guest speaker, Mr W J Jacobs, will be presented. Mr Jacobs is an authority on forestry and has been working with park organization.

Membership Open For Musical Season

Piano Team to Be Presented At Opening Performance

Seasonal membership tickets in the Tallahassee Civic Music Association, which opens its programs on October 29, are still available. College students and faculty who desire season tickets in TCMA, and who were not present during the last membership drive in April of this year, are eligible for membership. Adult and student membership dues are $6.00 and $3.00 respectively, including tax. Membership cards may be obtained from Miss Fae Thompson at the book store.

Miss Isabel McKinnell, chairman of the membership campaign of the TCMA, announced that no individual concert tickets will be sold. Admission will be by season ticket only.

Arthur Gold and Robert Fizdale, a piano duo, are the first performers. The complete schedule is: Robert Hall Collins, baritone, November 18; Benno Rabinof, February 25; the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra with Eugene Goossens conducting, March 25. All concerts will be held at 8:15 at Leon High School.

Eleven Seniors Intern This Quarter

Eleven seniors of the School of Education began their internships September 23 in various schools throughout the state. These girls are to return here November 27 and remain until December 8, during which time they will conduct their seminars.

Those interning this quarter and subject or grade each instructs are: Ruth Bethea, grade 2, West Palm Beach; Mary R Cadman, grade 1, Marks Street School, Orlando; Eleanor C Chisholm, English, Avon Park High School, Avon Park; Alice C Crume, English, Deland High School, Deland; Sara Ellen Glenn, history, Leon High School, Gainesville; Frances Lyon, Spanish, Leon High School; Grace E Lindberg, physical education, Hollywood High School, Hollywood; Joe Nell Segree, English, Columbia County High School, Lake City; Alice Summitt, physical education, Leon High School, Betty Jean Thomasson, social studies, Sarasota High School, Sarasota; and Ellen Louise Whitman, Spanish, Sarasota High School.

"It will be of general interest to the college public to know," said Dean R L Eyman, "that before a student internes, it is necessary for Coordinator Robert C Moon to hold conferences with the county superintendent, county supervisor, principal, and directing teacher under whom she will work." Mr Moon is at present holding such conferences in regard to the internees for next quarter, as well as visiting girls already interning.

Students Prefer DMF to Campus

"Just as with any new housing venture, there have been difficulties at the Dale Mabry housing unit," said Miss Edith McCollum, director of residence. "However," she continued, "our problems are being solved with welcomed results." Many girls who have been given the opportunity to move on campus from the field have begged to be allowed to continue living there. A few moves to campus have been made recently when rooms are available, but on the whole the majority of Florida State College students at DMF are quite happy over their place of residence.

To Err Is Human

We regret that an error was made in the registration figures quoted in last week's story on total enrollment. The figure for last year's registration was 2,444 students rather than the 2,844 that appeared in the story.

Reception Honors New FSC, Tally U Faculty and Staff

New members of the faculty and staff of Florida State College and the Tallahassee branch of the University of Florida were presented to the college and the community last night by President and Mrs Doak Campbell.

The reception was held in the drawing rooms of the Rowena Longmire student-alumnae building, made colorful by arrangements of dahlias and chrysanthemums.

Receiving with President and Mrs Campbell were Governor and Mrs Caldwell, the Hon and Mrs Robert A Gray, the Hon and Mrs J Edwin Larson, the Hon Tom Watson, the Hon and Mrs Colin English, the Hon Clarence M Gay, Dr William T Edwards, Dr Otis McBride, Dr J Broward Culpepper, Dr Grace E Wilder, and Dr D L Canfield.

Assisting at the reception were members of the Legislature delegation: Mr Leroy Collins, with Mrs Collins; Mr Wilson Carraway, with Mrs Carraway; and Mr Payne Midyette, with Mrs Midyette.

Acting as floor hosts and hostesses for the occasion were members of the Chamber of Commerce College Relationship Committee and their wives: Mr and Mrs Charles Ausley, Mr and Mrs Frank Moor, Mr and Mrs Rainey Cawthon, Mr and Mrs James Messer, Jr, Mr and Mrs Sidney Steyerman, Mr and Mrs Henry Wrenn, Mr and Mrs Velma Keen, Mr and Mrs George Lewis, Mr and Mrs Guyte McCord, Mr and Mrs Jack Simmons, Mr and Mrs S Teague.

Also assisting were members of the College Executive Council, heads of departments, members of the faculty and staff, wives of professors, and student government officers.

Several hundred townspeople and friends of the College called during the evening to meet the honored guests.

Tea Held Saturday To Honor Students

Freshmen and transfer students in the School of Home Economics were entertained with a tea by the Home Economics Club in the Home Management House last Saturday from 3:30 to 5:30.

In the receiving line were: Esther Dale, president of the club; Mrs H M Glenn, residence director of the Home Management House; Miss Wright, club sponsor, Miss Agnes Brown, a new staff member; Mrs Joyce Windham, student manager of the house.

Guests numbering approximately 150 were escorted on a tour through the Home Management House by the girls living there this quarter. Senior home economics majors make their residence there for a quarter.

Members of the club council were hostesses throughout the afternoon, serving refreshments from the tea table decorated with autumn flowers.

Ex-Red Cross Worker Finds FSC's Coeducation Natural

"It seems natural to have boys around," said Miss Kemper Moore, who just returned to the speech department after three years of entertaining the armed forces overseas. "I'm very pleased to see these boys on our campus," she continued. "I believe they will contribute much to the advancement of the college."

Miss Moore was a club director in the Red Cross and entertained troops stationed in Australia, the Netherlands East Indies and various other places; the Philippines being her last assignment before returning to the United States, where she was an instructor in the Personnel Training section at the Red Cross headquarters in Washington, D C.

In Mareeha, Australia, home of the 19th Bomb Group, Miss Moore saw the base in its early and rough stages. Although she wasn't sent in until the worst danger was over, she experienced air raids and saw Jap planes flying overhead.

She was later sent to Southport, Australia, for 15 months where she was a club director for the officers' rest area which consisted of three hotels located on the beach. The men would come to these rest areas on leave after combat in the Mariannas, the Carolinas and other nearby fronts to relax and enjoy the recreation the Red Cross planned for them, such as beach bathing, games, parties, fishing trips, sight seeing trips.

From Southport Miss Moore was assigned to a submarine base at Perth, Australia. The submarine crews, battle weary, would come to the rest area an[illegible] that it was almost like going back home. The Red Cross would try to have the men's favorite food and special things that they enjoyed, trying in every way to give each thing a home touch. One submarine crew liked it so well that they came back on four different leaves.

"A most horrible sight—a city completely devastated — which can't be described in words but leaves a sense of depression after gazing upon such ruin," expressed Miss Moore describing Manila as she moved in a few weeks before it was declared out of combat area.

While in the Philippines Miss Moore was stationed near General Headquarters and was in position to meet many high ranking officers and war heroes. She had the privilege of meeting General MacArthur of whom she said "did a magnificent job and is even more handsome than his pictures."

She also met Commander Buckley, PT boat squadron leader and the hero written about in the book They were Expendable, and who was portrayed in the picture of the same name by Robert Montgomery. Miss Moore said that Commander Buckley "was a charming man who did a job well." She stated that heroes in general are mostly modest about their heroic deeds.

"Fellows who do good jobs overseas are the ones who do good jobs back home," said Miss Moore summing up her opinion by using the words of Dr James Borland of Jacksonville, who was also overseas.

On returning to FSC to continue as an instructor in the speech department, Miss Moore stated, "FSC has changed in many ways but it seems wonderful to be back again and to see so much progress."

"While working with the armed forces I learned a lot about teaching," declared Miss Moore. "There aren't too many differences in the directing of the service men and that of directing the college girls but the armed forces have developed a streamlined way of teaching."

Seymour Talks

government of China is subject still to direction of its domestic and foreign policies by other nations, the government in power has become military dictatorship under Chiang Kai-Shek, and the people are impoverished by war and inflation.

Dr Seymour lived many years in China, and served as advisor to the Chinese minister of education.

"From 1921 until 1927," he said, "the conservative party and the agrarian socialists worked in cooperation. Now the nationalist party is somewhat in the position of the Japanese when they had control of China, for they hold all principle cities, railroads, and rivers and are supported by the aristocracy, whereas eighty percent of the Chinese people, living in rural sections, are burdened with debt, hounded by usurers, and are unable to secure any real representation."

In the northern parts of China, he continued, where the socialist party has been effective, the socialists have lowered rents, formed schools, and organized cooperatives. The farmer, instead of being forced to pay an average of taxes on sixty per cent of his earnings, now only pays five per cent.

Civil war in China is aggravated by the United States because the American government furnishes supplies to the army of Chiang Kai-Shek by American ships, and American marines are actively combatting communist forces in Manchuria.

Numerous Chinese leaders have protested against this situation. Among these is Madame Sun Yat-Sen, who maintain that the majority of the people suffer under nationalist rule, and that only through the assistance of foreign business interests can the conservative government stay in power.

"The Chinese," concluded Dr Seymour, "are desperately in need of domestic reorganization, but present military influences do not favor such a change. The government of the United States has pledged itself to a policy that supports this situation."

College Dairy

to cover the vast 1,000 acres under their jurisdiction.

The center of attraction at the dairy is the milking barn with the floors kept in spic and span condition. Electrically charged wire screens greatly cut down the presence of flies in the barn. When milking time comes, the 115 cows who are milked daily are driven through a wading pool and "shower" cleansing the portions of the animals' bodies touched by the automatic milkers. The barn can provide for 30 cows at one time and approximately two hours will find all of the bossies on the way back to the pasturelands.

As is the situation all over the nation the cattle-feed outlook is none too bright. The cost of feed is fifty per cent higher than it was two years ago. However, the dairy has two large 100-ton capacity feed silos to store the grass as it comes in.

If any of the students are curious as to the fate of the table scraps of the college dining hall they may ease their minds as the recipients of the tid-bits are the 200 hogs being raised on the college farm. Incidentally the porkers are fed the scraps on concrete floors. This, however, does not improve their table manners as they retain the habits of their ancestors in consuming the scraps.

Besides the hogs and cattle, two mules are kept on the dairy to meet the needs of various odd jobs that cannot be handled immediately by the machines.

sence, and the difficulty of obtaining permission on short notice. They also pointed out that since Gainesville had found no necessity to limit cuts in this manner, even when the majority of the students were just graduated from high school, it should be even more unnecessary to regulate students was the severity of students who were predominately veterans.

A list of those men affected by the new rule has been posted on the bulletin board at Dale Mabry and in Westcott Hall on the campus.

FEMALE HELP WANTED

CIRCULATION DEPT.
The News-Democrat

ON THESE PLATFORMS WE STAND . . . .

These are the platforms of the candidates for the student Constitution Committee grouped according to classes. Ballots will be distributed in the dormitories Monday. Don't forget to vote!

Senior Candidates

As a candidate for the forthcoming constitutional committee election I have no particular policy to offer. Rather it is my belief that our College Government Association is in need of a new constitution, and, for one that more fully meets the needs of the student body and will serve both students and faculty to their best advantage, I shall work.

Martha Abbott.

As a candidate for membership on the Constitutional Committee I seek a liberalization of the laws and by-laws of the CGA constitution as well as general, and I feel a very necessary overhauling of the document. It should include such provisions as: leaving to the discretion of the student body, and only to this body, whom they shall elect as their officers; the right of the student body to petition the Faculty Committee on student affairs; restriction of any candidate to run for an office unopposed: acceptance of any office only by securing a majority of votes cast. It cannot be stressed enough to say that restrictions and responsibilities of authority to students and to the administration should be clarified in the final drafting of this constitution.

Betty (Bee) Dowd.

I, Roberta Friedkin, am a candidate for the Committee on Constitutional revision because I am confident that such a group of students will be able to achieve a more functional constitution for our school. As a member of the said committee I would keep the welfare of the student body in mind always and in this light consider each arising question objectively, thus proposing and helping to steer such changes as would lead to a constitution that will give us a greater share in our college government, thus giving us a more effective college life.

Roberta Friedkin.

In the revision of the constitution I would most like to see some part of it devoted to a law which would insure against the arising of any situation comparable to the pre-election dilemma that created so unpleasant an atmosphere between students and faculty last spring. It is my belief that students and faculty should and could work out a more feasible set of regulations to live by to the mutual astisfaction of both.

Certain sections in Article V, concerning the Judicial Department, need reconstruction, revision and some deletion. This should be done with an attitude reflecting more modern ideas concerning the treatment of the erring.

I think most definitely that if rules are made that will make for the happiness and success of the most people, little difficulty in keeping them will be experienced. Violators of the rules should be interviewed in a friendly manner in the hope of helping and correcting rather than punishing and perverting the attitude of the erring student.

Jane Grindstaff.

I would like to serve on the committee for the revision of the constitution because I am interested in seeing a more liberal form of government come to this campus. I am particularly interested in a revision of the section which concerns the duties of officers, because I believe that there should be a much greater division of responsibility and duties among the student body.

I would also like to see an improvement in the method of Sophomore Council in selection that would give those persons having the closest contact with the freshman class a larger voice in the choice. I would also work for the improvement of procedure for election of campus officers, and, in general, I would attempt to secure a more responsible position for the student body in all matters pertaining to their college government.

Marion Looby.

Our present constitution is too long, over-written, and full of ambiguities. It is badly in need of revision, and representatives of the group who lives under the document are those who should write it. I would like to work on this committee as more or less general flunky with a finger in all the pies.

My special interest is seeing that the document turned out by this committee would contain clear, simple, concise statements that cannot be twisted around to mean whatever the situation demands. We should be able to read the constitution and know what we have!

B J McLeod.

As a candidate for the constitutional committee my platform can only be as follows: I am intensely interested in seeing that steps be taken toward insuring forthcoming student government on this campus. It is my desire to see that we live under a constitution that is liberal as well as intelligent, adequate in its provisions for unforseen crises, and capable of exact interpretation by the student body.

I am well aware of the task which is before the students of this college and hereby submit my plea to be of help in reaching the goal which we are all seeking Juanita Nord.

It is common knowledge that our existing constitution of CGA direly needs revision. It is confusing in wording and some places extremely ambiguous. In general the changes for improvement of the constitution I think desirable, aside from better wording, stem from the two principles stated below.

1. The powers of government should reside in the student body with specific powers delegated to administrative, executive, legislative, and judiciary departments. (This of course pertains only to matters of government and not to academic matters).

2. There should be a division of powers to eliminate the gross overlapping of the various departments of government.

Mary Lou Norwood.

I wish to work toward a greater clarification of and division in the legislative, executive and judicial branches of the College Government Association because I believe that there is much overlapping and confusion of responsibility at present. In this connection I am particularly interested in a revision of the duties required of major officers who are now burdened with responsibilities rather than those that pertain directly to the positions for which they are elected. Finally, I shall try to help obtain for the student body a larger measure of self government and final responsibility in all matters not applying to the academic field because I believe that only in this way can we learn to accept the duties of citizenship that we shall meet after college life.

Betty Schwartz.

I have no set platform to give as a candidate for the Constitutional Committee other than my interest in the constitution. I believe that there are many changes which must be made to bring our constitution into line with the changes in the school. The only thing I can promise is hard work.

Barbara Wickham.

I should like to submit my statement of interest in the Constitution Committee for the study, revision, clarification, and ultimate amendment of the Constitution of the College Government Association. I would like to have the opportunity to help in shaping a new framswork of government for the student body with a greater division of power in the executive branch, and a change in the membership of student Senate, excluding those who are not elected by the student body as a whole.

Anne McDonald

Article II of the Constitution of Florida State College for Women states among other things that the purpose of the College Government Association shall be "to increase the sense of individual responsibility" of the student. I believe that the present Constitution does not allow a proper amount of freedom to the students to develop, much less increase, a "sense of individual responsibility . . .". If elected to serve as a member of the Committee for amending the present Constitution, I shall endeavor to increase the freedom of students on this campus by working for greater powers to be granted the student officers of the Association.

Gloria Reed

I have felt since I have been on this campus that the power to do things lies too much in the hands of too few. This could be partly obliterated by membership on Senate being purely by vote from their classes. This gives more chances for expression to the students, and takes away a responsibility that an already busy office holder is holding.

Mary Nell Goldman

As a member of the Constitution Committee, I would endeavor to carry out student desires as nearly as is humanly possible. Great clarification and simplification is needed as regards our present constitution so that overlapping of powers may be avoided, interpretation may be clearly understood by all, and such things as last year's election fiasco avoided.

My interest lies in more student government which, in turn, would call for the vesting of greater responsibility in the student body.

Shirley Rodgers.

My only platform for the Constitution Committee is that of interest—in its function and its purpose. With no startling reforms to offer you at this moment, I can only say how much I'd like to see a greater student understanding of and participation in our College Government Association.

Nancy MacEdwards.

Junior Candidates

If I am selected as a junior representative to the Constitutional Committee, I shall work for a truly student government, restricted in scope only by clearly defined limitations (such as those pertaining to the control of diseases, academic matters, etc) which are obviously beyond student jurisdiction. This would eliminate the present concentration of power involved in allowing student officers two votes on all legislation, one in senate and another in closed session of college council, by making final all measures passed by Student Senate.

Moreover, I believe that our student body should be clearly empowered with the rights of petition, referendum, and recall. I also believe that all standing committees, now responsible to College Council, including the group which controls Student Activity funds, should be composed entirely of students and that those regular committee appointments now made by a CGA officer should require the approval of two-thirds of student Senate.

Laura Lee Butler.

In general, my policy in regards to the constitution is for more student responsibility together with closer harmony between students and faculty.

In particular, I would like to see all members of Student Senate elected, and not there by virtue of holding some other office. I would favor amendments specifying what would make a student candidate eligible to run, requiring a majority vote to make an election valid, and prohibiting single candidates to run for office.

A simplification and definition of the terms employed in the constitution seems to me also necessary to avoid misunderstanding by students and faculty. The powers of the different branches have become interlocking in some cases, and I would favor a separation of those powers.

Barbara Beckman.

I wish to work on the new constitution. I have felt for some time that there are many changes that should be made. It seems to me more power should be in the student hands. I realize that faculty and staff opinion is very important as they have years of experience to their credit which is most necessary. We are no longer children when we come to college though oftentimes we act as adolescents. It is my opinion that if the constitution were so worded that it could mean only one thing and not many from wide interpretation it would be a great accomplishment.

Lillian Baker.

There are three changes I should especially like to see made in our present constitution. First of all, I hope our amendment concerning the eligibility of candidates will be incorporated into the constitution. I also think we should amend the section on elections to provide that a majority of the students must vote to make an election valid. My third hope is for a provision to prevent unopposed candidates. I do not believe any girl should be elected to an office by virtue of being the only one running for it.

In general, my policy is for more student responsibility and the elimination of all ambiguities.

Mary Charles Skipper.

Why do I, June Chyna, want to be a part of the Constitutional Committee? Being a junior with a memory that does date back farther than yesterday, I think our Constitution needs a general "overhauling". Our school has increased one third in number, not to mention the expansion in our ideas. Our present Constitution, in my opinion, has not grown along with the students' ideas and needs. Every constitution, that has ever been drawn up has at sometime been amended. I would consider it an honor to be given the opportunity to be a part of such a committee and would put forth every effort to make our constitution meet the demands and needs of today's students.

June Chyna

The opportunity to help revise the constitution of this school is an honor. It means severe criticism and discussion. It means awareness of the conditions on campus today.

The provisions as set up by Senate for the student body's participation in this work is but the first step. After ballots are cast, the elected group is free to begin work together.

I cannot state specific changes one, two, and which should be made in rewriting the constitution. Such decisions rest not with the individual so much as with the group. I would like to see any changes that are made evolve from the working and studying of these elected girls as a whole.

Through the close cooperation of an interested group in a vital job, almost anything can be accomplished.

Mary Jane Sherman

I am interested in working on the Student Constitution Committee as an opportunity for the expression of student opinion through legal channels. I am especially interested in working on the formation and duties of House Council. I believe that the constitution should have a revised statement of the purpose of College Government. Removing the ambiguities in the constitution is one of the most important tasks of the committee, I think. It seems like a bill of rights in our constitution.

Betty Bolles

Critical analysis—such are two words which describe the action which our Constitutional Committee should and must follow. Critical analysis which will equal necessary and only necessary corrections in our governing mechanisms. If, and only if, such a procedure is followed will we gain the type of constitution that we, the students; that they, the faculty, desire. A constitution which will eliminate overlapping of duties in student offices; which will clearly designate student and faculty responsibilities. This elimination and designation would indeed increase the efficiency of all activities of our college government. Through this reorganization for efficiency further understanding and co-operation should be derived, consequently, a more flexible college government would be possible. I sincerely hope that I may have the opportunity to act as an agent for the students in instigating this policy.

Grace Hays

Last spring when our constitution seemed to fail us and so shocked our deepest concept of democracy, many students clamored for purely student government. However, I believe in college government, but with a greater emphasis upon students and faculty equally sharing the authority and responsibility of the government.

Basically our share of authority is written into the constitution, but because of certain repetitious faculty controls and through usage this faculty authority has become preponderant over student authority in the participation in College Government. I believe that these problems can be solved by the findings and work of the Constitutional Committee, in which I am very interested and for which I am most willing to work.

Marshall Vernon.

If I am elected as a representative to the committee, I shall endeavor to bring about more separation of power and eliminate the ex-officio members of such organizations as Senate. (Ex-officio meaning those who are legal members of Senate by being elected to another office.)

I would like very much to have a revision of Article X concerning sophomore council.

Joyce Petty.

If I am elected to serve as a member of the Student Constitutional Committee, I shall make every effort to see to it that the student body be granted more power to determine its own future. I believe that the college authorities should specify precisely what powers reside with the students at present.

I believe, also, that before legislation which majority of Student Senate might deem to be of vital importance to the student body, a poll should be conducted and that a two-thirds vote of student approval be required for the passage of such legislation.

If I am elected to serve as a member of the committee, I shall use my vote to carry out, in as far as it is posible, the wishes of the student body as a whole.

Alicia Armstrong.

If I am elected as a representative to the Constitution Committee I shall stand for:

1. More separation of powers in the sense that more persons will accept the responsibility of CGA.
2. Generally, a liberal form of student government.
3. An effective organizations committee set-up so that activities and organizations may be better regulated.

Georgia M Jaeckel.

A new constitution—what a job! I know,—I worked on the new constitution at Brevard Junior College last year, and as president of the student body and council there, I was the intermediary for the council and the student body, and believe me, that is a job!

As you have gathered from the above paragraph, I am a transfer student. I have been interested in the constitution campaign that you are now having and the campaign has given me the incentive to write this statement.

Making a new constitution for a small school like Brevard was an experience on all sides, and I know how many times you have to revise after the "rough draft" is drawn up.

Florida State College will have its best constitution drawn up this year and I would like to participate in some small way, with you, in making it so.

Jennie Elder.

Editor's Note: Jennie's name will not appear on the ballots Monday because her statement was turned in after the deadline. However, any students who wish to write in her name may do so.

I, Mary Jo Whidden, submit my candidacy for the Constitution Committee of Senate and the student body because of sincere interest in and concern over the seemingly unwieldy document called the constitution of College Government Association. Liberal interpretation is nine points of the law no matter how clear and encompassing a constitution is, but we seem to be stymied before ever reaching this phase because of ambiguous statements as to the powers and limits of student and faculty executives and representatives. I advocate among other things, clarification of powers, duties, and relationship of one subject to another, without becoming wordy, so that uncertainty of legality of action will be abolished and loopholes avoided through which student and senate action may be handicapped and retarded, not only in times of stress, but in normal times also. I advocate student government insofar as possible. I advocate the right of initiative, the power of recall, and more final power in Senate.

Mary Jo Whidden.

Although I haven't spent all summer avidly studying the constitution and its problems, I have thought of it often and I am still vitally interested in eliminating its loopholes, bringing it up to date, and otherwise adjusting it to meet with the approval of the majority of the student body which it governs.

Doris DuBois.

I believe that as time goes by changes are brought about in our college society. As the society changes the laws and ideals under which the society exists must also undergo some changes. We are now at the point where some drastic changes must be made. Our constitution, as it now stands, might well serve a college society of some years ago. In the past summer enough changes have been made to advocate a revision of our entire constitution. This revision should come from the student body for whom the code exists. In view of this I should like to submit application to work on the Senate Constitution Committee.

Charlotte Boaland.

All I can say is that I'm genuinely interested in the Constitution Committee and would definitely like to work with the committee. It is a vital issue, and will take serious consideration. I am willing to give the time and work required to do a really good job

Betty Bolles.

I am very interested in seeing a careful study of the constitution result in a revision clarifying many of the statements which cause confusion and misunderstanding as was the case in last spring's college election.

I would like to eliminate the word "withdrawal" from Article V, Section 4, as I believe that no matter how severe a violation has been committed, sending a student home in disgrace is admitting failure of our counseling program as well as being detrimental to the student.

In our type of government understanding between students and faculty is essential, and any statements which hinder full co-operation should be eliminated or reworded to avoid ambiguity.

Bruce Flanders.

Feeling the great need of modification in our constitution I would like to represent the students by serving on the Constitution Committee. Since it is our privilege to make our social regulations I feel that we can make these rules to benefit the majority of the student body. If these standards and rules represent the desires and ideals of our student government today, our responsibility to uphold them will be a part of us.

Believing in the democratic way of life, I wish to strive to have freedom in elections, social regulations, and residence rules insofar as you as a group will it within the limits of our code of honor. Certain of our standards need some strengthening in character and others need modification for clearness and effectiveness.

Understanding the trend of the present time, I shall work for any change that will promote growth in character and power.

Emily Herold.

My interest in the general revision of our constitution is the platform I present as a candidate for the committee. I advocate separation of governmental responsibilities and offices. There should be no "rider" offices in addition to the one to which someone is elected. I think simplification, liberailty and change of our document is in line with the growth of our school.

Bettie Basemore.

Sophomore Candidates

Recently, more than ever before, changing conditions have been evidenced on our campus. Some have been in keeping with the policy of Florida State College, while others have been altogether revolutionary. In order to make for social adjustment, and so that we

● ALERTED

Annually a chance is offered to the students of Florida State College to take an active part in the functioning of the college branch of the Red Cross. This next week a booth is to be opened by this organization where all may sign up for the various committees—disaster relief, volunteer work, first aid and accident prevention, life saving and water safety, public information, junior Red Cross, and nutrition—in which he or she might have some particular interest.

It should not be taken for granted by the students that they are going out of their way to give their time and effort to such an activity, but, rather, they should see that in the information and training which they will receive, both parties will benefit equally. These committees have been planned to fit many different phases of work and interests that the student might have. It is especially stressed that this training will be useful not only for the life here on campus but also for post-college days in which basic, practical knowledge of this type is always an asset in the home and in the community.

It is a sad predicament when a statement comes from such a worthy organization as this saying that there is a desperate need for workers; that editorials and news stories need to play up interest in this sort of work. It should be taken for granted by each individual that he or she would give their time, not reticently, but gladly, to aid in the furtherance of any such endeavor.

Such interest and service is the duty of every citizen of any community, whether college, city, state or nation.

● WITH A GRAIN OF SALT

It's beginning to look like the people of Europe are not the only ones to be seriously affected by the general food shortage. Florida State College is beginning to feel the weighty hand along with the others. We refer to the Sunday night suppers in the dining hall.

Heretofore, Sunday night meals have been served in a picnic style and have not been regularly planned meals. This we could accept—but dry saltines with milk and one apple. It is too much!

We appeal to you, Miss Tracy. Can't we have something to go on the crackers?

● THE CALL TO ARMS

With the present international situation at such a height of interest and with Russia, England, and the United States grappling with high strung words of supposed wisdom, it appears more than likely that the contemporary American college Joe and Jane should face the matter and dig deep in order to create for themselves a true knowledge of the current crisis.

Only by thorough study and research will the college student be able to competently discuss such important matters as: the U S policy toward Russia, the removing of American troops from China, allowing Jews to immigrate to the US, and Henry Wallace's stand on foreign and domestic policy.

Students, as well as adults, are too emotional. One glance at a current newspaper and Joe College is ready to go right out and shoot Premier Stalin personally. Opinion is likewise stirred up over the policy of Henry Wallace. Instead of this, why can't Joe C tie a rope around his emotions and think the issue out?

Objective reasoning and self thought are the basic ammunition which should be common to the American student. Objective study of any problem is necessary to present not only both but all sides to controversies. The individual himself will have to administer the thinking processes which determine the position he will take in any given matter. Objectiveness is, therefore, a substitute for emotional flurries. A challenge, therefore, is presented to the students of FSC to begin thinking in a more liberal, objective manner, or even to "begin thinking."

may advance with the times, there is a need for changes in our governing rules and legislation. We need to bring about whatever revisions in our constitution that serve the well being of the student body as it is caught in growth and advancement. I would not say that the entire constitution be abolished and a new one adopted, for the present one possesses much wisdom and foresight. Rather, I would say that it needs to be brought up to date, modified article by article, according to the needs, desires and welfare of the majority of those concerned, and in keeping with the high standards of our alma mater.

Linda Herold.

As candidate for membership on the Constitution Committee, I should like to inform you of the ideas which I hold regarding the constitution. In my opinion the student body has in this committee a great opportunity to call for those provisions and amendments which it deems beneficial to the students. Because I am a sophomore, I am interested in what kind of constitution our government will have for the next two years. If it is my opportunity to do so I intend to take my stand and make our constitution one that meets the general approval of the students and their needs for a democratic government. There is one particular article which I think needs careful consideration and then definite action That issue concerns the eligibility of candidates and provisions for elections. I pledge to work democratically and honestly to the best of my convictions.

S Joyce Williams.

Our college has grown physically as well as in capacity for responsibilities in these past years. Therefore, since our constitution has ceased to fit all our needs and desires we must examine it section by section in order that we may find that which must be changed, expanded, or discarded in order to keep our college government an instrument which will serve the best interests of the students, faculty and administration.

In order that this might be done, the students must choose carefully those who will most capably represent them on a committee which will be the student's voice in this matter.

It would be impossible to enumerate all the corrections and changes which we feel necessary, but this one thing I pledge, and it is that I sincerely wish, along with the student body, to do my utmost in any capacity to make our college government a stronger, more efficient institution which will enable our college to continue in its tradition of being one of the finest in the United States.

Virginia Swicard.

During the spring quarter of last year the constitution was brought to our minds more than ever before. We began to realize that there are corrections and additions which could improve conditions on campus. Now, while this is still fresh in our minds, is the time to get to work and make the necessary changes. I would like to be one of the committee to work on our new constitution this year. I believe that with the large committee which is being planned, we will be able to get a variety of opinions representative of the student body. We want the new constitution to be the best, and we want it to be drawn up to the satisfaction of everyone.

Betty Dixan.

This is a changing era! Our campus life is deviating each day in some minute way. And as we have seen happen in other institutions, we must not allow our social life and activities to lag behind and become stagnant. It is up to us to keep our constitution up-to-date and practical. We must not wait until tomorrow, for we are living our lives on the campus today.

I, as a member of C G A, would be proud of an opportunity to serve on the Constitution Committee. I feel that is a great honor to be able to revise our by-laws and thus, I would be more than willing to devote two hours a week in such a capacity. Since I was a freshman senator last year, I am familiar with our constitution and very much interested in seeing a successful revision take place

"Kacey" (Katherine) Cooper.

Last year we will all remember that we had quite an exciting time at the end of the last quarter.

Then, many students wanted to help in solving our difficulties. Now, we have a chance to help in revising our constitution.

We realize that much has already been done in this field in this past year. We can just glance at the "Gold Book" and see the many changes.

I realize that I am a cog in the great chain of our college, but I am willing to give of my time and of my strength to make our college constitution a better one.

I would like to be on this committee because as a member of the student group I can bring to the committee the idea and the ideals of my fellow students.

Martha McCormack.

Adult life and its responsibilities are but one step beyond the college gate. Secondary school and home training over, college is the last reservoir of formal education which is to prepare us for clear thinking, good judgment and responsibilities in a complete life of our own. This truth, and the old saying, "Experience is the best teacher," make it imperative that we begin to live as adults now. Our constitution is the means by which we can effect this orientation. I hope that this primary purpose will be evident throughout our new constitution.

Clarification and brevity, careful deleting of all ambiguity by clearly stipulated common denotations and connotations of rules and laws in as few words as possible are other main needs of a streamlined and understandable constitution.

It is my hope that I may work with and for the student body for this streamlined constitution for an adult Florida State College

It is my opinion that the final authority in determining the eligibility of candidates should rest with the nominating committee rather than the Dean of Students. I believe it necessary to check the grades, health and point load of the prospective candidates, but I maintain that the members of the nominating committee, by careful evaluation of each petition for office, are capable of making good judgments in determining eligibility. Any information about a candidate which the Dean of Students can offer should be considered, but the final decision should rest with the students through their representatives on the nominating committee.

I also suggest a thorough study of the rest of the constitution to eliminate unnecessary and ambiguous articles.

Terry Johnson.

Last year I think that all the students of Florida State College came to realize that there was a definite need for a constitution to replace our present out-moded one. Many of that "all" seem to have let a summer's repose make them forget that need. But the necessity is still as great as ever and now that the opportunity to re-do the constitution has arrived persons vitally interested in the job to be done must be chosen for Constitutional Committee.

Because I am so interested in the constitution and the changes that will be made I would like to work on the committee. I feel that from the work of this group will come a "bigger and better" constitution for FSC.

Jane Hardacre

We cannot afford misinterpretations of our constitution. We must substitute clear terms for vague clauses. Instead of making rules to cover an indefinite statement, I think we should clarify the original source. For example, in Article VII exactly what is included in the power of the College Council to review all legislative proposals, or the power of the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs under Article VIII to review all important Judiciary decisions? Also, I think the college body would like to have stated how long a teacher serves on this Faculty Committee. We need to clarify Section 4 of Article XIII on nominations and elections. Will a candidate's qualifications be determined other than by a vote from the student body and exactly what are all the eligibility requirements and nomination procedures? We need a strong basis for future decisions on these subjects. We need a constitution without loopholes.

Margie Berns.

I firmly believe that if we can elect a group of students for this committee who will do some clear, sensible thinking, making their own decisions of what they think will be advantageous to everyone—not just a favorite group—that we can revise the constitution in such a way as to suit everyone, as nearly as possible. This group would be made up of people considering all different sides of a question, and with unbiased thinking and common sense we could bring about the changes desired, to the advantage of the student and the college as a whole.

Bertie Loftus.

We, the students of Florida State College, are beginning to realize our opportunities and responsibilities in regard to college government. We are finding that in order to have more privileges we must be willing to take greater responsibilities. We are now ready to accept these.

Our present constitution was written years ago to meet the needs of the students and faculty at that time. When it no longer meets the needs of the group it should be revised. Thus, if a competent constitution revision committee plus all others interested will do some clear thinking along these lines, we should obtain a satisfactory and workable constitution for all.

I believe that the only way to reach this goal will be (1) through cooperation with the faculty, (2) by keeping the interests of the majority before us at all times.

We are ready to work without prejudices for the good of FSC.

Margery Mallard.

I would like to serve on this committee in order to investigate and help to solve the problems which we the student body have, but to retain the honor system along with the policy that we agree on. I feel that this is an opportune way to serve the students on the campus, and I pray that God's will be done.

Mary Philpot

We are both very interested in the constitution and the Constitution Committee. We will appreciate it very much if you will consider us as candidates.

We will do everything in our power to help to revise the old constitution so that we will have the best constitution possible.

Florida State College passed through a critical period in its history last year. It was realized by everyone at that time how necessary it was to rewrite the constitution of the college for there was entirely too much disagreement over it and matters pertaining to it. The startling changes which came about at FSC this year make it even more necessary to bring our constitution up to date. It is for these various reasons I would like to be a member of this Constitutional Committee. Although I have had no actual experience in dealing with the constitution, I am very interested in the rewriting of it, for I would like to have a part in bringing about the changes to FSC which are necessary.

Margaret Swanson

I am interested in serving on the Constitution Committee because I am interested in the students on this campus and I would like to help in solving some of our problems. I believe that out of the work of this committee will grow a constitution which will meet our needs as exactly and simply as possible and I believe that we may do all these things in a spirit of Christian love and tolerance.

Shirley Hargraves

Last year we decided to change our constitution. This year we are going to change it. It will be a difficult task, requiring much time and thought, for we all understand that there is more to be done than erase a word here and there or add to the constitution as we choose. I believe that the Constitution Steering Committee will work diligently to improve our constitution in accordance with the desires and needs of the majority of students. If elected I, for one, will do my very best to help make our constitution one that we can be proud of.

Sylvia Turner

As a member of the student body, I am very interested in any changes to be made in our college constitution. I have been among those students who have complained that our constitution needs changes, therefore, I believe that I should do my best to help to bring about the changes necessary. I shall not state any definite changes that I want because I want to hear the discussions of all questions from all points of view by the Constitutional Committee before making any definite decisions.

Arsenia Rodriguiz

I am, like most girls here, very concerned over the welfare of my school and my fellow students. This chance to modernize our constitution is what we've been waiting for a long time. It's too good an opportunity to let get away. I would feel very honored to be given a chance to work on the committee.

Charlotte Snyder

The main point of my platform is the immediate carrying through of constitution changes which were started last year during the election rumpus. It seems to me that these changes have been just hanging in the air for too long now. Then, too, a lot of good thought is going to have to be given to additional, necessary changes. I would like very much to serve on this Constitutional Steering Committee as a representative of the sophomore class.

He will also discuss current United States-Russian relations.

A final offer in the interests of halting civil war was made by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek to the Chinese Communists yesterday. He suggested that a reorganization of China's government be discussed This was evidently an attempt by General Marshall, special envoy of President Truman to break the deadlock that has prevailed since midsummer. No comment has been made by Communist headquarters in Nanking.

U S delegate Herschel V Johnson, at a closed meeting of the United Nations Security Council, expressed confidence that the General Assembly would be given a free rein in handling the Franco dispute. The council unanimously approved a formal notification that the Spanish and Iranian question still were before the council and not subject to assembly action as yet.

Students Speak . . .

Mr and Miss Average Student are going to tell us this week why it was that they came to college, what they are majoring in and what their plans are for the time that they will graduate from college. Perhaps this will help you and me to formulate in our minds what we should be planning to do with our lives when we leave Florida State College.

Mary Lou Kinsler, Junior transfer from the University of Illinois, says "I came to college because I have to get a degree for my father. I'm a speech major and am preparing myself to teach speech correction, though I don't think I'll ever do it. I want to get married. People sometimes think that isn't a worthy objective to aim for when you are in college, but it's what I've always wanted, and I'm just marking time until I get it."

Wayne Koger, freshman, pre-med major, says "I want to be a vetinarian and so am taking pre-med." When asked why in particular he wants to be a vetinary, he said, "Well, because I love animals, I guess, and I think it's a good racket." He wants a good general education background as well, and thinks FSC a good place to get it.

Mory Robertson, junior, history major, tells us that she most of all wants "to get married, but in case I don't meet the right person before I graduate from college I'm planning to go on and get my master's in history at the University of Michigan and teach college history."

Beverly Treisback, freshman, as yet has not decided definitely on her major but says, "I want to do commercial art and probably will major here in art. But before I

The Kitchen Sink . . . .

(To be conducted according to Robert's Rules of Parliamentary Order. Chairman, B J McLeod; Stooge, M L Norwood.)

This column is to columns what a Zombie is to drinks. As we explained it to "Rodge" it is to incorporate everything from "Sharpie" and Henry McLemore to Westbrook "Anti" Pegler and Walter Winchell—everything but the Kitchen Sink and we'll scoop the dirt into that. (No remarks. Shut your grease-trap!) Being so un-egotistical it only took us eight hours to explain to "Rodge" the sterling qualities that made us capable of all this.

OLD BUSINESS

"Sharpie the Fifinella" received a letter this week from a mature student who doubts "Sharpie's" doubts about the doubtful morals of FSC girls at Dale Mabry, concerning (and we blush appropriately) pajamas. Because of the labor shortage and an incompetent understaffed staff of secretaries we regret that the letter has gone the way of summer romances—only the essence remains.

The writer feels, as we do, that since this was supposedly a "no-man's" land and the only smoking area at Dale Mabry, our sisters-in-bonds were justified. Besides, if people had kept their eyes where they should have been they wouldn't have known what the girls were wearing.

WHISKERS

With bowed heads, humble hearts and deep repentance we wish to make an explanation and have an explanation made to us. We will take the blame for being Charybdis, but someone else will have to take the blame for being Scylla.

It seems there were some pictures. To be exact petures of THE Junior Minstrels. *We (editorial and not royal plural) put some sample pictures on the bulletin board in lower Westcott and collected money for the desired pictures according to the numbers on the samples. Then it happened. Some wretch (we know not who) filched the sample pictures, which act left us holding the list of subscribers, the money, the numbers of the desired pictures and not the slightest idea what the numbers on the sample pictures were.

So if all you good people who paid good money for these good pictures of an EXCELLENT show will get in touch with us we will either refund your money or try to figure out which shots you wanted. The moral of this story is, "Honesty may not be the best policy, but it helps, Scylla.".

BONDED

Half of the column was in the Sweet Shop spending her roommate's half-pence when she stumbled upon the Cauldron Corps enjoying their weekly green tea and "yellow-ing" a new song. This half remarked that getting so many clever Evens together in one bunch must have been difficult. One of the as yet un-initiated affiliates said and we quote (we said QUOTE). "It wasn't easy!" (Rebuttal will be allowed next week, limit two inches).

ATTENTION JUDGE

On the same trip to the Sweet Shop this same half discovered something that the other half is going to investigate immediately. Emblazoned upon the wall in box car letters is an advertisement for "straw-beery" sundaes.

CLASSICAL CIVILIZATION

We've been keeping up with Alley Oop and his time machine. We'd like to borrow it for a one way trip to ancient Greece and spend the rest of our days there. It's not that we wish to delve into philosophy or that we prefer Grecian tunics, but we have just discovered that "work" is the one thing the Greeks didn't have a word for.

IN THE BEGINNING

The first man was walking down the first road when he came to the first pond and looking in he saw his first reflection. And on top of the first head he saw the first cow-lick (patience, Job). Hurrying back to his first home he passed the first olive tree and picked the first olives for it was the first summer. Back at the first house he squeezed out the first olive oil and put it on his first head and there he had the first "Adam Balm".

*Thanks, B J.

Band Salutes New Station

Marching-Band Has First Drill Under R Smith

The salute program Tuesday evening of Tallahassee's new radio station, WRHP, featured the Florida State College concert band. The band, under the direction of Owen F Sellers, conductor, and Robert Smith, assistant conductor, opened the broadcast with Sousa's "Semper Fidelis" march and continued with Bach's "If Thou Be Near" Also rendered was a military arrangement of the ever-popular "There's Something About a Soldier"

Monday afternoon on Landis green, Mr Smith instructed the FSC all-girl marching band in its initial drill of the school year. The performance of the girl musicians in their first practice gives promise of unmatched entertainment at the Thanksgiving games and also later in the year, stated Annette Vitsky, publicity chairman.

On October 22 the band will make the first of several convocation appearances in Westcott auditorium.

Band members were entertained as guests of "Robin Hood" last Friday night in the Recreation Room of Landis Hall at their first social affair of the year. "Without a doubt musicians, long hairs and short hairs, know how to have a harmonious time even when they leave their instruments at home," states Annette.

College Comments

By Jane Hardacre

George Washington University is no place for anyone suffering from claustrophobia. In the first official reports from unreliable sources it has been determined that no loss of life was experienced during the registration rush. However, these unauthoritative sources state that the freshmen will be indoctrinated into a new system of breathing known as the Half and Half Plan." The male frosh will inhale while the female frosh exhale. Respiration will be done in rhythm to the tune of Kotshki's Third Symphony in Somebody-Else's-Flat.

Going to College—Why?

To great minds the entire universe is necessary. They say, "Let us see what more there is under the sun" Therefore we go to school, for our hearts ache for the wisdom to be received from those who are older and wiser than we. We know that wisdom will be no cure for the suffering that some day we must know, but it gives us the fortitude to endure it; and, as all the forces of the mind are dependent on one another, the more fortitude we possess, the more we suffer. The more we are educated, the more we suffer; for it is only those who are educated who know the conditions in which the world and its people find themselves and being just souls the educated suffer for the poor and ignorant, while the poor and ignorant are happy in their decadence, and thair ignorance

In no class is man devoid of the sense of the beautiful; but this sense needs to be developed by long and continued study. Our lives, to be full and beautiful must be brought incessantly into the presence of masterpieces of science, literature, history, and art While an education is not the only means of developing in man a taste for the beautiful and the true, by dint of learning HOW to see and HOW to express himself, it is quite possible that the disciple of many masters will do more than he would do by himself in learning of the things that are good and true. We are young and know nothing; but we are also vigorous and our energies must be expended. I have seen how miserable and terrible is that youthful strength which is not properly guided; that strength which carries one where he is unknowingly headed; where the strength in a boy's mind and heart that if properly guided, that if properly trained could have built nations; but in his joyful ignorance his strength was wasted upon frivolous things and he himself became bored with the unrealities of his material things and gradually sank with oblivion, unknown, with no accomplishments, his youthful vigor gone, with no peace of mind—a life wasted.

Two Slick Chicks Shoot College Slang At Campus Hangout

'Tenshun, you BTOs, slick hicks, sad sacks and yes, even you brains; here's your favorite jabberwocky, so get a load off your feet and drool over the drivel.

The time is now, the scene is the local yokel's hangout or to yon the Sweet Shop (free ad.), and the characters are two students who have just given their order of "shoot two and poison one" (two cokes, one cherry, to you, square) to the soda jerk. Let's eavesdrip while they let the wind out of their bags.

"Did you cast your peepers on the N M A T (new man about town) at the rowdy pow last night? Ooo-la-la-a a-a. He's a foxey trotter (good dancer) and I'm not just whistling Dixie, but the H2O (another guy) that played Watson was runchy (drippy) but def."

"Yea-ah but considering the tubba tubba (girl on the chubby side) he was with—. The atomic aroma with the glad rags she was wearing gave me a large charge. She's a plasterpuss (too much make-up) and very paint happy (spotlight seeker)."

"La-de-da. What can you expect of a Cleopatra (gal with bangs)? Got a fag, hag?"

"Natch. Let's do a weed-deed."

"Gimme a pill, here comes a drink of water."

'Feed it and maybe it'll go away."

"What's the beef?"

"I think I shall be forced to shoot her up and hang at her. Last night at the hop her intentions were showing. She cast a wicked eye and my OAO was standing in the line of fire."

"Cut the gab, she's coming into port."

"Hey-lo. Trouble hunting? What's brewing? You look like a real Glamoor in person, a sensayshun. An MS (man snatcher) or just hoping?"

"Have a shovel (to help with the flattery), kittens. I've got a date. TMIL (the man I love) is here. He's right in there with his 'hit the sack', 'roger' and 'cup of java'."

"Oh, khaki wacky, eh?"

"Nevah, a real BMOC (big man on campus)."

"Come again, proof please."

'Even the clippers (movie censors) are vague about that but he's my dreamboat. What does he have to be, anyhow?"

"Three strikes and the man's doomed."

"Pardon me for living. I'l get under way."

"Let's ditch the witch."

'Sighted a GGG (grim gruesome grind) at ten o'clock."

Enter Kilroy with his plaid shirt, green corduroy slacks rolled half way up, saddle oxfords, striped socks and that red hat clinging precariously to the back of his shaggy crewcut.

'What goes, dizzy damsels?"

"Us—to class."

"Oh! Brain bags."

"Yea-ah. I got a date to mug with a bug."

"Well slap me down and call me Shorty. Here I am playing second fiddle to Plato. 'Do-wa-ditty' was never like this. That's what I like about the South. Seen Sharpie?"

"She went that-a-way and we're going this-a-way."

"I'll drop anchor."

"We'll beat the feet."

"Well, sail, snail."

That's slanguage in action. Repulsive? That's your yolk, Son, fry it.

MALE EYE VIEW

BY LUCIUS DANIELS

Now Is the Time for All Good Men

Like a Fourth of July rocket, tha campaigns for the coming elections started with a slight fizzle, and are now really beginning to roar.

The Canventional Party, first to be organized, is out in front with various other groups still jockeying for position. Several barracks have made provisional nominations, while a group of day students are playing both ends against tha middle, trying to find the strongest organization and working the deal so that they can jump in two directions.

The different candidates all have approximately the same aims, but what we want isn't a man or party with elaborate political aims . . . this Student Government is a necessary thing. With tha right men in office it can be a very good thing, but the main reason that we are here is to learn; Student Government is just a sideline which can give us a voice when we need one, and can provide incidentals like entertainment more efficiently than another system. A man who wants position merely for the prestige, or in order to give himself and his friends the feeling that they are running things, is going to do a lot of silly things just for the heck of doing them, and he's going to forget about what the other guys want as soon as the going gets tough.

And involved secret and dirty politicking is a sure sign of that kind of guy . . . a guy who's willing to do anything to get elected, whether the majority of the students want him or not.

Keep your eyes open and think for yourself, don't let anybody talk you into voting as n part of a block and look out for that "straight ticket" line.

He's Got a Low Mind

There was one guy at the dance last Saturday who thought he had something . . . he thought he had finally found a place where Kilroy had never been. Filled with enthusiasm, he rushed out of the men's powder room and up to his nearest buddy.

"Kilroy hasn't been here!", he said in tones of awe. His buddy registered unbelief all over his pan. With incisive logic he retorted, "Who do you think you're kidding?"

They wound up with a ten to one bet, and went around the corner so that tha second man could make his own investigations. Nothing could be found, not even under the sink. There was only one coat of paint on the walls, so it couldn't have been painted over. The second man was finally convinced. He and his buddy went outside and he prepared to pay off.

But just as they were about to settle the bet a girl heard them talking, and stepped in and said something which changed the whole picture.

"Kilroy was too here!" she said. "He was just in the wrong place."

Are We Men or Are We Women?

"After all", said Dr McBride, answering criticisms of the new cut system in assembly last week," "the girls have been taking these regulations and others even more severe for a long time. You ought not to complain about the comparatively light rule for the men."

That's not the point. Whether or not the women have been living under this rule, (and whether it is necessary for them or not), it's ridiculous to put such Draconian laws on men who have, according to repeated statements by Dean McBride and other responsible faculty members, proved almost in entirety to be the most studious and responsible group on the campus.

It's not the fact that we are merely griping at anything that bothers us, either. We have accepted the living conditions at Dale Mabry, (certainly not the best in the country), with a remarkable absence of good old GI griping, simply because we realized that it was necessary. If anyone is able, (or interested enough), to show us that this ruling is necessary, there won't be anymore bad feeling about this one.

The question we are asking ourselves is this: it's a matter of common knowledge that many of the rules for women at FSC are obsolete, antiquated and useless. One rule is not so bad; there are many of us who are not affected anyway. But if we can be given one rule just because the girls have it too, how long will it be until we have to sign out to leave the barracks, have to be in at a certain time, or have a residence counselor to see that we act like little gentlemen in the barracks?

Society Section

If your girl friend stands you up some day, and you run out of pulp magazines and homework on the same night, if you don't have any lettere to write and the beer joints are all closed; if you can't think of anything at all to do, you might drop around to barracks 701 and take a look at the art gallery displayed on the doors belonging to the members of the Beta Thi sorority, (for men only).

Keynoted by pin ups, (in color), each member has an illustrated sign on his door presenting the sorority name, plus clever cards announcing the names and real or fancied talents of the men who live there and colored cartoons of college life, (not forgetting more pin ups).

You Can't Fool All of the People All of the Time

Some amateur Goebbels out at the base is evidently trying to perpetrate Adolf's statement that if you tell a lie that is big enough people will believe you. Meaning this bit of mud slinging about the mythical "Pensacola Bloc".

The actual basis for this wild rumor is a meeting held by a group of Pensacola boys last week to arrange for mutual aid in transportation on holidays and weekends for those who wished to visit their homes. This was seized upon and twisted, (either intentionally or without any investigation as to the truth, which is just as bad), in order to use it as a piece of propaganda to scare students into voting for the party which put out that pamphlet most of us read on the Administration building bulletin board.

Majority of Men Major in Mathematics and Sciences

What are the men students majoring in at FSC?

The popularity of English and home economics gives way to mathematics and science as many of the 500 men prepare for careers in engineering, forestry, and medicine.

Reece Hays and John Brown are signed up for education; Thomas Burns for English and Johnie Augustine journalism.

They run the gauntlet when it comes to engineering. And most of them think they can get courses which will keep them at Tally for about two years. There is Joe Vara in chemical (he plays a trombone in the band, too) and Lawrence Buie in aeonautical; Robert Brechenridge is taking civil engineering and Robert Shutt ,electrical. G W Barefoot is one of the lawyers of the future and many boys like William Cogburn have selected business administration. Some of the men, who, like Basil Alagood, are taking forestry, may become rangers wearing their dark green uniforms and shining boots. Ernest Burns is going in for animal husbandry and Robert Brown for agriculture.

To be a veterinanian is the future chosen by James Briggs. To earn the title of doctor is the ambition of men like Glenn Atkinson and John Beniert who have undertaken to become pre-medical and pre-dental students respectively.

Now the big question is: "Will any of these men try to crash F Club? Someone might ask Keith MacRay what he thinks about the subject. He is a physical education major.

Edwin Andrews is studying to be an architect on a campus which boasts of a number of picturesque buildings. Joseph Almyda is studying commercial arts, and speaking of arts, there is Gus Adkinson who is a music major and James Livingston who wrote down radio major without designating whether he wanted to become a technician, announcer, or performer.

do that I would like to work for a year as an airline hostess. I'm hoping to meet a handsome pilot and marry him. I want an education too, though, and that will have to come first."

Great decisions like great inventions cannot be made overnight, and as everyone knows one's major is as apt to change as the weather during the long four years of probing different subjects, and exploring one's own mind. About the only unswerving decision is that of the girls to get married. But that is to be expected. The important thing is that in this time most young people know pretty well what they would like to do with their lives and have made the necessary adjustment toward realizing their aims. Does your burning ambition compare favorably?

Luella Elizabeth Dickerson, a former student at Florida State College, was one of 46 nurses to graduate from the Johns Hopkins Hospital School of Nursing in Baltimore, Maryland, on October 14, it was recently announced by the hospital.

Following graduation, Luella plans to accept the position of general staff nurse in the general operating room at Johns Hopkins.

Will anyone who has a Book of Tables used for Elementary Practical Mathematics please take it to the bookstore to have it rented or sold to students taking this course? There are 15 students in need of this book and copies can not be gotten in any other way.

Modern Dance Class Organized for Men

Swimming Pool Open to Male Students Three Days Weekly

The beginning of a modern dance class for men was announced at the meeting of the Woman's Recreational Association Wednesday night in the Longmire building. Miss Nellie Bond Dickinson of the Physical Education Department will be the instructor.

Also referring to males or campus is the swimming pool schedule. The boys have the pool on Monday and Wednesday nights and Saturday afternoons from 3 to 5 o'clock.

A report on intramural sports showed that around 300 people are out for volley ball. Due to the passing of a new rule, graduate students can now play in intramural games but not in Odd Even.

Odd-Even sport season is from October 7 through November 15. The schedule of the games are: hockey class games will be November 18 and 20, soccer class games November 19 and 21, archery finals will be November 25 and 27, and the modern dance final will be held November 23. There will be 18 practices in all and girls eligible must have attended 12. As for Odd-Even cheerleaders they will be voted on in about a week. The Odds will be chosen in the Little theater and the Evens in the gym.

Plans for the Thanksgiving faculty program are also underway. Nita Bowles, Ann Stanbaugh, and Betty Donnally were appointed to the invitation committee.

The new WRA handbooks have been given out to the freshmen and the activities of WRA will now be put on the college calendar.

Junior English Exam

It is hoped that junior English examination papers will all be graded within a week, according to Dr Hazel A Stevenson, professor of English. However, grades will not be tabulated in ranking order for several weeks. It is probable that those students needing extra coaching in English will have to study on their own time rather than in a special class, due to the large number of senior internees who would be unable to attend.

Or Forever Hold Your Peace

Hats In the Ring

G R Higginbotham was born in Arcadia, Florida. He attended the public schools in Arcadia and was graduated from Arcadia. He served in the Army Air Forces for two years; so he has a lot in common with most of us: that of being an ex-GI.

I have known Gordon for eight years. We attended the same schools and were graduated together. I know he is a capable leader because he held class offices during high school, and he was dependable. When he consents to do something, you can consider it done. Gordon is very original and very well-liked by those who have come in contact with him

Gordon was chairman of the decoration committee for the dance out at the base last Saturday, October 12. I think everyone will agree that he and his committee did a swell job on decorating the Student Union. This is a sample of his interest in student affairs.

"Flash", as he is known in Arcadia and Plant City, is interested in the success of this student election. He is going to do all he can for this student government, regardless of whether he is elected or not. I believe you agree that this is the right spirit. It is up to us—you and me—to see that an experienced, dependable and sincere man is elected as our chief representative of the freshman class.

So, do like the majority of the freshmen men are going to do—vote for Gordon R Higginbotham for president of the freshman class!

Robert M Sykes

Dear Editor,

We of the Conventional Party wish to make known our formation, principles, platform and provisional candidates. I think we are all familiar with the meaning of the "Convention." Our party chose that name because we stand for the exact meaning of that word—we conform to your opinion. Our principles are general, we stand for honest, efficient representation—WE SAY REPRESENTATION BECAUSE YOU ARE THE GOVERNMENT.

Our platform is the promotion of your desires, and especially the making of your stay at FSC enjoyable. We believe you are with us on permanent co-education, intercollegiate athletics, enlarged entertainment, and improved facilities. Our men are those which we believe best suited for their respective positions. The nominations and candidates will be made public Saturday and officially nominated Tuesday at assembly. However, we have made provisional nominations which are as follows:

FRESHMEN CLASS NOMINEES

President, Chris Holley of Valparaisa; Vice-Pres, Clint Williams of Tallahassee; Secretary, Jimmy Baird of DeLand; Treasurer, Bud Hendry of Ft Myers; Social Chairman, D L Middlebrooks of Pensacola.

We call your attention to the state-wide distribution of these men which eliminates a sectional bloc.

Our thanks to you, Shirley, as editor of the Flambeau, for the splendid cooperation you've given all concerned.

Clinton Williams

Dear Editor:

William (Billy) Fussell, candidate for the office of freshman president is married, steady, and quiet. A native of Tampa, he was graduated from Hillsborough High school in 1943 where he was vice president of the student body and president of the National Honor Society.

Since there is no issue involved, Billy offers no politics but the student body can be assured of his cooperation in all matters. On the basis of these points, we believe he is qualified for the position and offer his name as a candidate.

Dave Swan

Dear Editor,

This letter is to explain the formation of the Independent party, its purpose and principles.

The Independent party was formed to combat the threat of one party government offered by the Conventional party, which through mergere with the Progressive party and the organization representing barracks 701, (largest barracks on the campus) has become the only real party on the campus until the formation of the Independents.

Our aims are: 1, to prevent one party government, and if another party gains the majority to offer constructive opposition, preventing government by caucus or clique; 2, to make the government now being formed only a provisional arrangement to last till the end of the quarter, in order that we can learn to know each other and find the best men for office.

But the main thing, whether you vote for this party or not, is to make up your own mind, pick the men you like best, and then vote.

Amethysts once were worn to prevent intoxication, and the name comes from the Greek amethustos, meaning "not drunken."

Cashin' In

Now that the World Series has terminated, football is the center of attraction for sports fans over the nation. Though Army, Texas and Notre Dame appear to be at the head of the heap, their superiority has not proved to be as great as in the past.

Though Notre Dame has hardly blinked an eye in winning its opening games, it will undoubtedly run into stiff opposition when Army comes up later on the schedule. Army and Texas on the other hand found it necessary last week to dig deep into their bag of tricks to defeat stubborn elevens from Michigan and Oklahoma, each by the identical score, 20-13.

Alabama and Tennessee, each winning breathers last Saturday, will match brain and brawn in the South's top game this week Harry Gilmer and company from Alabama will have to play heads up ball to master the Volunteers. Gilmer, who has been called "one of the greatest passers of all time" by sportswriter Grantland Rice, will have a definite chance to prove his mettle in this important encounter.

Undefeated Louisiana State, fast becoming one of the best teams in the South, plays Georgia Tech, beaten only by Tennessee. Georgia meets Oklahoma A & M in what earlier appeared to be one of the year's most outstanding games. Now it looks like the Bulldogs will have an easy time of it.

Barring ties, at least one team will be defeated for the first time when Army plays Columbia and Texas clashes with Arkansas, tied by Oklahoma A & M. The Cadets will probably have much the rougher afternoon. Columbia has beaten both Navy and Yale in the past two weeks.

Florida

Hurricanes and Gators will tangle when Florida meets Miami in its annual Homecoming game this Saturday. After losing three straight, the Gators appear doomed to make it four, though anything can happen when Florida and Miami play. The Orange Bowl champs barely squeezed by the Gators 7-6 last year.

Double Cross

For years southern teams have trekked to Pasadena's Rose Bowl on New Year's Day to compete against the Pacific coast representatives. Maybe the South has won too many of the Rose Bowl games. At any rate, it is now possible that the Western Conference and Pacific Coast Conference are going to vote to match their respective champions in the New Year's classic, leaving the Southern teams completely out for at least a number of years.

This writer believes the Western Conference should permit one of its members to compete in the Pasadena bowl, but it doesn't seem to be quite sportsmanlike to ban all the other teams in the nation from receiving some of the honors which accompany a visit to the California bowl.

Last Gap

With Harry "the Cat" Brecheen winning three of them, the St Louis Cardinals surprised the Boston Red Sox by winning the World Series four games to three. Brecheen is only the ninth pitcher to win three series games. The last pitcher to turn the trick was Stan Coveleskie of Cleveland, who turned the trick against Brooklyn in 1920.

The World Series grand finale turned into one of the most spectacular games in series history. Smart base running by Enos "Country" Slaughter of the Cards and timely hitting by Harry Walker in the eighth inning were the deciding factors in the Red Bird victory.

Brecheen had to pitch superb ball after allowing the first two Boston batters to hit safely in the ninth inning. The southpaw retired the next three batters to end the rally and win the game and series for the Cards 4-3.

Leading batters of the series were Bobby Doerr of the Red Sox with nine hits in 22 attempts for a .409 average, and Harry Walker of St Louis, with seven hits in seventeen bats for a .412 mark. The only pitcher to win more than one game was Brecheen. Other winning pitchers were Ferriss, Johnson and Dobson for Boston and Munger for St Louis.

Sorority Chit Chat

A whirlwind of social activities got underway with pledge banquets and were climaxed with informal parties for the Gainesville "crew" this week.

Alpha Chi Omega celebrated Founder's day Tuesday. Monday night the chapter held a joint meeting of pledges and actives with Barbara Wickham in charge of the program.

Alpha Delta Pi pledge banquet was held at the Floridan hotel Tuesday night, and the pledges entertained with extemporaneous skits. Newly elected officers in the chapter were Barbara Mann, Panhellenic representative, and Betty Johnson, new guard.

Informality marked the Alpha Gamma Delta program the past week-end when the girls were hostesses to boys from Gainesville. Group songs and other entertainment were planned by the chapter.

A coffee honoring the Alpha Xi Delta vice president, Mrs Hannah Schellanbach, and Mrs Hertwig, the new house mother, was held Wednesday night at the Alpha Xi house. The Floridan hotel was the scene of their annual pledge banquet. This week-end Mrs Lydia Mikell, Province president will visit the chapter.

Sunday night the Chi Omega entertained with a coffee for the boys from Gainesville. Carolyn McCeighen was in charge of the affair. This Saturday the Chi O pledges will give their annual pledge party.

Post-pledging activities for the Delta Delta Delta pledges included sings, coke parties, and special programs planned by the chapter members. The new pledge officers elected were Ann Teague, president; Nancy Baker, vice president; Cleona Rohbnet, secretary; and Nancy Keener, treasurer. Sunday morning the pledges honored the actives with a breakfast. A monthly cultural meeting was held Monday night in the form of a quiz program.

To mark the chapter's twenty-first birthday the Delta Phi Epsilon members held a Big-Little Sister party Tuesday night. Chairmen for the occasion were Gladys Atlas and Annette Vitsky. Anna was elected to represent her chapter at the National Convention in Canada in December.

Saturday night the Delta Zetas entertained the members and their dates with a coffee at which Mrs Emily Crolatt, housemother, served. Open house was held on Sunday afternoon for the students of Tally U. Coffee and cookies were served for refreshments. On Friday night the active members honored their pledges with a hamburger fry which was given at the home of Dr Mark DeGraff, faculty advisor of the sorority. Among the guests at the hamburger fry were Dr and Mrs T L Wade, Miss Ruth Pyche, Miss Betty Linthicum, Miss Marguerite Dressler, Mrs Hamilton, and Miss Betty Johnston.

Kappa Alpha Theta members and pledges entertained men from Dale Mabry Saturday from 3 to 6 p m. The guests were received by President Lucy Brown, B J Singleton, Mrs Brown, housemother, Jean Ann Daly, Bing King, and Vonnie Black. Informal dancing was enjoyed and punch, mints, and nuts were served during the evening.

Sunday night a supper was given for members and their guests at the Theta house. Dot Octjen pledged to Kappa Alpha Theta Tuesday night.

Kappa Delta entertained with a spaghetti supper at the house Saturday night. Members, pledges, and their dates were served around a log fire, after which they participated in group singing of sorority songs

The annual Pi Beta Phi pledge banquet will be held this year on Tuesday, October 22. Chris Carothers from Bradenton and Mary Burrell of Eustis, alumnae, returned home after spending the weekend at the house.

An informal party will be given by the Phi Mus tonight, honoring pledges and guests.

On Saturday Sigma Kappa members and dates enjoyed an informal party. Music for dancing was supplied by a jook organ and punch and cookies were served. Dallas Stever, a Sigma Kappa member, has been selected as vocalist of the Dale Mabry band.

Life Saving Corps Classes Want Boys

"Boys are invited to come to the instructor and senior life saving classes on Mondays and Thursdays at 7 p m." stated Mary Nell Goldman, Life Saving Corps head, yesterday. Miss Ernestine Troemel of the physical education department will teach the instructor's class, and students enrolled with this group will be able to practice—teach with the senior life saving class.

Playnight to Present "Truth and Consequences"

"Come prepared for anything!" said Nancy MacEdwards, chairman of Playnight as she announced that Saturday's Playnight program is to be "Truth or Consequences" with audience participation. The program will start at 9 o'clock in the Physical Education building. There will be dancing from 8 o'clock until the program begins and more dancing afterwards.

Last Saturday at Playnight was "Faculty Talent Night". Dr Hudson Rogers was the master of ceremonies and his first introduction was for Mr Sellars and Mr James, both of the Music Department. Mr James sang "Doin' What Comes Nat'rally" accompanied by Mr Sellars on the bass fiddle with the audience chiming in on the second chorus Dr Canfield of the language department gave a Spanish-accented lecture on "Beseboll, How She Is Played".

Miss Trawick of the speech department gave Dorothy Parker's monologue "The Waltz". Miss Yvonne Cody of the speech department rendered one of Lady MacBeth's speeches first in the Grand Manner, then a la Hepburn, and finally with a Mae West slant.

An A-B-C skit with Mrs Blair, Dr Becker, Miss Mitchell, Colonel Mendenhall and Mr Sellars cast as the alphabet-speaking characters.

Future programs for Playnight will utilize the talent of Sophomore Council, Senior Hall, Spirogira and Esteren. "And these you must see," said Nancy with a chuckle as she thought of what was in store for Playnight audiences.

"Coddster's Last Stand" Is Even Pep Rally Theme

With "Coodster's Last Stand" as their theme the Evens presented a brand new type of pep rally yesterday afternoon out on Jennie Murphree hill. Rose Marie Ferro played the part of "Indieven," the brave warrior of the Evens who was captured by Coodster's men when engaged in battle on the hockey field. Coodster and his men attempted to force Indieven to reveal the theme of Even Demonstration. After being tortured with typical Odd devices, Indieven was rescued. Six members of the Even band, on horseback dashed to his rescue and scalped Coodster and his men. The skit was followed by an announcement of Even Demonstration try-outs and a short pep rally.

Joyce Cayce was in charge of the skit with "Tot" Carter, Roses Marcoux, Rose Marie Ferro, Dottie Smith helping on the skit.

The first Odd pep rally of the year was given Wednesday night on Jennie Murphree hill with Spirogira goats in charge. Spirogira goats made an Even effigy which was burned with the singing of the Odd dirge after an announcement about Odd Demonstration try-outs was given. Printed pages of Odd songs were distributed by the Spirogira goats. Shirley Palmer gave a short speech about future Odd pep rallys.

Ann Colvin reported the rally to be a huge success.

Fashion Flashes

"The frost is on the pumpkin" and you're knee-deep in chemistry experiments, coke dates, and bang up plans for each minute of the weekend. You scuffle fallen leaves on the way to class, and meditate on last night's math assignment, because you've found that math is your Waterloo this year. It's almost time to help little brother scoop out the biggest pumpkin in the market, and cut a grinning jack o'lantern. New faces at school are old friends, and so is that back-to-school wardrobe, so lately spanking new. In fact, you find you have the what-to-wear worries when Friday night's date rolls around.

You've come to love your clothes with the soft, pretty lines that this season brought. You appreciate most of all those beautifully basic things that change character with the flick of a scarf or a bright, shining pin. And now there's a new dressy jumper that takes to all kinds of dress-up and dress-down shenanegans — that's the perfect pick-up for your wardrobe.

We've sketched one of the loveliest versions of this ever-so-versatile jumper, McCall 6711. It has a flattering rounded collar to frame its pretty portrait neckline, tiny cap sleeves, and a softly draped skirt with an inverted pleat and a bit of fullness on each side. For special occasion glamour, you just add a favorite choker and bangle bracelets. Tie a shimmering sash to cinch-in your waist. You'll like the way this jumper looks in creamy-soft wool jersey. Try it in a glowing tangerine shade, and match it in a striped blouse for casual wear. Or consider making your jumper in bright clan plaid so very new this year for night life Pick a color in the plaid and have a blouse made of that very shade. Find a wide, wide belt of softest leather for your waist.

The blouse and skirt idea is wonderful, too, for new pep in any wardrobe. If you've glimpsed the luscious elegant fabrics this fall, you'll soon realize that it would take only a bit to make a gem of a blouse. Add your gala blouse to any plain-colored skirt, and you'll have an eye-catching date dress. McCall has skirts to suit your every mood. There's a skirt dressed up with a ruffle cascading down its side, and there are sport skirts designed with that eight o'clock dash in mind.

Sports Attracts Record Turn-Out

Flashing legs, gala colors, shouts shattering the still afternoon, and balls zipping over checkerboard nets were all positive evidence of an enthusiastic crowd of some 300 students commencing the first day of intramurals practice. A crowd, which according to Ann Stanbaugh, intramurals manager, was overwhelming.

Intramural sports, as scheduled for the first quarter, include volleyball, basketball, tennis and badminton and are to be played between dorms, sororities and various organizations on campus.

Through a process of elimination, the winning organization is chosen according to the number of points it has won, and is presented at the end of the school year with an intramural cup.

"After tennis intramurals," Ann said, "we hope to work up a tennis tournament which will be open to all FSC students who wish to participate."

Tally U to Hold Swimming Meet

Ed Williamson, athletic director of the Tallahassee branch, has announced plans for a swimming meet to be held in the college pool from 8 to 10 pm on Monday, October 28 and on Wednesday, October 30. This will be the first in a series of events scheduled for intrabarracks competition for this fall.

Some of the teams have already begun working out and each barrack group is expected to have an entry by the time the meet takes place.

All students are invited to attend and it is hoped that a large crowd will be on hand to watch the barrack teams compete for honors in the following events: medley relay, 220 yards free style, 50 yards breast stroke, 50 yards free style, 100 yards free style, 50 yards back stroke, 200 yards free style relay, and diving

Touch football will commence immediately after the swim meet and will be followed by basketball beginning the last week in November.

Prospective Cheerleaders Show Stiff Legs as Try-Out Time Draws Close

No, those stiff legged creatures that you see around the campus are not cranes, nor storks, nor even pelicans . . . those are the Odd-Even spirited young ladies who want the privilege of leading the cheers of their respective teams during the coming year.

"There are about fifty eager Evens appearing at practices," said Amelia Pavese, junior class athletic manager, "and a goodly number of Odds also. All the girls are working hard and I have high hopes for a wonderfully peppy group of both Odd and Even leaders," Amelia continued.

Odd-Even cheerleader practices began three weeks ago and will continue until the end of October, when hours of hard work will be climaxed by the election of six girls for each team; three from each class. Each girl trying out must have at least six practice points to her credit, however.

Leading off on October 29, the Even cheerleader try-outs will be held in the gym, while the Odds will hold their try-outs in the Augusta Conradi theater on October 30.

When asked whether the Evens had any new and rousing cheers up their sleeves that were being taught during practices Amelia answered that any new Even cheers would not be practiced until after the leaders were chosen. "We're just doing the old ones now in order to get the feel of cheerleading," Amelia concluded.

So you see, not only "birds of a feather flock together" . . . eager beaver cheerleaders do too.

Tarpon Practice

B J Singleton announces that members of Tarpon will practice every Thursday and the Minnows will practice Mondays starting Monday, October 20.

Spanish House Tea

The Spanish House division of Parkside gave a tea from five to six Wednesday for the honorary house members of the faculty. These honorary house members are Dr D L Canfield, Miss Helen Cate, and Miss Betty Lloyd.

FSC President Invests Girls In Ceremony

Culpepper Makes Speech To Graduating Seniors In Westcott Auditorium

Dr Campbell Officiates In Traditional Capping

Investiture, the traditional capping of graduating seniors by Dr Doak S Campbell, president of Florida State College, was held Tuesday evening in Westcott auditorium with Dr J Broward Culpepper, Director of Division of Educational Research and Service, as the speaker of the evening.

Dr Culpepper, who spoke to the assembled seniors and sophomores, has recently become a member of the faculty of FSC and prior to his service in the Navy has worked with young people in the state of Florida and supervised in the public schools of Tallahassee.

"To rally to the challenge of youth today" was the tempo of the speech which Dr Culpepper delivered to the seniors. Said Dr Culpepper, "You people have the disadvantage of going into the world during chaotic times, but they can also be made times of greatness. Great things remain to be done in Florida in practically every line of public service."

Dr Culpepper went on to point out the many fields in which immediate attention is needed to bring Florida up into being one of the leading states of America. According to Dr Culpepper, there are important opportunities in the fields of education, public health, industry and aviation and there is need at once for competent leaders to find solutions to the problems which are involved.

Dr Culpepper continued, "This challenge to young people should stir the imagination, for no other state has to its advantage such vast amounts of natural resources or such varied fields of opportunity." In closing, Dr Culpepper called upon every senior to utilize every opportunity during the coming year to develop and improve herself so that she may measure up to the challenge and be able to assume leadership in helping to solve the problems which stand out on all sides.

Other parts of the ceremony were the devotional, led by Dr Robert D Miller, a solo "Thou Wilt Keep Him in Perfect Peace" sung by Herman Ounter, the processional "Grand March" from Tannhauser by Wagner and the recessional "War March of the Priests" by Mendelssohn which were played by Miss Ramona Cruikshank Beard at the organ.

Odds Receive Parts In Demonstration

Announcement of speaking parts for Odd Demonstration was made yesterday by Nancy Wright, chairman of the demonstration. Students who have received speaking parts in the demonstration are Arabella Allen, Laura Simpson, Patty McColpin, Dutchie Gilberg, Johnny Copeland, Nell Clark, Jean Cole and Brick Bradford.

Teresa Myers, director of dancing, has announced that dancing parts have been given to Violet Waters, Vonnie Black, Lorraine Smith, Jane Carol Levy, Bets Carrill, Mildred Johnston, Jane Hardacre, Betty Phillips, Clara Wilson, Pat Small, Bertie Loftus, Jerry Allen, Ed Smalle, Sherlee Barrish, Polly Marks, Nancy Oleaton and Sibyl Harrison.

Mary Lou Norwood, who is in charge of the music for the production, says that she is not yet ready to make public any plans for this phase of Odd Demonstration.

Dale Mabry to Give Hallowe'en Barndance

A Halloween barn dance will be given in the Dale Mabry Officers' Club on Saturday evening, November 2, from 8 until 12 o'clock, for all students living at the base.

The hall will be decorated with crepe paper bales of hay and music will be furnished by a real "hillbilly" band. There will be refreshments of doughnuts and cider. The dance is sponsored by the Dale Mabry social committee under the direction of Elizabeth Brower.

Lost Articles Kept Safe and Sound in Longmire Building

"Girls come to us with reports of losses of everything from glassless rims to wool suits, but not one girl has yet reported the loss of her man," knowingly smiled both Mrs Edith Gulick and Mrs Louise Burns, guardians of the official campus Lost and Found department located on the first floor of the Longmire building. "And no one has reported a lost man found, either. In such a case 'finders, keepers' must take precedent."

Men may be missing from the list but a variety of items evidently is not.

Wallets, glasses and fountain pens top the returned articles division. Then there are always pieces of jewelry, books, sweaters and coats. Immediately following any

Religious Week Is Nov 12-15

Dr John Newton Thomas To Address FSC Students

Dr John Newton Thomas, professor of theology at Union Theologic. . Seminary, Richmond, Virginia, will address faculty and staff members in the Longmire auditorium November 12 at 4:45 in observation of Religious Emphasis Week. An informal reception, at which the faculty and staff members will act as hostesses, will be held in the main lounge of the Longmire building after the address.

His opening speech for students will be on Tuesday evening, November 12 at 7:30 in the Longmire auditorium and informal discussion groups will be held each afternoon of the week at 4:45.

Religious Emphasis Week, which is held by almost all colleges, will begin this year on November 12 and will last until November 15. It is sponsored by the Religious Workers' Council, which is composed of student secretaries of each religious group, the president of the college, the dean of women, director of personnel, teachers of religion, YWCA, secretary, ministers in town, and the student president of each religious organization on campus.

Religious Emphasis Week has been held at FSC for almost 20 years, bringing to the campus outstanding religious leaders of the nation and enlisting the joint planning of all the religious groups on campus.

Each evening of the week an address will be given by the speaker. The last meeting to take place will be at 7:30, November 15.

A committee for planning the week was formed at the last meeting of the Religious Workers' Council. This committee consists of Dalis Santos, chairman, Sarah Lewis, Ann Hunter, Betty Dowd, Ida Lee Rentz, Joyce Carlton, Martha Peacock, Enid Krause, Esther Rasmussen, Patrick Cleveland. A mass meeting of all the religious groups on campus will take place in Westcott auditorium this Wednesday at 4:30 to make final plans for the week.

Members Nominate Committee Heads

Nominations for various committees and for committee heads was the main business of the meeting of International Relations Club yesterday afternoon, according to Alice DeWitt, secretary.

Frances Raney, Kitty Spurgeon, Pat Mounts and Martha McCann were nominated for the office of program chairman which was left vacant by the resignation of Janice Richey. IRC will send a representative to College Government association forums. Names to appear on ballots for this position are: Dixie Kennedy and Bob Deland.

Club members volunteered for work on the committee which will be in charge of the IRC display in the Library Book Corner. Three girls were nominated at the meeting for this committee. They were Oinny Elders, Lillian Baker and Joyce Williams. There were also volunteers for publicity assistance.

Nominations were held open until 11 p m last night for the foregoing committees chairmen.

Recreation Majors

All r-- eation majors are urged to get in touch with Laura Cason, Box 4, as soon as possible. The list of majors is not complete, and it must be finished right away.

Attention, Please

Any students who have copies of Jones Workbook, No 7, and are not using them in class, are requested to take them to the bookstore, as there is an acute shortage of them which can only be remedied in this way.

Speech Play To Be Comedy

Tickets Will Be on Sale Outside Little Theater

"Arsenic and Old Lace," which is the first speech department production of the year, will be presented November 6, 7 and 8 at 8:30 o'clock in the Augusta Conradi theater.

Tickets for the play will be on sale outside the Little Theater Friday, November 1, from 4 to 6:30, Saturday from 10 to 12, and Monday through Wednesday from 3:30 to 5:30. All tickets are for reserved seats and are priced 50 cents. If all the tickets are not sold out it will be possible to buy them at the box office the night of the performance.

This humorous Joseph Kesselring story is about two elderly ladies who blithely give lonely old men poisoned wine in order to put them out of their supposed misery. More comedy is added by uncle Teddy who imagines himself to be Theodore Roosevelt and is con-

Faculty Members Schedule Recitals

Gunter and Beard to Perform In Programs This Weekend

Two faculty recitals are scheduled for this weekend. The recital of Herman Gunter, Jr, baritone, is scheduled for tonight at 8:15 o'clock in the college auditorium. Sunday afternoon the American Guild of Organists will sponsor as their first program of the year the faculty recital of Mrs Ramona C Beard, associate professor of organ, piano and theory. The program will be at 4:30 in the Westcott auditorium.

Mr Gunter will present a variety of numbers including religious, contemporary American and spiritual songs. Two parts of the program will be devoted to old Italian and French songs. Mr Gunter, director of the college choir and assistant professor of voice, has been a resident of Tallahassee for several years. He received his AB at the University of Florida and his Master of Sacred Music degree at Union Theological Seminary in New York City.

Mrs Beard's program will include "Concerto for Organ No 13" by Handel; "Fugue in D Major" by Bach; Franck's "Chorale in B Minor;" "Toccata" by Oigout; "Echo" by Yon; Sowerby's "Come Autumn Time"; "Elegie" by Peeters; and "Finale from First Symphony" by Vierne.

La Meri Tells Story of Her Travels, Studies and Work

"Commercializing religious dances of the East would be to Orientals as sacreligious as jazzing up a version of 'Nearer My God to Thee' would be to us," stated Miss La Meri, authority on and performer of ethnological and exotic dances of lands all over the world, in an interview with Flambeau reporters last Saturday.

Miss La Meri related how she studied the religious dances of India, Java, China. In these countries she had to convince the people that she wanted to learn their dances so that she could present them truthfully to the world, for appreciation and understanding, not for exploitation.

"After learning a dance in these countries, I always performed it for the natives to pass judgment," she revealed, "to be sure that my interpretation of the spirit and expression of the dance was typical."

Leaning forward to have her cigarette lighted, La Meri expressed the opinion that the dances of the Hindus of Northern India, some of which are over [illegible],000 years old, are the most interesting dances she has studied, since they express the history of these people, their feelings, desires and emotions over the years. Each movement in their dances has a definite meaning and cannot be interpreted individually. "They are so intriguing and fascinating, so complex, I could never learn all about them," she said.

Continuing, Miss La Meri remarked that she believes the dance, not the music of the land, is the foremost reflector of a people. "Dance is a more sincere and freer expression of the innermost feelings and emotions. When people become more educated and cultured their dances become correspondingly less expressive. If a dance typical of America is to emerge, it will undoubtedly come from the Negro race."

"Audiences," Miss La Meri

Report Given By Lynn, Hill

Amendment Is Discussed At Constitution Forum

No one except the voters is authorized to disqualify a candidate who has met general and specific requirements for her office, and whose court record and justification for candidacy have been published. This is the principle on which changes were made by the amendment committee, according to Robin Hill who addressed Student Forum last night.

The topic for discussion was the work done on Article XIII of the CGA constitution by last year's amendment committee, and the suggestions made by the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs for continued work on this article. Miss Elizabeth Lynn represented the Faculty Committee on the panel, and Robin Hill spoke for the student amendment committee.

Miss Lynn urged the students who are revising the constitution to be careful in phraseology. "Be sure that what you write down is what you have in mind for the article to mean," she continued. The organization and functioning of Senate is one of the main topics to be considered in working on the constitution, suggested Miss Lynn.

The forum was the first official meeting of the newly elected Student Constitution committee. The 36 upperclass members of this

Day Students Elect

Newly elected day student officers for the coming year are: Jean Thomas, senate representative; Barbara Gilmore, publicity chairman; Jean Dance, athletic manager; and Daphne Rowe, chairman of entertainment committee. Jean Gard was elected to plan for the weekend at camp.

All meetings are compulsory and are held the first Monday of every month at 4:30 pm in the day students' room.

Senate Discusses Dancing on Sunday

Report Given on Late Entrance Privileges for Non-Senior Hall

The possibilities of Sunday dancing on campus were discussed at a meeting of Student Senate Wednesday afternoon and the matter was referred to Martha Peacock, third vice-president of College Government association, for presentation in a student forum.

Members discussed whether this question is a moral issue and suggested that the desire to dance on Sunday would be much less if other forms of recreation were provided. The Social Standards council and the Women's Recreation association were asked to consider possible activities that could be provided.

A report concerning the extension of late entrance privileges to seniors not living on Senior Hall, which is now being considered by the legislative committee of college council, was also given at this time by Dalia Santos, chairman of senate. Even if it is approved by that committee and by college council, the measure could not go into effect until next year, she stated.

Jean Furman, Ann Singleton and Lea Wells were elected to fill vacancies on the legislative and codifying committee and Pat Dillard was elected as a member of the Senate steering committee, replacing Esther Rasmussen, who resigned because of ill health.

A report concerning the official results of the election of representatives to the Constitutional convention was presented by Janice Richey, chairman of the Senate steering committee.

FSC Campus Is Location Of Convention

State Music Teachers To Attend Meetings November 4 and 5

Colin English Will Speak; Fletcher to Give Concert

Four hundred teachers and music lovers are expected to attend the twelfth annual convention of the State Music Teachers' Association November 4 and 5 on the Florida State College campus. Colin English, State Supervisor of Public Instruction, will deliver the principal address Monday evening at the annual convention banquet.

Lyman P Prior, president of the Jacksonville College of Music and president of the convention, will call the convention to order at 9 a m Monday in the Longmire building auditorium. A series of panel discussions with illustrations by participating members will highlight the Monday morning program. The program will include a presentation of original songs and music under the direction of the Florida Composer's league. In connection with the panel discussion groups, exhibits will be displayed consisting of recent publications in piano literature.

The annual convention banquet will be held in the college dining hall Monday evening. Following the banquet, Stanley Fletcher, current Artist Series guest, will present an all-Chopin request program. A complimentary block of seats will be reserved for the convention members and associate members. The evening's program will be concluded with a reception honoring Mr Fletcher in the Longmire building.

On Tuesday morning there will be a three hour session of discussion on piano technique. Mr Fletcher will lecture particularly on the music of Chopin and illustrate at the keyboard. All convention members are eligible to play for his suggestions. During the piano class the band, orchestra, and choral clinics will be presented.

The FSC symphonic orchestra will again perform with William Presser conducting when orchestra clinic is presented. Karl O Kuersteiner, Dean of School of Music, will be among the guest conductors for this clinic. Herman Ounter, assistant professor of voice, will be one of the guest conductors at the choral clinic. All persons attending the convention are invited to participate in any or all of the clinics.

The noon session will feature an address by Mrs W C Brooker, president of the Florida Federation of Music Clubs, followed by two organ selections by Mrs Ramona C Beard. A voice interlude by Walter James, a former FSC music instructor, and Herman Ounter, with Mary Esther Win-

An Ounce Of Prevention

By Earl L Vance

(NOTE: The following editorial was written at the special request of the Faculty-student Committee in charge of arrangements for the mass X-ray program of the State Board of Health which is to be on the campus next week.)

Not all of man's afflictions and miseries are avoidable. But a surprisingly large number of them are. For instance, war, hookworm, religious and racial persecution, ignorance and all the miseries that grow out of it.

And now, too, one of the worst scourges man has faced for centuries—tuberculosis—can virtually be stamped out. A century ago some 400 persons per 100,000 died of tuberculosis. Then a German scientist, Dr Robert Koch, identified the bacillus which causes it. This knowledge plus improved methods of treatment plus improved living conditions by 1930 had reduced the death rate from tuberculosis in the United States to 71 and by 1945 to 45 per 100,000—hardly more than a tenth what it had been a century before.

And yet even at the present figure tuberculosis leads all other diseases as a cause of death between the ages of 15 and 40, and it is fifth for all ages. Every year in the United States about half as many persons dies of tuberculosis as were killed each year in the recent war, and mainly they come from the same age group—persons in the prime of life. Ages 15-25 are particularly susceptible.

Mostly, we are assured, these deaths aren't necessary. If discovered in time tuberculosis can be cured. And by means of the X-ray it can be discovered in time.

Next week, as part of a determined campaign on the part of the State Board of Health to eradicate tuberculosis in Florida, a mobile X-ray unit will be set up on this campus. It has the latest equipment and the trained personnel to discover the tubercle bacillus long before you or I would know we had him or before he has done us much harm. If we find we have him we can get rid of him and live out our normal lives. If we don't get rid of him he ultimately will get rid of us. That is the way he works.

But—there is always a but—we have to have the picture made. It will take perhaps 15 or 20 minutes of our valuable time. Actually it takes but 30 seconds to make the picture—no removing of clothes, no preparation, you just step up and you're through. It doesn't cost you a penny, and every individual report is held in strictest confidence, being given only to you.

You'd think, after all this, wouldn't you, that no sane person would fail to appear for a test. Well, you're mistaken. In past years the cooperation has been good but it ought to be much better. As the unit has returned to the campus year after year, the response has tended to get worse, doubtless due to an honest misapprehension on the part of students and faculty that only one test is necessary. Actually tuberculosis has been discovered here in which the individual had been X-rayed only the year before and found free of it. You should be X-rayed even though you were only last year.

All this goes for students, for the faculty, staff, employes, maids, workmen, and their families. The tests are free to all. The unit will be here from November 4-11—a full week beginning next Monday, excepting Saturday and Sunday. The hours are from 2-6 p m and the place is Landis Green, in front of the dining hall.

And let's do this thing. For remember, tuberculosis is like ignorance—it is not only a menace to the one who has it but to everybody else. Being democratic, we want to live with you—but what with ignorance and/or tuberculosis one could become just a bit trying.

Sullivan Wins DM Presidency

Fifteen Officers Chosen In Two-Day Election

"We want a pleasant situation here," said John R Sullivan, newly elected president of the Dale Mabry student body, when asked about his aims for the present term. "I have full confidence in faculty cooperation."

Milton Flack, vice president of the student body, stated that the students of the University branch are mature people, and that therefore, he is in favor of minimum restrictions. "I intend to block all restrictive measures not absolutely necessary," he said.

Secretary of the student body, Dean Wentworth, said that, while he was also opposed to unnecessary restrictions, he intended to support legislation which would improve conditions here.

"We intend to provide a well rounded social program," stated Jesse Wilson, social chairman for the student body. "The formation of various committees has already begun."

It was impossible to reach Robert Sanders, student body treasurer, in time for him to make a statement for publication.

CLASS ELECTIONS

Newly elected president of the freshman class is Gordon Higginbottom; Joseph Peel was elected vice-president and Charles Dyson secretary. James Adams is the treasurer and D L Middlebrook the social chairman.

James Pavy, Carol Holley, Arthus Cobb and Lemoyne Cash were defeated for president of the freshman class; Donald Jones, Fred Drake, Charles Tobias, James Baird and Charlie Dyson were defeated for vice presidential office; while Wayne Adams and

Fabric on Display In Longmire Bldg

An exhibit of textured fabrics will be on display in the auditorium of the Longmire building until Sunday, sponsored by the department of art education under the direction of Miss Mary Mooty.

The exhibit is of a variety of weaves and colors of decorators' samples from the Scalamandre Silks of New York City.

Miss Mooty announced that two similar exhibitions will be held later in the winter and in the spring. The next one will be of printed textiles and the spring exhibit will be of reproductions of historic textiles and brocades.

Club Reads History

A history of the local chapter of the Pre-Medical club was presented and committee chairmen selected at its first meeting of the year, held Wednesday evening. Plans for the year were also formulated at this time by the organization, which is sponsored by Alpha Epsilon, national pre-medical honorary.

New officers will be elected at a second meeting of the club to be held this week, according to Bopie Whitaker, president. Newly selected committee chairmen are Margaret Parker, program; Marian Turrentine, social, and Ann Teague, film.

Noted Pianist Will Present Two Concerts

Stanley Fletcher to Play All-Chopin Programs Monday and Wednesday

Tickets Will Be Available At Each Performance

Stanley Fletcher, American pianist, will present two all-Chopin concerts on Monday and Wednesday evenings at 8:15 in the auditorium at Florida State College. Students holding blue season tickets will attend the concert on Monday night and those holding red tickets will go Wednesday. Tickets will be available at the box office before each performance.

Fletcher, who was born in England, [illegible] first public concert at the age of sixteen. Ouy Maier, the great American artist-teacher, gave Fletcher a four year scholarship to the University of Michigan, which he finished in three years, meanwhile winning a $1250 literary prize for a series of essays on musical criticism. After graduation Fletcher made a tour of Europe which was interrupted by the war. He returned to this country to win the $1000 Kate Neal Kinley fellowship in fine arts and to make his New York debut.

The two programs to be presented will be entirely different. Visitors Speak in Journalism Classes

Mrs Teresa Myers and Read Wynn of station WTAL visited the 201 journalism classes Wednesday morning to tell the students about the relation of journalism to radio work.

Mr Wynn traced the production of a commercial program from its beginning to the moment when it finally goes on the air. Other topics included in the discussion were the place of the radio in modern life, its influence on public opinion, its advertising effectiveness, its opportunities for journalism students, its duties to the people at large, its similarities to and differences from newspaper work and the technicalities of radio operation and production.

FSC Soon to Annex Dale Mabry Heights

Florida State College is soon to have access to the property west of the campus, known as Dale Mabry Heights, Dr Doak S Campbell, president, announced this week.

The unit is now in the hands of the Florida Housing Projects Arministration and will soon be turned over to the college with the understanding that the veterans who are now housed in the 100 family units will remain there until the housing emergency is over. Until the deactivation of Dale Mabry air base, these units were occupied by non-commissioned officers.

Voting Display

Now on display at the Information Center of the library is material concerning voting. The purpose of this exhibit is to show those of voting age how to use the voting machine and in general to point out the importance of their participation.

Of especial interest is a book of qualifications for voters. This exhibit will remain in the library through Tuesday.

SPIRIT OF THE WEEK

● "TO THINE OWN SELF . . ."

The problem of whether students in a state institution should be allowed to dance on Sunday was presented in our Student Senate meeting this week and is to be the topic of a student forum to be held in the very near future. We have been told before that the impression such liberties would create throughout the state might not be favorable that it might offend the religious tenets of many citizens.

We grant that the above two arguments are valid. BUT NOT TO THE EXTREMES TO WHICH THEY ARE CARRIED. It seems that the question as to whether or not one dances on Sunday is a personal issue, one to be dealt with as the individual sees fit. If something is completely foreign to a person's way of life, she or he could not be expected to indulge in any activity which would belie that way. However, if, for instance, dancing on Sunday is a frequent or occasional occurrence in one's life at home, why should that person be deprived of pursuing his natural course of action Those who wish to dance on Sunday should be allowed to do so; those who feel that it is not the proper recreation for Sunday are not obliged to do so.

Recreational facilities on campus are limited as it is due to the increased enrollment. Tennis courts and ping-pong tables cannot accommodate all those interested over the weekend. Golf fees are higher on Sunday, and horses are always hard to find and expensive to ride. It is impossible at the present time for mixed groups to swim either at camp or in the college swimming pool. In short, there are very few ways of spending the extra Sunday recreation hours on campus for a majority of the students.

Movies provide the one alternative, and they, too, are against the religious beliefs of some. Those who do not approve Sunday movies do not attend on Sunday. Bridge games are frequent, but those too are opposed to some religious beliefs and are not participated in by many. Can not dancing be handled in the same way?

As for the impression upon visitors. would it not be better for them to find a happy, cheerful group of people rather than a listless campus?

After being in class for a complete week, studying in the library and participating in extra-curricular activities, all of which are not only services to the individual but services to the school, we have little time left for recreation.

With all views on such matters so divergent and so conflicting, each person should be held accountable only to himself and the ideals he has set for himself.

● DO WE WANT A CO-OP

OPA prices are off most consumer goods. The cost of living seems to be on the upsweep, and no one can be precisely—or even generally—sure where prices will finally level off. Elliot Roosevelt has been quoted as saying, "We will see bread at $15.00 a loaf."

Although ex-Colonel Roosevelt may have exaggerated the ultimate cost of living in our rapidly changing economy. we are all conscious of a rise in prices that will affect the consumer of text books, chocolate sundaes, candy bars, note-book paper, and other sundry articles, as well as the house wife and business man.

As a group, the students of Florida State College spend a great deal of money in the various business establishments on and about campus. With the college students as the main supporters of these places, and the economic truth that business cannot operate long without showing profit, it is easy to see that money amounting to thousands of dollars are made by the people who operate these places.

As prices rise, more student money will be poured into the pockets of other people down the line. Part of this money could be saved by the advent of a student co-operative here FSC.

Off and on for the past four years there have been movements pointing toward the establishment of a co-operative on campus. Students have seen the actual savings to other student consumers in schools where such organizations exist; now when such savings mean more than ever before, it is time to investigate the possibilities of having a co-op here.

● REMINDER

There are only 57 more days until Christmas, and we invite student comment on our editorial comment at any and all times. We invite you to take advantage of our "Forever Hold Your Peace" column with the only price of admission being your signature at the end of your letter.

● WHICH IS YOUR CHO!CE?

In an address last week in Chicago at the Associated Collegiate Press convention, Dr William Young, director of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, made a statement which is one of the most important things for a student to retain as a "must": "Think for yourself."

Dr Young's words were more of a challenge to the alert-minded youth of today when he pointed out that in colleges the professor may be wrong: that if the student is not on his or her guard, the professor may well mix him up; that the youth of the present day should cultivate a healthy suspicion of possible fundamental and basic error on the part of those who are supposed to know.

This attitude of complacency is, pitifully, world-wide in its prevalence. We, as leaders of tomorrow, are satisfied with the answers given for yesterday. We too often lack the drive, the free spirit of inquiry which is necessary for a progressive world into which many of us are soon to take an active part.

The question which each of us needs to ask ourselves is: Am I becoming a glorified stooge of the ambiguous word, "education?" Am I making any great progress in a quest on my own for a true education? Have I learned to weigh and recognize true education, or do I have in mind merely a reasonable facsimile?

We are fertile soil in which weeds or fruit may flourish. It is left to us to make the choice between the two. By expressing our thoughts freely, whether it be in constitution forums, in daily class recitation, in informal gatherings or what have you, we may prepare our minds for logical reasoning, not as a Charlie McCarthy, but as an individual thinker. Which do you choose?

NATIONAL AFFAIRS:

Price control was lifted from footwear. hides, skins and leather Wednesday night. The order requiring production of minimum amounts of cotton and textile goods was revoked also.

For the second time within two weeks, the nation's cotton exchange trading was suspended temporarily, as President Truman conferred with government officials on means to boost the sagging cotton prices. President Frank J Knell of the New York Exchange announced that a check would be made of 20 to 30 member firms active in cotton trading

John L Lewis will make demands to Secretary of Interior J A Krug, and Coal Mines Administrator N H Collisson today in regard to the soft coal miners. This will include a demand for higher pay for 400,000 soft coal miners. Krug and Collisson made no commitments in regard to reopening the Krug-Lewis contract which ended the strike last spring

FOREIGN AFFAIRS:

Russia's stand for world-wide arms limitation was backed fully by the United States. The Soviet Union further stated a demand for effective inspections to safeguard such a program. Warren R Austin, chief of the United States delegation to the United Nations assembly told the delegation that the "United States urges disarmament, and would cooperate fully with other nations towards this end."

The army temporarily postponed its plan for a world-girdling flight of superforts, but officials familiar with the plan predicted that the plan would be carried out in the not-too-distant future. Postponement of the flight was made because of the state department's fear that it would bring fresh charges of "sabre rattling", from other countries, particularly Russia.

The United States and Great Britain have been accused by Yugoslavia of repeated violations of the United Nations charter. She declared that "certain circles were attempting to use the atom bomb as a means for intimidating the world." Yugoslav Foreign Minister Stanoje Simich attacked the western powers on a dozen counts in one of the most aggressive speeches made to the UNO so far He accused the US of illegally holding Yugoslav vessels on the upper Danube and of refusing to turn over to them "Quislings" now in displaced persons camps.

deluge of rain there is an influx of raincoats and umbrellas. Formal dances often mean lost evening wraps.

Tally lassies apparently are quite alert in missing their lost treasures because there are calls for the majority of found objects. There are some things, though, which seem to have become permanent additions to the department. Two evening wraps and a black wool suit hold the record for length of stay. The suit has haunted the depths of the Lost and Found closet for at least a year. The two jackets rival its record with a stay of a year each

Perhaps the most ironical incident in the recent history of this much-referred-to department is the one associated with a yellow raincoat.

Week after week last year the same girl approached the desk hesitantly after the first half-dozen times proved fruitless).

"Has a yellow raincoat been turned in?" she would ask.

The answer was always no. The girl must have given up after her leventieth and one try. She hasn't returned since to the desk.

That's right, you guessed it. Only three or four days after the last request, the yellow raincoat appeared. Incidentally, it is still among the unclaimed items.

"The most valuable of the returned articles at present are two watches and a ring," reports Mrs Gulick. "We will be glad to return them upon proper identification."

Each May and December the Lost and Found department features an auction sale of unclaimed articles in the Longmire auditorium. The more valuable items are not auctioned but are kept in the department in case the owners belatedly call for them.

THE KITCHEN SINK

Chicago, Chicago, Chicago, To Tune of the Same Name

(All McLeod and a Yard Tall)

Five sleepy, excited, and bewildered girls gathered in Bryan hall shortly after midnight, October 21. Burdened with hat boxes, coats, suitcases and books they went to the bus station to catch a bus for Thomasville. But Thomasville was not their destination. Oh, no. There were five delegates—Shirley Rodgers (top woman on the totem pole), B J McLeod and Bee Dowd (chief stooges of this outfit), May Alexander (wielder of the rod), and Jean Sharer who defies description—from Florida State College going to the Associated Collegiate Press convention in Chicago.

After 18 hours of disturbing the tranquil peace of the reclining chair cars of the Southwind and the people who occupied them, our quintet blew into the "Windy City" along with a couple of other refugees from Alabama State Teachers college. The first real blow in the city came when the desk clerk at the Continental (42 floors of friendly hospitality) professed absolute ignorance of any ACP convention meeting this year. We immediately becams the helpless flowers of Southern womanhood, and be put the aforementioned motto of the hotel in action immediately by assigning us to a suite that was an exit to the fire escape. There were sleeping places for only four people and a small fifth, viz—you guess who. I was very comfortable practicing Yogi for six hours out of 24.

After pretzeling through the first night, I joined my compatriots, and we went out to gawk around the big city.

The first stop of cultural interest was at the Chicago Theatre where Danny Kaye was making a personal appearance. We stormed the balcony, stopping only long enough to appreciate the beautiful architecture (it really was) that had been wasted in the construction of a mere movie palace. Three shows later we were exhausted from yelling "Anatole of Paris" every time Danny called for requests, and we decided to try to see about tickets for some of the other minor attractions such as "Oklahoma" and "State of the Union."

We found "Oklahoma" as good as reputed, liked the dancing best, and have already written a new version of "Poor Jud." Thanks to Dr Irish we caught many of the scintillating, caustic comments in "State of the Union" that went by many of the other people. I was not one of the favored three who saw Gertrude in "Follow the Girls" because Rodg and I were busy with a couple of Floridamen at the Black Hawk that night.

We were tres chic at Jacques, hungry at the broadcast of the Breakfast Club, and ridiculous when we went ice skating at the arena. We didn't skate much, but as Sharer quipped, "We were on the ice a lot."

We visited Olde Heidelberg, a very nice place which Sharer insisted on re-naming "the Irishman's joint." The outstanding discovery of the trip was those wonderful chain places called "Thompson's" which feed one for a pittance and bring back fond memories of the DH.

We visited the planetarium and spent two wonderful imaginary years traveling over the heavens of the northern hemisphere, and have decided that Dr Richards needs one here for his physical science classes. The same day we found Florida fish amongst all the others at the Shedd aquarium, and visited the Field museum, where we found the Cro-magnon man which bore definite resemblance to Bee Dowd.

The Art Institute was another thing that made working the convention in so difficult. Convention, did I say? Oh, yes, there was a convention. We just aren't mentioning it because it was sponsored by the Tribune, and Mr Vance wouldn't approve

The last night we were in Chicago, we had an FSC reunion with three girls—Evelyn Ayrault, Louise Cason, and Vee Linton—out in Evanston. As we came back to the hotel and they returned to the University of Chicago, we stood on the corner of Randolph and State across the street from Marshall Field's and sang to the glory of our "alma mammy."

The next morning early, as we left that beautiful city loaded with maps, napkins, matches, menus, pamphlets, time tables and one stein for root beer, Rodg was weeping quietly because we refused to hel her tuck the Merchandise Mart into her tunic for the new Flambeau office.

smiled, "vary according to the climate." In places with weather typically bad at night such as London, people enjoy more the artistic performances than in places where the climate is good and the nights are clear and warm. American audiences are different in that they want to be amused. She feels that Americans "are an extrovert people" with a desire to laugh and be happy.

Besides her achievements as a performer of dances from all over the world, La Meri speaks Italian and understands French and Spanish. She also runs her own school of dancing in New York City. In this school she follows her belief in the individual method of learning, that a pupil can learn the way he wishes. "If he wants to start with the finished dance and work back to the beginning, that is all right. The individual interpretation and expression is the thing."

Speaking with what she termed "American, not English," Miss La Meri had a word of advice for students with artistic desires "We are what we are. Find out what you like and fulfill your desire to express yourself. A person should want to dance, not to be a dancer."

Miss La Meri has a repertoire of over a hundred dances. She has to travel by train because of the several tons of costumes she carries with her. With no immediate plans for future travel she intends to return to New York and the business of running her dancing school. She hopes to go to South America for further study as soon as conditions are near normal again and travel accommodations can be arranged.

WHY IS AN ASSEMBLY?

"If more of the students don't start coming to these meetings," said Dean McBride at last week's assembly, "We are going to start checking attendance, making it really compulsory."

That's one way to do it. Another way would be to follow the suggestion given to this column the other day and eliminate the assemblies entirely.

While the necessity for a weekly assembly for the first few weeks was obvious, in order to form the student government and other things requiring the presence of the entire student body, all it is now is a place for making announcements — a job which could be done easier, better, and quicker by a small mimeographed sheet.

At one of the first meetings Dean McBride said that since we had no traditions to go on, our rules would be formed according to what was found necessary. Unfortunately, "necessary" can mean more than one thing, depending on the point of view—from the point of view of the desires of the faculty or the needs of the students.

What happens about these assemblies will show us what it means.

FSC RATIONS

When the cafeteria was first set up at Dale Mabry a sigh of relief went up from the studen who had been eating the gir. sized meals on the campus. At last a man was able to sit down to a breakfast composed of something more than a lukewarm cu of coffee and a tired slice of ha toasted bread.

But there is still one catch. When they planned a breakfast and dinner for us young growing boys somebody forgot about lunch The other day lunch consisted of two thin cheese sandwiches, a bowl of rabbit food, and a little fruit. It tasted good, but mo of us could have used about three times as much of it.

FLASTACOED

At last week's assembly a motion was passed to join with the FSC annual, the Flastacowo. Somebody thought that since we were going to have a part in the annual we ought to have part in the name, too.

Best of the suggested names was "Flastaco-ed," until Dr McBride made his nomination. He thinks it ought to be called the "Flastaco-woo."

The alumnae wouldn't like that.

DALE MABRY MERRY-GO-ROUND

In the student body officers meeting last week Vice President Milton Flack stood op and asked if anything was going to be done about ths cut system for men.

The meeting was immedistely and rapidly adjourned.

Skeleton in Coffin-Crate Creates Curiosity in Crowd

Arriving at her room after classes Monday, Frances Myers found a curious crowd gathered around a nine-foot box of ominous proportions, which was addressed to her from Rockmart, Georgia. "It looks like a coffin," one of the spectators volunteered. "Maybe it has a cadaver in it," another cheerful soul added. Little did they know!

"It does look like a coffin, doesn't it?" Frances said. Nevertheless, a hammer was found and the boarding was cleared away, leaving the contents exposed to view.

A profound hush fell over the group. Girls looked at one another, half fearfully. A negro man working on the lights in the hall turned pale and clutched his stepladder. For there, grinning up at the astonished group, was a human skeleton!

After the first surprise, excited Spirogira members rushed to Dr Raymond F Bellamy for advice about this grisly gift received by their president. He was called out of class, but at first was as puzzled as anyone about ths problem However, when Frances said, "I won't sleep in the same room with that skeleton," several girls picked it up bodily and carried it to the biology department. Dr Ezda Deviney was surprised, to say the least. "It is a very well-preserved skeleton," she said. "I don't know how anyone not in some scientific profession could have acquired it."

The skeleton has all its parts, with the exception of half of one arm. Dr Deviney estimated its worth at about $125.

Spirogira members are still wondering what to do. "I don't even know anybody from Rockmart, Georgia!" Frances keeps saying "I wonder if we'll be prosecuted"

Faculty Members Go To Annual Meeting

The history department of Florida State Colleges was represented by five faculty members at the twelfth annual meeting of the Southern Historical association which was held in Birmingham, Alabama, Wednesday and Thursday of this week. Those attending from FSC were Dr Robert Cotterill, Dr Ruth Bourne, Dr Mary E Thomas, Miss Mary E Mitchell and Miss Claudia L Salley.

The meeting began Wednesday afternoon, at which time speeches were devoted to Southern and European history. Birmingham Southern hotel was host at a luncheon meeting Thursday. A complimentary dinner, held at Howard College Thursday night, ended the Southern teachers' meeting.

Former FSC Student Goes to England

Miss Evelyn Hammer, who received her AB degree from Florida State College in 1932, is one of the 70 women and four men teachers now participating in an exchange program with the British Miss Hammer, who is from Dunedin, is being replaced by Miss Mary Hustler of England, who will teach in the Dunedin schools this year.

Miss Hammer was chosen by the Unitd State Office of Education with the aid of the State Department of Public Instruction after the British Ministry of Education broached the subject of exchange teachers with the American Sttas Department. If this experiment proves successful, the teacher exchange program will be extended to other countries.

Same Old Story

The same old story—lack of re- strength—was obvious in University of Florida's fifth nsecutive loss last Saturday. In th Carolina the Gators were ing one of the nation's top ms, but still had enough to ure three quarters of the con- with only a 9-point deficit.

At least Florida had "plenty of stice." The great Tar Heel back, arlie Justice, made two scintilg touchdown gallops of 70 90 yards during the course of game.

Despite the loss of Florida's gy end Broughton "Brute" lliams of Tampa, regained his ional lead in number of passes eived and total yards made via air waves. Williams added tosses to 15 previous catches d 166 yards to a former total 267. Simple mathematical figng shows that the 195-pound homore has now caught 23 sals for an aggregation of 433 rds.

Florida has an open date this ek before meeting Georgia and arlie Trippi next Saturday in ksonville.

Grid Ranking

In the fourth weekly poll of Associated Press sports writers the national ranking of the top ten gridiron powers is as follows: Army, Notre Dame, Pennsylvania, UCLA, Georgia, Northwestern, Texas, Rice, North Carolina and Tennessee.

Two winners, Wake Forest and Rice, were still reted behind their victims, Tennessee and Texas. Other powerful teams not in the top ten, but worthy of mention, are Oklahoma, Georgia Tech and Duke.

Out on a Limb

Your reporter has decided to take the plank-walk to a watery grave this week by giving his selections on some of the games of national and southern interest. The reader is not advised to wager on the following selections: Georgia over Alabama — Trippi and company will prove to be too much for Harry Gilmer; Notre Dame to best Navy; Army likewise over West Virginia; Tennessee to hand North Carolina its first defeat; Northwestern to squeeze past Ohio State; UCLA to wallop St Mary's; Southern California to hand Oregon its initial loss, and Duke to upset Georgia Tech.

Other choices are Vanderbilt over Auburn, Rice over Texas Tech, Texas over Southern Methodist, LSU over Mississippi, Kentucky over Michigan State and Villanova to surprise Miami.

Home Ec Officers Assume Positions

The Home Economics club of Florida State College held its monthly meeting last Wednesday in the lounge of the Longmire building with about fifty members ushering in their newly-elected officers. Esther Dale, president for the coming year, presided over the meeting.

The speaker for the evening was one of the official delegates at the College club division of the American Home Economics association held in Cleveland, Ohio last June. June Holloway, representative for Florida State Home Economics clubs at the national convention, gave a report to the FSC audience on state, national and international club members.

Officers introduced for the year were: Esther Dale, president; Mary Ann Herring, vice-president; Ann Spooner, secretary; Eddie Faye Stokes, treasurer; Ruth Largent, social chairman; Carolyn Flint, publicity chairman; Emily and Elizabeth Harper, co-chairmen of the poster committee; Grace Trice, senior representative for the Club Council; Yvonne Boatwright, junior representative; June Holloway, sophomore representative, and Ann Carlisle, freshman representative.

The meeting was adjourned to the small lounge of the Longmire building after Miss Holloway's report, and after-dinner coffee was served to the members.

Members From 606 Swim to Victory

Barracks 606 of the Dale Mabry branch of the University of Florida swam their way to a close win in the intramural swimming meet last week by amassing 29 points to 26 for Barracks 701. Third place went to Barracks 505 with 23 points and in the fourth spot was Barracks 609 with eight points.

Winners of the individual meets were: Dick Reed (701), 50-yard breaststroke; John Binkert (701), 50-yard backstroke; David Greenfield (606), 50-yard freestyle; Virgil Allen (505), and Julian Poster (609), tied in the 100-yard freestyle; Virgil Allen (505), 220-yard freestyle; John Gill (606), diving; David Greenfield (606), individual medley.

In the two team events Barracks 505 took first in the 200-yard freestyle and Barracks 701 gained top honors in the medley relay. The 505 relay team was Harold Boyd, Ed Bowman, Virgil Allen and Stan Banaszak, while 701 entered John Binkert, Arthur Knight, Dick Reed and Richard Williams.

Witty Jokes Reign Even Dem Meeting

By ANN TUCKER

Lucky me! The editor of the local press handed me the assignment. "Check on the stupendous, sensational script meeting of Even dem." And me in my bright green dress (with a heart of gold!), made my way up the stairs in search of the famous script committee.

As I approached I could hear the loud chuckles and laughing. With a cheery smile I knocked, and having given the pass word, I plunged into the gay circle, lost with the witty jokes flying with the seconds as a hurried shorthand job by Shea was in rapid process.

"Sully" and Candy were cheering over the wonderful talent they had lined up. I moved a little to the other side of the room in search of a quote from Georgia Jaeckel, who was all smiles. "Wait 'til you see the Dem—it's terrific!" and off she wandered repeating the enchanting words. The Even spirits were really buzzin'. The room was crowded with excited voices when the door opened. There stood Norwood with that red, white and purple expression on her face, who, with a hopeful voice, inquired, "Odd Dem?"

Feeling sorry for the Odd one, Shea led her further down the hall to the morgue where moans and groans could be heard from the sobbing committee of Odds.

Before departing from the happy Even session, I learned since the script had been finished for two weeks, and Georgia was so pleased, she and the committee are planning a week's trip to New York . . . as they have so much time on their hands.

Opening the door, I emerged from the room and beat my way down to the Flambeau office. What a story! What a production! Is Cecil B DeMille listening?

Cagers Hold Tryout In Dale Mabry Gym

Leon High Gives Equipment; Three Games Net 93 Points

Tryouts for aspiring basketball candidates will be held in the Dale Mabry gymnasium Monday night at 8 o'clock.

A cry for new basketball material for the men students has been issued by Ed Williamson, athletic director, and Bill Stephens, student manager.

Difficulty is being encountered in furnishing equipment for the Dale Mabry branch, but temporary uniforms have been obtained from Leon High of Tallahassee for use in the games. New candidates are urged to bring their own gear because the equipment shortage is acute. Williamson and Stephens are hoping to latch onto some of the very capable basketeers on the Dale Mabry campus.

At present the regular squad numbers ten players and a student manager, Stephens. Names carried on the DM roster are: Edwards, Pavy, Stanfill and Fillingin, forwards; Godwin and Dickie, centers; Bowers, Schneider, Brown and Wickham, guards.

The managers report that there has been a fine volunteer turnout and the "eager beavers" of basketballdom have given a fine account of themselves on the courts. In the three contests thus far DM has accumulated 93 points against their opponents 57. Of the DM total forward, C O Edwards has notched 24 points to his credit. Charlie Bowers, guard, rates next place with 23 points to his credit. The only other members on the squad who are near Edwards and Bowers are Jim Pavy and C W Godwin, who have 14 and 10 points respectively.

Regular practices are to be held in the DM gym from 8 till 10 nightly, Monday through Thursday, and it is requested that men interested in turning out for the team, but who have night classes, report for practice as soon as their class is adjourned.

No contest has been set for this weekend, but Williamson is communicating with several schools in this area as work progresses on building an attractive slate for the DM quintet this year. As yet Williamson has not received the official "go-ahead" from Gainesville on the proposed intercollegiate scheule, but there is a loud demand among the students attending the Tallahassee branch of the university for such a calendar.

Victory Dinners To Be Given Teams

Women's Recreation association anounced this week that celebration of Thanksgiving games this year will be climaxed at a victory dinner for all team members Saturday night after the games. This will take the place of the two Odd and Even banquets formerly held.

Tarpon will have three performances during the Thanksgiving holidays. There will be a capacity of 300 spectators for each night. No faculty tickets will be issued this year for Tarpon shows. Tickets for all of the activities will be mailed to students.

Dale Mabry Alleys Open to Students

The bowling alleys on the Dale Mabry campus are now open for use of both men and women students between the hours of 5 and 10 p m, according to Dr Olivia N Dorman, dean of students at Florida State College, and Dr Otis McBride, dean of men at the University branch.

A fee of ten cents per line will be charged to pay for the services of a pin boy. Students may use the alleys without further notice, and anyone interested in other information concerning bowling leagues may contact Mr S L Boggs at the alleys.

The bowling center of Tallahassee Recreation park will also be reserved for students of FSC and the Tallahassee branch of University of Florida every Thursday from 2 to 6 p m, according to Dean Dorman.

Dale Mabry Takes First Cage Game

The Dale Mabry cagers gained six points late in the fourth quarter last Friday night to win a 31-24 decision over the Kappa Sigma basketeers from the University of Florida in a hard-fought basketball game in the Florida State College gym.

Leading the Tally branch to their third straight win was Charlie Bowers, long-loping guard from Blountstown, who dumped in six field goals to reck up twelve points. Forward S O Edwards dropped over nine points worth for DM to gain runnerup honors for the Mabry crew.

However, scoring honors for the evening went to Kappa Sig forward, Watford, who accounted for fourteen of his crew's total earnings. The Gainesville fraternity held a 21-18 lead at half-time, but the men from Dale Mabry held their big brothers from the State U to a total of only three points in the last half as they warmed up for their final fourth quarter outburst.

Can One Live Part Of Corpse in Play?

Has anyone seen "The Body"—the dead one, that is? Lou Shonter has earned herself this title by virtue of her role in the speech department's forth-coming production of "Arsenic and Old Lace." In the comedy, she plays the role of a middle-aged man's corpse.

"The Body," that of one of the lonely old men poisoned by the two leading charecters, appears in the play when it is discovered in a window-seat. From that time on, it is shown in and out of the window-seat by various other characters.

It seems that in acting classes aspiring actors and actresses are told to recall past situations which might be applicable to their roles in order to portray the necessary emotion—to practically live the role.

"Well, this is one part I can't live," laughed Lou, "but at least it's different!"

Football Will Begin With Monday Clash

Managers to Attend Meeting To Decide Team Bracketing

Football, in an intramural key, will begin Monday afternoon at 4:30 when two, as yet un-named, teams clash on the field at Dale Mabry south of the Marine House in the opening game of the regular touch football elimination tournament.

The bracketing for the tournament will be decided in a special meeting of the barracks managers tonight in the Dale Mabry gymnasium. Names of the barracks will be drawn and carded against one another and the two teams drawn first will tangle Monday afternoon in the initial tilt.

Rules for the meet will be the same as those enforced at the University of Florida, except that the arrival of any team ten minutes late for the scheduled kickoff will automatically forfeit the game to their rivals.

Teams entering will be composed of seven players with a minimum of three men playing on the line for the offensive team. Defensive players must line up for play five yards from the regular line of scrimmage unless they are within their own five-yard line. In the place of tackling a ball-carrier is downed by being touched above the knee. Games will be made up of two halves of 12-minute durations with the offensive team given four downs to gain twenty yards. In the event they fall to do so the ball will be relinquished to their opponents.

If a game ends in a tie the number of first downs will determine the winner.

Residence Counselor Found To Be Tennis Champion

Miss Anne Pope, residence counselor of Bryan Hall, has had a varied and interesting career in the field of tennis. She has won several championships, including both the singles and doubles championship during her junior and senior years at the University of Tennessee. She was also city champion of Chattanooga during this time. While she was attending the American College of Physical Education in Chicago she became college singles champ.

While reminiscing about her career Miss Pope related what she considered her most thrilling and gratifying experience in tennis. "It started when I began coaching a girl in playing to get her mind off herself and to relieve some of her nervousness. The girl, Virginia Hollingsworth, became very interested in tennis and under the tutorship went on to win the national indoor junior championship."

One of the more amusing incidents in her tennis career came when she was asked to play an exhibition match on the first lighted court in Chattanooga. The lights were so arranged that when she looked up in the air to smash a ball, she was completely blinded by the lights and entirely missed the ball. "This all proved quite embarrassing," laughed Miss Pope.

This tennis champ has not only played and coached tennis, but has also refereed championship matches. She refereed some of Don Budge's games the year he won the national junior championship. She also judged for national junior double champions Budge and Mako.

After a train accident in which her leg was broken, Miss Pope was forced to give up playing tennis.

Her efforts in college sports were rewarded by letters and trophies for basketball, track, baseball, hockey, swimming and tennis.

Miss Pope's interests definitely do not stop with sports. After traveling in 46 of the 48 states she went abroad. During her stay in Europe she traveled in 12 countries, visiting such places as Gibraltar, Algiers, Patri, Greece, and Naples and Venice, Italy.

For a while this Chattanooga born sports leader taught dancing at the Internation House in New York City. This institution houses honor students sent to the United States by various countries for continuance of studies.

"The year I taught there 52 countries were represented. I had a fine opportunity to meet and know people of different nationalities," Miss Pope remarked.

Bryan's residence counselor received her AB degree from the University of Tennessee; BPE from the American College of Physical Education; and MA from Columbia University. She has done graduate work at the University of Wisconsin, where she specialized in dance and sports, and at Columbia. Her freshman year was spent at Cornell, where she was a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority.

"I spent my first year at FSC as counselor in Jennie Murphree, but I've been in Bryan ever since," Miss Pope declared.

Ten Names Are Required To Petition Headquarters For National Membership

Organization Is Working For Liberal Legislation

The organization of a Florida State College chapter of the American Veterans Committee is under discussion and a preliminary meeting date will be set early in November. Names of ten interested ex-GIs are required to petition national headquarters for a charter

The AVC is the leading veteran's group to come out of World War II. With a membership that has grown in a year from 5.000 to 80,000, AVC has been influential far beyond its numbers in matters of legislation. It is credited with leadership in the fight for veteran's housing, cars for amputees, and terminal leave pay. AVC is also on record as supporting the Wegner-Ellender-Taft long-range housing bill Fair Practices bill, Full Employment bill, Anti-Lynching bill, Government Medical Insurance bill, and has campaigned for the retention of a strong OPA to counteract inflation.

The group is working at present to elect as many liberal members to Congress as possible, whether Democrat or Republican, and is championing a resolution to "get a vet to sit in with Byrnes." Definitely progressive in attitude to social legislation and very active politically. AVC takes as its slogan. "Citizens first: veterans second"

Students who would like to know more about the AVC and help in the organization of a local chapter are requested to leave their names with Lucius Daniels, at the base; graduate students and faculty members may leave their names with Miss Dora Byron, 208 History building.

This fast growing veteran's organization is headed by chairman Charles Bolte, author of best-seller, "The New Veteran." Gilbert Harrison is vice-chairman and other national officers include Franklin D Roosevelt Jr. Oren Root Jr and Michael Straight. Among members are Sterling Hayden, Audie Murphey, Henry Cabot Lodge and dozens of other "names."

Membership in the AVC is offered to the Merchant Marine and combat press correspondents, as well as to the armed services.

Cotillion Resumes Campus Activities

Once again the green jerkins of Cotillion are on duty in the game room of the Rowena Longmire building. Here the members of Cotillion act as hostesses, introduce girls and boys, try to keep the room clean and see that all house rules are obeyed.

Cotillion is a campus dance honorary founded in 1910 Until 1933 boys were not allowed to attend dances held on campus, so the Cotillion girls dressed in tuxedos and led at the College Government association dances.

It is traditional for Cotillion to tap its new members for the year at the annual Thanksgiving dance. To help the members select taps there will be a Cotillion "rec" every Wednesday and Thursday at 7:00 p m in Landis recreation room. All interested girls are asked to come down and dance.

According to Mary Lou Norwood, president of Cotillion, plans for the rest of the year include dancing classes second quarter and a play night with an all Cotillion floor show in the third quarter Cotillion also offers its services in helping with any dance on campus.

Landis Green Is X-ray Site

A mobile X-ray unit will arrive Monday under the supervision of the State Board of Health and Tuberculosis association to give X-ray tests for both students and faculty The machine will be operated on Landis green, beginning Monday, November 4, through Monday, November 11.

The following schedule will indicate the time X-ray tests are to be given:

UNIT OPERATION NOV 4-11.

Monday—Dale Mabry men, 2 pm through 6 pm.

Tuesday— Laborers, 4 pm through 6 pm.

Wednesday— Landis, Gilchrist, Broward, 2 pm through 6 pm.

Thursday—Jennie Murphree Reynolds, 2 pm through 5 pm. Faculty, 5 pm through 6 pm.

Friday—Bryan, Village, Dale Mabry, Magnolia, 2 pm through 6 pm.

Monday—Day students, off campus, 2 pm through 5 pm. Clinical staff, 5 pm through 6 pm.

Last year tuberculosis claimed 700 deaths in Florida and caused more deaths in the college age group than any other communicable disease.

With the new mobile machine, a simple procedure in making tests is used. It takes only 30 seconds, and persons are not required to undress.

Evelyn Stuckey and Catherine Barrs are representatives of the State board of health working with the X-ray unit. Two technicians from the state will be in charge of all tests

Student Vocalists Heard in Recital

A student recital featuring voice and piano was presented yesterday afternoon at 4:30 in the recital hall of the Music Annex.

Two Handel selections, "Lascia ch'io pianga' from Rinalde, sung by Anne Daniel with Virginia Der-Gerry accompanying, and "Ombra Mal Fu" by Newton Sullivan with Emily Bridges accompanying, were followed by Cinda Kent singing Grieg's "I Love Thee." Betty Kent was her accompanist. Phyllis DeKalb chose "Snow towards Evening" by Eleanor Warren, and "To a Messenger" by Frank La Forge. She was accompanied by Eleanor Bragg.

Jean Doughtry and Ann Wiggins played the piano solos Chopin's "Scherze in B flat minor" and "Waltz in E minor."

Domitory Teas

Gilchrist

A special tea in honor of the Gilchrist sponsors is being planned for the coming Wednesday by that hall. It will be informal. Betty Loy, publicity chairman for Gilchrist, said, "We believe the girls feel more at home in an informal atmosphere."

Following a general policy of one tea each week, the girls have decided to have one special tea in each month. Dorothy Wells has charge of the arrangements in her capacity of tea chairman.

Some type of entertainment, probably musical, will be provided for the teas. As yet Gilchrist has held only routine teas, at which attendance has been fair.

Landis

Landis hall honored their sponsors, Dr Claude Flory, Miss Ernestine Troemmel and Miss Alma Lester with a tea last Wednesday afternoon. An "unusually good attendance" was reported by Miss Ruth Pyche, residence counselor. Background music was played.

Landis will follow the practice of one tea per week and one special tea each month. One member of a social committee is in charge each time, with power to appoint aids.

A Hallowe'en coffee is planned by the social committee.

Magnolia

A special tea has been held by Magnolia hall for their honorary house members, Dr W H Rogers, Miss Lynette Thompson and Mrs E W Miller. There was background music and the affair was "very pleasant," according to Miss Evelyn Bramlett, residence counselor.

The juniors living in Magnolia will be honored at the next tea given by this house.

Once a month an open house is held for the faculty, though teas are planned for each week.

Patricia Grant is Magnolia's social director. Each tea is planned by a different committee under her supervision.

A Hallowe'en party is to be given neat Wednesday in Magnolia.

At the last weekly tea in the Village given for honorary house members, Rita Sprankle played the piano and Jimmy Rogers, house president, sang. Sue Ann Bradshaw was the chairman in charge of this tea.

Due to lack of kitchen facilities, only one tea has taken place at the girls' branch of Dale Mabry. It was held in the former Officer's club at the base. Miss Edith Aber, residence counselor, has stated that teas will be planned as soon as proper facilities are installed.

"Moonlight Mood", "Winter Carnival" are Dance Motifs

A "Winter Carnival" motif was presented by the Chi Omegas at their annual formal dance which was held Saturday night in the Landis hall recreation room. An array of snowmen, icicles, igloos and snowflakes helped carry out the theme and blended with the green and white color scheme.

Fruit punch was served throughout the evening Over the punch bowl was a placard with the words Winter Carnival in green and white, which accented the whole theme. The music for the dance was provided by Harry Shepherd and his orchestra.

Among guests for the evening were: Dr and Mrs Doak Campbell, Dr and Mrs Harold Richards, Mr and Mrs Frank Miller, Mr and Mrs George Lewis and Mrs O S Lanier. Mrs Frank Miller is the Chi Omega faculty advisor and Mrs Lanier the House mother.

Head of the hostess committee was Mary Groover Holland and heads of the decoration committee were Ina Jo Wrench and Nell McNeil.

At the "Moonlight Mood" dance sponsored by Gilchrist students Robert Ripley would have felt right at home, because a phenomenon occurred which would rival any of his revelations. The dance was entirely boy-break, and instead of the usual ribbon of girls along the sidelines, boys were crowded two-deep around the room. With their plentiful supply of men and dreamy music supplied by Curtis Davis' band from Quincy, Gilchrist girls may well have set the pace for future formal dances on the campus of Florida State College.

Their theme was carried out with streamers of blue and white crepe paper, covered with silver cupids and strung from the chandelier. The "moon," a blue spotlight behind palm leaves, shone down on dancers and clusters of flowers.

General chairman of the dance was Dorothy Crowson and her committee members were Grace Elder and Dorothy Wells.

Constitutional Committee Is Formed at DM

Students Vote Approval Of Twelve Appointees At Regular Convocation

Fussell and Wentworth Are Co-Heads of Group

In the second meeting of the newly-elected officers of the Dale Mabry student body Monday evening an eight-man Constitutional Committee, headed by Bill Fussell and Dean Wentworth, was formed. The appointments, along with the appointment of a four-man yearbook committee, were approved by popular vote at the regular Tuesday meeting of the Dale Mabry student body.

The six men named to serve with Fussell and Wentworth on the constitutional committee were: David Burns, LeMoyne Cash, George Croy, Roy Holt, Keith Salter and Henry Ward. Listed for the yearbook were: George Croy, assistant editor; Charles Dyson, assistant business manager. Roy Froom and James Toppin, staff members. These men are to work together in building a male section to the school yearbook.

President John Sullivan announced that a Social Committee had also been formed by combining the three social chairmen of the DM branch into a group for the purpose of avoiding conflicts of various events and meetings, and to gain co-operation between the social chairmen of the student body. Jesse Wilson is the student body chairman, Charles Campbell, upper-class chairman, and D L Middlebrook, freshman chairman.

An announcement was made at the assembly Tuesday evening about Religious Emphasis Week and Dalis Santos, student chairman for the Emphasis committee gave a brief history of the highlighted speaker of the week's activities, Dr John Newton Thomas, noted philosopher.

Dalis invited all of the men who are interested in participating in Religious Emphasis Week to attend the formal address of Dr Thomas at the Longmire auditorium Tuesday, November 12 at 7:30 p m

Otis McBride dean of men, addressed the student body and asked them to co-operate with their newly-elected student government officers in speeding up the program of their government. Dean McBride said "I am sure you have chosen excellent officers and we, the faculty, intend to let you students run your show, so give your officers your full support and see if we can't improve on the already rapid progress made by the officers since their elections."

"You must learn to have faith in your government," continued McBride, "and when you have a weighty problem, or an idea that you believe is for the well-being

Florida Sec of State Lectures at FSC

"Florida's Pattern of Government" was the topic of an address by Secretary of State R A Gray last Friday afternoon in the Longmire auditorium. This speech was the first in a series of lectures on various aspects of government by state and college officials, sponsored by the political science department.

Mr Gray described his personal experiences as a member of the State Senate and outlined organization and procedure in that body. He also spoke briefly on the functions of the administrative branch of government.

In discussing the fall elections, the Secretary of State summarized the proposed constitutional amendments, which concern instituting a state budget direction responsible to the legislature, abolishing continuing appropriations and certain local questions. Mr Gray stated that in his opinion these amendments are unnecessary and in some cases decidedly unwise

Speech Honorary Pledges Nine Girls

The Upsilon of Zeta Phi Eta, national speech fraternity, pledged nine new members Tuesday morning at 7 o'clock.

The new pledges are: Eugenia Avant, Fay Bass, Betsy Bird, Laura Cason, Virginia Green, Betty Shirley, Clair St John, Gloria Wells and Jane Wooten.

Members and the pledge sisters met [illegible] social [illegible] 20 [illegible] building.

FSC Experiences Fake Bank Crash

"I'm going to miss all those wonderful shows since I can't get my allowance this week!" "I'll starve to death!" "The bank's broke!" Such were the animated cries heard along the second floor of Westcott building early Saturday morning.

Students and teachers alike could not cash any of their checks unless they were for large amounts. Deposits alone were accepted by the harassed tellers

"Too bad I'm not a millionaire's daughter," said one student on learning that the bank had for exchange only a few twenty-dollar bills in its cash drawer.

Suddenly the long line of waiting, worried depositors began to move. Girls could be seen gratefully folding one—two—five one-dollar bills into their wallets. The shipment of small bills needed for the Saturday rush had arrived from a down-town bank, and the "crash" of the bank was relieved

Poll Favors Dorm Smoking

Dale Mabry Officers Presented at Meeting

Introduction of the Dale Mabry student body officers, explanation of the new fire drill system, and the conducting of a bedroom-smoking poll were presented in College Government Association assembly last Tuesday night.

The results of the poll conducted during convocation to see if the student body is in favor of smoking in the dormitory bedrooms are 73 per cent of the 289 votes polled are in favor of this according to Ester Rasmessen, chairman of smoking in the dormitories committee.

Of the non-smokers 62 per cent are in favor of the smokers, 95.3 per cent. The main objections polled concerned fire hazards and nuisance to the non-smokers.

"We have lots to accomplish this year, such as coeducation for next year" said John R Sullivan, president of the Dale Mabry student body. Also introduced were Milton Flack, vice president; Dean Wentworth, secretary, and Jesse Wilson, social chairman. After Jesse Wilson was introduced he extended an invitation to the junior and senior girls for a party to be held tomorrow night in their honor at Dale Mabry.

"The new fire drill system provides for greater individual safety and should be more efficient than any we have used before" emphasized Mickey Chambers, student chairman of fire drills. A head leader aided by an assistant will lead a unit of thirty students out of the building after the group has been checked by two checkers to see that all are present.

"With trained leaders and complete unity the factor of panic, which is so important in fires, is eliminated" said Mickey. A skit was presented to demonstrate the new fire drill system.

Another announcement at convocation was that no decision has been reached about owning cars on campus.

A part of the FSC band under the direction of Mr Owen F Sellers played at the opening and closing of convocation.

FSC Represented at Association Meet

The faculty members of the department of political science left Tuesday for Knoxville, Tennessee, where they will attend the first meeting of the Southern Political Science Association to be held since the war. Dr Marion D Irish is on the program committee and was scheduled to address the association yesterday on "The Minority Rule in the South."

This meeting began November 7 and will continue through November 9. Those attending from Florida State College include Dr Lucretia Ilsley, Dr Marion D Irish, Miss Daisy Parker and Mr Lorace E Catterson, all of whom plan to visit the Tennessee Valley Association project.

Buck not to Appear

"Regret that serious complications results of Frank Buck's recent Chicago taxi accident make it impossible for him to appear in November."

This telegram was received Thursday by Dean Karl O Kuersteiner of the School of Music. Mr Buck was scheduled to appear on the Artist Series November 16. The Artist Series plans to book the famous adventurer for the esrly part of the second quarter.

Popular Poll Favors Home Thanksgiving

1,817 Students Vote To Cancel, 505 Are Against Cancellation

Further Action Now Awaits Executive Council Review

Unofficial early returns of a popular poll indicate that 1,817 Florida State College students favor cancellation of traditional Thanksgiving activities, with a dissenting vote of 505. Precluding this majority opinion, 2,313 students favored and 34 opposed a recommendation to College Executive Council that classes over the Thanksgiving weekend not be held or that attendance be relaxed to permit cutting.

Further action awaits Executive Council review upon Dr Doak S Campbell's return to campus, expected sometime tomorrow.

Members of the Thanksgiving committee presented two questions to the student body at house meetings Tuesday and Wednesday nights. First, "In view of the previously stated situation, would you favor cancelling Thanksgiving activities, with the understanding that activities of a similar nature would be provided later in the year?"

Second, "If the majority of the student body votes in favor of the previous question, would you favor having the student body recommend to the Executive Council of the college that class attendance on Friday and Saturday after Thanksgiving be relaxed? (That is, that all students be allowed to cut classes on those days, or that no classes be held at that time.)" There was an overwhelmingly affirmative majority on both questions.

These questions were raised, according to official announcement, due to a greatly increased enrollment and the addition of one unit of students completely new to the campus. Although for many years much of the tradition of the college has centered around Thanksgiving and the events which take place at that time, these traditions have changed from year to year as the size of the school has increased and placed physical limitations on these activities The current consideration is whether or not "activities usually scheduled for Thanksgiving should be postponed to a later date in the school year."

Coming through official channels, the matter has been referred by administrative authorities to the Thanksgiving committee, which in turn unanimously recommended that certain Thanksgiving activities be eliminated and the week-end be declared open if majority vote decided such.

Miss Edith McCollum is chairman of the Thanksgiving committee, the membership of which includes, among others, the CGA president, demonstration chairmen, class presidents, Esteren and Spirogyra presidents, president of WRA, Cotillion, F Club, Tarpon, and Freshman Advisor, according to Mary Lou Norwood

NY Times Prints Co-Education Story

Florida State College made the news last Snday when the New York Times printed a story on Florida co-education in its Notes on Education. Among 2,583 girls, it said, 507 men are now attending the women's college at Tallahassee, living at an inactivated air base at Dale Mabry.

At the University of Alaska there is a sudden influx of GI students escaping from the overcrowded conditions of colleges in the stte. Of the 337 students enrolled in the university, 209 are GI's representing 29 states of the union. Emergency living quarters are being made in quonset huts.

Education for adults and negroes is being sponsored in Nashville, Tennessee, at Fisk university and Tennessee A and M. The program is sponsored by te American Association of Adult Education, the National Conference on Adult Education and Negro and the U S Office of Education.

A contest for undergraduates is being held by the Taimiment Social and Economic Institute for essays on "Roads to Industrial Peace." There will be five prizes offered amounting to 3,000 dollars.

Dr Shores Arrives

Dr Louis Shores will arrive from New York tomorrow to assume his duties as new head of the department of library science. Formerly with Peabody college, Dr Shores has been completing an encyclopedia of which he is associate editor.

"And It Comes Out Ping" Says Piano Player Stanley Fletcher

By JANICE RICHEY

"You know, a pianist is really a frustrated singer," said Stanley Fletcher, with just a trace of his native English accent. "Instead of being able to make his instrument sing, as a violinist does," Mr Fletcher said, holding under his chin an imaginary fiddle and straining the bow across its sensitive strings, "he must hammer it." Both hands came up and descended forcefully to illustrate this.

"And then," he explained, "the music comes out 'ping.' It doesn't sing. So that's why I play a recorder as well as a piano. Do you know what a recorder is? It's in Shakespeare's plays. 'Enter the recorder,' you know. It's like a flute or an ocarina. You play it that way. And it sings." He smiled his boyish grin, and lighted another cigarette.

Stanley Fletcher grew up in an atmosphere of music. His parents, his cousins, his whole family were musical. "The people in England sing a lot more than they do in our country. Informal, casual singing at home with family and friends," he said. "Oh, I'm thoroughly American," he explained. "I was born in England, but came to Massachusetts with my family at an early age. I returned to England for six months before the war, but my home is America, although in no particular city." Mr Fletcher is now alternating between teaching at the University of Illinois and touring. He came to Tallahassee from New Orleans.

Smiling whimsically, the pianist explained why he had chosen an all-Chopin concert. "Magic is like people. Some people smile sweetly when you meet them, and right away you like them. But pretty soon, you discover it was just a superficial attractiveness. Then there are other people who aren't easy to get along with at first, but after awhile you get to know them and like them. And there is still another kind—those who are good friends to begin with, and whom you like always. In music, this is Chopin. He's everybody's favorite, young and old, and nobody grows tired of his music. It speaks to all of us."

Mr Fletcher admitted that he liked to play for college audiences. "They are so very enthusiastic and spontaneous in their response to music," he said. "I wish more young people could meet music early." He crossed his leg and settled back, smiling with friendly and genuine interest in the conversation. "You know, my theory is that music is made to be enjoyed. Of course, the concert hall is an artificial setting for listening to music. You should be able

X-Ray Unit Moves Monday

Today and Monday Are Final Days for Service

Monday, November 11, marks the last day for the operation of the mobile X-ray unit on campus. All students and faculty members who have not been X-rayed as yet are urged to report to the mobile unit, on Landis green, today from 2 to 6 p m, or Monday between 2 and 5 p m.

A good percentage of people on campus have been given X-rays, but in spite of this cooperation there are still many students who have not received this free service. All reports on individual X-rays will be strictly confidential.

"It must be remembered that tuberculosis is a very contagious disease," stated Dr Bruce Underwood, director of the Leon county health unit. "Moreover," he continued, "it caused more deaths in the college age group last year than any other communicable disease. Every person over 15 years of age should have an X-ray at least once a year. This state-wide program provides a free and simple way to check chest condition."

Those already X-rayed have discovered the simplicity and speed of the procedure. It is no longer necessary to remove any part of the clothing except such articles as necklaces, sorority pins, or other jewelry.

Home Ec Association Meets in Miami

The annual meeting of the Florida Home Economics association will be held today and tomorrow of this week at the Floridan hotel in Miami Beach. "The meeting will be a general get-together of home economists from all over the state," states Miss Helen Cate, professor of home economics.

Among those staff members of the department of home economics planning to attend the meeting in Miami Beach are: Dean Margaret Sandels, Miss Ellen Wright, Miss Ina Van Stan, Miss Helen Richey, Miss Helen Cate and Dr Ruth Conner

Study Clinic Pupils Show Great Increase

Hours for Different Subjects Will Be Shown by Bulletins

"The last two weeks have shown a great increase in the number of students who have come in for help" explained Ann Colvin, president of Mortar Board, in connection with the study clinic being sponsored by that organization every night from 7 to 10 o'clock in 104 Library for the purpose of helping freshmen and University men with their studying.

"However, several students have come for aid on subjects which none of the three regular Mortar Board members present at that particular time had taken, and the students were asked to return some other night," Ann continued.

To avoid this inconvenience to the students, a list will be posted on the University bulletin board in lower Westcott sometime next week on which will be named the girls at the clinic each night and the subjects with which each is able to help students. Plans are also being made to have a special assistant in Chemistry at the clinic on Wednesday nights.

The clinic will not open until 8 o'clock next Tuesday instead of the regular 7 o'clock hour.

Life at French University Tough Even Before the War

Students who think life is tough at the Dale Mabry branch of the university should have seen the schools of France even before the German occupation. This is the opinion of Mr Theo de Veer, new instructor in the French department, who came to Florida State College this year after surviving a war-education and various other unpleasantries in Europe.

"All the classrooms in my old Alma mater, Centre Universitaire Mediterraneen de Nice," said Mr de Veer, "were gathered in one building. The rooms were large scarred chambers that showed the marks of age and war-time conditions. We used wooden benches for seats, and if the blackboards were cracked, the instructors tried not to notice.

"There was a shortage of teachers, so instead of the classes changing rooms, we would usually remain in one place and the teachers came to us. I often had to sit in one room for three hours at a stretch", he recalled.

Social activity was not frowned upon, but France before the occupation was under a strain and that did not make for congeniality in the classroom.

"For instance," commented Mr de Veer, "I spent an entire semester in Latin without knowing the people sitting on either side of me.

"There was no campus life as you know it," he went on. "Instead of living in dormitories we were forced to live in the city of Nice near-by. The only gathering places for students were the little cafes that are so typical of France.

Mr de Veer received his degree, just before the German occupation of his country.

"They forced me then, at point of a gun, to take a post-graduate course in trench digging on the Atlantic defenses, thus concluding a well rounded education of the type not available today," he ended wryly

Slim quiet Theo de Veer was born in Lausanne, Switzerland. When he was only ten months old his family moved to Nice, France where he spent a normal childhood attending school at the Lycee academy and then the university. Upon his graduation from the university the German army of occupation interned him in a work camp in which he remained for two years until freed by the Allied invasion of France.

Next, he was a member of the French underground which led

College Lifts Cutting Ban For Freshmen

Action by Executive Council Is Effective Beginning Nov 16

Cuts Not Allowed For Below-C Average Pupils

Regulations pertaining to the class attendance of first quarter freshmen will be relaxed as of November 16, according to recent action taken by the Executive Council of the college.

The action of relaxing present regulations will also apply to all freshmen entering Florida State College or the Tallahassee Branch of the University at the opening of the second or third quarters.

It has been pointed out that any present first quarter freshman not making a "C" average for the fall quarter is subject to attendance check and automatic cuts during the second quarter.

Further study will be made by the Attendance Committee of the Council so that specific recommendations for a long-range solution to the problem of reporting class attendance can be presented for action. The policies and procedures which have been set down are in the nature of an experiment.

Prize Is Offered By Alumnae Group

Fifteen Dollars to Be Given For Best Wedgewood Design

The Florida State College Alumnae association is offering a cash prize of 15 dollars to students who submit acceptable designs suitable for a commemorative Wedgewood plate. The designs are to utilize typical FSC scenes.

Anyone interested in entering the contest may secure entry blanks from the alumnae office. The contest extends from November 8 to December 6 and will be judged by Mrs Beatrice Williams, Miss Ann Kira and Miss Florence Kawa, all of the college art department.

The cash prize of 15 dollars will be awarded to each person whose design is accepted, and the name of the designer will be printed on the back of each plate.

Plates will be sold by the Alumnae Association to students, alumnae and other interested persons. Examples of plates prepared in this manner by other colleges are on display in the Alumnae office. Miss Mary Mooty of the art education department will act as advisor to students entering the contest.

Pen and ink and wash of monotone color is the suggested medium for the designs. The plates will be made from a steel engraving at the factory. Specifications are 10⅝ inches in diameter with a 2¼-inch border or 10½ inches in diameter with a 1½-inch border. The center design should be 5¾ inches in diameter. The border design is optional.

Chapter Installs Officers for Year

At the annual business meeting of the Alpha chapter of Phi Beta Kappa, which was held on October 30, the following officers were installed for the current year: Miss Daisy Parker, presidnet; Dr William Barrows, Jr, vice president; Miss Lucretia Ilsley, secretary; Miss Olga Larsen, treasurer; Professor E L Smith, historian.

It was announced that there would be an addition of six members among the faculty and staff members to Phi Beta Kappa. These members will be invited to affiliate with the Alpha chapter: Miss Mary Helen Burns, counselor in Reynolds Hall; Dr Ruth Bourne, lecturer in the history department; Miss Charlotte Harriman, chemistry department; Mr William Loftin Dale Mabry business office; Dr Cleta Robbins, instructor in art, Dr Grace Wilder, college physician

U of F Publication

The Orange Peel, University of Florida student magazine, will resume publication this month for the first time since 1941. This magazine, which will appear much in its pre-war form, will contain fiction, features, poetry, pictorial features, cartoons and jokes.

Subscriptions may be secured at the rate of one dollar per year. All students interested in subscribing to the magazine are asked to do so at once as the first issue is now on te press, according to Jack Doherty, editor of the publication.

Dr Thomas Will Begin Series Of Informal Discussions For Religious Emphasis Week

Campus Observance Will Be Next Week; "Beliefs That Matter" Is Theme of Address To Faculty and Staff Members on Tuesday

Dr John Newton Thomas will begin a series of informal discussions on the Religious Emphasis Week theme, "Beliefs that Matter," with an address to faculty and staff members Tuesday afternoon at 4:45 in the Longmire auditorium. His opening address to students will be at 7:30 Tuesday evening.

Dr John Newton Thomas, professor of theology, will speak to the student body in observance of Religious Emphasis Week. He will speak Tuesday evening at 7:30 in the Longmire auditorium. Informal student discussion groups will be held at 4:45 every afternoon of the week.

Religious Emphasis Week will be observed on campus Tuesday through Friday of next week. Miss Miriam Wilson, Presbyterian student secretary, is general chairman of the Religious Workers Council of the college, with Dalia Santos as student chairman.

"All religious organizations on campus are making plans for the occasion, and an invitation is extended to every student, faculty member and sponsor of a religious organization to attend the various functions. The men of the Tallahassee Branch of the University of Florida are especially included among those invited, stated Miss Wilson.

The principal speaker of the week, Dr Thomas, is professor of systematic theology at Union Theological Seminary in Richmond, Virginia. A nativa of Virginia, Dr Thomas did undergraduate work at Washington and Lee University, where he was prominent in student activities and was elected to Phi Beta Kappa. He took his master's degree at the University of Edinburgh, Scotland, and completed his theological training at Union Theological Seminary in Virginia Upon graduation Dr Thomas was awarded a fellowship for further graduate work in Europe.

After studying in some of the great European universities, he received his Ph D degree from the University of Edinburgh. Before taking his present position as professor of theology, Dr Thomas was pastor of Grace Covenant Presbyterian church in Richmond, Virginia. He comes to Florida State College campus as a well known teacher and youth leader throughout the South.

The calendar for Religious Emphasis Week is as follows:

November 12
4:45	Address to faculty and staff
5:30	Informal reception for faculty and staff (both events in Longmire building)

Play Is Performed Last Time Tonight

Kesselring Comedy Hailed "Success" by First-Niters

The final performance of Joseph Kesselring's "Arsenic and Old Lace," presented by the speech department, will be played tonight in the Augusta Conradi Little Theater.

The Wednesday and Thursday night performances have been hailed by those who have attended as a "great success." Among comments overheard after the shows were "Excellent make-up," "good acting," and "nice setting." The play has held the attention of the audiences throughout.

The plot is built around two elderly ladies, played by Elaine Parramore and Mary Anne Cannon, who through a mental quirk feel it their duty to poison lonely old men as an act of charity. Their nephew (Dick Mitchell) attempts to deal with both the situation and his fiancee (Bet Cargill). Further complications are added by two sinister characters played by Frank Lewis and John Folsom. Teddy Brewster (played by Herbert Sessions), who thinks he is Theodore Roosevelt, is an unknowing accomplice in the Brewster ladies' "charity." He disposes of the bodies by burying them in the cellar

At length the nephew Mortimer brings some order out of the situation, and the Brewsters are all committed to institutions. Mortimer finds that he is a ward of the family, and not really a Brew-

Sunday Dancing Rule Is CGA Forum Topic

Discussion of the rule prohibiting Sunday dancing will be the topic of the College Government association forum at 7:30 p m Monday in the Longmire auditorium, according to announcement from Martha Peacock, third vice-president of CGA. Panel for the discussion is: Betty Gardiner, pro, and Connie Savage and Anne Carter, con.

"It behooves every student to go to forum and express her opinion," urged Martha, "because reports of forum will have some influence on Senate's legislation." A report of the discussion will be sent to Senate.

A new plan has been made concerning forum representation this quarter. Various organizations on campus which serve to tie the campus with the outside are to elect representatives to the forum planning body. This committee of approximately 26 is to work with Martha on a slate of forum topics for the year.

At the forum meeting last week representatives from the three classes were chosen. They are Anne Parker senior Enid Krause, junior and Jane Hardacre, sophomore.

FSC President Tells Of Expansion Plans

"People thought it was foolish when I first started making plans for the expansion of Florida State College for Women, but now I am wondering if the anticipated expansion will be sufficient," states Dr Doak S Campbell, FSC president.

One new dormitory is under construction now while plans are being drawn for another one. These two dormitories, accommodating approximately 750 girls, will complete part of the quadrangle that is to be found north and west of Jennie Muphree.

Plans are being made for a new Demonstration School to be located north and west of the main campus between Tennessee street and the old Quincy road.

"Also," said Dr Campbell, "the plans for many new buildings, including a music building, another science building, and an auditorium, are under way at present. The further expansion of FSC is inevitable."

Skit Needed

Anyone who has a size 18, maroon skirt is requested to see Owen F Sellers, band director, as soon as possible. The band needs one desperately.

Senator Pepper Predicts "Hard Days Ahead" In Statement Read to Flambeau Reporter

By JOYCE PETTY

"Would I like to go out to Senator Pepper's house?" that's what Dr Marion Hay asked, but I had to repeat it to make myself believe my ears.

A few minutes later I was shaking hands with Senator Claude L Pepper as he sat in his dressing gown working on a press statement about the elections.

The Peppers had arrived in Tallahassee Tuesday afternoon for a brief stay before going to Brooksville for a few days rest, and the senator had been up early that morning listening to the election returns as they came in from over the country.

While we talked of the republican gains in both houses of Congress and petted the honey colored cocker spaniel of the house, he read his statement to us for criticism and approval.

"The republican party captured the government after World War I as they have after World War II and we got inflation, depression and isolation which led to world chaos and war. . . . From my knowledge of the Republican high command and the republican party, I predict there are hard days ahead for people here and abroad.'

He looked up from his notes, and asked Dr Hay's advice. "I want to warn the Republicans and challenge the Democrats. Do you think it does that?"

He began reading again. "Let the liberal forces of the nation forget minor differences and from this day make common cause to rebuild the party. When the people see the real character of the government they get they will turn again to the Democratic party, but the Democratic party must be ready to meet the test and must be without compromise or secret reservation the real voice . . of the people."

We could not finish the statement, for Mrs Pepper had an appointment at the capitol building, and we were going to accompany her; we bade the senator and his mother good-bye and rushed into the waiting taxi.

Mrs Mildred Pepper is an alumna of Florida State College and was interested to learn of its expansion during the last years. She chatted about her trip to Paris this past summer where she represented The People's Mandate—a Western Hemispheric women's organization that is working for "a just and lasting peace".

When the group met last March they drew up a set of principles upon which they thought the peace should be based, then selected four women to take the principles to France and have them read into the peace conference record. Both Mrs Pepper and Dr Hay were in the delegation.

The first work of the committee was to contact the heads of all the delegations, present the principles to them, and interview each one concerning his opinions on them.

"I didn't really expect to get to see Mr Molotov," Mrs Pepper said, "and when he sent word that he would be glad to see me, I rushed over. He was enthusiastic about the objectives when I presented them and said that he thought that was what we all wanted. Throughout the interview he was quite charming and sympathetic to our principles. I was quite thrilled to be the only woman to interview him especially because of his habit of seclusion even from the other delegates.

"I was glad to see that the French women were interested in our work. We went to see Madame Bidault, the wife of the head of the French government, and she immediately suggested that the women of France affiliate with us. She arranged for teas and other social affairs where we could meet various personages and get our purpose publicized as much as possible."

The women received statements concerning the principles from many of the delegations. All the men agreed that the peace treaties should be based on justice, but most of them said that it would be hard to put such ideals into the treaties because each country would interpret justice differently just as they would interpret the dignity and worth of individual man, and equal rights of all men and women differently.

Mrs Pepper was particularly pleased with the reaction of Herbert V Evatt, an Australian delegate, and said that he seemed to be one of the most charming men and more liberal thinkers in the delegation. He said, "I was especially impressed with your emphasis on human values. People sometimes speak of nations as though they existed apart from human families. This is a dangerous fallacy."

Foreign Minister Bevin of Great Britain was almost as hard to see as was Molotov. He said he was "glad to see the women interested in the treaties, and thought more women should aspire to high positions in government and politics. Not only do I think they should be acquainted with political affairs so they may be able to help their husbands and families see the issues involved."

"I get so disgusted with women who say they aren't interested in politics and don't know much about it," Mrs Pepper said. "I always answer, 'Now let me see What is politics? My husband is a politician and his duty is to make the laws by which you and your children will live. . . . No, I guess you wouldn't be interested in things like that."

"It was interesting to note the reaction of the common people to the conference," said Mrs Pepper. "One was heard to say, 'we're not getting anything from the conference—it's just costing the French people money; let them go someplace else and meet."

Artist Series Tickets

Students must bring their yellow registration card to the office in order to get their season tickets. Schedule cards and receipts will not be accepted.

New Committee Has Meeting

Members Make Reports, Discuss Revision Plans

The second general meeting of the newly elected Constitutional committee was held Monday night, November 4, in the Longmire building club room. At the first meeting the week before, sub-committees were formed to work on different articles of the constitution. Some of these committees had reports to make. The entire committee discussed all proposed changes.

Articles now under discussion and being considered for revision are those relating to the purpose and name of the College Government association, the judicial section, the executive section, the section on nominations, elections and appointments, and the article on amendments. The latter is to be finished as soon as possible in order to facilitate passage of subsequent amendments. Next on the list in point of time is the article on nominations, elections and appointments, so that if a satisfactory amendment can be completed and passed in time it will go into effect for spring elections.

Several members of the committee have expressed a desire for more student opinion and interest in the committee's work. One representative said, "If, when we have finished our work as best we can, the students do not approve of what we have done, we shall have wasted both our time and theirs. We would like very much to have students attend our meetings, which are open, especially the forums we are planning. Their opinions are even more valuable now than they will be later."

The sub-committees meet once a week at times most convenient to them. They do the actual work of re-writing, then take what they have done to the general meetings of the committee for discussion and approval. Two-thirds of the members of the committee must be present before a vote can be taken on any measure, and a measure must be passed by a majority vote before it is valid.

The committee passed a motion asking the steering committee to recommend to Senate a request for representation from the subcommitte concerned when an amendment is sent to College Council for consideration.

The next meeting of the committee will be held Monday, November 11, at 6:45 p m in 402 Longmire building This meeting will be open to the entire student body.

Library Has Book Week

Music Books Displayed For Convention Here

"Books Are Bridges" will be the theme of the display on the third floor of the Florida State College library next week to emphasize National Book Week, November 11 through 15.

Students in the Division of Library Training and Service will be on duty each afternoon from 3:30 to 5 p m to conduct visitors around the more unfamiliar parts of the library.

National Book Week, which dates back to 1929, was started by Franklin Matthews, librarian of Boy Scouts of America, for the purpose of presenting the best children's books to the public. The following year, the American Library Association formally added its support and aid to Book Week.

Figurines of the different lands grouped around the books of their various nations have been placed in a show case display by students in the Division of Library Training and Service.

Music Convention Honored—hf

During the past week, the FSC library displayed a large number of music books for the convenience of the delegates to the State Music Teachers convention.

In the reference room is a shelf of music catalogs, encyclopedias of musicians, reference books, dictionaries of musicians, books on the works of the masters, and a selection of reviews of operas, ballets and music of various countries.

Many kinds of children's music books are displayed at the librarian's desk. This display includes folk songs of various countries, illustrated ballads, simplified editions of the lives of great composers and fairy-tale versions of operas.

The foyer is reserved for books that have been most used in the past and books just off the press. These are to give the music teachers a chance to select books for their own libraries and books that would be most suitable for their pupils.

On the bulletin board is an illustrated chronological list of famous composers ranging from Bach to Gershwin and including the period from 1680 to 1940.

Besides the music display, the library has in the glass cases two sets of pictures. The first is of buildings in Tallahassee 75 years ago and includes churches, the Courthouse, the capitol building and the home which is now the Dutch Kitchen. Pictures in the second case represent Tallahassee today. They are of the Courthouse, the post office, school houses and the home of the "Tallahassee girl."

These library displays change frequently and are planned to arouse interest and to be of value to anyone working with the topic represented.

During his college days, Mr Fletcher was deciding on his career between journalism and music. He almost chose to become a music critic in order to combine the two. "But they're nasty people, you know," his grey eyes laughed, "and why should I criticise music when I could make music." So Stanley Fletcher made his decision to be a pianist—and a recorder-player, too.

of the student body, see your officers and have them present it to the student body for approval."

In concluding Dr McBride said, "I want you men to develop a school spirit in what I believe to be a growing thing—the Tallahassee branch. If it is found necessary to cut out the present weekly assembly it shall be done, but there must be some method of developing school spirit and I believe this weekly meeting is it. If you prefer to call it a pep meeting, or class meeting, then do so, but find some way in which the student body can meet to discuss their problems and express some of the spirit necessary for the scholarly momentum of the students."

The Tuesday assembly was brightened by the addition of entertainment from the Pi Beta Phi sorority in which five of their members presented a program for the men. The student body expressed approval of the suggestion by Jesse Wilson, social chairman, that a small program of entertainment be provided for each assembly.

Campbell At Meeting

Dr Doak S Campbell, president of Florida State College, is attending a meeting of the State Board of Control today.

He is expected to return to campus tomorrow following a three-day trip during which he also attended a conference on traffic and highway accidents held in Orlando. This discussion was a portion of the governor's highway program.

Membership of Campus 4-H Club Grows During Twenty-Year Development at FSC

Twenty years ago, in 1926, there was no evidence of 4-H club work on the campus of Florida State College. Now, only two decades later the membership of the club includes 53 girls, the majority of whom have previously excelled in 4-H Club work throughout the state and the nation.

The original 4-H Club branch on the FSC campus consisted of ten girls whose aim it was to enlist the many unattached 4-H members in organized work and to further their cause while in college.

The four "H's" in 4-H represent Head, Heart, Hand and Health. The club strives to help its members make these four portions of the human anatomy work in unison for the benefit of the individual and her immediate surroundings. It is the duty of each member to train her head so that she will have the power to think clearly, to plan successfully and to reason efficiently.

The work of these 4-H girls includes gardening, caring for and raising livestock, sewing, canning, cooking, baking and, at the same time, accomplishing the above skills at a minimum cost. Many members have attended summer camps, short courses and conventions sponsored by the club and have at these conventions learned valuable forms of recreation and handicraft while at the same time they had an opportunity to display their own ingenuity.

Members of the 4-H Club on campus have proved that they have lived up to the standards of the club for many have been outstanding in both state and national competitions. Among awards held by FSC 4-H Club members are second place in the state Clothing Achievement contest of 1945, winner of the state 4-H Club Garden Contest, in 1944, Grand Championship among fine bred steers in the Southeastern Fat and Sale Show, top ranking awards in the 4-H Club dress review contests and many more.

Former 4-H Club members from FSC have entered such fields as homemaking, teaching, dietetics, nursing, executive positions, Home Demonstration work and service with the armed forces.

Officers of the FSC 4-H Club for 1946-47 are: Clarice Jernigan, president; Mary Ruth Miller, vice-president; Joanne Howard, secretary; and Fay Smith, treasurer.

Fire Efficiency Tested in Landis

With all the talk of fire on the campus and the new fire drill system, the campus efficiency in these matters would have been tested if some girls had not found the source of the penetrating burning odor which permeated the atmosphere of the first floor of the east wing of Landis last night.

In spite of a hurried search into the students' rooms no flame or smoldering fire was found. Some students secured a pass key to the locked rooms and discovered a connected iron burning through an ironing board in Miss Edith McCollum's kitchen. The excitement subsided as the fire was put out by water and the students began to disperse.

Espinosa Visits FSC

Dr Francisco Espinosa, supervisor of secondary schools in San Salvador, visited Florida State College last Friday on his tour of Florida schools. Sent by the Inter-American Office of Education, he is in the United States inspecting the rural system of education.

Dr Espinosa had lunch with the Spanish faculty in the dining hall Friday, and was later given a tea by the students of the Spanish House. From Tallahassee he will go to Baton Rouge before returning to San Salvador.

Sports Round-Up

By BOB COOKSEY

The Florida Gators have their golden opportunity to give their interpretation of the word "upset" when they clash with the nation's third-ranking team, the Georgia Bulldogs, in Jacksonville tomorrow. The Gators will be out to stop the dynamic wanderings of Charlie Trippi, Pennsylvania coalman, who added more lustre to his already hallowed football fame last Saturday by personally leading the Bulldogs to a 14-0 win over well-thought-of Alabama.

However, the Gators will not only have to contend with the versatile Trippi, but also there is Johnny Donaldson, Rabbit Smith, Johnny Rauch, Herb St John and Joe Chandler, to mention a few. Not to be overlooked is reservist Reid Mosely, who is an expert at snagging the forwards of the Georgia backs Mosely led the nation in total yardage gained through pass receiving in 1944 and 1945 without making the starting lineup for the Bulldogs. Used in the place of the 165-lb senior in the starting lineups is Joe "Terry" Tereshinski, devastating blocker and defensive end extraordinaire, but when the Bulldogs want to go through the air they send Mosely down the field.

Broughton "The Brute" Williams Florida end is going to give the fleet Mosely a scrap on the field tomorrow, and it already seems probable that the big Tampa senior will oust Mosely as the nation's leading pass receiver. Williams has travelled 433 yards on 23 passes to outdistance the field and has four games yet to play If the Getor wineman can average 97 yards for each of the remaining games he will surpass the national collegiate record of Arizona's Henry Stanton, who tallied 820 yards on the passes he caught in 1941.

With the Bulldogs moving up to third place in the national gridiron standings over the defeated Pennsylvania Quakers and the victorious UCLA Bruins of the west coast, we find that the elite of footballdom includes five of the teams from the South and Southwest. Besides Georgie there are Rice and Texas of the Southwest conference and Tennessee and Georgia Tech of the Southeastern conference in the top ten teams.

The complete mythical national standings in the order of their ratings include: Army, Notre Dame Georgia, UCLA, Rice, Texas Tennessee, Georgia Tech, Pennsylvania and Illinois. Other Southern teams given consideration last week were: Wake Forest, 15th nationally; North Carolina, tied with Northwestern for 17th place Louisiana State, 19th, and North Carolina State, 20th. Honorable mention went to William and Mary, Alabama, Vanderbilt, Auburn, Mississippi State, South Carolina, Arkansas, and Miami.

The Stetson Hatters took it on the chin again last Saturday as Mississippi Colleee took advantage of two long scoring plays to trim the Hatters 13-0. The Hatters will seek to regein the victory column against Erskine on the Stetson field tonight. The Rollins Tars of Winter Park will go against the Pensacola Nevy team tomorrow at Pensacola as they seek their third triumph in four starts this season. The Tars have lost only to George Washington in their previous games.

Down South the Miami Hurricanes meet their namesake from Ohio, the Miami Redskins tonieht, as they warm up for their rugged struggle with the powerful LSU Tigers next week. The Ohio team has run up a fine record this season against mediocre competition, but will be facing a team of explosive power when they pile into the Roddy Burdine stadium at Miami and clash with the Hurricanes. Coach Spike Harding of the Hurricanes is hoping his boys will not get over-confident and overlook the Redskin game, and the Florida storm-troopers are going to be out to ehow their coach that they mean business The Hurricanes edged Villanova last week 26-21 for their fifth triumph in six games. Their only loss has been a 21-0 affair to North Carolina.

Racial controversy has reared its ugly head again as the University of Nevada ethletic board cancelled its game to be played against Mississippi State on November 16 at Starkeville, Mississippi, when they received a request from State asking that Negro ethletes Bill Bass, a back, and Horace Gillom, an end, not to appear on the field at Starkeville in violation of "a tradition of the South." Incidentally Gillom is the nation's leading punter, having accumulated an average of 44 yards per boot in Nevada'e six games played so far. . .

YWCA Weekends at Camp Flastacowo

"We Are Called" Is Selected Theme for YW Weekend

"We Are Called" is the theme for YWCA weekend at Camp Flastacowo on November 9 and 10, announced Joyce Petty, president of the Y group. Taxis will leave from in front of the Physical Education building at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon, and campers are asked to bring 50c for transportation.

The theme is taken from the national emphasis of the YW and YM for this fall. Special attention is to be placed on the responsibility of each individual in a cooperative democratic organization.

Dorothea McRee and Annette Nordan are in charge of general arrangements for the weekend at camp. Emily Gahr is chairman of the transportation. Anyone interested in hiking out to camp should contact Jean Helm, Box 692 or room 301 Landis. Members of the food committee are Marion Hill, chairman, Jeanne Bagley, Beti Barton, Betty Sue Jones, Anne Sineleton and Shirley Schroeder

Miss Betty Kirlin and Miss Phyllis Greife will spend the weekend with this group, said Joyce, and the women members of the YW advisory board are invited to the Sunday dinner at camp.

Joyce announced that all YW activities will be cancelled next week because of Religious Emphasis Week and urged all Y members to attend the programs featured durine this week.

AAUW to Picnic At Camp Flastacowo

The Tallahassee chapter of the American Associstion of University Women will hold a picnic meeting Tuesday afternoon, Nov 12 at 5 at Camp Flastacowo, according to announcement by Miss Marjorie Judy, president.

This will be the regular November meeting of the AAUW and is planned as an opportunity for new members to become acquainted with other membere of the club. Women intending to attend the picnic are requested to notify Miss Judy, box 1926, Florida State College, and transportation will be provided for those without cars.

The group is beginning an active season of educational and social programs which will close in the spring with a reception honoring the FSC graduating class. The AAUW meets the second Tuesday in each month and membership is open to Tallahassee women who are graduates of an acknowledged college or university. An associate membership is open to women who have completed two years at an acknowledged college or university.

Gridiron Players Gain 13-7 Victory

Barracke 516 Beat 515, 609 In Touchdown Pass Attack

With Ed Dilsavor of St Augustine scoring two touchdowns Barracks 516 of the Dale Mabry branch romped to a 13-7 victory over the combined forces of Barracks 515 and 609 Monday. Dilsaver snagged touchdown passes from Slick Edwards, Port St Joe, who shared the pitching duties with Georee Dickie, former Marine from Palmetto.

At the half-time neither team had penetrated into scoring territory, but after the second half was only two minutes old Dilsaver hauled in an Edwards' pass and scored on a play covering 26 yards. A pass for the extra point failed. Holding a 6-0 lead the lads from 516 took the ball from their opponents and again a short pass to Dilsaver from Edwards counted a touchdown. Edwards passed to Bob Cooksey, Winter Haven, for the extra point.

With time running out the 515-609 forces finally got their ponderous running and passing attack moving with precision and with less than a minute to play Donald Grant of Perry skirted his own left end to score for them. Grant raced around left end to convert after the final whistle had blown with the final tally reading 12-7.

Baracks 701 (upper deck) took advantage of the breaks to nose out Upper 700 by a 7-6 score Thursday afternoon, winning under the ruling that in the event of a ti the team with the most first downs is to be declared the winner. 701 had three first downs to their opponents two.

The first touchdown of the game was scored by 701 early in the second half when George Newman of Eau Gallie pulled in a pass from Harry Stafford of Lake Worth in a play covering 32 yards to give 701 a 6-0 lead. Stafford's pass for the extra point was incomplete.

Barracks 700 drove back down the field with the ball shortly after the kickoff scoring on a short pass over center to John Mattmuller of Vero Beach. Stafford batted down an attempted pass play for the extra point.

The game ended with 781 in possession of the ball shortly after making the first down that decided the game in their favor.

In the past week's schedule Barracks 606 and 641 gained the quarterfinals with byes. Games scheduled for next week will find Barracks 505 playing Upper 701 Wednesday, 616 meeting 630 Thursday, and then 701 Lower plays 644 Monday, November 18. No game appears on the schedule sheet for Monday, November 11.

Journalists Visit Radio Station WRHP

Almost sixty students of journalism 201 visited station WRHP in the Floridan hotel Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday afternoons at 4:30 to observe methods of presenting news over the air.

This trip, arranged through Frank Pepper, station manager, was designed to acquaint students with the journalistic techniques as employed by radio. Until recently classroom work has emphasized newspaper work almost completely.

'Radio," said Miss Dora Byron, instructor in journalism, "is certain to play an even larger and larger part in new presentation. It is important that every journalism student understand the nature and the significance of this new medium."

Men Given Lounge

Boys from Dale Mabry will be given a lounge room on the ground floor of the Longmire building on Nov 15 when the Flambeau office is moved upstairs. The need for such a lounge room has been felt for some time, end is particularly important now with the proximity of cold weather and winter rains.

The Flambeau office will be moved to the room now assigned to the Flastacowo, and the Flastacowo will move to the office of the YWCA. The new YWCA offices will be in Longmire 403 and 405.

Picture Reminder

Students who have missed their annual picture appointments are reminded that Saturday is the last possible day for any adjustments to be made.

"Pictures will be taken through Tuesday," Louise Sims, editor of the Flastacowo, explained, "but no changee can be made after Saturday."

Playnight Features Faculty Group Skit

The Tally U swing band will play for Playnight this Saturday night in the Physical Education building. Dancing will start at 8 o'clock and at 9 a skit will be presented by the Physical Education faculty

"The Physical Education faculty is being very secretive about their skit," said Nancy MacEdwards, chairman of Playnight, "so it will be a big eurprise for everybody, including me."

Last Saturday at Playnight was Sadie Hawkins Night. The Sadie Hawkins skit was given in pantomine with M L Vernon as the narrator. Joyce Cayce and Lucille Ossenkop sang "Crash on the Highway" with appropriate costumes and action to demonstrate their song. A tap dance by Nancy Gleaton and Anna Lou Rivers was followed by a square dance in which the girls exhausted the boys in preparation for the Sadie Hawkins Day race. When the race took place the female contestants ran into the audience and claimed a man for a square dance. Dancing was resumed as the boys' original dates "Sadie Hawkinsed" them back again.

Next Saturday's Playnight will be put on by Sophomore Council. "You'd better not miss this one as it will really be good!" Nancy commented.

Postpone Tennis Finals Until Monday

Tennis intramural finals in sineles and semi-finals in doubles have been postponed until Monday, due to the wet courts yesterdey. On Wednesdey in the singles contest Pi Phi defeated Alpha Delta Pi and Kappa Alpha Theta defeated Phi Mu. Pi Phi and Kappa Alpha Theta will vie for honors in the finals. In the doubles contest Pi Phi and Magnolia have finished one set of the semi-final trial, as have Kappa Alpha Theta and Chi Omega. The remaining sets will be played Monday and the finals will be held Tuesday.

Practice for basketball intramurals will begin Monday at 4:45. Each girl must earn two practice points to be eligible for a team. All entries should be made by Thursday, according to Rosa Lee Davis, sports leader.

Dale Mabry Cagers To Play Kappa Sigs

Second Consecutive Win Is Sought by Confident Team

The Dale Mabry cagers will meet the Kappa Sigma five of the University of Florida on the Gainesville courts tonight as they seek to take their second consecutive win over the fraternity. In the first game played here in Tallahassee recently the DM team turned out with a 31-24 triumph.

Making the trip to Gainesville will be Jim Pavy, Slick Edwards, Chuck Godwin, Arthur Schneider, Sonny Bowers, Paul Wickham, George Dickie, Neill Stanfill, Herman Fillingim, Charles Brown and Bill Stephens, student manager.

Coach Ed Williameon announced that 33 men turned out for the first regularly scheduled practice last Monday and that although the squad would not be large in number there would be enough competition to keep the men who have been practicing for the past three weeks on their toes to hold their varsity berths. The practices are to be held nightly from 7 until 9 p m, Monday through Thursday.

Swimming has taken on an intercollegiate aspect when the boys interested in forming a tank team met with Coach Williamson in the Dale Mabry gym and a team was discussed and an invitation was sent to Phi Beta Theta of Gainesville, last year's University swim champs, to engage in a meet to be held on November 23.

Practices for the DM swimming team will be held on Monday, Wednesday and Saturday evenings at the Florida State College gym pool.

New Cheerleaders Elected by Classes

"This quarter the Odd-Even theme is carried into the cheer leading teams," said Amelia Pavese, junior cheer leader." The Even team has eight newly elected rooters, and the Odds have seven. Odd Even—get it?"

Sis Myers, Hank Trevant, and Vonna Black were elected from the senior class, with sophomores Mary Alice Pitts, Mary Nell Thrower, Floy Jean Pflough, and Wylene Bender completing the Odd cheerers.

For the Even team come Joyce Cayce, Norma Schaffner, Jeanne Booth, and Amelia Pavese as juniors, and Susie Kunkel, Mary Jo Guynn, Mary Ellen Game, and Erin Wilcox as Even freshmen.

"New cheers and ideas will be announced later," Amelia added.

Safety Conference

Miss Fannie B Shaw and Dr Katheryn Montgomery of the Education department are attending the governor's highway safety conference which is being held Thursday and Friday of this week in Orlando.

"Recommendations from this conference are to be used as guides by legislators, public officials and organizations in planning effective traffic control in Florida," said Miss Shew.

Evens Elect Eight; Odds Choose Seven

"The Odd-Even cheerleaders really live up to their name this year," said Amelia Pavese, junior class athletic manager. "The Odds have seven and the Evens have eight."

According to Amelia, the WRA board decided to have four girls from each class elected this year, but there were only three senior cheerleaders chosen. These senior Odds are Vonna Black, "Sis" Myers and Hank Tresvant. The sophomore cheerleaders for the Odds are Wylene Bender, Mary Alice Pitts, Floy Jean Pflough and Mary Nell Thrower.

The green and gold teams will be cheered on by Jeanne Booth, Joyce Cayce, Amelia Pavese and Norma Schaffner from the junior class. Evens elected from the freshman class are Mary Ellen Game, Mary Jo Gwynn, Susie Kunkel and Erin Wilcox.

"New cheers and ideas for cheers will be announced soon," said Amelia.

Tarpon Club Show Date Indefinite

Dates of the Thanksgiving performances of Tarpon Club are indefinite pending announcement of the results of the voting for cancellation or continuation of Odd-Even activities for that time, announced B J Singleton, president of Tarpons.

If activities of November 28 and 29 are cancelled, the Tarpon performances will be Monday and Tuesday, November 25 and 26. If the votine results in continuation of Thanksgiving activities, the demonstrations will be November 27, 28, and 29, as previously planned. The theme will be kept secret as traditional.

Announcement for the distribution of tickets for these shows will be made upon posting of voting results.

Tarpon members are deciding upon new bathing suits which will be royal blue with white emblems reports B J. The club has sent for a sample Catalina suit to be considered in the choice.

Golf Championship

Dr Claude R Flory, of the English department, was runner-up in the Tallahassee City Golf Championship which was concluded this past weekend. Dr Flory scored a neat 78 in the semi-finals over Tom Gallatin of Tallahassee though he lost to Richard Irwin in the finals.

As runner-up, Dr Flory received a plasti-glass rain coat. "Which is really too big for me," he said. Dr Flory has won previous prizes in Lakewood, Maine; Augusta, Maine and Washington, Pennsylvania, and twice has scored a hole-in-one.

Class Gets Practice

Members of Miss Lillian Travick's storytelling class received practical experience last Saturday afternoon when they told stories during the relaxation period of the Girl Scouts rally held in Lafayette Park.

Those taking part were Mary Katherine Klutz, Sarah Routon, Nancy Morgan, Drucilla Gnann and Elizabeth Ann Hoffman.

SPIRIT OF THE WEEK

"You get action when you least expect it."

● ALL GOOD THINGS

It is a sad thing to see traditions go. It is a sad thing to see anything that one has become used to go. It is sad, but it is necessary.

When the time comes that the past is no longer adaptable to the present, then the past must give way. This does not mean that the past should be forgotten for nothing that has ever meant a great deal to someone can be forgotten. So it is with our Thanksgiving activities—our Odd-Even rivalry.

For the past few years because of increased enrollment here at Florida State College and because of our constantly changing world, it has become more and more evident that Odd and Even rivalry is on the wane. With each succeeding year it has become necessary to expend more and more energy in whipping up the rival spirit; each year the demonstrations have departed more and more from their initial purpose—that of introducing the teams. Even the games have been changed from the traditional basketball and volleyball to hockey and soccer.

Why hang on to something that no longer serves its purpose? A society that does not constantly change is not a living society. Surely the students of FSC desire to be part of a living society!

Granted that the suspension of Thanksgiving activities may mean the death of Odd-Even rivalry, why whip the flame of dying embers when bright new flames could replace them. This is the time for the development of class and school spirit! Not only could competition be on a class and other women's collegeshkdcmfwypetaoishrdluounounou basis, but it seems possible and desirable that competition between FSC and other women's colleges could replace and surpass Odd-Even competition.

So there is no need to be sad about the departure of old traditions, for as nature always fills a vacuum, so can new traditions replace the old.

● INTO CLOSER FOCUS

The various religious groups on campus, although separate in their activities, have an ultimate and common purpose at Florida State College—that of bringing Christian doctrines and standards into a closer focus for the students.

For approximately the last 20 years these groups have, through Religious Emphasis Week, established a unifying spirit of fellowship, by bringing to the campus outstanding religious leaders of the nation and enlisting the joint planning of all of the students representing their individual religious centers.

This year the Religious Workers' Council has secured a remarkably outstanding religious leader to be their speaker. Dr John Newton Thomas, professor of theology at Union Theological Seminary in Richmond, Virginia, comes to FSC as a man who is more than fully equipped in helping college students who are confused in their religious beliefs, or who need clarification of problems with which previously they have not been able to cope.

These discussions which will be led by Dr Thomas should not consist purely of student secretaries and student-house councils. This week is planned to function on a college-wide scale. If the student will look twice, he or she will realize that things such as this are a vital part of college training; that it is just as important to attend such enlightening and invigorating discussions (as these will surely prove to be) as it is to go to the various and sundry committee meetings with which all feel they are deluged.

Here is a man who is not only a person described as a "delightful personality," but one who is doubly a capable counselor. Take advantage of such opportunities as they are offered to you in college. Such post-college opportunities present themselves too seldom.

● A TEST OF HONOR

The amount of outraged protest that arises with the mere hint of a suggestion that the students are not completely capable of shouldering all and any type of responsibility seems rather incongruous in the light of the critical situation which has recently arisen in the library.

The problem, specifically, is that of the mutilation and loss of library materials. Almost daily, books, pamphlets, and other materials are taken from the reference room. Reference materials throughout the library are found so badly marked that the printing is almost indecipherable.

Upon more than one occasion, girls have been called into the library to account for books which they have never heard of—books that have been checked out by someone in another's name. The girl whose name appears upon the card is held responsible for the book, regardless, and must pay for it if it is not returned. Incidents of this kind are one of the greatest incriminations which could be made against the members of any student body, for they involve not only stealing something which belongs to everyone in the school, not just one person, but also show cowardliness in the deliberate plan to make some innocent person "take the rap."

It is quite apparent that some of the students, those who consistently refuse to uphold regulations concerning the proper checking out of all books taken from the library—do not realize the advantage which we of Florida State College have in our open library stacks. The convenience of being able to pick and choose personally among books in the stacks is taken for granted without thought of the implications of the removal of the privilege. However, should the existing abuse of this privilege be continued, It is inevitable that the stacks will be closed.

The library has done its utmost to keep the situation controlled. Students are now being allowed to check out six books at a time, twice as many as formerly. The staff is in full sympathy with the majority of the students who have a highly enough developed sense of personal and group responsibility to uphold library policies willingly. The inconvenience of the closing of the stacks would be felt equally by the library staff and the student body as a whole.

It would indeed be a pity for the whole student body to be made to pay for the waywardness of a few. However, the well-worn expression of a chain being as strong as its weakest link can be applied here. Let us hope that the inroads of rust and corrosion upon that chain are not so great that a bit of personal welding cannot prevent the break.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS:

The GOP took control of both the house and the senate from the Democratic party in the Tuesday elections. This is the first time in 15 years that the Republican party has been in control. The Republicans elected 23 senators, 27 representatives and 20 governors, giving them three more than a majority in the senate, 14 beyond a majority in the house, and a man in most of the state houses of the nation.

Senator J William Fulbright, Arkansas Democrat, suggested that President Truman resign and appoint a new secretary of state, thereby giving the Republicans full government control. Fulbright stated, "I am not asking the president to resign. I am only suggesting that it would be the best thing for the country as a whole."

By appointing a new secretary of state and then resigning, the new secretary, according to the Constitution, would succeed Truman as president. The White House in Washington has made no comment as yet.

Senator Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan is cited as the most likely new president of the Senate. Ohio's Robert A Taft is most likely to be the new party leader.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS:

Russia's parliamentary leader accused the United States and Great Britain of "organized obstruction to the Soviet program." Het told a cheering Moscow meeting that the Russian peace aims would prevail despite "atom blackmailers." Col Gen Andrei A Zhdanov, chairman of the Supreme Soviet of the USSR, spoke at a meeting of the national leaders, on the eve of the 29th anniversary celebration of the Bolshevist revolution. Stalin's absence from this meeting was left unexplained.

Zhdanov stated that both the U S and British delegations to the recent Paris peace conference had attempted to block the Soviet program of "making the United Nations work—unlike the miserable League of Nations."

President Truman announced Wednesday this government's plan to place before the United Nations security council, a suggested agreement under which the United States would take over trusteeship of the Japanese mandated islands.

Mr Truman said, "The United States is prepared to place her trusteeship, with the United States as the administering authority, the Japanese mandated islands and any Japanese island for which it assumes responsibilities as a result of the Second World War."

Or Forever Hold Your Peace

Fellow Students,

One short month ago, this college, the University of Florida branch at Tallahassee, became an actuality, with 508 male students enrolled. In the short space of thirty days miracles have been accomplished. You have much to be proud of. It was only through your patience, cooperation and the untiring work of a splendid staff that so much was done in so short a time. But the job has just begun.

A short time ago you elected student body and class officers. In these elections possibly your man was not chosen for office. It is also possible that because of this some will feel a natural letdown, experience a feeling that now your voice and views will not be heard. Don't you believe it. This is your government; you elected it; if it isn't conducted in a manner that meets your approval start yelling, and continue to yell loud and long until it is corrected. We're going to make mistakes, human beings often do. Things aren't going to mesh right away, it takes time and it's not going to be easy. Anything that is worthwhile doesn't come that way. There will be little room for pettiness here as there is little room for it anywhere in life.

Our ultimate goal, that of permanent co-education in our time, with permanent installations and the all of college life, is larger by far than any individual's personal objectives. Each officer from your busy student body president on down earnestly solicits your opinions, your suggestions, and your utmost confidence and continued cooperation in this undertaking.

Sincerely,
GEORGE J CROY,
President of Upperclassmen.

Editor of the Flambeau:

Perhaps this is a minor point at this time, but I resent being told to bring my pencil to convocation so that I can vote, without being told for what reason I am to vote. I like to know before I go to the polls just what the purpose of an election is, in order to have time to gather as much information as possible and to have a chance to form my opinion carefully. Just what sort of a government would we have if state and national elections were conducted in this manner? Just how fair is an election when the voters have only a few minutes to decide how they shall vote and no oportunity to learn anything about the business in hand?

I merely wish to register a protest at this time against the unorthodox procedure of Tuesday's voting.

Sincerely,
—M. CHARLES SKIPPER.

To the Editor:

It has come to my attention that there is a rumor which needs squelching. The talk at present naturally centers around Thanksgiving weekend, and with this talk has come the false rumor that "F" Club as an organization is attempting to back the faction favoring the continuance of the present type of celebration.

This rumor is without basis—"F" Club makes no moves as a body on such issues. Any opinions expressed by members of this club are purely personal and have no connection with the organiation.

Barbara F Irving
President, "F" Club

Compulsion, which is the essence of a closed week-end, should have been the major issue in the discussion and voting on Thanksgiving week-end.

No matter how important or how good the entertainment and games are this fact does not constitute a reason for keeping the students on the campus when they wish to go home or any place else. Every other week-end in the year is open, and it seems so unnecessary to make this one an exception. I don't think that any student, no matter how much she wants the Thanksgiving tradition continued, would want to keep others on the campus against their will.

If the dems, games, color rush, dance, and other activities connected with Thanksgiving on the campus are good enough, a closed week-end will not be necessary to keep the students here. Other colleges and universities achieve sufficient interest in homecoming week-end to retain a large number of students on the campus who participate in the activities. Of course, the vote Wednesday night will be obvious evidence of the students' sentiments.

In the past, many students have not enjoyed the Thanksgiving celebration as much as they might have because they had no choice in the matter of being here or elsewhere. And, of course, participating in the activities was better than wandering around with nothing to do on a holiday.

The amount of compulsion on the campus is overbearing now; consequently, the lifting of the closed week-end tradition would be another liberal movement marking this year as a turning point in campus policies.

Extra Special Dep't . . .

From sources that should be reliable I have information that work is being done to change the cut system for men into something more logical, maybe no regulations at all. Eliminations of the system of lowering grades when classes are missed won't mean marked increase in absences from class. Veterans going to school under the G I Bill know what side of their bread is buttered and just aren't going to take the chance of flunking by cutting classes. . . .

Rumors Are Flying . . .

But the one about there being two thousand boys at Tally U next quarter just had its wings cut off. From all the information that could be obtained at official headquarters, though nothing definite is known as yet, there might be as many as three hundred more males here in January. . . . There goes seventeen hundred fancied men out the window. . .

No Letter Today . . .

To G I Bill of Righter's: in a telephone conversation with the head of the Veterans Administration in Tallahassee, no information could be secured as to when subsistence checks will start coming through. We in school under the Bill have to be undergoing the process of education for a month before any work can be started to get the checks to us. So it appears that the money slips will arrive only as fast as government clerks can use scissors of action to cut the red-tape. Patience, me hearties, patience . . . . Meanwhile a loan fund has been set up at Dale Mabry to help those who need financial aid to get over the hump until the checks do start coming in. Full particulars concerning loans can be had at Dean McBride's office.

Lighter Note

Some guys are not satisfied with merely spooning — they want to shovel. . . . Sometimes it takes a shovel to dig a way out of a situation. . . . Then there's the advantage of being a weatherman: he can look into a girl's eyes and tell whether.

Armistice Day

Although there won't be a holiday Monday, there will be many activities going on in Tallahassee. Broward Williams, commander of the American Legion post in the city, has extended an invitation to all veterans who can do so to take part in the events planned. These include a breakfast at the Legion Home at 7:30, a parade to form in front of the Floridan Hotel at 10:15, and a dance at the Legion Home at 9 that night.

Constitution for Tally U

The newly appointed Constitution committee will meet for the first time this afternoon. A constitution governing the men students to be in effect for this year only must be drawn up. Some suggestions that have been made are: to form a student senate; this will give more students a voice in the government and make it more democratic. It will also take some of the burden off the student body officers. To allow for a provision in the constitution for amending it whenever necessary. Everything is subject to change. General consensus of opinion sems to be that the fewer rules the better.

Hint

Boys who don't live in sound proof rooms shouldn't play their radios so loudly. Others might be trying to study.

Sharpie the Fifinella

If you've noticed everyone dressed in black these past few weeks, it ain't got nothin' to do with somethin' ending in "gira." It's all because of a nasty rumor flying around about Kilroy. Said rumor said that someone said, "I sure wish someone would Kill-Roy!" What a rash suggestion!

Hearing this, Sharpie was naturally thrown into a state of unprecedented depression and so rushed to the nearest dining hall to crawl under a cabbage leaf (one way of eating worms). Even under this musty shelter, word reached Sharpie that Kilroy was dead, and so that night after you know who had made her rounds, she slipped past a closed sign and went out into the murky night to search for the grave of her lover. After hours of wandering aimlessly about, Sharpie stumbled upon an impressive ivy-covered monument with but three simple words engraved across the red brick—"Kilroy was here!"

A sea of mail awaited Sharpie this week, but she dove (get it?—get the joke?) right in, always willing to give those in need, the advantage of her superior advice.

First letter comes from one who signs herself Odd Eve, and she certainly must be. Says she, "If there is anything worse than traditions, it's the people who believe in them. Oh, that Roosevelt were here now."

Sharpie is amazed to find such an attitude here on campus. She seriously doubts whether our Pilgrim fathers or Roosevelt either one would have started it all, had they known it would cause such confusion at dear old unconfused FSC.

The next letter from "Undecided" asks Sharpie's advice on the new fire drill system. All that Sharpie can say is that "Undecided" better decide quickly whether she wants to file out slowly, efficiently, and burned, or quickly, inefficiently, and unsinged!

Never let it be said again, or at least not within these holy portals, that a straight line is the shortest distance between two points. You might not get the connection, but get this — "The Committee for Allowing Girls to Smoke in Their Dormitory Bedrooms." Seems like "Committee for Smoking in Rooms" is entirely too too uncomplicated—like a lot of other things could be! Hmmm?

Did you hear about the girl who dropped a cat out of her dormitory window one night and managed by some quirk of fate to follow the cat out? She'd never have gotten in again either if it hadn't been for the ivy clad walls. You know, that ivy is pretty old, but it's still pretty darn strong.

Sharpie is pretty tired now (as who wouldn't be after having thought up all these clever quips) and so she leaves you with this thought for the week.

Hail, Democracy!

Students Speak . .

The question put before the students this week is "What is your impression of the Flambeau this year?" Many students who were questioned replied with reference to the change in feature material and the expansion of the staff. Some were in favor of it and some were not. Others had special gripes to air, suggestions to offer and special requests to make. Yet others were full of praise for the Flambeau. The most clairvoyant and striking of these are quoted here.

"A Radical Red Sheet" says Drusilla Gnann, junior. "I think the Flambeau is far too radical a paper for this college. It is based on what happened last year too much. I don't like the prejudiced view taken of physical education, especially since I am a physical education major. The Journalism Department preaches on the evils of physical education as a major and its proteges attempt to incorporate these ideas in our college paper. It isn't fair, and we physical education majors resent it."

"I've only read it once" says Jim Turner, junior, "and that was because I never have access to a copy. But that one copy was very interesting and I especially enjoy the editorials. They reflect both sides of every controversial question as it comes up."

"A great improvement over last year" says Anne Lewis, senior. "I thought it was too serious and dull for a college paper last year but the addition of special feature stories and clever columns has pepped it up a lot. I think it still has a long way to go to come up to being as good as college paper as some others I've read."

"The addition of men to the staff has certainly worked wonders" says Frances Isaac, senior. "The Flambeau is good evidence of the fact that men on th FSC campus have really added a lot. Their work on the Flambeau seems to have brought out keener competition in the writing and more variety in the newspaper items. The improvement of our college paper is certainly one good reason for advocating co-education at FSC."

The Kitchen Sink . . . .

For this week at least we want to be serious. Traditions, like shoes, can be outgrown. In 1776 the tradition of being English colonies was outgrown by our forebears. Last Tuesday the tradition of having a Democratic Congress was outgrown. This year here on campus we are changing some of the traditions in our constitution. From the recent vote by students on the Thanksgiving question it would seem that some of our other traditions need to be changed to meet our new needs. We would like to suggest some traditions which we think are more constructive and more inclusive and more to be desired by the student body in general.

RING OUT THE OLD

With the abolishing of the traditional Odd-Even Thanksgiving festivities, FSC is entering a new era of campus activity. We are putting aside our childish playthings and the barbaric ends which are accomplished thereby, and attempting to establish new traditions which are worthy of college people.

Buried deep in the suggestions for constructive traditions on campus is the one about throwing pennies in the fountain. Already there are few superstitious souls who toss an occasional penny into Westcott fountain for luck in life, love, and satisfactory grades.

If the student body were to perpetrate the idea that a penny in the fountain brings good luck generally and good grades especially, many pennies would fall into the fountain.

Figuring on the average of 2,000 students who wanted good luck on the average of three exams per quarter, sixty dollars would be tossed into the fountain each quarter. Then at the end of the year we would have accumulated one hundred eighty dollars in a year.

The money we collected this way could be placed in a scholarship fund for needy students who would not be able to attend college because of financial reasons. As our school grows, our fund would grow. If the fund were designated as a loan scholarship, we would soon have enough money collected for a full year's work here. Then as the fund increases itself more than one scholarship could be offered by the students in school here to other people.

It might also be used to sponsor exchange scholarships with other nations. We might further understanding of other countries by having our students spend a year in residence out of this country, and having students from other lands study here.

There are many educational ventures that the student body of FSC could sponsor if it employed the inexpensive process of believing that a penny in the fountain brings fortune to the donor.

There are disadvantages to this idea, we know. It has been suggested that people would steal the pennies from the fountain, but anyone who has been swimming there will tell you that it takes a hardy soul to venture into such unstable territory, and these difficulties can be solved as they arise.

This is the type of tradition that cannot be legislated or established by an executive decree. It must grow from the student body and their action in either following this suggestion, or forgetting it.

RING IN THE NEW

You can take it from me that there are lots of things about the demonstrations that could be changed for the better. In the first place they take up too much time for extra-curricular activities. They are also done in too big a hurry to have a finished production. However, that is only a small reason for their not being good shows. The main reason is that for the past decades they have had to be based on the same idea, have the same ending, the same climax, and have the same kind of nasty humer.

A few students who are very much interested in seeing student productions reach a higher level have thought about these drawbacks and present this solution to them — a colossal campus-wide show with the only objective being a good show, and integration with academic subjects so that the committee heads receive scholastic credit. This is not a far-fetched idea. These students have talked the idea over with various members of the faculty including Dean Dorman and received much encouragement. Choose girls whose majors are closely related to the phase of the production they are in charge of and you not only have the people best fitted for the job, but they in turn receive invaluable practical experience.

The theater is the integration point for most fields of knowledge: music, drama, dress designing, dance, stage craft, creative writing, psychology, physics, and chemistry. Nor does this limit the cast and staff to those departments. People with good speaking and singing voices do not necessarily major in speech or music. The various crews backstage would still be open to all and for a bigger show there would be even bigger crews.

Permission has been given to run the proposed show for at least three nights with the public invited and the price of admission raised to fifty cents. With that money plus the money from an afternoon concert and admission to the dance, we could have the production followed by a dance with a name orchestra. This could be made into a very big college weekend that would be excellent publicity for our college and superb for our morale. Other colleges are renowned for their productions and week ends, and with vision and hard work we can do the same thing.

Coed Choir to Sing

The coed choir of Florida State College will sing during the state Parent Teachers Association dinner-meeting to be held here November 14 in the east dining hall at 6:30 p m.

The program will consist of a number from a manuscript entitled Oh Lovely Jesu by Gerlock and the Hallelujah Chorus by Mendelssohn. Cymbals will be used during the songs.

The choir will be under the direction of Herman Gunter, instructor in the music department, and will be accompanied by Peter Jensen.

Religious Groups To Honor Dr Thomas

An informal college-wide reception for all students will be held in the Longmire building lounge at 4:45 Wednesday afternoon in honor of Dr John Newton Thomas, Religious Emphasis Week speaker. Invitations have been sent to all men students at the Dale Mabry branch.

Coline Gunn is social chairman for the reception. Sarah Lewis, Dalia Santos, Ida Lee Rentz, Martha Peacock, Ann Hunter, Betty Dowd, Esther Rasmussen, and Joyce Carlton are on the reception committee.

The council members of the various religious groups on campus will be hostesses. Each group is inviting its own faculty sponsors. Tallahassee ministers, their families and others will be special guests.

Herman Gunther of the School of Music faculty will sing, accompanied by Miss Mary Winslow.

Typewriting Test

The typewriting test will be given Tuesday, November 19, at 4:30 p m in the typing room (308 History). Please sign on the bulletin board outside the Personnel Office if you wish to take this test. Students who are employed as "typists" and who make a rating of "A" on the test, may qualify for fifty cents (50c) an hour beginning with the second quarter if departmental funds permit.

The test will not be given again until the latter part of the second quarter, affecting rate of pay for the third quarter.

Campuside, Hillside Houses Have Party

The social committee of Campuside and Hillside surprised residents of the two houses with a Hallowe'en party last Thursday evening. The rooms were decorated with colored autumn leaves and paper jack-o-lanterns.

A Hallowe'en reading was given by Patricia Yates and familiar songs were sung.

Frances Wells was chairman of the refreshment committee, which was made up of Margie Vickery, Minnie Louise Green, and Dorothy Burnham. In charge of decorations were Joyce Todd, chairman, Jonnie Edwards, Muriel Scott and Teddy Pippin.

Music Majors Honored

Freshman music majors were honored at the annual Music Club reception which was held Tuesday from 4:30 until 6 in the lounge of the Longmire building. Members of music organizations, faculty, and music teachers attending the Florida State Music Teachers convention were invited.

The lounge was decorated with varied fall flowers. During the reception hours, background music was provided by the music students. In the receiving line were officers and the sponsor of the Music Club.

Poems Read to UDC

Elaine Parramore, senior speech student, gave a reading of original poems at a meeting of the United Daughters of the Confedgracy Tuesday afternoon at the Delta Zeta house.

The first reading was the soliloquy of an old Negro man in his eighties as he sits on the porch of his cabin home smoking a corncob pipe. Elaine also presented a sketch of a Negro woman trying to get the children up so that they could eat breakfast and do the morning chores before she leaves for the field.

Average Little Theater-Goer Oblivious of Humorous Back-Stage Predicaments

"Now take it fast . . . we haven't much time left."

A voice, belonging to Miss Yvonne Cody, director of "Arsenicr and Old Lace," spoke from the middle of the twelfth row of the Augusta Conradi theater.

"Come on. If you wait this long during the performance the audience will get up and leave."

And then the curtain parted and dress rehearsal of the speech department's first fall production continued. Teddy kept right on "charging" up "San Juan hill," Aunties Abby and Martha charitably poisoning lonely old men and Mortimer frantically attempting to straighten out the situation.

But what the audience, watching the amusing antics of two pixilated old ladies, does not realise is that many equally amusing antics take place during rehearsals of the play. No one watching Abby's "old lady shuffle" would guess the trouble she had "padding" herself in the proper places. Nor would the average Little Theater-goer suspect the trouble the acquisition of a simple sun-helmet would cause.

In the midst of their task of unloading blackboards two workmen were approached by a worried looking girl. She talked animatedly to the taller of the two and finally receiving an affirmative nod dashed madly into the Little Theater carrying the workman's sun-helmet. And so it appeared painted white atop Teddy's head as he "dug" the Panama Canal.

Yes, and think of the trouble the inguenue and the male lead had in learning the "technique" of stage kissing. The process provided the cast with no little amusement since she is engaged and he is the proud possessor of a six-year-old son.

No, little does one know the "thrills and chills" that are the backbone of the polished performance put on by the cast and crews working on the plays that are presented to Florida State College audiences.

Landis Reception To Be Held Tonight

The Landis formal reception held annually in honor of Mrs Cary D Landis, wife of a former attorney general of Florida for whom Landis hall was named, will be held tonight from 8:30 to 10 p m. Those who have been invited to receive with Mrs Landis are President and Mrs Doak S Campbell, Miss Olivia N Dorman, Miss Sarah Cloud, Miss Elizabeth Lynn and Miss Ruth Pyche.

Other faculty members asked to assist are Miss Edith McCollum, Mrs B F Whitner, Miss Ernestine Troemel, Mrs Beatrice Williams, Mrs Nina Mae Williams and Mr Claude R Flory.

Barbara Owen, chairman of the Landis social committee will introduce guests to the receiving line, and all students residing in Landis hall will serve as hostesses during the evening. Those with special duties are Dorothy McKirnon, Anne Hunter, Sarah Lewis, Rosetta Carver, Ann Parker, Emily Sheftall, Mary Elizabeth White, Ida Lee Rentz, Carolyn Taylor, Betty Ruth Goode, Jeanne Bagley, Catharine Nollman, Evelyn Howell, Gwen Ramage, Mary Monaco, Virginia Allstock, Grace Brown, Mary Rivero, Marie Beverly, Perilee Hunt, Dorothy Luke, Virginia Blanton, Marjorie Christensson, Dorothy Stanton, Betty Jo McLeod, Margaret Hunter, Jacqueline Smith, Nancy Day, Carolyn Pruitt, Marjorie Holms and Janice Richey.

Background music will be furnished throughout the evening by Eleanor Bragg and Sarah Brown.

About 150 faculty members have been invited to attend this reception, which has been a traditional affair upheld by the girls residing in Landis since 1939 when the hall was dedicated to Attorney General Landis.

Hillel to Sponsor Friday Study Groups

The Hillel Foundation at Florida State College will hold study groups each Friday at the Temple for the purpose of discussing traditions and history of the Jewish faith, according to Miss Lois Goldman, sponsor. Discussions of public affairs and events will also be held.

Miss Goldman, who graduated from Wesleyan college, Macon, Ga, was active in Young Women's Christian association work on that campus. While there she held the office of War Activities chairman. At Columbia university, from which she received her MA degree, she continued her work with group organizations She is now counselor in Jennie Murphree dormitory.

Collection of Rare Books Possessed by FSC Library

"Here is Cotton Mather's Ecclesiastical History of New England, which was published in London in 1702. This one's got a Latin title page. It is de Bry's Brevis Narrtio eorum quar de Florida, and it was published in 1591!"

"And this one, Las Casas' Breuissima relacion de la destruycion de las Indias, is written in Spanish and this copy was published in 1552."

"Few people realise the extent of the library's rare book collection or appreciate the McGregor foundation which made this precious collection of American histories possible," stated Miss Louise Richardson, Florida State College librarian.

For six years Mr McGregor contributed $500 annually toward the collection with only the stipulations that the library contribute an equal amount and the money be spent for rare American histories. These books can be used by anybody in the library, but are not in circulation to anyone. They are kept in glassed-in book shelves in Miss Richardson's office.

The books kept behind the deck are there because they are scarce and almost irreplacable, or are kept there at the request of some faculty member, Miss Richardson explained. These books are allowed to circulate freely among faculty and students.

All books in the stacks may be checked out of the library through proper channels by faculty and students, and townspeople are welcome to use the books in the library. Last year, a total of 333,080 books were circulated.

Other libraries borrowed 97 books from the FSC library and this library borrowed, for faculty and graduate students, 38 books. Miss Richardson said that this was the first time we have ever lent more books than we borrowed. Usually, it is the other way around.

The Florida State College library has been designated as a depository of the United States Army map service and for aeronautical chart service. As soon as equipment can be purchased to house the material, 50,000 maps and 2,000 aeronautical and hydrographical charts will be filed for use in the library.

When FSC went back to its prewar schedule of classes this year, the library changed its hours to coincide. The library is now open more hours per week than it ever has been, and plans are under way to keep it open during the supper hour. The library will continue to close on Saturday at 5 p m because they do not have the staff to keep it open, and so few people use it Saturday night, Miss Richardson said.

At present, the library has a staff of fourteen full-time workers, including two clerical workers, and twenty-two student assistants.

As of July 1, 1946, the library has 107,429 books, 9267 of which were added during the last fiscal year. In addition to these books are 33,967 government documents, 19,742 pamphlets, and 28,258 pictures.

Of the 571 magazines received by the library, 113 are gifts to the school. Although the library receives 68 newspapers, it subscribes to only six. Most of the papers are sent by Florida towns or churches.

Miss Richardson said that, according to actual count, 182,965 students remained in the library to study and asked 39,124 questions of the library staff which required help last year.

Delta Zeta Holds 'Garden of Roses' Dance

Delta Zeta sorority held its annual rose dance Saturday night featuring the "Garden of Roses" theme.

This theme was carried out with roses used throughout the house and streamers of pink crepe paper covering the lights. In the middle of the floor was placed a rose ring through which the couples danced. Music was furnished by Osco Hughs and his orchestra.

Guests for the evening were 30 Phi Gamma Delta fraternity men from Gainesville.

An informal tea dance was given by Delta Zeta in the afternoon of the same day. Decorations used were Kilroy signs and streamers of blue crepe paper covering the lights. Group singing was enjoyed by those attending the tea dance. Jo Ann Long sang a solo.

English Speaks At Convention Banquet

Association Members Re-Elect All Officers At Annual Meeting

Campbell Gives Address During General Session

The twelfth annual convention of the State Music Teachers' association was held on Florida State College campus on November 4 and 5. An address was given by the Hon Colin English, State Supervisor of Education, at the annual convention banquet on Monday evening.

All officers of the Association were re-elected and, according to Mrs Frances Pemberton, secretary, membership in the FSMTA showed an increase of above 60 per cent.

The general session was called to order at 9 a m in the Longmire building by Lyman P Prior, president of the association. The welcoming address was given by Dr Doak S Campbell, president of Florida State College. The program included selections by the FSC Symphonic Band and quartet, and original songs and musical composition by members of the Florida Composers' League. The compositions of three FSC musicians, Walter Ruel Cowles, Dr C P Heinlein and Miss Daphne Rowe, were among those presented on the program.

In the second session which took place from 11 a m to 1 p m various panel discussions were held throughout the campus. Discussions were held concerning problems common to piano, public school music, instrumental and vocal, organ and theory of composition.

A business meeting at 2 p m opened the third session with President Prior presiding. The reports of officers and of the District Chairman were heard at this time.

The annual convention banquet was held at 6:30 p m in the college dining hall. President Prior, toastmaster, introduced the Hon Colin English, who delivered an address to the members of the convention. A musical interlude was presented by the Florida String Quartet.

Stanley Fletcher's all-Chopin concert composed the fourth session and was followed by a reception in the Longmire building lounge honoring Mr Fletcher.

The fifth session opened Tuesday morning at 9 p m with the piano master class over which Stanley Fletcher presided. At the same time the band clinic demonstration, presided over by V D Sturgisk, was held in Westcott auditorium. Presiding over the orchestra clinic demonstration and the choral clinic demonstration were Gene A Sturchio and H Law Mallard.

At the noon program held in Westcott auditorium addresses were giveo by Mrs W C Brooker, president of the Florida Federation of Music Clubs; Mrs Eunah Johnson Holden, president of the Florida Education Association; Otto Kraushaar, president of the Florida Music Educators association, and voice and organ interludes by Mrs Ramona C Beard, Walter James, Herman Gunter and Mary Esther Winslow, all faculty members of FSC. Also playing the organ was Clande Murphree of the University of Florida.

Winners of the Florida Federation of Music Clubs district contests were participants in the sixth session district student program at 2 p m Tuesday, followed by the closing business meeting at 3:30 p m, at which time were heard the reports and recommendations of the chairmen of the Panel Discussions ano the Clinic Demonstrations. Officers were then elected and Miami was selected as the site of the convention next year.

A tea given by the Music Club for convention guests and music majors in the Longmire lounge needed the two day convention.

FSC's Ex-Service Women Tell Of Experiences Overseas

From uniforms of blue and khaki to plaid skirts and saddle shoes, from drab military posts to a sprawling green campus, come 17 ex-service women to Florida State College under the GI Bill of Rights.

Janet Carolyn Varn who was a major in the WAC secured her commission when the corps was first organized. Her work in the Army Air Forces was similar to her previous job at the aircraft spotting station in Jacksonville and she was soon chosen as one of three American women to attend the English staff school for ATS officers at Bagshot.

"All of the British people were kind to us," said Carolyn. "The highlight of our stay was a visit from Queen Elizabeth and the Princess Royal. They stopped and talked with each of us asking about our homes and families and about what we were studying there in Bagshot."

"The 'buzz-bomb' scare was going on while we were in England," Carolyn continued, "but only a few people dashed for the air-raid shelters; the majority went calmly about their work."

When her period of training was ofer in Bagshot, Carolyn was sent to Paris where she spent 16 months doing administrative work on Stars and Stripes, various propaganda leaflets and the allied radio. "Conditions in Paris the first winter were very bad. There was no heat nor electricity, and the French women and children were often so cold that they looked blue. However, the following winter things were considerably improved. Although we frequently were on sea rations—dried eggs and no milk—the French chefs who cooked for us did wonders."

Carolyn went into ecstacies over the Parisian fashion shows where they sat on velvet sofas and were served champagne and pastries. "It was amazing to watch a piece of sleazy material being turned into a really smart looking gown with a deft tuck here and bit of gathers there." Also on her list of amusements while in Paris were the opera, theater and USO

Another ex-service woman who went overseas was Dorothy Evelyn Rees, lieutenant (senior grade) in the WAVES. After two months indoctrination at Smith and Mount Holyoke colleges, she received her commission as ensign and was sent to the Naval Air Station at Jacksonville where she served in the capacity of civilian personnel officer.

"There were 101 officers, 100 enlisted men and I in a 27 acre factory of eight thousand civilian employes. My pay and responsibilities were equal to that of the men, but at that time the Navy was somewhat skeptical of the value of women in service. I did all the hiring and firing of workers and also drilled and looked after the enlisted girls whose number grew from 24 to 550 while I was there."

Near the end of her first year in Jacksonville Evelyn was sent to Hawaii where she came in contact with native Hawaiians, Koreans, Portuguese, Philippinoes, and numerous mixed races.

Mary Virginia Shambaugh was a corporal in the Marines stationed at Banana River. She drove and did liaison work for Gen John Marsden. Many of the other girls were in the Motor Transport division and in the Medical Corps Several of the latter are now studying pre-med at FSC.

The women attending Florida State College under the GI Bill of Rights are: Leah Alice Abel, Anne McCray Barton, Mary Lynn Donnally, Ruby A Ebert, Anna Jessie Eddy, Elizabeth Nell Griffith, Phyllis Norah Johnson, Flossie M McLeod, Ellen P Schallern, Mary Virginia Shambaugh, Marguerite K Scull, Dorothy Evelyn Rees, Gwendolyn M Poucher, Menton Brown, Janct Carolyn Varn, Mary J Livingston and Alice W Waldron.

Dale Mabry Branch To Have Bookstore

Post Office Will Be Opened Under Supervision of Mays

Students of the University of Florida, Tallahassee branch, now residing at Dale Mabry field will have a bookstore and a post office of their own in the very near future.

"Plans for the bookstore to be located in the Administration building at Dale Mabry field are being completed and will be ready quite soon," announced Gordon Wheeler, manager of the bookstore at Florida State College.

At the same time Mr W H Mays, manager of the FSC Post Office announced that a post office at Dale Mabry Field would be open for business next week.

For the past several weeks the men have had the use of a stamp window in the Administration building at the base, but plans for enlarging this service into a regular U S post offire are nearing completion. Mr Maya has assigned separate letter boxes for the boys and they will also be able to send and receive packages there under a set-up similar to the one now existing at FSC.

The new post office will be under the supervision of Mr Mays, though it will be owned and operated under the auspices of the University of Florida. Mrs Margaret Sessions and Miss Winifred Stoutamire will work as clerks in the branch. Regular office hours will be from 8:30 a m to 5 p m daily, with the window being open from 9 a m to 12 p m and from 1 p m to 5 p m

Using Scissors Is Means of Gaining Friends and Fame

Clip, clip, clip. . . .

"It needs to be shorter on this side, don't you think?"

Stop! Stop! . . "There."

The scene could be taken from a barber shop, but the actual place is a room of Gilchrist where Flora Mae (Bordy) McBride is living up to her standards as a "haircutter."

Her growing fame as a tonsorial artist started a year ago when she was a freshman and several fellow-hall-mates wanted bangs instead of pompadours. As soon as her "customers" left, she wondered if this business of cutting hair was more suited to her future life than teaching English. Now that she is a sophomore, she still wonders, because all of her many customers have never given a complaint and always come back with friends, not enemies.

All of this talent is expended without charging a cent to the lucky girl that wants short hair.

Her room number?

Ah, that wouldn't be fair to the beauticians' union!

Bellamy Stars at Landis Cat's Howl

You've heard of wolf wails and coyote cries—but hava you ever heard of a Cat's Howl? Well there was one in the form of a Hallowe'en party in Landis recreation room last Saturday night, and the cat with the loudest and most swooned over "meowww" was none other than Dr Raymond Bellamy, professor of sociology and the "Van Johnson of FSC." He was truly the "beau of the ball" and square danced with all the gals. Special records provided the music, and Laura Cason called the dances.

During the evening games such as pinning the tail on a cat, dunking for apples, and dropping clothes-pins in a bottle were played, and winners of each contest were awarded horns and noise-makers.

The evening was concluded with lights out and a gruesome ghost story by Gwen Ramage and Jane Thomas in which they told of Kilroy's death and passed around his remains, which consisted of grapes for eyeballs and spaghetti for brains.

Stray Greeks Begin Planning for Raffle

Prizes to Include Free Meal, Airway Tickets, Nylon Hose

The Stray Greeks, newly organized club composed of fraternity members who have transferred from other schools, highlighted their Monday meeting by discussing plans for a big raffle with mention of such wanted items as two airway tickets to Gainesville for the Fall Frolics weekend, a pair of nylon hose, a free meal at a leading Tallahassee restaurant and five theater tickets as prizes. Plans were begun after receiving the go ahead signal from Dean Otis McBride.

George Croy, raffle chairman, indicated that the tickets will be printed this week and ready for distribution early next week. The tickets will be ten cents each, and a student may purchase as many as are desired.

Bruce Bolt, Stray Greeks' president, expressed the hope that "much student interest will be stimulated by the proposed raffle" Each member of the club will take part in selling the raffle tickets. Bolt also announced that plans are being made to sponsor a mid-November dance at which the tickets will be drawn and the raffle prizes awarded. To win a prize one does not have to be present at the drawing.

Infirmary Doctor Compares FSC With Smith of Vermont

"It's rather odd," mused Dr Grace E Wilder, new physician at the infirmary, "to see girls wearing dresses."

Dr Wilder, who was assistant staff physician for the last several years at Smith College, Vermont, can remember seeing ver few dresses being worn at Smith "Most of the girls," she said, "li in dungarees and sack-siz shirts."

"Of course," she added, sm ing, "it was different in winte Since it's too cold there to wea dungarees, they wear ski-su The suits are cute, but someh we always had the uncomfortab suspicion that the only thing un derneath was pajamas."

Dr Wilder, who is in Florida f the first time, received her A degree at Colby, Massachuse and while teaching there in biology department decided to to Johns Hopkins for a medi degree.

Since that time, she has do public health examination wo for high schools, served at Sm and was director of health serv at Hampton Institute.

"It's interesting," sha said, "a ter having been at Smith to wat the beginnings of coeducati here. I personally think it's much more normal system," s concluded.

Van Furguson Will Exhibit Paintings

An exhibition of paintings and awings by Van Ferguson will on display November 18 ough 23 in the Longmire audi- ium. Both students and faculty invited to the exhibit. This ibit represents work done dur- the years from 1937 to 46 Paintings and drawings done in oil, water color, pas- pencil and charcoal, including th figures and landscapes. Mr rguson uses a variety of real- c, abstract, and semi abstract proaches.

Some of his more famous paint- s to be shown are "Woman th Pearls," a color sketch in and pastel that is now in the fred Barr of Museum of Mod- Art. Another is an oil point- g. "The Lake," which is in- ded in the American Library of lor Slides in New York.

Mr Ferguson was born in Mar- County, Florida in 1903. He perimented with water mixed th chalk at the age of three. 1927 he began drawing and died at Jacksonville Art Acad- y and under Bridgemen at Art dents League in New York. He n first place in Summer Stu- nts Concourse at Art Students ague.

Annual Birthday Party Is Planned

"Happy Birthday to You" is the eme of the celebration by the dents of Florida State College Monday, November 18, honor- g President Doak S Campbell.

A dinner will be held for Dr mpbell in the East Dining Hall 6:15, attended by all College overnment, Judiciary, and class ficers. Following dinner, there ll be singing by the entire stu- ent body, gathered on Landis reen. Beth Puhrer, head of the nior class, will then present a ft to the president from the eshmen, sophomores and juniors.

Immediately afterwards, the embers of the senior class will company Dr Campbell to his ome for a reception, at which ean Cole, as senior class presi- ent, will present him with a rthday cake.

Plate Disappears From Alum Lounge

"Where, oh where, has our wedgewood plate gone?" Miss Louise B Gehan, alumnae secretary, is plaintively asking this week. "This plate, picturing scenes of Florida State College, is the only one in existence and for that reason we are especially anxious to have it returned," states Miss Gehan.

For the past five years the plate, secured for the Longmire building in 1941 by Mrs Frank Moor, has been resting on a sideboard in the main lounge. Last Monday it disappeared. Anyone knowing the possible whereabouts of this, the one and only Florida State College wedgewood, is asked to please contact Miss Gehan in the alumnae office.

Dr Phillips Addresses Annual Convention

The annual state convention of the Parent-Teacher Association opened Tuesday night in Westcott auditorium with Dr Charles W Phillips as the guest speaker.

An organization conference opened Wednesday morning in the auditorium of the Trinity Methodist Church with Miss Katherine Phillips playing an organ prelude. Rev Lawrence I Stell, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church gave the invocation, and reports from the convention committees were given.

Participating in a forum, the subject of which was "The Right to Education," were Charles Phillips, second vice-president of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers; Dr Doak S Campbell; Mrs Eunah Holden, president of the Florida Education Association; Colin English, state superintendent of public instruction; and Richard H Simpson of Monticello, representative from Jefferson County. Following an afternoon meeting, an informal tea was held at the governor's mansion. Dr Paul Witty of Northwestern University was speaker at the evening meeting held at the Trinity Methodist Church.

A report made Thursday morning by Mrs Herbert Ingley, director of registration, revealed that 498 delegates and guests had registered for this twenty-third convention at Tallahassee. Mrs J Floyde Griffin of Tampa was elected president of the Florida Congress of Parents and Teachers.

"Our Goal—Fulfillness of Life" was the theme of the annual banquet in the east dining hall Thursday night, which officially closed the convention. Mrs Walter Beckham presided and Mrs Dora Skipper served as mistress of ceremonies. Special music was provided by the Florida State College Glee Club.

Bulletin Publishes Irish's New Article

"Academic Revolution" is the title of Dr Marian Irish's new article that was published in the Autumn issue of the American Association of University Professors Bulletin.

"The article," said Dr Irish, "is a survey of the public service programs developing from the traditional academic political science curriculum. It discusses the patterns of professional preparation for government service, including the internship training programs at the graduate and undergraduate levels. It also tells of the relations between the institutes of the government in the service training programs, particularly in the state universities.

"Academic revolution means, she continued, that the professors and students no longer do all their work in the classroom but go out and learn first hand the nature of political process."

Dr Irish, who is a professor of political science, has written articles for other books and journals, and has made book reviews for the Political Science Magazine and the New York Times. She has also just recently contributed a chapter to the book Twentieth Century Political Thought edited by Roueck.

Cuts System Effective at 1 PM Saturday

Below "C" Students Subject to Present Attendance Rules

President Says Roll Call To Continue in Classes

The new cutting system for freshmen goes into effect at 1 p m tomorrow. In essence this means that cuts will not begin until Monday morning, since there are no classes scheduled for Saturday afternoon.

According to President Doak S Campbell, any present first quarter fresman not making a "C" average for the fall quarter is subject to the first quarter attendance rule. That is, "any freshman who misses a class without excuse from the Cut Committee shall lose one-sixth of the credit value of the course in which the absence occurs."

President Campbell said that a list of those freshmen who do not make a "C" average first quarter will be sent to all faculty members. Roll will continue to be called, either silently or audibly, in all classes, the President explained.

The above action was taken by the Executive Council on the basis of information secured during the past year and during the first six weeks of this year. The policy regarding class attendance during this time was in the nature of an experiment, and the council doubted the advisability of continuing the practice as regards freshman students.

The action of relaxing present regulations will apply to all freshmen entering Florida State College or tha Tallahassee branch of the University of Florida at the opening of the second or third quarters.

Further study will be made by the Attendance Committee of the council so that specific recommendations for a long-range solution to the problem of reporting class attendance can be presented for action.

Committee Votes on Amendment Motion

Proposals Anent Student Voting Under Discussion

Voting by the Constitutional Committee upon motions made last week by the amendment subcommittee concerning the process of future amendment to the constitution will take place at the next meeting Monday, November 18, at 6:45 p m in 402 Longmire building.

A motion that proposed amendments be first submitted to student vote before being sent to the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs in order that the committee will better know the wishes of the students before making a final decision will be one of those voted upon. Also whether or not to require a two-thirds vote by students on proposed amendments or a simple majority will be decided. All members of the committee are urged to be present so that the amendment may be voted on by a two-thirds quorum.

At the meeting last Monday night the executive sub-committee made a proposal to eliminate the third vice president of College Government Association. She would be replaced by a forum chairman who would be responsible for different groups to hold

Irish Speaks at Southern Political Science Convention

The fact that the women of the South, a majority group, have virtually no representation in state and national government was one of the main points brought out by Dr Marion D Irish in her address to membere attending the Southern Political Science convention in Knoxville, Tennessee, last week. Her talk, which was featured in a Knoxville newspaper, was entitled "Minority Rule in the South."

"The National Congress, since the ratification of the nineteenth amendment, has had three southern women, including Ruth Bryan Owen, from Florida," stated Dr Irish in her address. "In the eightieth National Congress beginning next January, there will be no women from the South."

In her talk, she gave reasons why only a minority of eligible southerners vote. These reasons include legal barriers such as poll taxes and illiteracy tests, the fact that some are discouraged by political principle, and the fact that so many are indifferent, ignorant, and have a general lack of civic confidence.

"The address was prepared on the basis of southern primaries in May and August. Although national elections were on the Tuesday before the convention, on Thursday I was able to give the same paper without revision, except to note that Congressman Andrew May of Kentucky was not returned," commented Dr Irish.

The meeting began November 7 and continued through November 9. Faculty members from Florida State College attending were Dr Irish, Dr Lucretia Ilsley, and Mr Lorace E Catterson.

During the trip they visited the Norris Dam and Norristown, parts of the Tennessee Valley Authority. Guide for the TVA tour was Dr Lawrence Durrisch, public relations director. Dr Irish reports that the group also visited Athens, Tennessee, the site of the veteran election revolution of this past summer.

"We took a four block detour to see the jail, but the only signs of a revolution were marks of bullets on the facade. There was also a sign saying 'visitors welcome', indicating that it is already a center of attraction."

She went on to say that the town itself appears peaceful and small, not revolutionary at all.

Dr Catterson will give a detailed account of the trip to those interested Tuesday afternoon at 4:30 in the Longmire auditorium.

Panel Argues Dancing Rule

Rasmussen Gives Con, Savage, Carter, Pro

Arguments for and against relaxing the present regulation which prohibits dancing on Sunday were presented by three student speakers at a College Government Association forum held Monday evening in the Longmire auditorium. The panel for this discussion included Esther Rasmussen, who spoke against abolishing the present rule, and Anne Carter and Connie Savage, who presented arguments for allowing Sunday dancing.

Connie Savage contended that dancing is a wholesome recreation and that, if it were wrong, the college should not sanction it on weekdays any more than on Sundays.

"If a certain group does not wish to participate in Sunday dancing," Connie said, "they need not do so, but a minority should not establish standards for the entire college."

Speaking in opposition to relaxing the Sunday dancing regulation, Esther Rasmussen argued that such a rule is needed to protect the rights of a minority. "The feeling of the group which believes that Sunday dancing is wrong must be considered before the enjoyment of the majority," Esther stated.

The influx of boys on campus has brought a demand for more forms of recreation and Sunday dancing would help to meet this need, argued Anne Carter, second speaker in favor of allowing dancing on Sunday.

"The minority who oppose Sunday dancing probably also object to card playing and attending movies on that day," Anne said. "Why, then, does the college forbid one activity and not the others?" she asked.

Dalia Santos and Esther Rasmussen maintained, in reply to this, that if certain students feel that activities other than dancing interfere with their spiritual growth and concept of sacredness for Sunday, they have the right to propose that these activities be forbidden.

That the basement of the Longmire building might be set aside for Sunday dancing while the student houses, dormitory rooms and other parts of the campus would provide places for students who want meditation and quiet on Sunday was the contention of B J McLeod. She then asked why students who do not believe that

Men's Meeting Held Tuesday

Compulsory Assembly Discussed by McBride

The future of compulsory assembly attendance for men, the announcement of new swimming pool hours, Flastacowo appointments, and the prohibition of firearms were discussed at the Tuesday afternoon assembly for the men.

Otis McBride, dean of men, stated on this occasion that it was "entirely up to the men" as to whether they held assembly or not. He said, "I hope you men will continue having assemblies because they tend to promote school spirit and cooperation between the student body and their officers."

John Sullivan, president of the student body, called for a motion as to whether assembly should be held next Tuesday. The motion was unanimously carried to have assembly next Tuesday. John said, "I wish you men, in the meantime, would give me your opinions on the subject. From your opinions we will decide next Monday, at the meeting of the student officers, what to do about assembly."

Recreation

New swimming pool hours were announced by Ed Williamson, director of physical education. The pool will be open for boys on Friday nights in addition to Monday and Wednesday in order to accommodate those boys who have their chemistry classes at night. There have also been improvements of the bowling alleys at Dale Mabry.

French Teacher Tells of Experiences As Interpretor for U S Army in Europe

Whether or not supplies and equipment got through to American troops in France during the Battle of the Bulge was partly dependent on the success of Henry M Kopman, new French instructor, in his job as interpreter between the French and Americans in seeking billets and cantonments for the U S forces.

For 15 months Kopman served in the army in France and Belgium. Interpreting for an occasional court-martial and in the transaction of supplies, he was there when General Patton's divisions were slowed down because of the gasoline shortage. "Had it not been for this," he said, "I believe the war with Germany would have ended sooner."

When asked about the attitude of the French people toward American soldiers, Kopman replied: "The French were glad to see us when we arrived, but their enthusiasm and friendship decreased little by little. There was fault on both sides. The French appreciated their liberation but they didn't like it when supplies were slow in getting through to them." Kopman went on to say that 95 per cent of the American soldiere conducted themselves well and even went out of the way to be kind to French children. "However, the French people judged all Americans by the other five per cent who made trouble," Kopman stated.

"During the spring of 1945 when both countries should have been rejoicing together over the victory of the war with Germany, relations hit their lowest," the new FSC faculty member continued. "On the whole, however, they cooperated with us fairly well."

"The talk about German planes bombing civilians was not propaganda," Kopman pointed out. "Often they shot at civilians in the woods or those traveling on civilian trains. Once I was traveling on a train to Paris when planes came low and shot at us. A few of us were hit and wounded, including a woman sitting next to me," Kopman said as he told of the methods tha Germans used in terrorizing the people.

A native of New Orleans, Kopman received his AB degree from Tulane University, did post graduate work at the University of Paris, and later taught at St Johns Military Academy in Wisconsin.

Kopman believes a better type of language student would result if languages were not required, but offered as electives. When asked his opinion of the best method of teaching a language, he answered: "I think the best way is to combine the oral direct method with the use of formal grammar."

Kopman has written an account of his activities and work during the war and hopes to have his book published soon.

Dr Joseph H Simons, professor of physical chemistry at Pennsylvania State College, will speak tomorrow at a joint meeting of the Tallahassee branch of the Academy of Sciences and the Florida Section of the American Chemical Society.

Simons to Be Guest Speaker

Subject of Talk Will Be Fluorine Chemistry

Dr Joseph H Simons, professor of physical chemistry at Pennsylvania State College, will be guest speaker at a joint meeting of the Tallahassee Branch of the Academy of Sciences and the Florida Section of the American Chemical Society tomorrow, November 16, at 8:15 p m in the chemistry lecture room, 307 Science building. The subject will be "Scientific and Utilitarian Values of Fluorine Chemistry."

Dr Simons, a world authority on fluorine chemistry, has spent many years teaching at the University of California, Northwestern, Pennsylvania State College and in Puerto Rico. Since 1935 he has been very active as a civilian consultant to the Chemical Warfare Service of the U S Army and has been in charge of important wartime research. Dr Simons specializes in the chemistry of fluorine, and other halogen compounds; in thermodynamics, kinetics and ion scattering.

An informal dinner will be held in honor of the speaker at the Three Torches Tea Room at 6:30 p m tomorrow. Anyone wishing to make reservations should contact Miss Isabel McKinnell, assistant professor of chemistry who is in charge of local arrangements, or Miss Mary Noka Hood not later than noon today.

Tally-U Boys Hold Sadie Hawkins Day Dance Tomorrow

A Sadie Hawkins Day dance is to be given tomorrow night in honor of all freshmen girls and Dale Mabry freshmen, with the Tally-U student body as hosts. The dance will take place in the officers' club and will last from 6 p m to 12 midnight.

Chaperones for the dance will be Miss Anne Pope, Bryan Hall counselor, Miss Dorothy Brown, Jennie Murphree Hall counselor, Miss Leila Allen, Reynolds Hall counselor, and the Misses Aber, McCoy, and Tinney, counselors from Dale Mabry. The refreshment committee includes Chris Holley and Bob Burns, Charles Campbell is in charge of entertainment, and Dave Middlebrook is chairman of the receiving committee.

"All yon freshmen and Dale Mabry gals don your blue jeans with patches, street clothes, or even bathing suits, and come to this man-snagging event tomorrow night," is the enthusiastic invitation from Dave Middlebrook, representing the Dale Mabry student body, sponsors for the dance.

YW Appoints New Members of Board

The advisory board of the Young Women's Christian Association met Monday in the "Y" room. The Personnel committee reported that Miss Daisy Parker, instructor in political science, was elected secretary; Anne Singleton appointed Forum chairman; and Georgene Pihos and Carol Ellis were appointed representatives to College Government Association assembly.

The "Y" has moved to rooms 403 and 405 in the Longmire building. A radio has been secured for use in the rooms and it is hoped that members will listen to special broadcasts of current interest, according to Joyce Petty, president of YWCA. The "Y" rooms will be open all hours of the day so that persons may use them for reading or lounging when there is not a meeting in progress.

Thomas Relates Religion To Education in Opening Religious Emphasis Speech

Informal Discussion Periods Have Covered God, Man, Sin, Christ, Future Life, The Bible; Today Will Mark Conclusion of Addresses

"The basis of liberal education," said Dr John Newton Thomas in his opening address to faculty and staff in the Longmire auditorium November 12, "lies in the religious conception of man as a person and creation of God. Without this conception, man is reduced to a biological automaton, and education to a mere fitting of this automaton to the material necessities of life."

Dr Thomas, professor of systematic theology at Union Theological Seminary in Richmond, Virginia, is the principal speaker during Religious Emphasis Week here on campus. In his opening speech he emphasized the relation of religion to education.

"There are several ways in which man can be viewed," he said. "He may be looked upon as an economic unit, as by many modern economists, or as a natural product of biological phenomena, a 'piece of animated scum.' Or he may be viewed as a son of God, infinite in capacity for good and evil, placed 'a little below the angels and crowned with glory and honor.' It is from this last conception that our belief in democracy and education arises."

"After all," he continued, "I would like to think that every child, every dirty-faced little boy, is entitled to the same opportunities to develop his understanding and reasoning. What reason would there be for such development without faith in its significance, or in man's ability to exercise it?"

"The danger in modern thought," he concluded, "is in this toppling of man from his high station. It is the general philosophy of Americans today that man is a natural phenomena, very little more important, though more complex, than animals and plants. In this philosophy is endangered our entire democratic structure."

Following this address, an informal reception for faculty and staff was held in the Longmire parlor, and an opportunity for meeting Dr Thomas afforded.

The opening speech for students was presented Tuesday evening in the Longmire auditorium at seven-thirty. Dr Thomas spoke on the nature of God.

"What do we mean," asked Dr Thomas, "when we speak of God? First of all, God is a person—a conscious entity, though non-material, with a moral sense. Secondly, He is not merely a person in our finite human sense, but an infinite person. And third, He is the perfect infinite person."

After concluding his address, Dr Thomas held an informal discussion, particularly stressing the religious concept of predestination. This topic was continued during the discussion held Wednesday following the informal tea for students in the Longmire parlor at 4:45.

Dr Thomas' talks were planned for the entire week to cover God, Man, Sin, Christ, the future life, and the Bible. The nature of sin was the subject for discussion in the meeting held Wednesday night. Informal discussion periods were planned every afternoon, Nov 12 through Nov 15, at 4:45, and an address every night at 7:30 in the Longmire auditorium.

The concluding talks will be offered today, 4:45, and tonight at 7:30. Both of these will be in the Longmire auditorium.

Collins to Sing Here Monday

Baritone Presented by Civic Music Association

Robert Hall Collins, baritone, will present a concert at the Leon high school auditorium Monday night at 8:15. Mr Collins is the second artist to appear in Tallahassee this year under the auspices of the Tallahassee Civic Music association.

Among the selections on the program for Monday night are "Je Suis Trahi" from Roland by Lully; "Automne" by Faure; "Der Ton" by Marx; and "Eri tn che Macchiavi" from Un Ballo in Maschero.

Robert Payson Hill, Mr Collins' accompanist, will play Griffes' "An Old Song Resung," Williams' "Silent Noon," Golde's "O Beauty, Passing Beauty," and Malotte's "Upstream."

A quirk of fate brought the baritone into the concert world. While pursuing his art studies in San Francisco, his voice was heard by August Heckshar who immediately arranged an interview for Mr Collins with John Charles Thomas. Since then Mr Collins has been alternating between singing on Broadway in the production "The Boys from Syracuse" and on the radio. This season marks Mr Collins' second national concert tour.

The association plans to present Benno Rabinoff, violinist, February 25, 1947, and Eugene Goossenns conducting the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra, March 25.

Dale Mabry Field Opens Post Office

670 Boxes to Accommodate Male Students and Faculty

"Post office boxes should be ready for the boys at Dale Mabry today or tomorrow," Mrs Margaret Sessions, who is in charge of the new post office, announced this week.

There are to be 670 boxes, the first 160 to be used by faculty members and the remaining 510 by students. For the past few days it has been necessary for students to call for their mail at one of the post office windows.

In order to relieve the rushed condition the post office has employed Miss Winifred Stoutamire, clerk, and Ed Morgan, student assistant, in addition to Mrs Sessions.

The new post office, which is owned and operated by the University of Florida, opened for business last Wednesday morning. Located in the Administration building at the base, it is under the supervision of W H Mays, who is also manager of the post office at Florida State College.

Stamp and mail windows at the post office are open from 9 until 12 in the morning and from 1 until 5 in the afternoon. Students may purchase stamps and money orders, send air mail and registered letters and insure parcels. Packages will also be handled soon. At present te post office is handling Dale Mabry laundry and dry cleaning, but this duty will be transferred to the bookstore when it opens.

Students are urged to include their box number on return addresses to avoid delay in delivery.

Bellamy to Speak

Dr Raymond Bellamy, professor of sociology, is scheduled to speak on the subject, "The Educational Situation in Florida" at a banquet to be held this evening by the Florida State College alumnae of St Petersburg. The banquet will be at the Pennsylvania hotel in St Petersburg.

Dr Bellamy is planning to go from St Petersburg to Miami for a visit and conference with Mr and Mrs John Victor Carter, the donors of the FSC Peruvian Museum. The Carters are coming from the Panama Canal Zone for a week's visit in Miami.

Modern Liberalism To Be Panel Topic

Advanced students in political science are invited to hear a discusion of "Modern Liberalism" led by Dr Lucretia Ilsley, associate professor of political science, and Lorace E Catterson, instructor in political science, next Tuesday at the home of Dr Marian Irish.

This discussion will follow the pattern panel "Christians of the Twentieth Century" given by Dr John Hottowell of Duke University at the political science convention recently held in Knoxville, Tennessee, which faculty members of the political science department attended.

On Tuesday November 19 at 4:30 p m Mr Catterson will give a report on the convention in the Longmire auditorium Another address sponsored by the political science department will be "The Florida Institute of Government" by Bryan Willis, state auditor, which will be presented Wednesday afternoon at 4:30, also in the Longmire auditorium.

Local AAUP to Hold Meeting Thursday

Business Will Consist of Planning Year's Activities

The second meeting of the year for the local chapter of the American Association of University Professors will be held Thursday at 8 p m in the clubroom of the Longmire building. The purpose of this meeting will be to plan activities for the coming year, and all new members are asked to attend, said Mrs Margaret Bristol, president of the local chapter.

A person is eligible for election to active membership if he holds a position of teaching or research with the rank of instructor or higher in an institution on the association's eligible list. His work must consist of at least half-time teaching or research for a stipulated period of time.

The purposes of the association are to bring about more effective cooperation among the members of the profession in the interests of higher education and research in America, to promote discussion of problems relating to education in the institutions of higher learning, to create means for the expression of public opinion of the body of college and university teachers, to make collective action possible, and to maintain and advance the ideals and standards of the profession.

Attend Conference

Miss Sara Krentzman, director of the curriculum laboratory, and Miss Agnes Gregory, instructor in library science, are attending a Library Planning Conference this week in Nashville, Tennessee.

The meeting is being held at the Peabody College and representatives from library schools all over the South and library superintendents of the southern states will make up the conference.

One of the main issues to be discussed will be changes in the school curricula. The meeting started Tuesday, November 12, and will last through Wednesday, November 20.

Campus Cupido Cares for College Crypts; Mac Moves Musty Manuscripts in Manor

By CATHARINE NOLLMAN

His name is Alphonso Harold McFadden, but he is known to everyone simply as Mac. "I like the name Mac", he said to me, "because it is short." Yes, short like he is himself—four feet eleven inches of black intelligence.

The first time I saw him I thought of Edna Ferber's "Cupido". He had the face of a man in his thirties, but when he passed me as I stood at the desk I could see that his head would just about reach my shoulder. He had short black hair and a very man-size mustache. His brown eyes were large and bright. For three years I had watched him moving on soft catlike feet about the library, his presence generally becoming known by the squeaking sound of the windows as he opened or closed them. Then one day I met him. Miss Florence Bethea, assistant head librarian at the library of Florida State College, called him and told him that I would like to talk with him.

We went into the musty storeroom to talk. Mac pulled up a desk chair for me and another for himself. I noticed that when he sat back in the chair his feet did not touch the floor. His clothes were clean and neat though a little wrinkled. He had on a short-sleeved blue shirt which was neatly buttoned at the throat, light colored trousers and dark shoes and socks. He leaned forward earnestly and began to talk to me in well-spoken English. He is a native Floridian having been born near Panama City in Bay county. After he left college he worked for the Middle Florida Ice co for six years before coming to the library on the FSC campus.

Mac's eyes shown with pleasure when I asked him about his college education. In 1934 he graduated from the Florida Agricultural and Mechanical college at Tallahassee. He majored in agriculture and is qualified to teach chemistry and English. Only recently he was offered a position teaching in DeFuniak Springs, but he prefers his job at the library where he has worked winter and summer for the past five years.

I had been told by some girls that Mac was working on his master's degree so I asked him if he were planning to go back to college. He flashed an even row of shining white teeth, sat up straighter in his chair, and said emphatically, "I do." He claims that he wants to study more because he is interested in brushing up on his agricultural courses. "But if in the course of study I run up on another degree, I wouldn't mind", he said as he slightly raised one eyebrow. Mac had been using his right hand to gesticulate as he talked. Now he reached to the floor and, picking up one of several small pieces of paper that were lying there, began to fold it in orderly rectangles

Mac explained that he stays in Tallahassee because his father is old and dependent upon him. His house is just a few blocks from the A and M college. Here his father spends most of the day sitting on the porch. "He wouldn't be happy anywhere else", explains Mac. With them alternately live Mac's two sisters who are teachers They take turns living at the house and doing the cooking for Mac and his father. Mac also has one brother who is working on his master's degree at Ohio State university. He was a lieutenant in the field artillery during the war and is, incidentally, taller than Mac.

Mac did not go into service because of his height, although he appeared several times before the local board whose members simply could not believe that a man could be that short.

I looked at the shelves which surrounded us on three sides and framed my next question. "Yes," he replied, "I like to read", and then sensing my thought, "but I don't have much time to do any reading around here. The hours are long, but I like it." In answer to my question as to just what his job is he grinned broadly and drawled, "I'm Jack-of-all-trades. If nobody else wants to do the job I'll do it. For three years I've watched him doing odd jobs, darting into the library with a shoulder load of mail, newspapers and magazines, or marching around closing windows and holding the pole straight up beside his shoulder like a knight-errant with his lance. Others who work with him say that he has the strength of two ordinary sized men.

Mac has many friends. He was delighted when I asked him what his hobbies were and is quite proud of his card collection which contains cards that his friends have sent him from all parts of the world. Another way he has of keeping up with his friends is a scrapbook. In it he keeps newspaper or magazine clippings about, or written by, his friends.

When it comes to animals Mac's love is horses. He doesn't have any now because of the difficulty in obtaining feed, but he plans to have in the future not only horses but turkeys, pigs, and chickens.

I find that when I speak of Mac to other people, girls and teachers on the campus, they usually smile. Perhaps they think as I do of Edna Ferber's Cupido, and then make some complimentary remark. Many of those for whom he works feel as Miss Bethea did when she said to me, "I don't know what we'd do without him in the library."

How Did We Vote?

On the first Tuesday in November, 1946, the American people went to the polls for mid-term elections. The stake in the game this time was control of the House of Representatives. And the result is a fairly indicative sign of how the forthcoming presidential primaries will go. In the November issue of the Atlantic Monthly, Arthur M Schlesinger, Jr. associate professor of history at Harvard, discusses the approaching elections in an article entitled "How Will We Vote." It is interesting to see how his predictions have been working out.

Mr Schlesinger begins by commending our two-party system. He says that the maintenance of a two-party system, which is indispensable to the workings of a free society, is the philosophy of government upon which we rest. And it is in opposition to the philosophy of government championed by Mr Molotov. While we as a nation watch with anxious scrutiny the elections of foreign countries and clamor for them to be free, we at home are preparing for our first presidential election since Roosevelt left the stage after 12 years. Mr Schlesinger says that wars have always tended to product administrations characterized by moral indolence and indulged by a people undone by compulsion toward taking it easy. It was his belief that the people were approaching the November elections with a deep and widespread apathy.

He cites as some of the causes for this apathy the depression, followed by the New Deal, and then the war. Then Mr Schlesinger goes on in his article to show how the Republicans statistically stood a chance of winning the 26 seats necessary to give them control in the House. Recent years show that Democratic votes usually fall off in mid-elections while the Republicans tend to vote steadily. The author said that counting on a decline in the Democratic voting the 30 districts of the Union which are most evenly balanced would give the Republicans control of the House.

The returns from the Tuesday elections show that the Republicans have succeeded. With this Republican victory in mind the public attention shifts to the presidential primaries of 1948, which are yet to come.

Bloc Influence

Mr Schlesinger believes that economic, racial, or religious blocs do not generally influence the voters as much as their own personal judgment or their pocketbooks. However, the labor blocs carry considerable influence and the nationality blocs are to be considered. Among the foreign nationality groups the ones which make the greatest political clamor are the Polish societies. There are about three million persons of Polish origin in the U S. This group voting as a unit could have considerable impact. It is traditionally Democratic. During the 1944 elections the Republican strategists tried to detach the Polish bloc from Roosevelt by playing upon the evident incompatibility between the Atlantic Charter and the designs of the USSR on Poland. However, says the author, the Poles in the long run voted on terms of American issues rather than their old homeland. Mr Schlesinger predicts that there will be little prospect of any bloc desertion by the Poles from the Democrats in the coming elections.

The Italian vote is more formidable. There are 4½ million persons of Italian stock in the U S The proposed peace terms for Italy are a great cause for dissatisfaction among Italian-Americans, but Mr Schlesinger still does not believe that they will change many votes.

The Germans constitute the largest single foreign-nationality group. These were turned against the Administration in 1942 and have remained that way. Nevertheless James Reston of the New York Times has recently reported that the second, third, and fourth generations are voting their pocketbooks, not their origins.

On the whole Mr Schlesinger reports that recent elections tend to show that the Republican party is becoming more conservative and the Democratic more liberal. What we have done this week and what we will do in the coming elections will present to much of the world an exhibition and testing of democracy in action.

Former WAC Lieutenant Is Now "Chow Chief" at DM

"Look, my piece of chicken doesn't have any feathers on it!" exclaimed one Dale Mabry ex-GI. "And my ice cream doesn't taste like gravy either," marvelled his companion. "The food's good" they both chorused.

The speakers of these and other similar phrases will be surprised to learn that these meals are supervised by former WAC 1st Lieutenant Edith Manford, head dietition at the Dale Mabry cafeteria. Miss Manford did dietary work for thirty months in the army, twenty-five of which were spent in the European Theater of Operations.

The ex-WAC officer is well-experienced in the preparation of balanced meals. She graduated from Florida State College in 1937 and did post graduate work at Indiana University. Later she was with the University of Florida dietary staff and with Johns Hopkins in Baltimore, Maryland.

Miss Manford entered the army in June, 1943, at Fort Jackson, South Carolina. After a week and a half she was called to headquarters and asked if she had requested a transfer. "What is a transfer?" asked the new soldier. For an answer she was sent to Fort Bragg, North Carolina, to join a hospital unit that was being activated for overseas shipment. The unit was sent to Camp Kilmer, New Jersey, where preparations for embarkation were made. On September 12 the hospital group sailed for New York harbor aboard the liner Mauretania.

The unit arrived in Liverpool, England, on September 19 and immediately set up a new hospital on the estate if the Marquis of Bath, near Bath and Warminister, Wilshire County. About six months later the unit was given three weeks training for D-Day preparations and was sent to a new area twenty miles from the English Channel coast. Here the outfit was under constant danger from German V-2 rockets and bombing raids.

Following D-Day the harbor of Brest fell to the American forces, leaving many German prisoner patients to be fed. "They came in looking like dehydrated toothpicks but went out looking like lister bags," said Miss Manford.

After the job was completed at Brest Miss Manford was sent to a hospital that was caring for patients in the Lorraine district. She was in this unit a short time before being sent to the United States for rest in St Augustine and discharged in December of 1945.

Two capable assistants help Miss Manford with the work at Dale Mabry, Mrs Pauline Edwards of Plant City, who spent nine months as a Red Cross worker setting up canteens in the Manila area, and Miss Barbara Wheelock from Miami. Miss Wheelock graduated from FSC in 1945 and is a member of the American Dietitics Association.

Workshop Members Hold First Meeting

Committees Set Up to Be Under Moore's Direction

Students selected for the Radio Workshop by the radio speech class, under the direction of Miss Kemper M Moore, met together for the first time Wednesday night.

Chosen to work on the production committee are Lois Watkins, Betty Shirley and Claire St John. Joyce Harper was selected for sound effects; Lou Shonter, Lucius Daniel and Lemoyne Cash, script committee; Newton Sullivan, Jana Arnold, Gloria Wells, Peggy Futch, Jack Madigan, Jackie Allen, Bet Cargill and Kay Harrison, dramatics.

The radio speech class announces that more auditions will be held from time to time to fill vacancies which may occur. The class also invites members of the journalism and English classes to submit scripts to the script committee, which is headed by Patricia Yates.

No radio shows will be planned by the group until they get better organized.

Firearms

James Carr, director of housing for the University of Florida branch, made the announcement that firing would not be permitted on the base and all firearms should be turned in to the business offics. He also remarked on the slovenliness of the rooms in barracks 700, 701 and 606. He said, "If you men want to live in pig sties we will see if it can be arranged."

The entertainment for the afternoon was presented by a group of Delta Zeta girls. The skit was presented as a radio program Those participating in the program were Paula Teagarden, who sang "Night and Day" and "My Hero"; Martha Page who gave a reading entitled "A Day at the Country Club". Joe Long, accompanied by Ruth Wilkes, sang "That Man I Love" and Gloria King acted as announcer.

Sally Caldwell, FSC Freshman, Tells What It's Like to Be a Governor's Daughter

By THERESA SELLERS

"Though I'm accustomed to my father's participation in politics, being a governor's daughter is an unusual situation. I'm enjoying it thoroughly, however," says Sally Caldwell, Governor Caldwell's elder daughter, who is attending Florida State College as a freshman.

She has toured Florida and attended governors' conferences and centennials in Louisiana, Oklahoma and Texas. "I was greatly impressed by the University of Texas, but the thing that really amazed me was the oil well in the back of the governor's mansion in Oklahoma," Sally said when asked about her impressions of these states.

"I've met many interesting people while traveling, and not a few were surprised when they learned I was the governor's daughter," she remarked. Sally lived in Washington when her father was a congressman, but for the past five years she has lived here in Tallahassee where she attended Leon high school. "In my childhood days," Sally remembers, "I lived in Milton but I really considered Tally my home"

FSC, understandably enough, is not new to her, as she has often attended Artist Series, loafed in the soda shop, or played tennis here with her friends. When asked how she liked the campus Sally replied, "I'm having a wonderful time. The food is delicious, much better than I had expected."

The governor's daughter, a tall brown-eyed girl with matching long brown hair, is taking the required freshman curricula with journalism as her elective. "I'm majoring in journalism because I feel that it will give me a well-rounded education," was her reply to a question regarding her particular field of interest. "I've never really enjoyed studying before, but I am enjoying it now because I am taking courses which I like. I feel that there's some reason for studying."

Sally feels her social responsibility and enjoys the functions at the mansion where she's privileged and glad to entertain. She, her sister, her mother and occasionally the governor, when he feels he can take time off for a hunt with his setters, spend quite some time on their farm which is located a few miles out of Tallahassee. Here Sally spends much of her time horseback riding, though elsewhere she enjoys social dancing (no jitterbugging for her), ping pong and most other sports. Dogs, too, rank high with her, "especially the Scottie at the mansion"

Sally's younger sister Susan plans to enter FSC next year.

Male Eye View

Traditions of FSC

There has been some base rumor around the campus that the coming of the men to Florida State College has been breaking down the traditions which are such a valuable part of college life here. Nothing could be further from the truth.

Actually, we have brought many new traditions to this college, traditions which in time will be among the most important here. Take, for instance, the buses which run between the campus and Dale Mabry. These buses are one of the oldest traditions in Tallahassee. They are the only buses now in operation in the United States which were built before the invention of round wheels.

Then there is the tradition connected with the road which these buses take out to the Base. This is an old Indian trail, one of the first roads to pass through what is now Tallahassee, and it has been preserved all through the years in its original condition. . .

• • • •

By next year we can hope to see a completely new set of traditions springing up on this campus. One of them will undoubtedly be based on the fact that Dale Mabry students are always late to class . . . we will probably see the day when, if a student comes into class half an hour late, he can just tell his teacher that he lives at Dale Mabry, and he was just keeping the traditions of the college.

Founding Fathers

Work on the Constitution Committee has already begun, but plans are still in the tentative stage. The suggestion of "The Student Body Government" as a name for the proposed legislative body has been made.

Information received from the Committee is that the constitution will be based on the Constitution of the United States and similar documents.

One thing which may come up before the committee is the establishment of a judicial branch of the student government; that is, an Honor Court to take care of those students accused of cheating or other like offenses. Such an institution would have the advantage of placing those guilty of offenses against their fellow students under the judgment of the students, which is where they belong. However, careful consideration should be given to the method of selection of the student judges by a definitely democratic method, since there is a danger of this court being constituted of only those students who are controlled more by faculty rather than student opinions.

Lounge Lizards Department

A new feature for the men on the campus will be the men's lounge to be situated in the Longmire building. Since the room to be used has been used as the office of the Flambeau, this column believes that in tribute to the college newspaper the lounge should be called the Red Room. . . .

School Spirit

The strongest point in favor of continued weekly assemblies seems to be that they are instrumental in increasing school spirit. The question about this is whether anything into which students have to be forced against their will could possibly help create this spirit. It seems logical to believe that such coercion would have the opposite effect.

The position of the majority of the student body on this question has not yet been established, but those students to whom the writers of this column have spoken have been unanimously against the assemblies.

This point can only be cleared up, however, by seeing the final results of the petition now being circulated among the men in regard to continued assemblies. If the majority of the men sign this petition for fewer or completely eliminated assemblies, it should be obvious that these assemblies cannot foster school spirit. If they refuse to sign, the proponents of the assemblies have an excellent point in their favor.

Newman Club Initiates

Newman club will hold initiation on November 24 at 8 a m Mass in Blessed Sacrament church to be followed by a coffee that evening.

The Catholic Woman's club gave a reception and tea for Newman club members at the rectory on November 3.

Under the direction of Dot Brinkman, a choir of 20 members has been formed to sing at 10 30 Mass. The club is again taking an active part in intramurals with Tot Carter as athletic manager. The Newmanites have also organized a nursery committee which takes care of children while parents are attending 9:30 or 10:30 Mass.

Gloria Basila, Newman club representative, and members of the Catholic Woman's guild went to St Augustine recently to make plans for a Catholic student house.

Alpha Lamba Delta Holds Annual Party

This year's members of Alpha Lambda Delta, freshman honorary, gave a party last night for those members of the year before at the home of Dr Dorothy L Hoffman, sponsor of the club. The party was an informal wiener roast and the guests were provided transportation by a special bus there. Dr Venila L Shores, also a sponsor, was present.

In charge of invitations was Dorothy Martin; refreshments, Margery Norris.

With the Odd-Even games coming up next Saturday, h Odds and Evens are working hard to get in top form r class games which begin Monday. Your reporter believes at from the results of these class games an idea of how BIG GAMES will turn out can be secured.

The class games should prove exciting for from all prac- e games which have been held this year, the hockey and ccer teams were pretty evenly matched. On Monday two reen" but scrappy freshmen teams will take the field to ttle with experienced sophomores. I'll not venture a guess to the results but this reporter won't be surprised if some sets are scored. Let's see all you Odds and Evens out to eer your side on to victory.

Class Games Begin Monday Afternoon

Hockey and Soccer Games Feature Class Events

The Odd-Even sports program has been shifted due to the Thanksgiving holidays, according to B J Gardiner, president of the Women's Recreation association.

The Odd-Even hockey and soccer games will be held Saturday afternoon, November 23 on the athletic field. The soccer game will begin at 2 o'clock and the hockey game will start about 3:30.

The class games will be played off from 5 to 6 o'clock next Monday and Tuesday. On Monday afternoon the freshman teams will play the sophomore teams and on Tuesday the junior teams will play the senior teams.

All the sports leaders report that their teams have been working hard and are in fine shape for the big games.

Betty said that there would be no color rush this quarter but that perhaps it would be held next quarter in connection with the homecoming weekend which is planned for that time.

Color Rush

The traditional color rush usually held Thanksgiving morning will be postponed until the morning of the second day of the volleyball and basketball games which will be played second quarter. Practices for the rush will be held four weeks ahead of games.

Marion Looby, co-chairman for color rush, asks that those who came out for it before come out again. The dates will be announced later.

FSC Professor Is Helping Collier's Edit Encyclopedia

"I am helping to edit an eight million word encyclopedia for Collier's" answered Dr Louis Shores, part-time director of library training and service at Florida State College. "It would not be exaggerating to say eight million words." continued Dr Shores. "The new Collier's encyclopedia is to replace the old National Collier's encyclopedia."

"Dr Louis Shores left last Monday night to continue his work in New York on Collier's encyclopedia after working furiously over the weekend with the library department," said Dean Otis McBride, manager for Dr Shores. "By the end of spring Dr Shores should be finished with his work on the encyclopedia and should be here at least by the summer session," continued Dean McBride.

Receiving his BS in Library Science at Columbia university in 1928 and his Ph D at George Peabody college in 1934, Dr Shores was director of the Library School at Peabody from 1933 until 1942 when he entered the Army Air Corps. He served as an Air Corps communications officer in the China-Burma-India theatre. After his discharge from the AAF in May, 1946, Dr Shores was director of the Library School at Peabody until June 15, 1946, when he became a member of the Crowell-Collier staff to edit the new encyclopedia.

In 1935, Dr Louis Shores wrote "Origins of the American College Library 1638-1800"; in 1936, "Bibliographies and Summaries in Education"; in 1937, "Basic Reference Books," second edition; and articles for Library Journal, Educational Forum, School and Society and New York Herald-Tribune books.

Reclaim Art Work

Art work from last year's art classes will be left on the cabinets outside room 312 Westcott for one more week. Students who wish their work back should get it before then or it will be thrown away.

Football Holds Interest; Bowling Alleys Open For Use

In an intramural football game played yesterday afternoon Barracks 516 ran roughshod over Barracks 515 by a 23-0 score as George Dickie, Palmetto; Slick Edwards, Port St Joe, and Rufe Jefferson, Tampa combined to run and pass 516 to their second consecutive win. Ed Dilsaver, St Augustine and Henry Daniels, Tampa also were outstanding on the offense.

Scoring touchdowns for 516 were Daniels on a short pass from Dickie, Bob Cooksey on a pass from Edwards and Dickie on an end around in the final half from seven yards out. An Edwards pass to Dilsaver after the first touchdown gave 516 their only extra point. Dilsaver and Daniels are credited with a safety each as both trapped Jim Kinsey behind the goal once.

Kinsey bore the brunt of the 515 attack for the losers.

The football schedule for next week will find Barracks 606 meeting Upper 700 on Monday, Barracks 505 clashing with Upper 701 on Wednesday, and Barracks 630 tangling with Lower 701 Thursday. All games are to start at 5 o'clock.

Advancing last week through a forfeit was Barracks 701 Lower when 644 failed to show up for their scheduled game. The game yesterday was the first game of the quarterfinals.

The basketball front is idle, but nightly practices are still being held in Dale Mabry gym. A last minute wire from the Gainesville Kappa Sigs caused cancellation of a scheduled game with the university fraternity last Friday night.

The Dale Mabry bowling alleys are now open to the public with games at 13 cents per line. The alleys have just been completed, according to manager Sam Boggs, and are going to be open from five until ten o'clock during weekdays and from three o'clock Sunday afternoon until ten. There are six alleys in use and students and faculty are invited to indulge in the pastime of thousands.

Coach Williamson also announced that handball courts are now open in the Dale Mabry gym for use and stated that hours to be put into effect will be from three p m on weekdays and equipment may be checked out on Saturdays for weekend use.

Miss Hilda Tinney, student director at the Dale Mabry officer's club, will issue equipment to any students desiring to check out shuffleboard equipment. Four sets have been furnished and the courts are located immediately in the rear of the officers' club.

Coach Williamson is expecting ping pong tables to arrive soon and plans to put four in the officers' club and four in the Dale Mabry gym for the use of the students and their friends.

College Publicity Manager Must Know All; Job Incudes Answering Varied Requests

Miss Betty Ann Taylor riffled through the papers on her desk. "So you want to know what a publicity manager does," she said, smiling. "Well, here I have a letter from Life magazine asking about Florida State College's Inca relics, and a request from Southern Railway for pictures of FSC. You see, it's interesting work."

Besides answering requests, the duties of Miss Taylor and her staff include the sending of news releases to 198 newspapers and radio stations.

Most of the information now sent out is for publication within the state, but Miss Taylor, who has been head of the department for the past three weeks, plans a more widespread publicity program in the future. "A suggestion has even been made," she said, "for an international exchange of students, but that is not in my hands."

A graduate of FSC, the young publicity manager was editor of the Flambeau in '41 and '42. She holds a high opinion of this college and its institutions, and enjoyed her Flambeau work especially.

After graduation, she accepted a position as a postal censor in Miami. About this work she said, "It was great fun, but even reading love letters can get very dull."

So she joined the WAVES and became a cable censor. Much of her work was in Washington, where she wrote citations. Laughing gayly, she told of the time a batch of citations was sent back from the Pacific because they did not adhere closely enough to the rigid form laid down by the Navy for such writings. "Citation writing isn't very original," was her succinct comment.

While in the Navy, she toured the Queen Mary as it lay in dry dock in New Jersey. It was then being used as a troop ship.

The hobby Miss Taylor enjoys most is art, especially working with water colors. She has a variety of interests, however. In her college days she was a student assistant in botany.

A resident of Tallahassee, the talented publicity department head took over her duties three weeks ago. Her predecessor was Miss Bertha Bloodworth.

Pi Beta Phi Captures Tennis Intramurals Crown

Basketball practices have been held this week, but those who have been attending Religious Emphasis Week functions will not be required to have their two practice points and may play in the basketball intramurals beginning Monday, announced Ann Stambaugh, intramurals manager.

Pi Beta Phi, represented by Natalie Parramore, won the tennis singles finals over Kappa Alpha Theta's Connie Savage. The scores for the match were 6-4 and 12-10.

Betty Kennedy and Olive Fleming playing for Pi Beta Phi defeated Magnolia Hall's Evelyn Breedlove and Ann Holloway 11-9, 6-6, in the semi-finals for the doubles championship. Also playing in the semi-finals run-off were the Chi Omegas, represented by Georgia Jaeckel and Maggie Flynn, who were defeated by Lucy Brown and B J Singleton playing for Kappa Alpha Theta with a score of 10-8 and 6-3.

In the doubles finals the champions are the Pi Beta Phis, who defeated the Chi Omega team 6-3 and 6-1.

Students Visit State Institutions

Classes in clinical psychology, social work, and juvenile delinquency spent yesterday on an observation field trip to the Florida Industrial School for boys at Marianna, and the State Mental Hospital at Chattahoochee.

The students were conducted on tours through both institutions and clinics were held immediately following these tours, at which time inmates and patients of the school and hospital respectively were interviewed by supervisors in the presence of the students and teachers.

Among faculty members present on the field trip were Dr Hugh L Waskom of the psychology department, and Mrs Margaret C Bristol, Mr T H Monahan and Dr Coyle E Moore of the sociology department.

Cashin' In

Though the University of Florida has as yet to record its first win of the 1946 football season, Saturday will offer the Gators an excellent chance to halt their current six-game losing streak when they meet the Villanova Tigers, who have done no better than break even in eight games this Fall.

A check of the two teams in their games with the Miami Hurricanes shows them to be evenly matched. Miami defeated Florida 20-13 and two weeks later subdued Villanova 26-21.

The Georgia Bulldogs had more than enough of the Gators during the first half of their game at Jacksonville last Saturday, Florida leading at intermission, 7-6 Only during the final two periods could the Bulldogs and Charlie Trippi make any marked headway in the direction of the Florida goal, finally wearing the Gators out and winning 33-14.

Army—Notre Dame

Whereas the Georgia-Florida game received much interest from fans in Florida, it was the Army-Notre Dame struggle al New York that provided most of the national gridiron interest. The only thing this game proved, however, was that the Cadets and Irish are more evenly matched than the grid prognosticators had realized.

Arnold Tucker, great Army field general, and John Lujack, Fighting Irish quarterback, lived up to all advance notices as they directed their respective teams in a scoreless duel. Time and again Tucker's pass interceptions and Lujack's alertness saved their teams from such embarrassment. Tucker also made the longest run of the day, a jaunt of 30 yards on the last play of the first half.

National Ranking

The Associated Press sports writers, numbering 144, ranked the nations top ten football powers in the following order: Army, Notre Dame, Georgia, UCLA, Pennsylvania, Texas, Georgia Tech, Tennessee, Illinois and Michigan.

Georgia and UCLA are the only unbeaten, untied teams in the group. Rice, in fifth place a week ago, dropped out of the select group after being upset by Arkansas, 7-0. Pennsylvania climbed from ninth to fifth place by routing Columbia 41-6. The contest between the Quakers and Army this week could provide an astounding upset since the Cadets will be down after their grueling game with Notre Dame and the Pennsylvania eleven will be out to regain a little of the prestige which she lost by her defeat at the hands of Princeton two weeks ago.

Much Chatter

Army's gridiron machine may receive a bid to play in the Rose Bowl game since the War Department has given the green light leaving the acceptance of a bowl bid up to Major General Maxwell D Taylor, Superintendent of the U S Military Academy. . . .

The Big Nine Conference has voted 7-2 to form an agreement with the Pacific Coast Conference to the effect that over the next few years the champions of the two conferences would meet in the Rose Bowl . . . this agreement would exclude such Pasadena aspirants as Georgia and previously mentioned Army. . . .

Should the University af Miami defeat Louisiana State University tonight the Hurricanes would stand a better than even chance of receiving their second consecutive Orange Bowl bid and perhaps even a nod from the Sugar Bowl . . . the Hurricanes have lost only one game—to North Carolina—while winning six. Last week they defeated Miami af Ohio 20-17. . . .

Georgia appears certain to go undefeated this year. However, tha Georgia Tech-Georgia struggle late in November looms as a sterling attraction: one in which both teams will be "out to solve the meat shortage". . .

Counting the game with Villanova, the Florida Gators have just three more chances to register a victory during the 1946 grid campaign. Auburn and NC State are still on the menu.

Games this week

Outstanding games of the week include: Northwestern-Notra Dame, Ohio State-Illinois, Army-Pennsylvania, Tennessee-Boston College, Southern Methodist-Arkansas and Tulane-Georgia Tech.

Though the writer only failed on three of fifteen predictions in his last column two weeks ago, one, and only one will be made this week: Florida will beat Villanova.

SPIRIT OF THE WEEK

and then there were classes...

● THE PRO . . .

The Monday night forum brought out two points to which those opposing Sunday dancing hung tenaciously—that laws are made to protect minorities, and that dancing on Sunday would disturb the sacredness of the Sabbath for those who wished to observe it as a day of worship and rest.

Foremost among the reasons of those who favored Sunday dancing was the argument that facilities for employing leisure time have not been enlarged and improved to meet the demands of an expanded student body. It was pointed out that adequate recreational facilities in town and on the campus were limited even before the recent expansion.

It was also argued that outside of campus it is personal discretion which decides for an individual whether or not he dances Sunday—or any other day—and that dancing is a wholesome, socially-recognized form of recreation.

Many questions were asked. Questions such as:

(1) Is it not as fair for the majority to ask the minority to give them (the majority) the privilege of Sunday dancing as it is for the minority to ask the majority to forego that pleasure that they might observe the Sabbath with the knowledge that dancing was not being indulged in on campus?

(2) Since there are student houses on campus where the various religious groups may observe the Sabbath in quiet and meditation and which are utilized by those who wish to use them, why can there be no designated place on campus, ie, the Longmire recreation room, for those who wish to dance?

(3) If the people who do not wish to dance on Sunday are not forced to do so, why should those who do wish to dance be kept forcibly from doing so?

These questions, along with many others, all met with the same answer—"Dancing should not be allowed because it disturbs the Sabbath for those who oppose dancing."

This answer is not a valid, logical reply to the questions it supposedly answered. And with the statement as the pivotal point, the forum went in nothing but circles.

Since this is a ruling that affects each individual on campus—be he pro or con dancing—it seems that the general concensus of campus opinion on the matter is necessary. It would seem that a student poll would be the method for this, asking such questions as: Is Sunday dancing against your religious beliefs? Would the knowledge that some people on campus are dancing keep you from a full observance of the Sabbath? Although Sunday dancing would annoy some people, are you in favor of it to improve Sunday recreation? During church? During the hours when church is not in session?

The answers to those questions would indicate the reaction of the majority of the student body. With such a poll as a basis for discussion, some sort of constructive adjustment can be made, either in changing the rule or in maintaining it.

● ....AND THE CON

"Dancing is not permitted on Sunday" says our "gold" book on page 49. And is this ruling fair? We have heard cries of protest against this restriction by girls who see no reason why they should not be permitted to dance on Sunday if they so desire. But many questions have arisen in our minds as the pros and cons of the issue have been faced.

The college, by permitting dancing on campus on Sunday would be putting its official sanction upon "Sunday dancing." Has our college the statistics to prove that the taxpaying citizens of the state of Florida wish the administrators of its state college to put their official sanction on Sunday dancing? Is it the majority of students in this college who desire to dance on Sunday, or is this group perhaps smaller than we have been led to believe? Is it posible that many who would vote to permit Sunday dancing would be voting to give the privilege to those who want it rather than demanding the privilege for themselves?

Sabbath observance is a basic issue. It has been a fundamental of law as long as laws have existed. There are two general grounds for believing that something is right morally—(1) what society through the ages has found to be true and (2) what God has set forth as true. Sabbath observance obviously stands the test on both grounds so it follows that we can not very well place "Sabbath observance" on trial. (Nor can we, on the other hand, place "dancing" on trial in this issue since it is sanctioned on the other six days of the week).

It must be, then, that those who object to Sunday dancing object because they feel it is the right of even a minority to have what is held sacred to it protected above the pleasure of the majority. Just as the noise outside a church building is "kept down" during a church service (not because noise-making is sinful in itself, but because worship of the few would seem more important than the amusement of those outside), just so they feel that Sunday should be protected from activities that detract from its air of reverence; that Sunday is to the rest of the week, what the church is to the space around it—something to be protected for those who desire its benefits.

But what right, you say, does the group who wish their Sunday unmarred have to ask that the rest of us, who do not believe as they do, give up our pleasure when we can not see how we disturb their Sabbath? Perhaps this may show why they oppose it so strongly—it is a principle of education that something which we see constantly becomes a part of us. Perhaps those who oppose Sunday dancing feel that were they constantly exposed to Sunday dancing on their campus—which is, after all our college home and where each of us has a right to spend his or her Sunday—that in such a case, Sunday dancing would become less and less obnoxious to them until they would be dragged into re-writing one of the commandments to read (as they feel many of us have already re-written it)

"Remember the Sabbath to keep it amusing.
Six days hast thou labored and done thy works.
But the seventh day is the Sabbath of Fun, thy god.
In it thou shalt dance, play and catch up on all back work."

ESTHER RASMUSSEN.

● OUR EVERYDAY WEAPON

"There is an important distinction between thoughts and ideas," writes Herman Kantorowicz, professor at the University of Berlin. "Men possess thoughts, but ideas possess men."

The distinction between the two words in themselves is not so important as the probable meaning in back of the distinction. In the light of this statement the whole intellectual realm seems to fall into two phases.

The rational or reasoning phase occurs when men possess thoughts and can put these thoughts to use in clarifying and subjecting to order their worlds and problems which confront them.

The other phase, the irrational or emotional side, occurs when big sweeping ideas like racism, individualism, Nazism, communism, and democracy are in possession of men.

Everyday on this campus, as everywhere, we are confronted with both phases. For one thing, ideas are, as conditions, ever changing; what is a rational thought today may, with the advent of new evidence and information, be an irrational idea tomorrow.

We may meet one phase more than we meet the other; we may personally recognize the two phases, accepting the one and rejecting the other. But the fact is that both phases remain and our contact and resultant acceptance or rejection are personal matters in which we close our minds to the one which is less appealing. It does not get rid of the supposed undesirable phase.

Our job is to recognize these two phases, to know that they exist despite our thoughts or ideas on the subject, and to attempt to make use of this knowledge.

One of the strongest weapons in the world today is ever growing and developing, as are rocket ships and atomic power.

Ideas are weapons, too.

● 'TIL THEN

Because of the recent voting on Thanksgiving holidays, some people, and a precious few, I believe, are of the opinion that Odd-Even spirit and traditions are dead and that there is no need for spirit any longer. Fortunately, I cannot agree that Odd-Even spirit is dead and I do not believe that it will die or should die until something else takes its place—such as co-education. When co-education comes there will be new traditions and new means of perpetuating spirit and enthusiasm. Until that time, we must have something else. Odd-Even activities have furnished that spirit, and should continue to do so. Activities of almost any nature function better when there is a feeling of competition behind them. The Demonstrations are a good example of that point. Each and every year they have improved and have become more entertaining and one of the main reasons is due to a desire to try and put on the very best show possible. Competition and SPIRIT are the fundamental contributing factors.

There are also those who believe that no spirit is needed at all on a campus. About 99 percent of the colleges and universities of America would disagree wholeheartedly with this theory, otherwise why all the pep rallys and intercollegiate sports. Unfortunately we don't have co-education yet, and consequently do not have intercollegiate competition.

Because so many people on campus expressed a desire to see Odd-Even activities continue and because they believe that Odd-Even spirit and traditions are not dead, the Women's Recreation Association board in their last meeting voted unanimously to go ahead and carry out every single Odd-Even activity possible. Consequently we have a sports calendar this week filled with events to provide extracurricular entertainment and spirit for the entire student body.

Until co-education comes, I do not believe that one "stupendous, colossal school production" can provide the morale and spirit building element that this campus needs.

EVELYN SHEA,
Secretary of WRA.

● A PLEASANT SITUATION

"We want a pleasant situation." This oft-repeated refrain is one we girls would like to harmonize on, but we find it a little difficult to stomach the accompanying chorus, namely, that the men on this campus are God's gift to women. They may be, but we are firm believers in the subtle approach and prefer to observe rather than to be told.

For the past several years we (and that means "us girls," too) have been interested in getting co-education at Florida State College and at the University of Florida, not because we felt that men were indispensable to an adequate and satisfactory system of education, but because we felt that a mixed group on campus would be not only more normal but also more stimulating. This has indeed proved true.

However, our desire for more stimulation does not necessarily imply that we had been quietly stagnating prior to co-education. We feel that most of our traditions, which are spoken of by some of the University students in such disparaging terms, are worthwhile and serve an excellent purpose on our campus. Some, it is true, must of necessity be altered because of the changing size, not exclusively the changing sex, of our school. Traditions here have been modified before without throwing them all out the window, and they will be modified again.

But it is not in the University students' attitude toward traditions that our chief grievance lies. Our prime concern is their attitude in regard to our relative positions on campus. When they arrived we put out the welcome mat in all sincerity; we were anxious, even eager, to make them feel at home. Imagine our surprise when they developed the "at home" spirit to the extent that they wanted to wash our dirty linen and tell us when and where to clean house. Some of us, especially the seniors who have been here four years, feel quite capable of continuing without masculine direction. Many believe that they are better equipped than the men to decide which of the rooms need cleaning. It had been our wish to include the University students as additional tenants. We were somewhat taken aback to discover in our midst a new crop of landlords.

For a number of years the student half of the college government has been carried on entirely by women and though the result may not have been perfection, it has been more than adequate and steadily progressive. The rules, which seem so pointless and trivial to some of the men, are in reality considerably more liberal than those at most other southern colleges and are on a par with those of many colleges throughout the United States. We do not ask the men to keep our rules; we only ask respect for them. Where we had hoped for constructive criticism we have received, in so many instances, only blanket condemnation. To a large extent the spirit of equal cooperation we had hoped for has not materialized.

We feel sure that under a co-educational set-up the men will gradually assume the positions of responsible leadership. This is as it should be. However, during this period of transition we would appreciate the opportunity to make a graceful exit rather than to be dismissed as though we were irresponsible children. And we think it would be nice if both men and women could have a voice in shaping student policies.

Lest someone misunderstand the tone of this editorial we hasten to assure any readers that we are still heartily in favor of co-education—with an accent on the "co." After all, we, too, want a "pleasant situation."

Sharpie the Fifinella

Sharp as a tack in the back of your sac (ro-iliac) — that's Sharpie!

First thing on the agenda this week—Sharpie would like to retaliate! The Flambeau and its various sidekicks do not, to quote from a statement of last week, "preach against the evils of physical education as a major." The Flambeau does not preach; it merely points out facts!

A letter from "Curious" asks Sharpie's opinion on the offer that a faculty committee be appointed to assist and advise the Student Constitution Revision Committee.

Sharpie is pleased to know that the faculty and administration is in back of this committee and its work. She only hopes that they stay there, (way back!)

"Wondering" writes that this week she was reading in the "Browsing Room," when she stumbled upon a word she didn't know. Going into the next room to jot the word down for future reference (pencils, pads, notebooks etc must be left outside), she was accosted by the person on duty and told to refrain from doing this. She wants to know if Sharpie can tell her why!

Sharpie consulted the head man who said that the Browsing Room is for relaxation and pleasure reading only. Seeking the meaning of a new word comes under the separate classification of "study." In other words, park your intellectual curiosity with your books in the anteroom, and you will come out unscathed!

Prize of the week: To Executive Council, Sharpie gives a garnet flavored lollypop, wrapped in gold cellophane. This was purchased by the donations from the freshman class upon the relaxation of the no cut rule for their group.

One who signs herself "Respected Wallflower" asks if the boys at Dale Mabry think we juniors and seniors too aesthetic to indulge in the mundane art of dancing! She says, "At the dance Saturday night they absolutely refused to cut on us, and the room was just automatically divided into two separate groups—them and us!"

Dear Wallflower: Sharpie can only recall these words—"Femina perfecta, that's what they used to say of me. Now can you see what FSC has done to me!"

Executive Council has given us an additional reason for giving thanks—and we do mean Thanksgiving!

The problem of the week seems to be that of dancing on Sunday. Seems like there will be those who would be offended at such a procedure. Sharpie suggests that perhaps if the aforementioned will turn their backs and not look, they will survive uncontaminated!

Rumor has it that freshman proctors have taken to calling their junior counsellors on the carpet for things they think they shouldn't do. Back up now chillun'—it ain't up to you! Sharpie, too, hates to think that you are getting drunk with power at such an early age. That's not supposed to happen 'til you're a sophomore!

And now Sharpie comes to the end of her broadcasting frequency. Tune in same time, same station next week, when Sharpie will give a dissertation entitled "Art of Killing a Turkey," or "There's More Than One Way of Getting the Bird."

Attention Seniors

All students who are graduating on December 18 should turn their names in to the Book Store as soon as possible so that their senior announcements can be ordered. The deadline is November 20.

Or Forever Hold Your Peace

To the Editor:

The Women's Recreational Association board has expressed a unanimous wish to write you concerning Odd-Even activities, for they feel that the Flambeau is presenting its own opinions concerning this matter and is failing to take into consideration many other points.

You stated in last week's Flambeau that "the suspension of Thanksgiving meant the death of Odd-Even." This is not necessarily true. There are many students who will continue to enjoy those activities. The hockey, soccer, modern dance and archery activities will continue this fall and be played before Thanksgiving. In the opinion of many, Odd-Even spirit did help develop class and college spirit and will in the future.

As for competition between colleges for women, some of the better known authorities in physical education will be glad to enumerate the evils of such a plan:

1. It makes for emphasis on one small group (Odd-Even takes in a great number).

2. It takes out of games much of the fun and enjoyment when it magnifies the importance of winning.

3. It is detrimental to health and class work in that long trips must be taken and overnight absences made.

The WRA feels it their responsibility to promote a program which will reach the largest number of students, so that their personal experiences will be enriched through particular participation rather than through vicarious experiences.

Sincerely,
Betty Gardiner,
President, WRA.

Dear Editor,

I'm sorry to say I had to miss the forums on Sunday dancing, but I'd like to put in my two cents' worth.

Why not dance on Sunday? As we all know, around here there are three big forms of entertainment. Dancing, bridge and movies.

And then comes Sunday—which presents the problem—these all-day dates. As much as you like the guy or gal, both of you are usually bored stiff by Sunday night. When the shows are exhausted, this leaves only bridge, and so many people don't play bridge.

What I'm wondering about is why this one activity among so many is curtailed. As entertainment, dancing is no more nor less entertaining than going to the show, card-playing, joy-riding, or park-benching. And why only on Sunday? If dancing were really the sin it seems to be, should it not be curtailed on weekdays too? Leave us not be contradictory!

Robin Whitfield.

To the Student Body:

From time to time there will appear statements or announcements from the Social Standards Committee concerning the general behavior and appearance of the student body. This council, which was created by and is responsible to the Student Senate of the College Government Association, has as its primary purpose the coordination of social activities and group living within the dormitories and on the campus.

It is greatly interested in seeing that all students attend as many plays, concerts, teas, dances, lectures and sports events as possible without neglecting their academic pursuits. Such participation tends to enrich a student's personality and add to her social well being on the campus and in later life.

The council wishes to promote qualities of general kindness, friendliness and constant consideration for the feelings and property of all students, people connected with the school and all visitors.

The general appearance and behavior of the student body are an expression of the social qualities of moderation, self-respect and consideration. This council does not pretend to be a dictator of social etiquette or an authority on fashions. We merely wish to emphasize certain phases that we feel are definitely accepted and practiced by all who consider themselves socially well-bred.

Each year the question of where and when to wear blue jeans, slacks or shorts gives rise to much debate. The Social Standards Council, which is fairly well representative of this student body, has agreed that the above-mentioned can be worn to the athletic fields, camp, picnics, to help with props or sets for any student production, to the dining hall for Sunday night supper, behind the dormitories and anywhere within the dormitories except in the offices and parlors. The council would like to encourage the wearing of raincoats or coats of a similar nature over the blue jeans, slacks, or shorts to and from these various destinations. The wearing of the aforementioned anywhere else, front campus, Sweet Shop, Mecca or the Longmire building is considered in poor taste and quite unnecessary. We do not wish to carry on a campaign against this as we feel that there are many things of more importance that deserve our attention.

We trust that the unattractiveness, masculinity, climatic conditions and carelessness all point to the limitation of this habit. The designated times and places herein stated are certainly adequate.

Emily Bayard Sheftall,
Chairman,
Social Standards Council

Editor, The Flambeau

The current post-war boom in education is paralleling a similar expansion in Florida's cattle industry and, paradoxically enough, retarding to a measure the growth of the latter. Few people are aware that Florida's is one of the fastest growing cattle industries of the southeast. Famed chiefly as a tourist mecca and citrus producer Florida receives little recognition of her $160,000,000 cattle industry. Even less cognizance is made of the fact that the continued growth of this same livestock business is seriously threatened by a shortage of veterinarians.

The fault lies not with Florida students. Many young men, including a large number of ex-GIs, have indicated an interest in veterinary medicine as a career; but unless something is done immediately to provide educational facilities for those would-be vets they will be diverted to other channels and Florida will have lost the bumper postwar crop of veterinarians so urgently needed by our cattle industry — to say nothing of the fine horses and household pets in Florida.

And here is the rub: in all of North America there are only thirteen schools of veterinary medicine, three of which were inaugurated this year. Of these, only three will even go as far as to accept applications for admission from non-residents of the state

Campus Is Haven Of Cats, Dogs and Other Animal Pets

Oh, where, oh where can my little dog be?

Probably on the campus of FSC!

Dogs have always roamed Tally's campus, but this year there are more than ever. Number one girl in the breakfast line always finds the pups there ahead of her At noon they make mad dashes around the files of students waiting for their lunch.

Pity the poor canine who gets confused in the mad clamor between classes at the post office! Sometimes he escapes this dreaded fate by walking pertly into classrooms, moseying up and down the aisles, and disappearing as suddenly as he came.

Not only are dogs attracted to the campus Cats, often encouraged by some students, wander into the dining hall, and are chased frantically by girls in white coats.

Heading the honor roll of FSC's most celebrated pets of the past are Jimmy Joe, Earl of Squirrel, who was the best of tha flying variety, and Mortimer, who met his sad end last year and now lies under a pecan tree near the Chi Omega house.

Whiskers wandered around campus until he argued with a truck, and Dammit, the little canine with the big tail, was a friend of all.

Honorary Initiates Six New Members

Six new members were initiated into Gamma Sigma Epsilon, national chemistry honorary, last Sunday afternoon.

Those initiated were Dr Robert S Leopold, honorary faculty member; Betty Sue Gray, Mary Maude Trowbridge, Marian Floyd, Betty Speer, John Sullenberger, and Iris Johnston.

Following the ceremony, the new initiates were honored with a banquet at the Cherokee hotel. At this time, two delegates, Josephine Dawkins and Marian Floyd, with Iris Johnston as alternate, were elected to attend the honorary's national meeting at the University of Mississippi.

in which they are located. This is understandable lo view of the present overcrowded conditions of all colleges and universities. The fact remains, however, that Florida, since it is not one of the thirteen, is left out.

Fortunately, not all of the prospective veterinarians are content to wait the three or four years necessary to gain admission to a college outside this state. A movement has been started by a Tampa ex-GI to organize the pre-vet-med students of the state into a group to lobby for a veterinary school in Florida. In the event that this plan proves unfeasible, a counter measure has been proposed. It will be suggested to the legislature that suitable arrangements be made with Auburn or some other veterinary school to provide for the admission of a quota of Florida men.

There are a number of pre-vet students on this campus who because of their proximity to the Capital are in a key position to promote action. Early next week, we will call a meeting of interested persons on this campus for the purpose of appointing a committee to approach members of the cabinet and board of control in an effort to start the ball rolling before the next session of the legislature.

The support of the Flambeau and the Florida Alligator as well as that of every other newspaper in the state will be of vital importance to the success or failure of this movement, and on behalf of the citizens of Florida, I request your cooperation. Anyone else who would like to help outline a plan of action is urged to contact either the writer (phone 2577) or Francis Coune, 3008 Sitlos st, Tampa, 6, Fla.

Respectfully yours,
BOB GREENBERG

Dear Shirley and Fellow Students,

In a past editorial in the Flambeau there was a hint as to the dire needs for a co-operative on this campus. With the higher cost of living still going up, and the small value of the dollar, we should and need to be careful how we spent our money.

College students are supposed to be the example of what our future citizens will be like—why can't we show Florida that her citizens-to-be will be as economical and progressive as the studeots from the University of Alabama, University of Illinois, Prince ton, the University of Michigao, University of Florida, University of Missouri, and other colleges who new have large, successful co-ops on their campuses. How about a book store co-op on our campus, fellow students?

Arlyne Siegel.

To the Editor:

Why should we be taken advantage of in the Sweet Shop, Book Store and other places around here when we could have lower prices? I'm infavor of a co-op, and the quicker the better!

Georgia Shearu.

To the Editor:

I' heartily in favor of a co-op for this campus and can't see any reason why we don't have one. It would be one way of saving money when the dollar has so little value. Every other prominent campus has one—why can't we?

George King Jr.

Dear Editor,

I am definitely in favor of having a co-op on our campus. When almost any item, except a cup of coffee, costs more at the Sweet Shop than it does dowo town, then it is time for our students to take action. Co-ops have proven very successful on other campuses—why not ours?

Rita Gandzler.

Dear Editor,

Are we in favor of the high prices in the book store and Sweet Shop? I think our school needs a co-op of students like most large colleges have. I understand Gainesville has ooe. Are we going to let them get ahead of us along the progressive economic lines?

Sara Culbitt.

I am really a fervent advocate of starting a genuine Co-op book store on our campus. I can see no reason why this Co-op store could not be founded since we all realize that at a state school students oeed the opportunity to purchase text books at a non-profit price. As it is, we have no opportunity. If any student would like to do so, I wish he would join me in "talking up" this idea of a campus Co-op.

Dixie Ruth Kennedy.

Editorial note: We called attention to this problem in our editorial column. These letters in the most part only echo our views. To you, the writers of these letters, and to you who agree with them, we can only quote the old French proverb: "We may give the advice, but we cannot inspire the conduct."

To whom it may concern:

At the risk of losing my head by sticking out my neck too far, I feel the need of expressing myself regarding the heated controversy concerning the Thanksgiving situation generally, and the demonstrations specifically.

I would like to say that none of the people to whom I have spoken have raised any objections to a continuation of Odd-Even sports. The argument seems not to be that anyone is apprehensive about a halt being made in sports activities but that in dispensing with the demonstrations a goodly portion of Odd-Even spirit will be lost.

Now the climax of Odd-Even rivalry has always been reached at Thanksgiving which is highlighted by such traditions as the games, color rush, the dinner, Odd-Even nights outs, as well as the demonstrations. Each of these is an important and integral part in its own right of the traditional Thanksgiving weekend. And, as yet, I have heard no comment involving the eotire classes of Odds and Evens. Then why so much furor concerning the demonstrations, especially in view of the fact that a more constructive program has been advanced to take its place?

Originally the identity of the team membere was a closely guarded secret and the sole purpose of the demonstrations was to reveal the playere who made the teams. In recent years conditions have eliminated the possibility of concealing the teams' identity, and in consequence the aim of productions has altered. Since this marks my fourth year as a participant in demonstration script writing I feel I can speak with reasonable authority when I say that the team presentation has been a constant source of trouble to script writers. Fired with an idea, enthusiastic over the sudden flow of "snappy" dialogue, there is a pause wheo someone says, in the middle of the third act, "But y'all, how are we going to bring in the team?" The poor souls groan—in the throes of creation they'd forgotten the team existed. Now begins the travail of giving birth to an introductioo.

Last year and this we attempted to build the dems up to a climax in which the teams could be brought in dramatically and logically—not thrown in as an afterthought. But it is not always easy. And it is a handicap in the production of a good show. Sioce the dems have long since become useless in regard to their original purpose, what is the need of them? "To foster Odd-Even spirit", I am answered. Then why not try to increase game attendance and interest, and since the teams are already known, shift the emphasis back to where it was originally—the games. Why not a concentrated effort on the part of those organizations whose purpose it is to foster Odd-Even spirit to build spectator enthusiasm back up to its old peak? Why throw the burden of maintaining Odd-Even spirit in the lap of demonstrations?

There are some who have longed for an opportunity to present itself in which it could be stated that the tone and caliber of these productions has been weighted down by the necessity of diluting a good script with low puns at the expense of the opposing class and with stale jokes that have been reworked and reworded for so many years that they are the despair of a script writer. Why continue two productions whose humor is frequently adolescent and sometimes vindictive when a combination of the two, minus any need for corn, could result in a show that was both entertaining and a reflection of more mature work?

It is my contention that if the funds for the three shows—Odd and Even demonstrations and Junior minstrels—could be combined, the result would be a worthwhile production in which a school could take pride The increase in funds would permit a more extravagant outline that could include many more students than have been included previously. And for those who have worked on the dems and not on the minstrels and vice-versa would come the added satisfaction of working with others from the entire school, not just two classes. Instead of those inadequately financed, mediocre shows, one production of superior merit should result, to be sure a finished, professional production cannot be expected the first year, but it is a goal toward which to work.

And to those who protest that a striving for a polished, professional finish would tend to discourage timid souls who feel they have no talent, let me say that I worked for two quarters this summer with Carolina Playmakers who not only strive but frequently achieve quite well-finished production. It was there that I found no special talent is needed to scrub paint off dirty flats or patch torn muslin. And frustrated Sarah Barnhardts can find a certain amount of satisfaction in maoipulating a rachet screw driver.

I have worked on demonstrations each year since I first wandered into Jennie as a freshman and every year has been more enjoyable than the last. But the oeed for demonstrations is over and I don't believe in hanging on to a tradition, dear as this ooe is to me, when it impedes the progress of a new and better plan.

I've spoke my piece—my head is on the block—and here's the axe.

Book Week Is Theme Of Library Exhibit

The colorful display found on the third floor of the library this week centers around the theme "Books are Bridges" in celebration of National Book Week, November 11 through 15. The exhibit was prepared by students in the Division of Library Training and Service. Some of these students are on duty every afternoon from 3:30 to 5 p m to conduct visitors around.

The individual exhibits depict different ideas which books convey to the reader. As people, books walk into the past; they make alive the world of nature; they introduce friends in other lands; they become the magic carpet for flights of fancy; they open realms of new experience; they are a source of knowledge of the present paving roads into the future.

Also on display are the new books purchased this year.

Members of the Tallahassee Parent Teacher's Association have been invited to view the exhibit and all students are urged to atteod.

Parkside Feted

Campuside and Hillside residents entertained Parkside girls at tea frm 5 to 6 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

Entertainment for the large group present consisted of a song by Hazel Clarkson and a reading by Patricia Yates.

BSU Formal Banquet To Be November 23

The annual formal Baptist Student Union banquet will be held Saturday, November 23, in the East dining hall. Two hundred and twenty faculty members and students are expected to attend. Dr and Mrs Doak S Campbell will be present. This banquet will be the most outstanding activity of the year for the Baptist Student house.

The guest speaker will be Dr Wallace Rogers, from the First Baptist church, Pensacola. Susan Illingsworth, BSU president will preside throughout the banquet.

The theme of the banquet will be nautical with place cards, napkins, favors, meous, programs and table decorations carrying out this theme. The co-social chairmen are Pep Stanaland and Sara Lou Wells.

The Baptist faculty and staff will meet at 6 o'clock in the parlor of the Longmire building and go from there to the dining hall.

Bach Selected for Mademoiselle Board

Audrey Bach has been choseo as a college board member for Mademoiselle. This membership will entitle her to compete for guest editorship on the college issue.

Audrey, a sophomore at Florida State College, wrote about the differences caused by men on campus. "I was so excited when I saw that pink letter from Mademoisele. It's the first time I've ever won anything except a pair of nylons," she said.

Every year Mademoiselle sponsors a contest to choose guest editors for their August issue First, a trial report is submitted and girls are chosen by these reports. They then have to submit four assignments, from which the guest editors are chosen.

Dale Mabry Honors Junior-Senior Girls

Officers' Club Decorated, Bob Smith Provides Music

The formal dance sponsored by the Tallahassee branch of the University of Florida in honor of Florida State College junior and senior girls was held last Saturday night at the Dale Mabry Officers' Club. Robert Smith's college orchestra furnished music for dancing. The room was decorated with green and white crepe paper streamers radiating from the center of the ceiling.

Jesse Wilson, student body social chairman, was in charge of the dance. During the evening he introduced Miss Hilda Tinney, director of the FSC student union.

Sandwiches, grape punch, and cookies were served at the refreshment bar. Assisting with the serving were Mary Philpot, Betty Jo Bozeman, Jessie Forbes, Betty Jean Walker, Virginia Bardee, Roz England, Bobbye Bell, Thyrza Wilcox, Eloise Zeiglar, Marie Dozier and Tiny Clavel.

Present at the dance were Dr and Mrs Doak S Campbell, Dr Otis McBride, Dr and Mrs M W Carothers and Miss Sarah Cloud

NATIONAL AFFAIRS:

Approximately 115,000 Civilian Federal government workers are slated for dismissal by New Year's Day. James E Webb, Budget Director, ordered 93,400 Army and Navy civilian employees cut off the rolls by January 1, making a 1,000,000 reduction in that field since V-J day.

Coal Parley

Secretary of Interior Krug met with the coal operators and John L Lewis in regard to formulating a plan whereby the threatened coal strike November 20 could be avoided and the government could retire from the coal business. The members of the conference were tight-lipped as to the progress they had made, but Krug told newsmen that he would probably meet with Lewis again very soon

Will Rents Go Up?

The suggestion of a 15 percent rent increase was made by OPA's Rent Industry Advisory committee, which presents landlords' views to the price agency, to the OPA yesterday. Though the OPA had previously pledged to stand pat on rents, they announced that they would take the recommendations "under advisement."

FOREIGN AFFAIRS:

Russian Foreign Minister Molotov began his fight yesterday to alter the statute for a Trieste international zone, submitting 14 separate amendments to the present draft. Molotov's amendments included an attempt to strip the governor of Trieste of the broad powers proposed for him, and to get British and American troops out of that area as soon as possible. Thirteen amendments were submitted and the text of the 14th, which outlines Russian views on a proposed free port regime for Trieste, will be given today.

Africa

The Union of South Africa declared defiantly that if the United Nations Assembly turns down, which is almost probable, the Union's proposal for annexation of the former German colony, it would retain the Southwest Africa mandate.

Foreign Policy

The continuation of the United States' foreign economic program was urged yesterday by President Truman, the State Department, and spokesman for American business, as the best safeguard against war. Undersecretary of State William L Clayton told the National Foreign Trade Council's convention that abandonment of this program now would be "unthinkable", and that we would be taking "a step backward with serious consequences for the peace of the world." The United States has already invested $20,000,000,000 in this program.

Infirmary Shows Class Favoritism

It seems only natural to see the ever-faithful Odds garbed in dresses, or skirts and sweaters of the typical red, white, and purple, and Odd caps.

"But Odd loyalty can be carried a little too far," wailed a certain sophomore lass the other night who, upon returning from the dactor's office, found that her vitamin pills were red, white, and purple.

That, gals and guys, is patriotism!

Association Grants Free Scholarships

Competition Begins Now, Will End in January of 1950

The International Association for Correspondence and Change has granted 1,000 free scholarships to American students with the competition starting in November, 1946, and lasting until January, 1950, according to Dr Elizabeth G Andrews, director of personnel and placement bureau.

The "Competition for Student's Triennium" contains the exchange of study and vacations among the students of all nations; scholarships for study abroad; scholarships for educational trips to foreign countries; free mutual visits in different countries; and free summer and winter (mountain and sea) international rest and recovery centers for students who are delicate of health and financially unable to finance their own trips.

All students wanting to compete for these study-grants are urged to send their applications with postage immediately to INACC, Rome, Casella Postals 321, for the detailed program of the Student's Triennium and for the joining application and the questionnaire.

The term of the applications for the year 1946-47 had to be in by November, 1946; for the year 1947-48 by January, 1947. Students failing to apply by the above dates, can apply only for the year 1946-49.

Further application may be secured from Dean Elizabeth G Andrews in the personnel office.

Music Recital Held

A student recital given yesterday by the school of music consisted of two voice and two piano presentations. Jacqueline Cox sang "Ah! Mio Cor" by Handel, accompanied by Pat Wallace.

The second number on the program was Alice Wheeler singing Grieg's "Ein Traum", accompanied by Peter Jensen.

Rose Marie Numarn played Debussy's "La Plys que Lentte", and Eleanor Bragg played "Jeaux D'eau" by Ravel.

Robert Hall Collins, baritone, will present a concert Monday night at 8:15 in the Leon High School auditorium. Mr Collins is appearing under the auspices of the Tallahassee Civic Music Association.

The Kitchen Sink ....

(To be conducted according to Roberts' Rules of Parliamentary Order. M L Norwood, chairman, B J McLeod, in absentia per usual).

SHOCKING ....
SIMPLY SHOCKING

It has been brought to our attention recently that in various labs on this campus, several capricious cadavers, otherwise known as skeletons, are representing the epitome of strip-tease. We are deeply moved and think that the other 3038 students of this institution should take up a collection to secure suitable shrouds so that our innate modesty will not be offended

Speaking of skeletons, "Dead Ernestine," the bony remains recently sent to Frannie Myers by an anonymous friend (?), had a busy weekend. The accustomed activity of falling out of so many closets on so many unsuspecting souls in the depths of night has left poor "Earny" all unstrung. Anyone finding the other hand please return it to the owner who looks quite stupid without it.

It has come to our attention that it might be desirable to comment on the unsightlyness of students sprawled out on the campus in prone positions. However, we feel that this is but temporary, and as soon as the weather turns a little bit cooler the situation will take care of itself.

SIMPLY INSULTING

This has been an historic week on campus. Freshmen have been allowed to cut except on Saturday afternoon, Thanksgiving has been made a holiday, and The Kitchen Sink received a can of Drano from an unknown admirer. In fact our rosy column has received much comment both pro and con. If you are surprised to see that we are still well preserved we will tell you the secret. Each morning with our coffee we drink a glass of formaldehyde.

The "Andy Gump" Norwood half of this team was extremely hurt when the annual photographer asked her to please raise her chin.

A student went over to the infirmary last week and asked to be put on a diet. The nurse asked what kind of a diet she thought she needed and the bright child coyly replied, "A balanced diet."

This week-end the Flambeau will move, or rather be promoted, to the second floor of the alum. It has been suggested that it raise itself to meet its new position.

It has also been suggested that the Sweet Shop move to a two story building and tear out the middle floor to accommodate their high ceilings.

Letter Contest Is Open to Veterans

A letter contest on the subject, "Problems of the College Veteran," is being sponsored by Salute, produced by the former editors of Yonk and Stars and Stripes. The contest offers college veterans cash prizes for their views and suggestions concerning the current educational set-up.

The letters are limited to 250 words and should be mailed to the Contest Editor, Solute, 19 Park Place, New York, 7, N Y, postmarked not later than midnight, January 10, 1947.

Cash prizes amounting to $750 are being offered to the writers of the ten most outstanding letters. First prize will be $250; second prize $100; and eight other prizes will be $50 each. Additional details will be found in the latest issue of Salute.

Investigations have shown that freezing and cold storage of foods destroy bacteria but do not sterilize.

FSC Freshman Wins Acclaim As Theater Guild Actress

Have you heard about the outstanding young actress who is attending Florida State College?

She is Miss Jacqueline Allen from Fort Myers, Florida, and a freshman at FSC this year. She was awarded first prize at the National Theater Guild Magazine contest in Chicago this summer for being the best actress.

Jackie has always been interested in dramatics but never had the chance to use her talent until last year. The Ft Myers little theater was organized a little over a year ago, and Jackie entered into the group and was chosen to play the part of Emily, the feminine lead in "Hello Out There" by William Saroyan, a one-act play.

In Chicago, Jackie competed against actresses in other theater guilds from New York and Chicago. She won first prize for her diction, speech and characterization, which were the basic requirements.

At FSC Jackie is majoring in speech and hopes that in the future she will be able to play with some other theater guilds. At present, she is awaiting the good word from Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and Warner Brothers talent scouts who are helping her to play with the New England theater group next summer.

Effective Study Aid Recommended

Do you know how to study? Examinations are coming soon. Are you prepared? If you are not prepared, Studying Effectively by C Gilbert Wrenn and Robert P Larsen, which can be bought at the bookstore, is recommended by the Personnel Office.

"Not only freshmen but also upperclassmen are finding this book helpful," according to Mrs Margaret Blair, assistant director of personnel.

Studying Effectively contains suggestions on how to improve your reading ability, your memory and your ability to concentrate; how to take notes; and how to prepare for and take examinations.

Pre-Med Club Elect Whitaker President

Bopie Whitaker was elected president of the Pre-Medical Club at a bi-monthly meeting held Wednesday evening. Also elected at this time were Betty Hill, vice-president; Marian Turrentian, secretary and Paul Thomas, treasurer.

A planned address by Dr P J Coughlin, local physician, was postponed due to unforseen circumstances. Dr Coughlin is now scheduled to address the club at its next regular meeting, to be held December 4.

Committee heads also selected at this time include: Ann Teague and Jerry Thomas, publicity co-chairmen; Marian Ferraro, social chairman; Betty Hill, program chairman.

Girls to Knit For Red Cross

Students May Obtain Yarn Early Next Week

The Florida State College chapter of the American Red Cross will distribute wool yarn and the instructions for knitting sweaters for the children overseas next Monday and Tuesday, according to Barbara Wickham, president of the organization. This yarn will be checked out to the students from 4:30 to 6 p m on both days, in room 401 of the Longmire building.

All students who know how to knit are urged by the Red Cross to do their part for world relief by contributing their time and labor to this cause. When finished, the sweaters will be distributed by the Red Cross to the children of war-torn Europe and the Eastern hemisphere. Since Monday and Tuesday will be the only days for the distribution of the wool until after Christmas, those who are interested are requested to get their quota now so that they may work on them during the holidays.

The list of members of the Red Cross Disaster Relief group has been lost, and all members who signed up to be on this committee or those interested in becoming members are requested to notify Dottie Hahn, Box 1009, campus mail.

State Auditor Gives Lecture On Government

Bryan Willis Addressed Students Wednesday

Institute of Government Is Subject of Speech

Bryan Willis, state auditor, in an address sponsored by the political science department, spoke on the "Institute of Government" Wednesday afternoon in the Longmire auditorium. "The purpose of the Institute of Government is to bridge the gap between government as it is taught in schools and colleges and as it is practiced, Mr Willis stated. "It also coordinates the overlapping units of city, county, state, and federal governments and bridges the gap between outgoing and incoming officials and between the people and the government," he continued.

The Institute is non-partisan and non-political. It will not lobby for any bill, whether good or bad, according to the speaker. The basic idea of the Institute of Government is to create a central laboratory where administrative techniques can be collected and studied before they are presented to citizens and state officials, according to the speaker.

The men who study these techniques are an advisory committee, made up of administrative representatives from the state, county, district and municipal localities, an attorney and specialists in finance and public administration. "This committee is under the supervision of five state board members, who serve without pay, but who are reimbursed for their expenses while traveling."

The idea for an Institute of Government was, Willis explained, really born 18 years ago when

Vance Addresses Dem School PTA

Current Teacher Problems Was Topic Discussed Friday

"The emphasis placed on everything except good teaching has sometimes made it look as if teachers might be abolished entirely from the educational system," said Mr Earl L Vance, professor of journalism, in a speech before the PTA meeting at the Demonstration School last night.

Speaking on the subject "Should Teachers Be Abolished?" he said everybody agrees education in the United States is in "none too healthy a state" but few seem to see that the only real cure is more good teachers.

"We have paid little attention—and of course less money—to teachers, then tried to atone for the sorry results by employing additional supervisors and functionaries," Professor Vance said. "We have gone to seed on this matter of educational functionaries, who get the only living wages in the teaching profession — and don't teach. If you have good teachers you don't need an army of supervisors—and if you don't have good teachers all the supervisors in the world can't make poor teachers do good teaching. Good teachers are much harder to find than good office keepers but at present the only way a teacher can get the top salary is to stop teaching and keep an office."

Sarita of Havana Teaches Latin Dances And Learns "The American Way" at FSC

By Miriam Portnoy

"Take back your rhumba, aye, your rhumba, aye, your conga, aye, aye, aye," sang Latin-American born Sarita Gold who is attending Florida State College as a freshman. "But don't get me wrong," said gay young Sarita. "For the large number of students who come to me to learn the rhumba, it seems that you are not really ready to give back these dances to South America.'

"So many of my fellow students both boys and girls alike, have asked me to teach them the rhumba the way we do it!" said blond-haired, blue-eyed Sarita. "American boys just can't compare to Latin dancers. They don't seem to have that smooth technique. For dancing, I mean!" she laughingly exclaimed.

Sarita, who hails from Havana, Cuba, intends to work in the diplomatic field npon graduation from FSC. She said, "I am truly glad to have this opportunity to study in the United States, but my worst difficulty now is trying to catch on to the big words of my professors."

This new resident of FSC is very interested in learning as many languages as possible during her college career. However, aside from her Portuguese class, Sarita is quite enthusiastic over her other courses. "I think the Spanish department at this college is very grand, especially the technique now employed in teaching the language," she replied when questioned about a good way to learn Spanish. "I've enjoyed talking to many Spanish majors and I think they are doing excellently," she concluded.

While speaking about the difference in customs in the two countries, the smiling Cuban seemed quite perturbed over a difference in the weiners! She explained by stating, "I can't get used to calling them 'hot dogs' instead of 'dog hots'!" She definitely has noted the lack of chaperones when girls in the states go out with young men.

"One thing more," she exclaimed, "In Cuba the boys treat you more like a queen, but here you're just a date!"

Next Year 270 FSC Students Will Live In Newly Built Air-Conditioned Dormitory

By Catharine Nollman

The 1946 dormitory. That is what it is called on the contractor's plans. To the students on the Florida State College campus it is "that huge frame structure which is being erected at the back of Jennie Murphree hill."

A feature of the new dorm which is outstandingly different from anything else on the campus will be the heating and cooling system. In cold weather hot air will be blown into each room through a small grill on the side of the wall and will leave the room through another small grill on the floor across the room. In hot weather cold air will be blown in, thus making this dorm the first on campus to have air conditioning.

Students who live on the north end of the campus will remember when the construction was started in the spring of 1946. The huge machines which were used to level the ground woke many students early in the morning. The permit to begin construction was issued on May 8, 1946. The contractor's plans call for the completion of the dormitory on September 1, 1947.

Collegiate-Gothic is the way Mr Herbert D Mendenhall, resident engineer on the FSC campus, titles the architecture of the new dormitory. This style was originated at Oxford in England and has been followed by many universities in the U S. The plans for the building were drawn by the architectural division of the University of Florida.

The dormitory is being constructed in the form of a square with a completely enclosed outdoor court in the center. It will be divided into two antirely separate sections, on the west side by a fire wall through which there will be no passage and on the east side by folding doors which will ordinarily be closed, but which can on occasion be thrown open.

The parlors for the two sections will be on either side of these doors so that when the doors are opened there will result a parlor which will run the whole length of the east side of the building. Each section will be administered separately except for the houre director. The front of the first section will face toward the dining room, while the front of the second section will face toward the street generally known as Commons road.

The estimated capacity is 270 students, which means approximately 135 students to each section. There are to be five floors including the basement. The basement will not be divided into sections. In it the plans call for recreation halls, kitchens, a laundry receiving room, trunk storage spaces, steam and electric vaults, express room, the house director office, servants rooms and a servants' lunch room.

On the first floor will be the parlors, the administrative offices and the counselors' suites. The counselor's suite in the second section will be in the small projection which is being built onto the north side of the building. On the second, third and fourth floors rooms will be constructed similar to those in Landis. Contrary to the rumor, which is prevailing in some corners of the campus, there will be no suites. The group showers and rest rooms will be on the east and west sides and will face inward toward the court. In each section there will be one elevator

FSC Will Nominate Royal Candidate

Election Will Ba Hald Tuesday in Lower Westcott

Nominations for a Florida State College "queen" to represent this campus in the statewide beauty contest which is being conducted by the University of Florida yearbook, the Seminole, may be made by sending the name of the nominee and an attached picture to the Flambeau through campus mail by five o'clock Monday afternoon.

The selection of the Seminole Beauty Queen of 1947 will be part of the annual Fall Frolics program at the University. The representative of FSC will automatically be entered in the final judging which will take place at Les Brown's band concert on Friday, December 6, where she will be in competition with the other finalists — winners in similar contests in other Florida colleges, plus the contestants who won through photographs submitted to Ronald Reagan and Jane Wyman.

General election of the "beauty queen" will be held Tuesday in lower Westcott in order that the FSC representative may be entered in the contest in time.

According to a letter from the Seminole, if the contestant is unable to appear in person but submits a suitable portrait, she will be eligible to have her picture in the beauty section of the annual although she can not be chosen as the Beauty Queen.

The "Queen" will reign over all dances and fraternity functions in addition to being featured in the yearbook. The Les Brown concert at which the queen will be crowned will be broadcast locally by Mutual.

"Everyone is urged to send in nomiantions for those whom they deem sufficiently beautiful to best represent our college," says Shirley Rodgers, editor of the Flambeau which is conducting the Tallahassee contest

Six Attend Meet

Several faculty members from the modern language and English departments will attend the annual meeting of the South Atlantic Modern Language Association, to be held in Birmingham during the Thanksgiving holidays.

Those in the English department who plan to go are Dr Laura Jepsen and Dr Carmen Rogers; from the modern language department, Dr D L Canfield, Dr Margaret Campbell, Dr Dorothy Hoffman and Miss Myrtle Dolbee.

Co-op Book Store

Any student interested in working on the committee investigating the possibility of a student co-operative bookstore on this campus is asked to get in touch with Arlene Siegel, Box 764, campus mail.

"We want those who are willing to work," said Arlene. Persons having any information or experience regarding co-ops are also asked to see Arlene.

Richard Baker To Give Talk

"Orient in Transition" Is Topic of Address

Dr Richard T Baker, journalist and educator, who recently returned from a six-months visit to Japan, China and the Philippines, will speak to Florida State College students at 12:30 p m Monday, December 2, in the Augusta Conradi Theater. His topic will be "The Orient in Transition."

In the summer of 1945, Dr Baker returned from two years spent as a teacher and acting dean of the Post Graduate School of Journalism in Chungking, China, an institution sponsored jointly by Columbia University and the Chinese government. He was loaned by tha Methodist Board of Missions and Church Extension for this wartime work. After a few weeks in America last summer he was sent back to the Orient on a journalistic assignment.

At present the speaker is on a tour of Florida for the Methodist Board. He will be sponsored on this campus by the Young Women's Christian Association and Wesley Foundation; the Methodist group.

He is the anthor of two books on youth and the world community, has served as a war correspondent in the China theater, has been employed by several religious journals sucb as, The Christian Century, The Christian Herald, The Epworth Herald, and is at present the assistant editor of World Outlook.

Dr Baker has traveled twice around the world. In 1937 and 1938 he visited 32 foreign countries on the terms of a Pulitzer fellowship awarded by Columbia University. He holds a master's degree from the Columbia University Graduate School of Journalism, and an honorary doctorate from Cornell University where he did his undergraduate work. He has also studied at Union Theological Seminary.

He was one of the first correspondents to go back into Japan after the war. Recent articles have dealt with conditions of schools and villages in Hiroshima and Nagasaki, and he has been especially interested in the attitude of Japanese youth concerning the future of Japan.

Marion Hay Speaks To IRC Today

Dr Marion Hay, associate professor of education, will speak at the International Relations Club meeting this afternoon at 4:45 in the Longmire auditorium.

Spanish politics during the last war and the following post-war period will be the primary theme of Dr Hay's speech. The United States and Britain's foreign policies toward Spain will be included in the "Spanish problem" speech. The United Nation's question on whether to break diplomatic relations with Spain because of Franco's remaining in power will also be considered by Dr Hay.

Announcement of the newly elected officers will be made at the meeting.

The new books in the IRC library are Perpetual Peace by Immanuel Kant; Peoples Speaking to Peoples by L White and Robert Leigh; The United Nations Economic and Social Council by Herman Finer; and The Soviet Union Today, political handbook of the world 1946, edited by Walter H Mallory.

Parker to Lecture

Miss Daisy Parker, instructor in political science, will give a lecture Tuesday afternoon, November 26, at 4:30 in the Longmire auditorium. The topic of Miss Parker's lecture will be "The Analysis of the Congressional Elections of 1946."

Bookstore Opens At Dale Mabry

Stocks to Include Grocery Line and School Supplies

The new bookstore which opened Tuesday at Dale Mabry is still in the experimental stage but requests for new stock will be filled as soon as possible.

Mr Wheeler, manager of the bookstore at Florida State College will be manager of the Dale Mabry branch also with Mrs Ann Hobbs serving as his assistant there with Mrs Ruth Pace as clerk.

A grocery line may be put in to fill the needs of the married veterans and a questionaire has been sent out to the families for a suggested list of needed products for daily purchase.

The business office will determine the price range and all purchasing will be done through the college bookstore since the new store does not as yet have facilities for purchasing.

A candy counter has been installed to date, and school supplies, stationery, milk and bread are being sold.

If the grocery line is carried there will probably be no meat or fresh vegetables but canned goods, sandwich spreads and similar articles will be sold.

Band Plans Varied Activity in State

Mr Owen F Sellers and Mr Robert G Smith, have announced that the marching band is planning various activities throughout the state, including both marching and playing demonstrations.

There will be both moving and still pictures taken at the game tomorrow to publicize the fact that we have the only all-girl marching band in the state of Florida.

Mr Smith added that a maroon skirt, size 16, would still be greatly appreciated.

A cut committee to regulate attendance has been set up for the bands, both marching and concert. "The purpose of the committee will be to determine whether absences are excusable," announced Chris Morrison, chairman.

Myra Jean Bates is in charge of another new committee whose purpose is to revise the constitution.

Meal Schedule

According to Florida State College dietitians, the dining hall will remain open through the Thanksgiving holidays. Students are welcome to bring guests to the dining hall but are requested to purchase their guest tickets in advance. Tickets for Thanksgiving dinner are $1.06.

Hours during which the dining hall will be open are:

November 28—
  Breakfast—8:15 a m-9 a m
  Thanksgiving dinner—12.30 p m-2 p m
  Buffet supper, east dining hall—6 p m-7 p m
November 29 and 30—
  Breakfast—8:15 a m-9 a m
  Lunch—12:30 p m-1:30 p m
  Dinner—5:30 p m-6:45 p m

Five to Form Committee

New Group Will Discuss Constitution Principles

A committee of five to formulate basic principles upon which the constitution is to be reorganized was appointed at the Constitutional Committee meeting Tuesday, November 19 in the Longmire auditorium. These basic principles are to be discussed and changed, if necessary, at the next regularly scheduled meeting which will be held Monday, November 25 at 6:45 p m in 402 Longmire building.

Betty Schwartz, Nita Nord, Laura Lee Butler, Grace Hayes and Marion Looby constitute this committee.

The purpose of the newly organized committee is to form basic principles on which the entire constitution may be based. It was thought that this was necessary so that as each section of the constitution was completed it would not be found that the underlying principles conflicted.

Two changes to the Amendment article were proposed. It is hoped that this amendment article, which changes the way the constitution can be amended, together with the article on nominations, elections and appointments can be presented to Senate before the end of the fall quarter.

Campus Celebrates Campbell Birthday

Dinnar Given for President; Senior Class Presents Caka

To begin the celebration a dinner was given for Dr Campbell in the east dining hall at 6:15 p m, attended by members of Judiciary, the Executive Council, class officers and faculty guests.

After the dinner students gathered in Bryan-Reynolds arcade and sang to the president. At this time Beth Fuhrer, head of the junior class, presented the gift to Dr Campbell.

Immediately after the sing, members of the senior class, dressed in caps and gowns, accompanied Dr Campbell to his home. The seniors helped Dr Campbell eat the birthday cake and Mrs Campbell served punch and hot chocolate.

After Thanksgiving the seniors will begin plans for the traditional Christmas party and caroling.

Pre-War Prices Plus Pre-War Quality Is Maintained by College-Owned Soda Shop

Price hikes have been taboo in our college owned and operated Soda Shop," said Mrs Mary Parker, manager for the past two years. "Despite the inflationary trend of today, ham is the only item on which we've raised the price Here, students can still buy a variety of tasty clean sandwiches, milk, and goodsized servings of ice-cream of the old prewar quality and at the old prewar prices!" said she.

The College Soda Shop is operated on as near a non-profit basis as is possible and still avoid complaints of competing merchants. Although cosmetics have been sold in the past, this has not been the practice during the past four years. The shop is operated simply for the convenience of the students and faculty. It's gold-fish, juke-box, smile-filled atmosphere comes as a welcome relief after class-room formality.

Any week-night, long lines of none too patient students, are greeted by red-headed Jack's 'Hello ugly! What you want?" as he mixes one of those extra special good rich double milk shakes.

With the increase of the college population, it is impossible to serve everyone satisfactorily and promptly in such limited space. Mrs Parker pointed out the possibility of expanding the Soda Shop by extending it to include all of the North East Section on the ground floor of the Longmire building.

State Cabinet Votes Money For Expansion

300 New Men Students Are Expected at DM For Second Quarter

Purchase of Residence Is Approved at Meeting

Expansion of facilities at Dale Mabry to accommodate 1,000 men students was approved by the Florida state cabinet in a meeting last Tuesday. The sum of $150,000 was voted for the work, the remainder of the $300,000 requested by the state board of control last August.

President John J Tigert of the University of Florida has indicated that applications for admission there may reach 8,000 by the second quarter, or 1,000 in excess of facilities. However, according to Dr Milton F Carothers, director of the Tallahassee branch, not more than 300 new men students are expected here second quarter. Approximately 100 of these are men now at the U of F who have expressed a preference for the branch here.

The cafeteria in operation at Dale Mabry is equipped to provide meals for additional students. Miss Edith Manford, head dietitian at the base, gives the information that the dining hall wing of the cafeteria which is not in use now will be opened next quarter.

The cabinet in its Tuesday meeting also approved purchase of the residence at 121 North Copeland street for the Florida State College to be used as a home for faculty members. The house, bought for $9,500 will be operated on a "prevailing rental" basis to avoid any possibility of objectional commercial utilization.

The residence is located directly across the street from the Home Management house run by the home economics department. Faculty members have been living in the home since September but the official purchase had not been official purchase was not closed until the cabinet meeting Tuesday.

Dale Mabry heights, housing project built by the government during the war to house families of enlisted men stationed at the Army air base has been recently acquired by FSC but will not be taken over until the housing shortage in Tallahassee is eased and all veterans now living in the houses can find other residences.

Single Men to Have Barrack Monitors

Each of the single-men's barracks at Dale Mabry will have a student monitor by the first of next week, Mr James Carr, director of residence at the Tallahassee branch, announced this week. The two largest barracks, 700 and 701, will have monitors for both upper and lower floors.

These officers will serve as representatives in the barracks for liaison work between the students and the dean of men.

This system, which will allow one monitor for every 30 or 35 men, has been used successfully at Gainesville. The small barracks at Dale Mabry field necessitate the use of monitors because individual dormitory matrons, as are in use in other places, would be impractical.

When the system is completely organized, a council of monitors will be formed for the purpose of airing suggestions and ideas for improving conditions at Dale Mabry.

Student Organists To Meet Today

The organ students will meet in the tower organ room today at 4:30 p m for a short recital and discussion on organization of a College American Guild of Organists' chapter. All organ students of the Florida State College organ department are eligible for membership.

The program will include "Prelude and Fugue in A minor" by Bach and "Deep River" by Gillette, played by Peter Jursen; "Prelude and Fugue in D Major" by Bach, played by Nell Duncan and "Fanfare Fugue" by Bach, played by Sue Petit. Sally Slater will play "A Lovely Rose Is Blooming" by Brahms and "The Maid With Flaxen Hair" by Debussy. Esther Brinkman will play "Butterfly" by Grieg; Marjorie Holderman, "Pastorale" by Bach and Edith Smith, "Prelude and Fugue in C Minor" by Bach. The program will be concluded by Fawn Trawick playing "Scherzo from Sonata V" by Guilmant.

FSC Faculty Attend Meet

Spanish House Gives Dance for G'ville Boys

A meeting of the South Atlantic division of the Modern Languages association will be held in Birmingham, Alabama, on Friday and Saturday, November 28 and 29. Florida State College delegates to this convention are to be Dr D L Canfield, head of the modern languages department, Dr Dorothy Hoffman, Miss Myrtle Dolbee, and Dr Margaret Campbell, all instructors in the modern languages department.

During the convention Dr Canfield will deliver a talk entitled "Rubrica" on the Hispanic culture pattern.

Delegates from Spanish, French, German, Portuguese, English and other modern language departments from the southeastern states will make up the convention.

ETCHINGS PRESENTED

It was announced by Dr Margaret Campbell that Dr Arthur L Seymour, recently returned head of the modern languages department, presented an etching of Cervantes and a coffee table inlaid with tiles to Casa Cervantes, the Spanish house, at an after-dinner coffee last Friday evening.

The etching was made in Spain, and the tiles, which are inlaid in the top of the coffee table, came from Triana, a suburb of Seville, and depict scenes from Don Quixote.

Guests of the evening were received by Miss Carmen Rivers, director of Casa Cervantes. Miss Rivera introduced Dr Seymour who made the presentation. The gifts were accepted by Annette Maples, president of the Spanish house, and Dorothy Bush gave a brief summary of the life of Cervantes. Those invited were: President and Mrs Doak S Campbell, Dr Olivia N Dorman, Dr and Mrs Seymout, Dr and Mrs D L Canfield, Dr Margie Burks and Dr Margaret Campbell.

LOS PICAROS VISIT

Dr Campbell also announced that "Los Picaros," a club of Latin-American boys from Gainesville, are to be the guests of Casa Cervantes, the Spanish house. They will be accompanied by Dr Frances Hayes of the University of Florida, who is a specialist in Spanish gestures, and who has been consultant in Hollywood on movies of Latin American subject.

A dance will be held in honor of Los Picaros, in Landis recreation room on Saturday evening.

Music Teachers Attend Convention

Florida State College was represented at the Florida Music Educators Association meeting in Tampa last Monday and Tuesday, November 16 and 19 by five delegates from its School of Music

Those attending were: Miss Zadie L Phipps, assistant professor of public school music; Miss Mary E Winslow, associate professor of piano; Mr Walter James, assistant professor of voice; Mr Herman Gunter Jr, assistant professor of voice; and Mr Owen F Sellers, associate professor of cello and director of the band.

Miss Winslow, Mr James and Mr Gunter presented several vocal solos and duets, for the members of the association.

Upward and Onward Progress Is Theme Of Organization Movements in Longmire

Organizations in the Longmire building are progressing upward and onward. Yes, literally. The Florida Flambeau moved from the basement to the former Flastacowo office on the second floor last week. The Flastacowo remained on the second floor but progressed down the hall to the former office of the Young Women's Christian association, and the "Y" moved up to the fourth floor.

The purpose of this mass migration was to make room for a boy's lounge on the basement floor. Already the old Flambeau habitation is feeling radical effects of reconversion. The floor shines with wax, overstuffed sofas adorn the side walls, plenty of tables are in evidence . . . and, of course, there are men lounging, talking, and studying instead of reporters banging away on typewriters.

Last Saturday afternoon the second floor of the Longmire building was a scene of vigorous activity when the Flambeau editorial staff threw a party for reporters with the advice that they wear jeans and old shirts. Pertinent indeed! Slips of paper were handed out on which specific jobs were designated such as: straighten files, clean out desk drawers, hang bulletin boards, and sweep floors. An hour of colossal industry ensued after which the new Flambeau office appeared bright and shining, a model of efficiently organized newspaperdom. As reward for labor, cake and ginger ale were served. Associate editor B J McLeod had thoughtfully brought her portable juke and records to which everyone danced. Mr Earl L Vance, associate professor of journalism, and Miss Dora Byron, instructor of journalism, were also present sharing in the fun.

The Flastacowo staff moved last Friday. Books, files, tables, and chairs were carried into the vacant YWCA office. During this process many old editions of the Flastacowo were discovered dating as far back as 1910. Work stopped temporarily while all present leafed through these old books and laughed at the strange styles and funny hair-do's of 36 years ago.

"Y" members had moved all their paraphenalia on Wednesday to rooms 403 and 405 where they are now comfortably settled.

Council Discusses Student Behavior At Artist Series

General behaviour of students at concerts and lecture programs was discussed at the Social Standards Council meeting Tuesday. Certain resolutions were adopted as to dress, time of arrival and applause, according to Emily Sheftall, chairman.

Students are reminded that they must dress formally for all Artist Series programs except when sitting in the balcony. To eliminate confusion, students are asked to arrive at least five minutes before the opening of the program. The door will be closed promptly at the appointed time and no one arriving late will be admitted until intermission. Students should remain seated during the whole program except for intermission. Anyone wishing to leave may do so at this time.

It was also suggested that students carefully study the program during a musical event and applaud only after a complete piece is played. This is not to discourage applause, but to control it.

The Usher Committee is cooperating with the Social Standards Council in enforcing these rules. The Council hopes that the student body will also cooperate wholeheartedly to present a courteous and attentive audience to visiting artists at Florida State College.

State Auditor

Professor Coats, a teacher of criminal law at the University of North Carolina, realized that law as taught from the statute books and case records did not give a full enough picture of law in every day action. Accordingly, he took a position on the local police force. In this position he studied the inefficiency in the governmental system and tried to devise means of correcting the faults.

Returning to Chapel Hill he called meetings of government officials and students. From their discussions grew a guidebook to aid in the correction of existing problems, the speaker explained.

"For the establishment of an Institute of Government in Florida the 1945 legislature appropriated $15,000." According to Mr Willis, the Institute is authorized to: "conduct studies upon various subjects relating to public finance; study existing methods of administering units of government in Florida and other states; to prepare manuals and guidebooks for use of state, county and municipal officers and their employees, and to conduct short courses to train these officers and employees in the best methods of performing their duties."

"Other duties of the organization will be the publishing of a monthly magazine and the creating of a legislative reform bureau," said Mr Willis. The Institute of Government will also assist county groups with annual meetings and hold weekly, quarterly, or annual meetings for the discussion of public affairs.

Mythical Miss Experiences Thanksgiving, 1946, at FSC

This little episode might aptly be entitled, "The Tally lassie who wasn't a soul there. Not one green who read Rip Van Winkle once too often."

Sally Tally deliberately went to bed early that Wednesday evening—at 1 o'clock, that is—because she did want to be up in time for Color Rush. Color Rush, in case you don't know, is an Odd-Even race to pin the winning colors on various building doors on Thanksgiving morning.

It was a sleepy, hazy-eyed girl who crawled from beneath the covers at 6 a m into the northern weather which somehow found its way south. It was even a more sleepy gal who dashed madly down four flights of stairs jumping almost a half-flight at a time, and out to the gym from which the first race was scheduled to begin.

Gasping for breath, she skidded halfway across the Landis green to come to an amazed stop. There wasn't as oul thre. Not one green feather, nor one red, white and purple cap did she see gracing the icy morning atmosphere.

"My heavens," she thought to herself, "somebody done me dirty! Must've set my alarm back. Anyhow, I'll be right on the front row when the show begins."

Half an hour passed; forty-five minutes passed. Then an hour, but still no enthusiastic Odd and Even yells pierced the dead calm hovering over the campus.

Walking slowly across the campus, she was confronted by a pair of traditional rivals—"Bones" and the "Spirit"—Odd and Even for those who haven't caught onto the Tally lingo yet.

"Say! Just what's going on around here," Sally slyly questioned. "Here I am. I summon up all my loyalty and come out for the big event. And nobody shows up. Whatsa' matter anyhow?"

Whether it was the tone of Sally's voice or just fond remembrances which "bones" and "spirit" recalled, it is not known, but, anyhow, before Sally was through talking the two burst out in sobs which would have made the fountain goldfish turn green and gold and the iron gates rattle like a skeleton.

"Haven't you heard?" they sniffed. "It's a free weekend. Everybody's gone home. The games are all played and there's not anything to do. Didn't you go to the games last week?"

Sally alternately turned all the traditional colors, then said, as she also burst into tears, "No! I've been so busy doing homework. But gangway, I just have an hour to catch a bus for home."

And, so we leave the spirit of '45, a skeleton of a traditional past.

which will be handy to the street entrance.

The plans for the interior court show promise that the place will be delightful to look upon. The landscaped grounds will be approached from the stone terrace which will open out on the east side of the court. The terrace will have entrances from both sections of the dorm. At present a connecting arcade with Jennie Murphree is not being built, but an opening will be left so that it may be put in later.

Beer's Construction Company of Atlanta, which also built Landis, holds the contract. The final contract price rests at $733,000. Mr A L Henderson, head superintendent, explained that the greatest trouble at present is labor. The common laborers and brick layers are the hardest to get, he said. There are 125 men on the job now and Mr Henderson would like to have more. The company has been able to secure the necessary materials, and, although nails have been scarce, they have not actually held up construction.

The tall wooden structure which can be seen from many points on campus is in no way indicative of the height of the building. It is merely a temporary scaffold by means of which cement is hoisted up and poured into the frames. The building is reinforced concrete frame with brick and tile walls. The interpartitions are plaster on clay tile. Because of the clay tile partitions Mr Mendenhall says the building will be more nearly completely fire resistant. The floor will be square blocks of asbestos tile similar to those used on the floor of the new History annex. The floors in the kitchens will be linoleum.

And, less it be said that the students had no part in the building of the beautiful new dorm, the workmen have one little story to tell. It happened during summer school in the summer of '46. Several students were wandering around the site of the new building, and before they left they had aided in its construction by crawling up on a ladder and helping to nail the roof onto the cement storage house.

Workshop Presents Program Friday

Florida State College will present their first radio program of the year over WTAL, November 29, from 7:45 to 8 p m.

This program is sponsored by the radio workshop class and will include a dramatic sketch directed by Miss Kemper Moore, the sponsor. Joe Hosford will be in charge of the production, Robert Kohler, engineer, Edgar Hare, sound effects, Kay Harrison, casting, and Milton Flack, Martha MacCann, and LeMoyne Cash, script.

Two other programs have been scheduled for this quarter and they will be presented December 6 and 13.

Club Has Breakfast

The annual Home Economics club breakfast was held last Sunday, November 17, in Game's woods. After hiking to the woods the group ate breakfast and sang around an open fire

Ruth Largent, social chairman, was in charge of refreshments. Thirty-three members were present including Miss Ellen Wright, club sponsor.

Magnolia, Village Were "At Home" to Faculty Members

Magnolia and the Village held "At Homes" for the faculty Wednesday afternoon.

At Magnolia Floy Jean Pflough and Esther Rasmussen received the guests at the door and introduced them to Pat Grant, social chairman, and Neva Delgado, house president.

Miss Olivia Dorman, dean of women, Mrs B F Whitner, assistant dean of women, and Miss Edith McCollum, director of residences, assisted the hostesses in receiving. Presiding at the coffee table were: Mrs Lou Miller and Miss Lynette Thompson, honorary house members; and Dorothy Martin and Renee Settle, house vice-presidents.

Roses and chrysanthemums decorated the main living room which was centered with a mantelpiece display of red poinsettias.

Lillian Baker, violinist, and Dot Wynn and Virginia Crews, pianists, provided background music.

The village guests were received in the parlor of Cockrell by Mrs Pauline Mansfield, residence counselor, Miss Phyllis Greife, who is in charge of the social program of the Village, and Janet Robertson, who is the chairman of the social committee.

Floor hostesses were Miss Olivia Dorman, Miss Edith McCollum, Miss Anne Pope and Miss Sarah Cloud. Two honorary house members, Miss Betty Linthicum of the botany department and Miss Emily Crow of the English department, poured coffee.

Background music was provided by Rita Sprankle, Virginia Joslin, and Mary Rosenbush, who played the piano at different intervals.

Managing hostesses, who helped to introduce the guests, were Camilla DeNisco, Sue Ann Bradshaw, Clara Harley, Anne Moody and Janet. Approximately a hundred guests attended.

School of Music Presents Recital

The School of Music presented its weekly student recital at 4:30 p m yesterday afternoon in the recital hall of the Music Annex. The program featured piano and voice solos.

Included on the program were: a piano solo by Esther Howard; "Bouree" (from 3rd suite or cello) by Bach; a voice solo by Sara Brameister, accompanied by Helen Edmonston; "Nina" (Tregiorni) by Pergelesi; a voice solo by Pat Harrison, accompanied by Cortlandt Morper; "Del Mio Core' by Haydn; a piano solo by Sidney Conner; "Prelude" (from Holberg's Times) by Greig; a piano solo by Marilyn Morgan; "Polonaise C minor" by Chopin; a piano solo by Joan Wadsworth; "Fanitul" by Olsen; a voice solo by Doris Lamb, accompanied by Sue Pettit; "Le Chiffonier" by Ladmirault; a voice solo by Bernice Strickland, accompanied by Margie Booth; "May, the Maiden" by Carpenter; two voice solos by Joyce Stroberg, accompanied by Mary Rosenbush; "The Musical Snuff Box" by Liadoff and "Rencontre" by Faure.

Faculty Member's Review Published

In the October issue of the South Atlantic Bulletin there appears a review by Dr Carmen Rogers, associate professor of English, of the new book, Ben Johnson: Poet.

Dr Rogers comments, "In George Burke Johnston's study of Ben Johnson: Poet, new doors are opened to casual readers, and valuable material is brought together for the scholar's use."

"His opening chapter," she continues, "neatly summarizes critical opinion and sets the lines of his own study. . . Primary concern is subject matter and Johnson's connection with English literary tradition."

Ingenious Girls Design Ways To Brighten Drab Dorm Rooms

Interior decoration on an unlimited scale seems to be the order of the day in the dormitories wherein dwell the ingenuous lasses of Tally. Dull rooms have been transformed into unusual and interesting habitations by dint of the skill and industry of their different occupants.

Coats of glowing new paint, brightly colored drapes, homemade rugs of all varieties and other innovations have played a big part in the revivifying of rooms that were formerly commonplace and monotonous to live in. Every girl seems determined that her room shall be the most exclaimed at and looked over.

Black profile cut-outs, mounted and hung on a background of turquoise walls, are one unusual feature of a lovely room in Gilchrist. One of its occupants started her interior decorating career last year when she painted her room in Broward in bright shades of pink and red.

In the room further down the same hall a fiber closet has been painted and the upper section has been papered with a lovely floral design. This provides an interesting addition to the furnishings of the room besides adding the much-needed closet space.

Speaking of space, which is one of the current shortages around here, some of the girls have found that the last two or three shelves of their bookcases make a dandy cabinet if covered with a gathered curtain of some bright material. Some go in for the straight, tailored affect, while others go real feminine with ruffles and big satin bows.

Bulletin boards seem pretty popular as wall decorations in a number of rooms. Some are covered with the latest pictures of the swoon guys, and others are smothered in snapshots and cartoons. Lena (you know her) is the central figure on many of them though the occupants do complain of nightmares occasionally!

Bedside tables and catch-alls are made from camouflaged boxes and packing cases. These are painted and covered with gathered skirts which completely fool the observer as to their lowly start in life.

Recognition of some sort should go to the girl who has rigged up a device by which she can turn her light off when she is in bed. The light switch is way across the room so she has tied a cord to the switch and draped it across the ceiling. Not so decorative she admits, but very convenient!

Tour Scheduled for Spring Vacation

Chance to See Washington, New York, Again Offered

The opportunity to visit Washington and New York during spring vacation is again offered to students at Florida State College by Dr Carmen Rogers of the English department. The cost will be $200, not including meals, said Dr Rogers, and transportation will be either by plane or by train, as the individual student prefers.

"A sightseeing tour of both cities is being planned," Dr Rogers said. "In Washington we shall visit places of national historic and contemporary interest. In New York the emphasis, of course, will be upon the theatre and the opera, but we shall also visit the famous museums, churches, and such sections as Harlem, Chinatown and Fifth Avenue."

According to Dr Rogers, the plays which will be showing at that time are numerous and varied. They will include such well-known dramas as Shakespeare's "Henry VIII," Sheridan's "School for Scandal," Wilde's "The Importance of Being Earnest," and O'Neill's "The Iceman Cometh." Among the other stage productions which it may be possible to attend are the Ballet Russe, the Ice Follies, "Carousel," "Showboat" and other musicals.

"Because of the difficulties in chartering a plane and in getting theatre tickets," explained Dr Rogers, "I should like to know as soon as possible if anyone is interested, preferably before the Christmas holidays."

Students may contact Dr Rogers by telephoning 872-R, or through campus post office box 1077.

Flastacowo Plans To Publish Calendar

The Flastacowo is going to publish a calendar for engagements, for the first time in the history of this school. This will be a week by week, day by day, engagement and memorandum book for the year 1947.

The calendar will be in book form with a spiral back, so that it will lie flat on the desk when in use. Interspaced throughout the calendar will be pictures of twelve Florida State College campus scenes. These may be removed after the calendar has served its purpose.

Sale of these calendars will begin December 14, and the cost will be one dollar per booklet. Only a limited number will be on sale, so the students are urged to make their purchases early. Watch the Flambeau for further announcements concerning this matter.

Alumnae may purchase a calendar by writing or contacting the business manager of the Flastacowo.

Avey of Ohio State To Teach at FSC

Dr Albert E Avey of Ohio State University will be at Florida State College for Women second quarter as visiting professor in the departments of philosophy and religion, announced Dr Anna Forbes Liddell, professor of philosophy.

As part of his departmental teaching, Dr Avey will offer a course in the Platonic Tradition in European Thought, which is part of his regular work at Ohio State. He will also give a course in Religious Questions which will carry no pre-requisite.

Dr Avey is listed in Who's Who in Philosophy and has written books and articles on religious and educational subjects. He received his B A, M A, and Ph D at Yale University.

Stevenson Reports On Remedial Work

Remedial work for juniors and seniors with deficiencies in English is progressing very well, announced Dr Hazel A Stevenson, professor of English, who is in charge of this project. However, she announced that there are still some seniors who have not taken their English tests, which must be passed before graduation.

The special English clinic, now in its third year, is divided into ten classes which are held once a week for those in need of instruction. Since a majority of the cases are spelling and mechanics deficiencies, a syllabus has been prepared which may be used outside of class. Students stay in the clinic only long enough to be able to pass the test.

Dining Hall Conduct Policy Is Stated

The Social Standards Counc has drawn up a policy in regar to the conduct practiced in th dining hall.

Keeping orderly lines, bein considerate and respectful ushers, coming to meals well groomed, observing good manners at all meals, only takin fresh fruit from tables and refraining from chewing gum in th dining hall are the main points o the policy drawn up by the Socia Standards Council.

Mimeograph copies of this policy will be distributed through th dormitories to the student bod "If each student will mainta these rules, a much more pleasant situation will exist," sa Emily Sheftall, chairman of th Social Standards Council.

Sports Round-Up

By Bob Cooksey

The Florida Gators, still seeking their first victory of the aging football season, will try again tomorrow at Tampa as they go against a rugged North Carolina State Wolfpack The Gators will go into the contest definitely the underdog against one of the strongest teams of the south.

However, Florida shows possibilities of entering the State game in the best physical condition of the season and with nothing to lose and everything to gain they will be gunning for the highly-regarded Wolfpack. Broughton Williams, fine Gator end will not get a chance to jump back into the running for national pass catching honors after being forced out of the Villanova game last week in the second quarter with a wrenched knee after snagging only one pass for ten yards. With Billy Parker and Doug Belden around to do the flipping, Jimmy Jones and Joe Chesser will be on the receiving end the down-trodden Gators might resume the aerial route that has been the one bright spot in an otherwise dismal season

One More Chance

After the contest with State tomorrow the Gators will have only one more chance to break into the victory column this year with a game against Auburn on November 30 presenting two teams with equal opportunities for victory. Auburn has been pushed around by some of the southern grid powers this season, but led by Travis Tidwell, one of the nation's top ground gainers, they will be out for Gator blood one week hence.

Little Hal Griffin, Tampa back, gave Florida fans last Saturday an encore to a 98-yard sprint against the Miami Hurricanes several weeks ago by taking one of Villanova's Romeo Capriotto's third quarter punts on the Gator 13 and careening 87 yards down the sidelines to tally the second touchdown for Florida making the score read 14-13. Villanova scored soon after, however, to clinch the contest and a late Florida score was anti-climax.

Rollins, Miami Play

There will be action on the Miami front tonight as the Hurricanes, toppled by LSU 20-7 last week will be seeking a win against Washington and Lee.

The Rollins Tars meet Ohio Wesleyan tonight, fresh from a 19-0 triumph over Stetson last week Wesleyan smashed Denison Saturday by a 39-0 margin.

Other Games

Other games throughout the nation tomorrow will find: Tennessee-Kentucky, Illinois-Northwestern, Michigan-Ohio State, Clemson-Auburn, Alabama-Boston College Harvard-Yale, North Carolina-Duke, Princeton-Dartmouth, Rice-Texas Christian, and Purdue-Indiana. Georgia and Georgia Tech warm up for their clash November 30 with the Bulldogs from Athens meeting Chattanooga and the Engineers from Atlanta meeting little Furman.

Army Still Tops

The eleven battering rams from West Point still rule the national mythical grid standings edging past Notre Dame by a 50-vote margin. The Irish have to be content with a close second for at least one more week. Georgia and UCLA hold down the third and fourth positions, respectively, while Illinois jumped from ninth last week to fifth place currently The other five teams according to their standings are: Georgia Tech Tennessee, Michigan, LSU and Southern Cal.

Tally-U Boys Start Yearly Game Hunt As Season Opens

"—The bird is on the wing." And hunters are training their sights on the bird. Hunting season is underway.

Men students of the Tallahassee branch plan to join in the trek to field, forest, lake and other places where game is found over the Thanksgiving holidays. The Florida hunting season on quail, turkeys, doves, deer and squirrels opened November 20, and tomorrow the huntsmen can train their barrels on duck, geese and coot. Shells are still scarce but many boys had a stock laid up in anticipation of the hunting season.

The Tallahassee boys have gotten the jump on their fellow nimrods as many have been out in the fields and wooded areas this week in search of game. George Eubanks, George and Jack Croy, John Patterson, and Al Thorpe were among these early hunters. Reports from them are that birds are plentiful in Leon county, especially dove. Some of them have bagged the limit on this wild fowl in their early hunts.

Bill Merritt and Buster Jackson of Sumterville in Sumter county say they have a goodly supply of shells and expect to spend most of the holiday time in quest of game. They plan to leave home early Thanksgiving morning with a hunting perty, which will include some University of Florida boys. The group will take their guns and dogs to Ocala National Forest to hunt deer. One unique feature of this hunt is that Merritt plans to use a captured .25 calibre Japanese rifle, souvenir of his service in the Navy, for which he has only four shells. Later in the day the hunters will seek quail and dove.

John Parker and Ernest Cox of Perry plan to go into Taylor county's tide swamp, famous to Florida huntsmen for its abundance of turkeys and deer, after this game. John says that most of his time will be spent hunting quail and dove.

Also planning to hunt these birds while home for the holidays is Norman Walther from Milton. Ammunition won't be one of his worries as he already has a supply of shells.

Squirrels and birds will be the quarry of Max Register whose home is near Graceville in Washington county. As Max lives in the country he won't have to go far from home seeking game.

Since Florida is divided into conservation districts and laws in each district differ slightly, each hunter should acquaint himself with the hunting laws of his area. Along with the game there may be game wardens. They have their hunt, too!

Odd-Even Archery Meet Ends Today

The Odd-Even archery tournament began yesterday and will be completed this afternoon. Four girls on each team competed yesterday, and the remaining four on each team will shoot today, according to "Kit" Johnson, Odd archery leader.

The Columbia round is the method used in the tournament, said "Pep" Stanaland, archery leader for the Evens. This means, she explained, that each contestant shoots a certain number of arrows at several specified distances from the target.

Shooting for the Evens are Martha Carter, Emily Chancey, Lois DeLavan, Mary Griffin, Mary Petit, Anna Lou Rivers, "Pep" Stanaland and Lois Snyder.

DM Cagers Plan College Games

There now exists the probability that the Dale Mabry basketball squad will play a man-size cage schedule, according to Ed Williamson, athletic director. Feelers have been sent to several college and service teams.

The University of Tampe, Florida Southern and Stetson are among the schools which have been definitely scheduled. Norman Park Junior College in Georgia, the Jacksonville Naval Air Station, Eglin Field near Pensacola and several additional smaller schools and service teams have also been contacted

Plans are being made to play games on a home and home basis. This means that one game would be played in the opponent's locality and the other game here No high school teams will be scheduled.

New uniforms with the FSC colors of garnet and gold have been ordered.

Naval Reserve Unit Begins Operations

Recruiting for members of the Naval Reserve has started at the University branch this week. All interested veterans both at college and in Tallahassee and all who now have a V-6 classification are asked to contact Commander Ralph Carter, recruiting officer for Tallahassee, at phone 2109.

No definite appropriation for a local reserve has as yet been made by the Seventh Naval district, but as soon as 200 men from Gainesville and the Tallahassee branch have been enlisted, the group will be formally organized and an appropriation requested.

All members of the Reserve will receive base pay at the rate of their former rank in the armed services for each meeting of the group once it is officially operating. Members will not be subject to call into active service except in case of a national emergency.

"Essence of Grace" Is Tarpon Theme for Water Pageant

A water pageant entitled "Essence of Grace" will be presented by the Tarpon club of Florida State College on Monday and Tuesday nights at 8:30 in the gymnasium pool. There will be no tickets issued this year for the annual Thanksgiving performance. "It will be a case of first come first served," remarked B J Singleton, president of the Tarpons.

The theme "Perfume" which is original with the Tarpon club will be carried out in four water formations by the active Tarpon members and two by the uninitiated "Minnows." The accompanying music will be suggestive of the moods and names of various perfumes. Also included in the program are a duet number and a clown act.

The decorations which will follow out the perfume theme are under the supervision of Nancy MacEdwards and Sarah Ellen Glenn. Miss Troemel, faculty advisor has been present at all rehearsals and has acted as a consultant for matters of a technical nature.

The Tarpon club which was founded in 1936 had for its original purpose the exhibition of swimming skills. Since that time the club has risen to national fame through a number of movies that have been made of them. Tarpon swimmers have appeared from time to time in movies filmed by Fox Movietone, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, and Grantland Rice. The movies have been taken at Wakulla Springs with the exception of one which was taken by Paramount during a homecoming week-end in Gainesville. According to B J, the Tarpon club received many letters during the war from boys overseas who had seen the movies made at Wakulla Springs.

Said B J, "The present aim of the Tarpons is to further interest in swimming and to develop the techniques of swimming formation."

Senior Hall to Feature Playnight Show Tomorrow

Yes, Senior Hall is going to take its collective hair down at Playnight this Saturday night in the physical education building. They are taking their wisdom of Four Ages to present a Senior Hall of Fame. The skit will be based on the adventures of Soclear Lewis, the famous novelist, who in her search for material for her latest book wanders into an art gallery and learns how each member of the Senior Hall of Fame earned renown.

The first celebrity will be Jean Cole Porter followed by Red Skeleton and Herky White and her Scandals of 1946. There will also be dancing horses, French opera, modern dancing, can-cans, tap dancing and bubble dances.

"There's going to be a stupendous unveiling, too," said Nancy MacEdwards, chairman of Playnight, "and of what you must come see."

Gloria McVey is in charge of the skit. Ann Nicholson is chairman of the prop committee and Roberta Friedkin is handling the publicity.

Evens Have Night Out Tonight at 11

The celebration of Odd Night Out Thursday evening will be followed by Even Night Out which will be held tonight.

The Evens will meet at 11 o'clock in front of Westcott and will bring sheets. After the procession around the dormitories they will go to the north end of Landis green where their pep rally will be held. Even cheerleaders and guest speakers will be present.

The Odds assembled at 11 o'clock last night in front of the music annex with their lanterns. The procession ended in front of Westcott for a pep rally at which the cheerleaders performed. Dr Raymond Bellamy, professor of sociology, was the guest speaker.

Odd Night Out is sponsored by Spirogira, Odd honorary. Even Night Out is sponsored by Esteren, Even honorary.

Corps Initiates New Members

Initiation for the new members of the Life Saving Corps was held Tuesday night in the clubroom of the gymnasium. The ceremonies were led by Mary Nell Goldman, president of the corps.

A splash party in the pool immediately followed the initiation. Mr Robert ("Uncle Bob") Zubrod, Southeastern field representative for the National Red Cross, who has been here for the past week giving instructor's tests in life saving and swimming, demonstrated the newest trends in these fields. Miss Martha Heifrin, the newly elected sponsor of the corps, was also present. Games and relays were featured at this time.

Kappa Sigma Meets Dale Mabry Cagers

The Dale Mabry basketball team will play their fourth practice game of the season tomorrow night when they meet Kappa Sigma fraternity from Gainesville. Game time is slated for 8 o'clock and the clash will be on the Dale Mabry hardwoods.

The game is strictly a practice session, according to Coach Ed Williamson of Dale Mabry, and he is hoping to further experiment with combinations prior to the opening of the basketball season.

Previous activity scheduled for the gym at Florida State College caused the game site to be changed to the Dale Mabry gym.

Dale Mabry holds an earlier 31-24 win over Kappa Sigma this year.

Odd-Even Modern Dance Is Tonight

Performance to Be Given In Augusta Conradi Theatre

The Odd-Even Modern dance performances will be held tonight at 8:15 p m in the Augusta Conradi theater.

"The themes of the dances are to remain a secret until tonight," said Sis Myers, Odd dance chairman and Anne Shull, head of the Even dance team.

"All the girls have worked hard and are expecting to put on a wonderful performance," remarked Sis Meyers. And from Even dance chairman Anne Shull came a quote, "These girls have what it takes to make a winning dance group, so I feel confident in saying that the Evens will come out on top again this year!"

The Even team consists of Dorothy Butts, Joyce Cayce, Doris DuBois, Rubye Lois Duke, Marie Chillingworth, Audrey Evans, Jackie Geiger, Virginia Hatton, Enid Krouse, Avanelle McNair, Sarah Lee Williams and Anne Shull.

DM Bowling Alleys Open to Students

Bowling enthusiasts are missing a fine opportunity for brushing up on strikes and spares at Dale Mabry's new bowling center, according to Ed Williamson, athletic director of the Tallahassee Branch. The six new alleys have just been reconditioned and are in excellent shape. Also, several new light-weight bowling balls for use by women players have just arrived.

Sam Boggs, manager of the alleys, announced that bowling hours are from 5 p m to 11 p m during week nights and from 3 p m to 10 p m on Saturdays, and the charge is 13 cents per line.

As yet the dates for the intramural tournaments have not been announced, but there is a possibility of holding match play among independent teams if enough pin setters can be obtained.

A cordial invitation is extended to students and faculty members to visit the new center located directly across from the Dale Mabry tennis courts.

Odd-Even Hockey, Soccer Teams Play Tomorrow at 2; Soccer Teams to Clash First

Athletic Field Is Site of Traditional Games; Florida State Band Will Perform at Contest; Odds Rule Pre-Game Favorite in Hockey

The Odd-Even hockey and soccer teams will clash tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock on the athletic field in what promises to be two of the most exciting games held in several years

The Odd hockey team will go into their contest with the green and gold eleven, pre-game favorites because of the drubbing they gave the freshmen and juniors on Monday and Tuesday. In the Monday game the soph-senior combination defeated the freshmen 4-0 and on Tuesday took the juniors into camp, 3-1. However, Marion Floyd, Even leader declared yesterday that the class games were no indication of the way the Even team would play when it took the field. "We have a few surprises in store for the Odds tomorrow and I think we'll win," Marion declared.

On the soccer front, first game to be played, the Odd and Even teams will square off on even terms with the Evens getting the initial kickoff. In the class games the freshmen defeated the sophomores 4-2 and the seniors eeked out a 1-0 victory over the juniors after battling over three quarters in a tied up game.

However, the Odds will be hampered by the loss of three of their outstanding players. Shirley Palmer, sophomore fullback, suffered an injured foot in the freshman-sophomore game. Jane Satterfield and Enid Sandler, seniors will also be out of action.

Bleachers owned by the college will be erected tomorrow morning to take care of a capacity crowd on the athletic field. The Florida State College band will give a "half-time" performance between the soccer and hockey games.

PEA Goes to Camp

Approximately 50 members of the Physical Education Association and invited non-majors of physical education spent last weekend at the college camp on Lake Bradford.

"We did the things usually done at camp," Nita Bowles, president of the group, commented. Physical education instructors who went with PEA were Miss Mary Jane Lloyd, Miss Laverne Sitton, Miss Betty Kirlin and Miss Babe Evans.

A regular meeting of PEA was held Monday night.

● COOPERATION PLUS!

A few weeks ago it was brought to the attention of the student body that it was not only possible but was urgent that we have a cooperative store on Florida State's campus. Talk has been going fast and furious on the subject, and a gallant few have even tried to figure out some way to get such an enterprise working here for the students. None of us need to be told that this movement has worked out beautifully at other schools.

At our brother institution over Gainesville way the boys have initiated their first cooperative store. Financed by a $6,000 grant from the State Cabinet, this co-op already has more than 425 members, with plans being made to extend the cooperative movement. In a little more than a month a branch store will be opened at the local air base to accommodate the 107 married couples and single men who live there. They even see a possibility of having a co-op service station. Regulations for the G'ville co-op follow established principles of this movement. Membership is open to all students. Although an initial fee of $15.50 is charged to provide original capital for the enterprise, students will be refunded practically the whole amount when they leave college.

We, persistently human, have taken the attitude that has come to be expected of us—that of waiting for the other fellow to work out all of the details and then if the road seems smooth, we will consent to collect dividends on whatever it may be. Well, the details are being investigated at present by a committee on campus which welcomes any person who feels that he or she can be of any help in organizing the machinery of a co-op at FSC. Those interested may get in touch with the committee through Arlene Siegel, Box 764. It would seem that, as people who hope to show some semblance of education when we graduate from this institution, we would become ashamed of allowing monopolies to force us into paying sky-high prices not only for the small luxuries but also the essentials which we need. We should, through active participation on this committee, demand a change. Are we third grade morons who can have anything pushed off on us and give a grateful nod?

Or, are we interested citizens who take a share in the progress of what is at present our little world?

The University of Florida has taken a forward step in eliminating unprofitable traditional practices. In the November 1 issue of the Florida Alligator there appeared an article headed "No More 'Who's Who' Selection" with the information that the University has "discontinued entering men in Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities because, . . . 'It has ceased to hold the significance it once did.' "

The main purpose of Who's Who, according to an article addressed to personnel managers of the publication, is to bring the names of the outstanding students of America before the business world and before others who annually recruit students. This is a worthy aim, but does the publication fulfill its purpose?

With the limited number of entries that can be made from each college and the over-capacity enrollment in the schools today, it is natural that the question arises as to whether the students whose names appear in the book are better equipped occupationally and educationally than those who were not listed. Are there not numerous others besides the maximum 20 who are as fully prepared and as capable but who have not received the backing of a popularity vote?

In the foreword of this annual college publication, the editor states: "Believing as we do that extra-curricular activities are the best index to a student's ability, we have placed the emphasis of selection on that phase of college life and not on scholarship alone." He also states that the students in Who's Who have such qualities as character, scholarship, leadership in extra-curricular activities and a possibility of future usefulness to business and society. These terms and phrases are universals that have such a wide variety of connotations that they become semantic blabs with no cognizant meaning.

Here at Florida State College the selection for Who's Who . . . has become a popularity contest with certain qualifications as to grades and classification. Each year there are many efficient students who, because of their inactivity in our highly organized campus life, have not made the list. It has been found that contrary to student superstition, the person who excelled in scholarship will earn a larger salary throughout his whole career than will the student who was equally active in campus affairs but lower in scholarship

J R Tunis made a study of some one hundred Harvard graduates in Was College Worthwhile and found that the Phi Beta Kappas led the list in earning power, clubmen came next, the average college student was third and the athletes last. Consequently, there seems to be no valid reason why the students participating in a large number of extra-curricular activities should be spoken of as the best for the future business positions.

In the spring of this year we will vote for the FSC entrants in Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities. That is, of course, unless the administration of this college should decide to follow the leadership of our brother university.

The University of Florida should be commended for its step in this matter. It would be an excellent idea for the students and faculty of FSC to give much thought to the plausibility of discontinuing this tradition on our campus.

● THE PRICKLY PEAR

What exactly are social standards? No one can put his finger on the exact elements that go into making up the social standards of this campus or any other. Social standards are only those customary group habits that have grown up with an institution and that cannot be added to or detracted from without the consent of the group that abides by them. Just as Benedetto Croerce in Politics and Morals has said laws are valid only so long as they are upheld by the people they govern; our social standards are valid only so long as they have the sanction of the student body.

Our Social Standards committee of the College Government Association is now working overtime to set forth a list of advisory principles directed at the student body in regard to their social conduct. These advisory notes will not be effective unless they conform with the general campus opinion of what proper conduct should be.

By now each individual on campus should have a personal social code set up for himself—a code which encompasses his idea of what he believes the right conduct for every event. These personal codes, not advisory lists, are the standards students will carry out into the world with them when they leave campus, and some of the personal codes will be altered to fit the situations in which we then find ourselves.

As an example, one of the items under fire by this committee is the wearing of jeans on campus. We have been told how, when and where we should wear jeans with the approval of our contemporaries—and we have been told pointedly. Now there are many individuals on campus who feel that they know the proper places and times to wear their beloved blue jeans. And unhappily, their opinion does not conform with the opinion of the single group setting forth the standards by which the students as a whole should abide.

Blue jeans and plaid shirts have become not only the style for Tallahassee girls but for college girls throughout America. In some places—schools as large and equally as high in rating as Florida State College—blue jeans are worn to class and even to the sanctuaries such as the library where we cannot even wear a feminine sun-back dress.

If our Social Standards committee are really interested in doing constructive work on campus, they should make some attempt to find out what the students themselves feel are the proper standards for our campus. Then they will have the sanction of the majority behind the advisory notes they hand out, and they can further the progress of student thought. This, and this alone, could make the students realize the value of social pressure which is really the only implement to be used in setting forth social standards!

● IT AIN'T NECESSARILY SO

It has become evident that the time is ripe for a definite statement of Flambeau policy as regards guest editorializing. There are several reasons for printing guest editorials, the primary one being the desire on the part of the Flambeau to present both sides of a controversial issue.

In an attempt to carry out the stated policy on the staff head, ie "It is the policy of the Flambeau to grant equal space and prominence to anyone wishing to present a contrary opinion whenever opinions on controversial questions are voiced in its columns"—we sometimes solicit and at all times encourage editorial opinion from students other than those on our editorial staff especially when the beliefs to be expressed are contrary to the beliefs of the staff.

Then, too, when an opinion has been voiced by a number of the student body, since the reason for any paper's existence is the expression of public opinion that opinion must be expressed. Editorials in this vein are accepted despite the fact that they may be contrary to our editorial belief.

The difference between guest editorials and letters to the editor lies in the fact that the editorials are frequently invited for controversial reasons or printed at the special request and under the auspices of some organization or group of individuals on campus. Also, editorials are more detailed and better constructed than the ordinary letter to the editor.

All in all, the publication of guest editorials is an attempt to provide an additional means of expression for students other than the limited editorial means of expression for students other than the limited editorial staff of the Flambeau. The views presented in these guest editorials are not necessarily the views of the editors.

Or Forever Hold Your Peace

To the Students:

It is not only the duty, but to the benefit af the students of Florida State College to do their part in preventing inflation by organizing a co-op here.

Recently, the state cabinet appropriated a loan of $6000 to the University of Florida for the purpose of establishing a co-op for the students there. If the state is willing to do this to help the boys save a little money, surely, if we here at FSC would work hard enough, they would do the same for us.

It's rather disgusting to have to pay seven cents for a candy bar which has "5c" printed plainly on the wrapper. If you're a member of a co-op, you are not only able to buy things at their usual retail price, but since it is a non-profitable organization, the surplus money will be divided equally among the consumers when the books are balanced, thus enabling you to buy at almost wholesale prices.

So when it's time to work for or against a co-op, be sure to give it your support. Remember, the only interest of the co-op is to protect you, the students.

Jackie Story.

Dear Editor:

I am In Favor of a "co-op" on campus. I believe it would do much to relieve this situation of monopolistic competition here. This business of paying 7 cents for a 5 cent nationally advertised candy bar is "redic."

More power to the "co-op."

Olivia Letton

Dear Editor:

At the last meeting of the Social Responsibility Committee of the YWCA, we discussed, among other things, the possibilities of forming a cooperative bookstore on this campus.

Everyone present expressed similar sentiments in favor of such a student enterprise. A student cooperative, we feel, would benefit the students by affording them textbooks at a lower cost. Too, we believe that cooperatives are democratic in the truest sense of the word. In such an enterprise, students would learn to work together for the common good. Since there is no substitute for practical experience, we believe that a cooperative would give us an invaluable education in democracy and at the same time help to lessen our living costs here.

We as a group pledge our support to any movement which might achieve the formation of such a cooperative on our campus.

Members of the Social Responsibility Committee,
YWCA.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS:

A third of the Nation's soft coal miners are off of the job as a result of the general shutdown ordered by John L Lewis. Several hours before the deadline, the stop work movement which started Monday in Pennsylvania increased to include 11 more states. Word came from President Truman in Key West, Florida, that he had instructed the Justice department to charge Lewis with contempt if he does not move to halt the walkout of more than 400,000 soft coal miners.

A three man Senate subcommittee held their first session today in regard to inquiring into the relations between Senator Bilbo of Mississippi and a group of contractors who built Army fields in his home state. Col Douglas McKay, retired, and Col J L Person from the office of the chief of Army engineers, told reporters that they were present to testify about the building of Keesler Field at Biloxi, Miss, and Kay Field at Meridian. They made no other comment about the case however.

The monthly government checks of more than half a million veterans in school or job training will be reduced, eliminated or temporarily held up according to the Veterans Administration. They will include those who failed to report their earnings by Nov 5, and those who are affected by the GI Bill limiting amounts in accordance with size of earnings.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS:

Further progress on the future of Trieste was blocked by Russian Foreign Minister Viacheslav Molotov as he insisted at a meeting of the Big Four foreign ministers on the establishment of a customs union between Trieste and Yugoslavia. Russia's satellite, Yugoslavia, would by this plan gain powerful advantages in the proposed Trieste international zone. Because of this new issue brought out by Molotov, the foreign ministers reached no new agreements on the proposed statute for Trieste.

That American-Filipino relations were improving, and that the maintaining of United States bases in the Philippines was necessary for the mutual protection of both nations, was the view expressed by President Manuel Roxas in an interview Wednesday. He stated also that the major Filipino problems would be solved when their people could produce enough in their factories and on their farms to meet the needs of the United States.

Czechoslovakia allied itself with Western Nations in regard to supporting American trade policy Wednesday, easing strained relations with the United States. Czechoslovakia in an exchange of notes made public by the State department formally pledged its willingness to abide by American-championed plans for expanded international trade.

Sharpie the Fifinella

Are you suffering from college fatigue? Do your muscles rustle when you hustle? Does your brain crane in vain?

If so, don't despair! Just enclose three library fees stamped paid, along with the wrapper from a seven cent Hershey bar, and you too can receive Sharpie's latest novel entitled, "The Sons Are Our Undoing," or "To the Victors Belong the Goils."

Unpaid adv.

Sharpie noticed the statement of reasons against inter-school competition in sports. They were:

1. Impairs student's health
2. Makes for emphasis on one small group.

To the first statement, Sharpie reminds everyone that other schools have done such without producing physical wrecks! To the second, Sharpie can only say—mmmmmm! (and she does mean mmmmmm).

First letter in this week's mail comes from "Distressed" and Sharpie, being a woman, (or didn't you know?) can sympathize duly with her. Distressed writes that every night she is disturbed by a mouse who manages to weave its way into her wastepaper basket and raise holy heck. What to do, is the question!

Sharpie of course was right there with a solution! Everything (yes everything) has some excuse for existing in this world. Such is true of even the Ladies Home Journal which fits exactly over a wastepaper basket and is thick (get it?) enough to shut out all sound!

"Griped" writes Sharpie that she is having trouble in the library. (Ed. Note—doesn't everyone!) It seems that they start slamming books around and closing windows about fifteen minutes before closing time. She wants to know if Sharpie knows what to do in such a case.

Dear "Griped!" Sharpie knows what to do in every situation but that one! That is a problem that would stump Mr Anthony himself. Rumor has it that the librarian even keeps a gun under her desk which she will fire thricely if things don't move along fast enough. She's a poor shot too—so don't tarry!

Sad news has come to our ears. Most regrettable news! Oh, unlucky us! Sharpie is in the depths of despondency and can only relate the tale in verse.

"Frank Buck, he was coming here
But Frank Buck is no more
What Frankie thought was an ancient Moose
Turned out to be a flashy Caboose!"

Oh, sob!

Sharpie will close with a concensus of opinion on what the ideal boy must have!

Bookplates Shown

Bookplates of humorous, armorial, abstract, symbolic, collegiate, special interest, and personal designs are the theme of the library exhibit in the center display case this week.

These bookplates represent a variety of sources: colleges, Dartmouth and Columbia; libraries; Florida State College faculty members, Dr Liddell and Dr Irish; and various well known persons, Edward M House, Sir Edmund W Gosse and Frederick Sessions.

Miss Frances F Haines is in charge of the displays. She states that many of the plates are taken from books bequeathed to the library. Others have been given by individual collectors.

Ain't Gonna Study War No More

In sharp contrast to the last few weeks of this column, the poison pen is going to be laid aside while we take a look at the good side of things at the Tallahassee branch. When Dean McBride said at the beginning of this term that the regulations of the Dale Mabry students were going to be based on standards of practical necessity, he was expressing an idea which has been carried out to the last decimal place. The only violations of this idea, the cut system for men and the threat of compulsory weekly assemblies, have already been discarded, the former to a large degree by the efforts of Dean McBride.

At present the men at Tallahassee have a degree of freedom which is not equalled by many other colleges in the South, and the prospective student government is being formed with much less interference and direction from above than was true of the majority of older institutions. What is more, we have every promise that we will continue with the present minimum of restrictions until some future group of students proves that they are not mature enough to take care of themselves.

In order to keep up this atmosphere of sweetness and light, we are even going to add a few good words about the chow. Few students at Dale Mabry today can fail to remember meals in the service which were practical demonstrations of what can be done with food to turn it into something unfit for human consumption—something only barely good enough to be given even to soldiers. And most of us can contrast that with the fact that the dining hall here takes much inferior material and turns it into something fit for an Officer's Mess.

Any criticisms of the food which have appeared here were criticisms of quantity and not of quality—and we agree that the quantity is limited by the low prices we paid for the meals. However, most of the men we have met have said that they would be willing to pay a slightly higher price in order to receive the kind of meals we young growing boys need.

Man's Best Friend—

The other day in zoology we got around to discussing man's best friend, and the discussion reminded me of a dog I used to have named Gus.

Gus was a peculiar kind of dog: his mother had been a cocker spaniel, while his father had been an old hound dog who went by the name of Joe. When Gus was born he was shaped like a spaniel, with a short, squat body and floppy ears, but his hide was just plain hound. The only part of his skin he got from his mother were three black, worried lines between his eyes.

As a matter of fact, Gus went around looking so worried all the time that it began to bother me; so one day I asked him, "Gus, why is it that you worry so much?"

At that Gus gave me a disgusted look and said, "Dan, it's this human race that's got me worried. The jerks are going to the dogs, and I'm darned if I want the responsibility for them."

Citizens Association

It is an unfortunate but inescapable fact that the majority of student governments tend, sooner or later, to be more sensitive to conservative faculty opinion than to the ideas of the students who elected them. Assurance that this is a situation which is unlikely to arise in Dale Mabry is provided by the new organization created this week among students of the University branch—the Citizens association.

This association, formed of these students who are most interested in the government of our student body, has as its aims merely to observe the operation of the student government and to act as a means of acquainting the student government with the opinions of the majority of the students by means of polls and petitions in such cases as shall seem helpful.

"Our purpose is not to interfere in the machinery of government," says Association President John Nicholson, "but to make sure that it runs smoothly. In a democratic government the final responsibility rests on the voters, and we feel that it is the responsibility of the voters to keep themselves informed."

At the meeting of the Citizens Asociation held yesterday, a motion was passed that the president of the organization attend the weekly officer's meeting in the capacity of an observer, and report on them to the body of the association.

Sorority Chit Chat

Parties ranging from after-din-er coffees to hay rides and wiener roasts made up the so-al activities for the Greeks this ast week. And more are still to ome. . . .

"Skippy" Corry gave a hayride and wiener roast at her home in Quincy Friday night in honor of the Alpha Delta Pi pledges.

At a coffee Sunday night the pledges entertained the members with skits.

Sunday night at supper at the Alpha Gamma Delta house was a wiener roast for Alpha Gams and their dates. Aileen Sayers was in charge.

Jeanne Dudley, a freshman here last year, was married to Edmund in Orlando Sunday at the Presbyterian church. Frances Me-ol and Marty Brokaw were two of her attendants and Betty Dot Galbraith helped at the recep-tion.

Betsy Bird, social chairman, will be in charge of a supper to be given Sunday night. The pledges will entertain the members with a skit which will be directed by Audrey Baird, skit chairman.

The annual Thanksgiving party given by the Alpha Xi Delta pledges for the active members will take place next week. Two birthdays were celebrated with parties at the Alpha Xi house this week. The party on Sunday night was in honor of Billy Ka-mski, and on Monday, Martha Terrell.

Miss Louise Richards, national traveling secretary, is visiting the Delta Delta Delta sorority this week. The Tri Delts held an in-formal supper for her on Tuesday night and a coffee in her honor Wednesday.

On Saturday afternoon the Tri Delt pledges gave a party for the pledges of the other sororities in the form of a fashion show. A football theme was used, and the decorations included silver, gold, and blue ribbon-trimmed goal posts and pennants with the var-ious sorority initials on them. Sal-ly Caldwell was in charge of the party.

Last Saturday afternoon the pledges of the Delta Phi Epsilon were busy fixing up the general appearance of their house and lawn. They were rewarded that evening when many of the big sisters took them out to dinner.

Last Monday night the Pi Beta Phis had Dr Claude Flory as their guest speaker for their monthly "Pi Phi Night." Dr Flory read various selections from the works of William Dunsany. Coffee and cookies were served following the reading.

Miss Helen Lloyd, member of the physical education department who recently graduated from the University of North Carolina where she was a Pi Phi, was pres-ent for the Florida Beta function.

Thetas and their dates were en-tertained at their usual Sunday night supper with a short skit put on by Jane Bennett, Janet Little, Bobbye Barber, and Marie Chillingworth.

The KD's had as their guest last Thursday, Mrs Harry Blan-chard of Pensacola, an alumna and a delegate to the music con-vention being held here.

Sunday evening there will be an informal coffee for the actives and pledges.

Phi Mu pledges entertained at a tea Thursday afternoon and to-morrow night there will be an in-formal get-together at 8.00 for both actives and pledges.

Regina Tomasello was in charge of decorations, Mary Jo Gwynn and Vance Jelks, entertainment, Gladys Clark, food, and Dot Dan-iels, invitations.

Delta Zeta pledges elected their officers at a meeting last Tues-day. Dot Crowsin was chosen president; Carrie Dixon, vice-president; Dot Wade, secretary; and Beverly Bentz, treasurer.

"More China" was the title of the skit presented by the Delta Zeta pledges at their party Tues-day afternoon. The girls intro-duced the various sororities with sayings from Confucius.

Betty Parker, alumna and member of Phi Kappa Phi hon-orary, was married to Dr Elmer D Holland November 12 in Thomas-ville, Ga.

Redecorating has been going on all week at the Sigma Kappa house. Furniture is being replaced and re-upholstered, new drapes are being hung and a new rug has been purchased for the sun parlor.

Alumna Cleo Loches was a vis-itor this week at the Sigma Kap-pa house and Lynette Patton, na-tional officer, is a guest at the house this week-end.

The Alpha Chis held a spagh-etti supper and party Saturday night for members and dates. The house was decorated with a col-legiate theme and the theme was carried out in the skit presented during the evening. Jane Arnold, Sally Slater, and Pat Harrison were in charge of arrangements.

Recently elected pledge offi-cers of Alpha Chi Omega are Jen-nie Elder, president, Dot Schoon-maker, secretary, and Camilla DeNisco, treasurer.

Monday night a joint chapter meeting with a cultural program was held for actives and pledges.

Zeta Tau Alpha actives will en-tertain the pledges at a party Monday afternoon.

Frilly Curtains Add the 'Feminine Touch' For Girls Living in Dale Mabry Barracks

Servicemen who might return to Dale Mabry now would never recognize the bachelor officers' quarters that they left behind when they were discharged from active duty.

Outside, painters are busy at work changing the olive drab to a bright cheerful white. Inside, the rooms are gay and comfort-able with the frilly curtains, scat-ter rugs and boudoir dolls which the new feminine inhabitants have added.

As Nezzie Bowles, a freshman in the Army house put it, "We girls have enjoyed fixing our lit-tle homes, and now we take great pleasure in the results of our ef-forts to improve the situation out here."

Recent additions furnished by the administration are book cases, towel racks and window shades. Some of the girls have invested in tables and chairs from the neighborhood stores. Sara Bowser, a sophomore in the Marine house, purchased a raw-wood table from Sears and has painted it with white enamel. Necessity is the mother of invention. Neal Ayala, a junior living at the base, gives this recipe for an emergency type-writer table: "Empty an overnight suitcase and set it upright on the floor with the two sides open. Next, put the shipping case your machine came in over the top of the suitcase to support the type-writer and place a chair in front of the entire structure."

The girls at the base have shown a great deal of originality in their interior decoration. Jayne Mills has a unique center-piece in her room—a robin's nest filled with flowers. Colleen Martin has posted a bulletin board for the sake of convenience.

The influence of collegiate style predominates throughout the four buildings. Evelyn Ozee and Bob-bie Glover demonstrate this trend exceptionally well, for their room sports a colorful display of pen-nants, athletic and band letters on the wall. They also have a cigar and an orchid pinned to the wall to represent outstanding "dates," and a Hawaiian lei adorns their bed-lamp.

Nearly all the girls have their walls plastered with pictures and photographs, and the dressers and shelves take on a new personality with the addition of perfume bot-tles, cosmetics and sewing kits. Teddy bears, dolls, dogs and other stuffed animals occupy places of importance on the upper and lower bunks, now covered by love-ly spreads.

Iris Shuler has put her skill at handwork to good advantage. She has embroidered delicate doilies and scarves and above her bed is an example of her subtle hu-mor. She has a framed motto which she made herself that reads "Home Was Never Like This."

Some ideas are repeated over and over in the majority of rooms, such as pictures of Cornel Wilde and other favorites, but a few of the girls have added personal touches which reflect their own individuality. Carolyn Ellis has maracas from Cuba on her book-case and Heinrich, a wooden al-ligator constructed by a German prisoner of war from whom he got his name, helps make it "just like home" to her roomate.

Leopold and Manville are a lit-tle horse and rider which ride the light cord in the room of Helen Penn, a freshman in the Navy house who says, "With each new improvement, I am getting to like it here at Dale Mabry Field more and more. Even the line strung across the room with last night's laundry drying on it is an inte-gral part of my room."

100 Upperclassmen Make Field Trip

Correctional Homes Visited By Students and Teachers

Approximately 100 psychology and sociology students with their instructors made a field trip to the Florida State Institution for Boys at Marianna and the State Hospital in Chattahoochee last Thursday, November 14.

The group, which traveled in two chartered buses, left the Flor-ida State College campus early Thursday morning and arrived in Marianna before noon. At the FSI they heard an address given by Mr Ralph Dossier, superintendent of the school, and then made a tour of the buildings, athletic fields and the classrooms.

Superintendent Dossier ex-plained that the general system of the school is the same for both the delinquent white and negro boys. He stated that the classes for the students are arranged so that each boy has his own indi-vidual, progressive work; although those of the same classification meet in one classroom where an older student serves as assistant instructor. The academic classes meet every other day, while vo-cational studies such as shop work, painting and plumbing fill the alternate days.

At the State Hospital in Chat-tahoochee, four of the doctors there gave illustrated lectures on various types of mental disorders. The doctors interviewed some of the patients at the hospital in the presence of the students, so that they could see how a men-tally deranged person would re-act to various types of question-ings. While in Chattahoochee, the field group did not make a tour of any of the wards or buildings, but attended the lectures in the large recreation room.

Dr Hugh L Waskom, Mr Pearle, Mrs Milton R Charles and Miss Margaret C Bristol were among the faculty members making the trip which, although open to mem-bers of any sociology or psychol-ogy class, was limited to students of junior or senior standing.

Culpepper Speaks To Kappa Delta Pi

Six New Pledges Presented Ta Educational Honarary

Mr J Broward Culpepper, direc-tor of the division of education, addressed the members and pledges of Kappa Delta Pi, educa-tional honorary, at their meeting Tuesday night in the club room of the Longmire building. At this time six new pledges were pre-sented.

Taking as his subject "Teach-ers Are People," Mr Culpepper advised the students on how they could be well-balanced individuals—teachers who are human beings—with a fresh, excellent point of view. "Be alone and relax," he counseled. "Think about yourself as an individual in society. Find time to be with your equals and ex-change ideas with them in order to stretch your mentality.

"Look over the world and see what's there," he continued. "Keep the things of today by keeping abreast of current news and being interested in the arts and music. Participate in some way to make the world a better one; contribute to life in the com-munity, but don't become in-volved. Be selective in your activi-ties," he concluded.

New Kappa Delta Pi pledges present at the meeting were: Vir-ginia Fran Gallemore, Ruth Jones, Beatrice Lewis, Julia Ne-elus, Mary Louise Perfect and Mabel Ruth Pope.

Erin Poythress was in charge of the program and Nell McNeil, Margaret Harley and Ida Lula Davis were responsible for the decorations and refreshments.

Articles to Be Sold

Mrs Edith Gulick, director of the Longmire building, an-nounced this week that an auction sale of the unclaimed articles of the lost and found department will be held on De-cember 4 in the Longmire au-ditorium.

All the articles that have been unclaimed for 60 days will be offered for sale except the more valuable articles, which will be kept longer in case the owners call for them.

Mrs Gulick also stated that the Wedgewood plate which was reported missing last week from the main lounge of the Longmire building has not yet been returned to the lost and found department.

Banquet, Freshman Party Featured by Religious Groups

A faculty-student banquet, a coffee, a housewarming and a party for the freshmen living at Dale Mabry highlight the activi-ties of the student religious groups on campus this week.

The Baptist Student Union will have their annual faculty-student formal banquet this Saturday at 6 o'clock in the East Dining Hall. Members of the faculty and stu-dents attending will meet before the banquet in the Longmire building lounge. Speakers will be Dr Doak S Campbell, Dr John McGuire, executive secretary of the Florida Baptist Convention, Mrs Ernest Cason, and Dr Wal-lace Rogers, pastor of the First Baptist church in Pensacola. Lou-ise Illingworth, president of BSU, will be the mistress of ceremonies.

Pat Laney, president of the Methodist freshmen, is in charge of a party to be given for the freshmen living at Dale Mabry Friday night at 8 o'clock at the Methodist Student house. The program is to be based on an In-tercollegiate sports-meet theme.

The Newman club has planned a coffee on Sunday night at 7:30 in the clubroom of the Longmire building. The freshmen members are in charge of the entertain-ment.

The Presbyterian students gave a housewarming party for Rev-erend and Mrs Lawrence I Stell in their new home. Special guests were the faculty sponsors, Dr and Mrs Hudson Rogers, Dr and Mrs Milton Carothers, Miss Elizabeth Lynn and Miss Sarah Herndon.

Report of Tests To Be Mailed Soon

2946 Receive Free Service; Unit to Return Next Year

The reports of the tuberculosis tests have been developed, and as soon as the radiologist and State Health department can interpret and record the findings, the re-sults will be mailed to their own-ers, according to Miss Fannie P Shaw, who was in charge of this program on campus.

Miss Shaw also announced that 2,946 persons were X-rayed at Florida State College. This num-ber includes the whole college population which encompasses faculty, students, clerical work-ers, maids, cooks, dairymen, farm-ers, and all other personnel em-ployed by Florida State College, which is estimated at approxi-mately 4,000.

"I was very enthusiastic when I first learned that almost 3,000 persons had been Xrayed," an-nounced Miss Shaw, "but when I found that this constituted only 75 per cent of the entire popula-tion, I realized that our greatest concern is why the remaining 25 per cent did not accept the oppor-tunity of receiving free X-rays. There's still a big job to be done in health education on all levels.

"This free service will be of-fered again next fall," continued Miss Shaw, "and it is hoped that we will have 100 per cent coopera-tion, and make up that lag of one-fourth of our population."

"I wish to thank the student-faculty committee and all of the sub-committees for the splendid services they rendered during this program," concluded Miss Shaw.

Soda Shop "Casanova" Gives Views on Feminine Customers

By Beryl Kitchen

"Van Johnson with black hair"—That's how Jack Keston, Casa-nova of the Soda Shop, is de-scribed by his co-workers behind the Alum's soda fountain counter.

Jack is in himself a campus institution, almost as much a part of this place as the ivy-clad walls, for, after four months of working at the Sweet Shoppe and a year and a half in the service of the Alum, this young soda-jerk knows everyone. Because of his friend-liness, Jack is beloved by stu-dents and faculty alike, despite his devilish insults, flippant air, and the practical jokes to which no one is exempt!

Always ready to do a "buddy" a favor, Jack consented graciously to this interview, while muttering something under his breath about "I really oughta be studying my chemistry instead." Never let it be said, though, that this young man would be one to put work ahead of feminine companion-ship, or, to be more exact, com-panionship, period. His seeming reluctance was just one small part of that unpredictable personality of his that keeps everyone guess-ing—and liking it.

Jack, having been exposed to life at Florida State College for so long, is as well-versed at the age of 18 in The Ways of College Women as most "men", five years his senior, like to believe they are. Little escapes Jack's eagle eye, and from his shrewd observations he has evolved quite a philosophy about women.

Always a diplomat, Jack claims that he likes "all the girls," em-bellishing this by adding, "The law of averages says that one outta every 100 girls is good-look-ing, and it looks to me like they all came here." See what we mean about Jack's irresistible charm? Moments later, of course, he spoiled this by admitting that there are "some goons, but not too many."

Ready to share his "heaven" with the 508 new males on cam-pus this year, Jack said "I like girls' schools, natch, but having some man around doesn't hurt things any." One phase of co-edu-cation, though, which has proved perplexing to Jack is that he often sees a gorgeous gal with an Ugly Chile. "Be derned if I know why" was Jack's short frank ans-wer to the problem, as he shook his black wavy head solemnly.

When he finishes at Leon high school in June, 1948, Jack is con-sidering the University of Ken-tucky for his next stomping grounds, because, he added with a wicked gleam in his dark eyes, "it's noted for whiskey, women and horses." After 2 years of mer-ry-making, Jack plans to turn serious and become a pilot in the Air Corps—though that is no guarantee that he'll be serious!

Suddenly, at this stage in the interview, Jack's buddy-in-mis-chief, red-headed Doug Grider called a temporary halt to the dis-cussion by yelling "Chemistry in-teresting tonight, chum?"

Jack dismissed him hurriedly. "Aw, be quiet, you dope. I'm help-ing this girl outta a jam."

"Hmmm, she'll be in a jam if you help her, Jack" commented Mrs Louise Burns.

Ignoring Doug's desires to make further "rude" interruptions, Jack busied himself putting us "in the know" about his extra-curricular activities . . . well, some of them, anyhow. He was perfectly willing to reveal to us that he liked to fish, hunt (he's a crack shot, in-cidently, in the Junior Division of the National Rifle Association), ride, and swim, but as to what he did on dates, Jack drew the line sharply. "That's personal busi-ness, girl", he said.

"Love don't make much differ-ence to me," he staunchly af-firmed, adding that he was prob-ably destined to be a bachelor.

Doug reared his red head once more, shattering Jack's plans. "Aw, you can't be a bachelor. You ain't old enough!"

"Aw, tell me. How'd you man-age to get so ugly in just fourteen years?" Doug, properly squelched, was now silent except for the volley of paper daggers and air-planes which buzzed us from be-hind the counter during the re-mainder of the chat.

Bored with out delving into his life and affairs, Jack left us long enough to make a "deal" on a coming Leon game. The question of odds finally settled to his satis-faction, Jack returned to impart to us further bits of irrelevant information, such as: He likes to read "nothing but the comic books", but occasionally breaks down to read Treasure Island or The Gold Bug. He no longer at-tends Boy Scout meetings because a "mob of youngsters and up-starts" have succeeded his gang. He claims that he cares little for the title of "lady-killer", but in-criminated himself with the com-ment that the color of a gal's hair matters not to him. It's the face that counts! "Their figures at-tract me, too. I'm interested in math," he says. Amen, you little devil.

Further dissertations on the subject of the fair sex eventually led Jack to a disclosure which startled us from our complacency—but fast! His favorite hobby, he announced, (if it were possible) would be "collecting good-looking gals." Calmly he added, "I've al-ready got a few in my room." . . . pause . . . Finally, "Varga gals, I mean." Whew! Taking us even deeper into his confidence, Jack whispered, "I've got about 50 in my room, but I gotta hide some of 'em from Momma!"

Upon this, we left—taking with us more confusion than ever about Jack's unique personality and reams of shorthand notes which were about as baffling as Jack himself.

His boss, Mary Parker, business manager of the Soda Shop, ex-pressed our feelings best when she declared, "Jack gets away with murder around here, but we couldn't get along without him." And she is so right! Jack's spark-ling personality keeps many of us going when we come down with one of those inevitable "Oh-what's-the-use?" moods. Here's to Jack!

Catterson Speaks On TVA Experiment

Accomplishments Aided In Atomic Work at Oak Ridge

"The power supplied to Oak Ridge, the home of the atomic bomb, was made possible by the Tennessee Valley Authority," declared Lorace E Catterson, instructor in political science, in an address Tuesday afternoon in the Longmire auditorium.

"Among accomplishments of the TVA are the increased navigability of the Tennessee river, excellent reforestation and the drop in unemployment in the area. Three-fourths of its power went into war industries, and it furnished chemicals to the armed forces," he continued.

Mr Catterson outlined his speech by relating the philosophy of the TVA, what it is, and the accomplishments it has made. The philosophy behind the TVA program was agricultural and social reform bringing about large scale employment, he stated. This 750 billion dollar construction was first inaugurated under Roosevelt's New Deal program. The TVA as an experiment in decentralization with which local agricultural agencies, farmers and colleges aided, was quite effective.

"Included in this social and economic reform project," Mr Catterson stated, "are the TVA's 26 dams. Seventeen of these dams are storage dams from which waters flow into five major tributaries. Nine more are for lock and navigation use. Ninety-eight per cent of the power in Tennessee is generated through the TVA"

Dr Richard T Baker, journalist and educator, will speak on the "Orient in Transition" December 2 at 12:30 in the Little Theater.

Civil Service Exams To Be Given Soon

Seniors Are Eligible For Junior Assistant Rating

Examinations for junior professional assistants will soon be given by the United States Civil Service Commission to all seniors who wish to take them, Dr Elizabeth Andrews, director of personnel announced this week. The basic entrance salary for the various positions is $2,644.80.

Applications for the positions must be in Washington by December 3. At the college personnel office, forms 5000-AB are available for this purpose as well as sample questions which will appear on the examination.

In general the duties of junior professional assistants consist of analyzation and appraisement of records, figures and documents. The assistants also do research and investigation work in such fields as archives, chemistry, economics, geography, mathematics, metallurgy, physics, statistics and textile technology.

General requirements for the positions are a four-year college course with a specific number of hours in various subjects depending upon the particular department in which work is being done.

DM Upperclassmen

All upperclassmen students living at Dale Mabry who have not as yet had the opportunity to vote on selections for the feature section of the 1946-47 Flastacowo may do so in lower Westcott Monday afternoon and Tuesday morning. A booth for this purpose will be open from 2 until 4:30 on Monday and from 10:30 until 12 on Tuesday.

Christmas Program To Be Presented

On Sunday evening, December 8 at 8:15 p m, in Westcott auditorium, the music department will present its annual Christmas program. It will be the "Christmas Portion" of Handel's "Messiah."

Soloists for the evening will be Paula Jean Teagarden, soprano; Phyllis DeKalb, alto; Walter James, tenor; and Herman Gunter baritone; Peter Jensen will perform at the organ. The 100-voice college choir and the orchestra will also participate under the direction of William H Presser.

Although this is a standard work, it has never before been presented at this university

Man on Roof Fools Expectant Crowd

"Is he going to jump?"

One minute passes.

The man continues to stare down at the people from his position on the roof of Westcott's auditorium.

Two minutes elapse and each is filled with suspense as students look up and wonder what the man's intentions might be.

With a jerk he moves back and draws from his pocket a handkerchief to wipe his face

Is he afraid? No. Quite leisurely he picks up a scaffold and begins to repair a column. Work is his reason for being 50 feet up in the wide open spaces.

Publisher Speaks

Mr Henry Wrenn, publisher of the Daily Democrat, spoke at the 201 journalism classes Wednesday morning on the practical side of journalism.

Mr Wrenn stated, "Greater opportunities than ever before are now open in the newspaper field" He stressed the fact that journalists should learn to write briefly and simply in words that the average newspaper reader understands. Moreover, he pointed out the advantages of a liberal and well-developed background as preparation for a journalistic career.

Sullivan Sees Bright Future Ahead If Two State Colleges Are Co-Educational

By John Sullivan

Johnny Sullivan, president of the boys' student body at Dale Mabry, was born in Tallahassee 26 years ago. "And I plan to stay here," the six-foot-four Southerner drawled. "I think there's a big future ahead for Florida, not only for the University and the College, but for the whole state."

In 1937 Johnny got started in politics as president of the student body at Leon high school. He was an outstanding athlete in football, basketball, track and baseball; and when he graduated that year, several southern schools tried to get him for their eleven-man team. Johnny was loyal to his home state though and accepted a scholarship to attend the University of Florida.

"I was plenty busy that year," said Johnny "And to make it worse, I hurt my knee in spring practice. You see, I was planning to be a physical education coach, and the knee injury was too bad for me to keep on at that." Johnny finally decided to come back to Tallahassee and get a job. He worked five years for the government with the United States Engineers.

"Then in March 1943 I went to Camp Blanding," Johnny smiled, and continued, "I guess that part of my life is just like every other boy's. I was, at different times, in the air corps, the quartermaster corps and the infantry. I was a buck sergeant when I went overseas, and I was a buck sergeant when I came back. That was in December of '45," he explained.

Johnny, the civilian, decided to take up his college education again, and went to summer school at the University of Florida. "But I sure was glad they made Florida State College co-ed, 'cause now I can go to school right in my hometown. You know," he began, and his expression grew serious, "a lot more boys and girls in Florida would go to school and go in their own state if there were a co-educational college here at Tallahassee, one at Gainesville and another somewhere in the southern part of the state. There's an attraction in having a co-ed school near home," stated Johnny.

The boys' student president said that he had wanted to take a group major in government, psychology and speech, but since such a thing isn't offered in the curriculum at FSC, he is taking political science and a speech course. "I haven't any definite plans about what I want to do after college," he said, "but I think I might like government work of some sort."

Johnny said he is already busy at his new job on the Dale Mabry campus, and that he hopes the "faculty and boys and girls will plan and work together for a bigger and better state school."

Motion Fails Before Group Of Senators

Vote of 15-16 Defeats Suggestion of Faculty Advisory Committee

Senate Votes in Favor Of Sunday Dancing

A motion to establish an advisory group from the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs to assist in senate consideration of the new constitution was defeated in senate last Wednesday afternoon by a vote of 16 to 15. This committee was planned to function in a purely advisory capacity at the request of the senate.

The plan to form a similar committee to assist the Student Constitutional Committee was rejected by this group during its last meeting, November 25.

Several members of senate felt that such a committee would place senate under obligation to carry out its suggestions, as well as to request its opinion on all issues.

However, the actual intention of having such a group, said arah Lewis, would be merely to offer the opinion of faculty members on such matters as senate might wish advice. She added that it would also serve to indicate what might be possible for the students to accomplish in drafting the new constitution.

One disadvantage, suggested Barbara Irving, would be in the unfavorable effect, the formation of such a committee would have on student body morale. Students feel in general, she said, that influence by faculty members would result in loss of original aims.

Moreover, a sub-committee from the larger faculty committee, would not truly represent its entire body, but would offer, in the final analysis, only individual opinions of a few faculty members. At present members of the constitutional committee are continuously asking advice of faculty members, particularly political science teachers, and so have the advantage of their help without official connection.

It is necessary, however, said ah Lewis, that the faculty committee be acquainted with the problems of the students to arrive at any real understanding of their aims. The constitution must eventually be approved by the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs, and it would be very discouraging to the students who have worked on the new constitution so long, to have it rejected when it is finished. It would therefore be better to shape it now so as to meet approval not only from the students, but also from the faculty.

A motion was made by Betty [illegible] that the faculty committee be formed, but this proposal was defeated by a 16 to 15 vote.

Editors Resign at Faculty Intervention

Three editors of the Wooden [illegible], St Petersburg Junior College student publication, resigned yesterday in protest to faculty censorship of the newspaper as a result of the printing of two student letters to the editor.

Dr Roland Wakefield, president of the college, stated that the faculty censorship was brought about not by the letters but in an attempt to keep profane and obscene matter out of the publication. The editors deny that such matter has ever been printed.

One of the letters which have caused the difficulty at St Pete Junior College was written by a war veteran against the college authorities "pushing the veterans around."

The other letter reportedly criticized the barring of cigarette ads from the College Union building.

Calendars on Sale Friday in Westcott

Engagement calendars being published by the Flastacowo will be on sale Friday, December 14, in lower Westcott, according to Lou[illegible] Sims, editor of the annual.

Blanks on which students are asked to indicate the number desired will be put in the post office boxes. Alumnae wishing to obtain a calendar are asked to get in touch with the business manager of the Flastacowo. The calendar will consist of a day by day memorandum and twelve campus scenes which are detachable. The price is to be $1.

In the event of an earlier release date, notices and announcements will be posted.

Class Schedules

The Registrar's office is distributing the Winter Quarter Schedule of Classes bulletin, which is just off the press.

Two additional classes, not listed in the new bulletin, will be offered by the Spanish department. These are: Spanish 201-1, on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, at 3:30 p m, 325 History building, taught by Mrs Nellie Kannwischer; and Spanish 201-2, on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday at 2:30 in room 223 of the History building. This is taught by Dr Margaret Campbell.

Dr McConnell Talks Tonight

FSC Faculty Consults Minnesota Professor

Tonight at 7:30 in the Augusta Conradi theater Dr T R McConnell, dean of the college of science, literature and the arts at the University of Minnesota, will speak to faculty members of Florida State College and the University branch.

As a special visitor on FSC campus this week, Dr McConnell has offered consultation on many significant problems of general education, based on his outstanding experiences in educational organization at both small and large universities.

On the subject of "Specific Problems in General Education" he addressed faculty members Tuesday evening. He gave a first hand account of the organization of a "general education" course on the Minnesota campus, entitled "Humanities for the Modern World." His group of faculty and advisers have eliminated the "string of beads" technique commonly used in survey courses, and have substituted studies taught in a specific and clearly outlined social frame. By its own merits the course has attracted a 2,000 enrollment from the student body of 16,000, according to Dr McConnell.

Dr McConnell was scheduled to meet with various committees on campus Wednesday, Thursday and Friday mornings and discuss problems of organization, curriculum and integrated courses. This afternoon he will meet with the faculty College Constitution committee.

While commenting on his experience in planning for general education at Minnesota, Dr McConnell described his policy as that of "finding young men with ideas" and giving them opportunity to prove their value, as opposed to a policy of mere academic efficiency.

When asked if he was here to aid in revising our school system for co-education, he replied, "My being here at the time when co-education has just begun to invade the college is purely coincidental. I am here to aid if possible in problems of organization and general college education." He went on to say that the size of the college and the efficiency with which the administration runs the school has impressed him.

Council Acts To Permit Keeping Cars

Dorman Requests That Students Get Forms For Home Permission

Action Is Experimental, Says Executive Council

"By action of the Executive Council, women students may keep cars on the campus, provided parents or guardians have filled out and signed the required permissions. These forms may be secured in the offices of the residence halls and must be filled out, signed, and filed with the residence counselor before the cars are brought to the campus. This action is for an experimental period."

This notice comes from W T Edwards, Secretary of Executive Council, and was released from the office of Dean Olivia N Dorman late yesterday afternoon.

Dean Dorman has requested that all students planning to keep cars on campus next quarter get the necessary forms from the office in their residence hall before the holidays so that they can have them filled out and signed by their parents or guardians while at home.

The proposal that students be allowed to keep cars on campus if a feasible plan could be worked out was brought forth in Convocation at the beginning of this quarter by Dean Dorman. A student committee was chosen to work on this recommendation and to present a plan to the Executive Council. Members of the committee are Betsy Wilson, chairman, Emily Sheftall, Sally Slater and Eleanor Bragg.

The major problem confronting the committee was parking. It has now been decided that there is enough space on campus for the cars without making a special parking lot. Certain areas will be designated as no parking, other areas for faculty cars, with the remaining and largest portion of space left free for anyone to park.

Rules and regulations concerning student use of cars will be exactly as stated in the Gold Book, pages 51 and 52, with the exception of rule 2 which states that "students are not permitted to have cars in Tallahassee."

Press Association Is to Elect Queen

The Miami Press Photographers Association invites the Florida State College student body to participate in the competition for the "Queen of the Press Ball" who will reign at the second annual Miami Press Photographers Ball on February 7, 1947.

Students who wish to enter are required to submit an eight by ten inch photograph of themselves, and must include their age, height, physical measurements, and educational background. Send this information and the picture to Miami Press Photographers Association, 600 Biscayne Boulevard, Miami 36, Florida. The contest will close at midnight December 15, 1946.

"Everything Comes at Once" Is This Week's Theme at FSC

"Everything comes at once" is one saying that is personified on the campus of Florida State College. Leisure is a word that has passed into oblivion as far as the students are concerned.

As "Dead Week" rounds the corner, exams and Christmas holidays are on the horizon Along with the long awaited holidays comes the problem of Christmas shopping—horrible thought!

Girls and guys arrive up town in swarms with well filled wallets that long list of presents to buy makes it bulge.

"It's best to shop early," said Doris Darsey with a knowing air, "but more fun to shop late." Yes, she was dashing madly from store to store laden with bundles.

The letters to Santa have taken a new slant this year, especially since the guys have arrived on campus with their problems of Dale Mabry. Bill Dunnavant swears that all he's interested in is a pogo stick or a pair of roller skates. Santa might not understand the transportation problem or hills in Tally, but all the students will sympathize with Bill. "The last place I inquired about a pogo stick they looked at me rather peculiarly," Bill concluded.

The girls are eagerly swapping ideas about what they are going to tuck into the Christmas stockings for their current beaus. It seems that the cigarette lighters and plaid skirts are leading the shopping list.

Roommates present another "present-problem." The main trouble is the fear that the gift will be something that she'll add to her overflowing collection of junk and take up some more of your precious drawer space.

Miss Dora Byron, journalism instructor, smiled a triumphant smile as she said, "My shopping worries are over! I just bought some of those cards which provide a pocket for a crisp green bill. Of course I'll find them, but my friends will have to 'Post Christmas' shopping and fight the mobs that are exchanging presents."

John Cash hasn't decided what he's going to give his girl because at present the chief problem is deciding on who is going to be HIS girl.

Winter winds will blow and the pages will fly from the calendar as "everything comes at once"—but Santa will work overtime to put gifts under the tree for the FSC students.

FSC Girls Look to the Future During Present Exam Despair

New Year's bells may not be tolling yet, but no one can say the girls at Florida State College haven't got their eyes on the future. As this final quarter draws to a close with exams just around the corner, resolutions for starting the New Year with a bang are in full swing.

The general sentiments voiced by the students concern turning over a new leaf in scholastic matters. Everyone is sure that if she just manages to pull through this quarter she is really going to burn the midnight oil next quarter. One of the more ambitious ones, Miriam Portnoy by name, states that she intends to do all her studying next quarter in the first three weeks, thus not having to cram at all for any of her exams.

At any rate, everyone seems to be thinking of some way in which to improve her lot next year. Monetary matters appear to head the list. Some of the girls are thinking of keeping an account book of their expenses in order to budget themselves more strictly. Fran Ewart was heard to say, "I'm really going to cut down on movies next year, and also on those high-priced pieces of pecan pie."

A few students have made very unusual resolutions. Trudging wearily up to her abode on the fifth floor of Gilchrist, Bobbie Meffert was heard mumbling, "Staring next year, I'm going to start running up these 72 steps instead of walking and maybe I'll get there sometime."

Cheryl Muster, with a humorous twinkle in her eye, declared that she had resolved to spend a little more time over in the Longmire building for recreation rather than shut herself in with her studies as she had done this quarter.

So, ring out the old bells! Ring in the new! The Tally girls are prepared to make the most of their opportunities when 1947 rolls around. Let no one dare to defy their will-power.

Distaff Ready Next Week

Freshman Articles Appear in Fall Issue

The fall issue of the Distaff, campus literary quarterly, has gone to the printers and is expected to be ready for distribution next week. Featured in this issue will be articles expressing contrasting views on the current Russian problem and the winning contributions in the Distaff's annual Freshman Writing contest.

Copies of the Distaff will be distributed to students at a table in lower Westcott. Faculty members will receive their copies through campus mail.

Winners of this contest will be announced only in the Distaff, and these freshmen will be asked to join the staff. Prizes will be awarded in the fields of fiction and poetry, but no article award will be given, according to May Alexander, editor of the Distaff.

Two articles, collectively entitled "Student's Look at Russia," are contributions from Alicia Armstrong and Lucius Daniel. Their articles are "With Hopes of Peace" and "With Fears of War" respectively.

Those students who contributed material to the fall issue of the Distaff may obtain their manuscripts in the Distaff office tonight from 8 until 10.

Deadline for the winter issue of the magazine will be February 1.

FSC Participates In State Drive

The state community chest drive which began December 1 and extends through December 7, has attained its most concerted phase on the campus of Florida State College this week. Mr Jerry B Kelly of FSC's science department is heading the drive on campus, assisted by Martha Peacock and Alice Gehan for students in residence and day students.

In three previous years, college faculty and students have been generous in their response, contributing nearly $1700 to the fund last year, it was announced by Mr C D Davenport, campaign director. Faculty members have been urged to contribute one day's pay to the drive. The contributions of students will be in proportion to their ability to give and their interest in seeing the goal met.

Mr Amos Godby, Leon County superintendent of public instruction and Dr Doak S Campbell, FSC president, are co-chairmen of the division of public schools and colleges. Betty Dowd, representing the Flambeau, is student member on the publicity division of the campaign of which Mr Tom Van Brunt is chairman.

"Council agencies improve the health, happiness, and welfare of our people. They help build good citizenship and character among our youth. They help make our town a better place in which to live," commented Mr Davenport. "For this reason we should give."

Strike Affects FSC

Heat is to be turned off in the classroom buildings from Saturday noon until Monday morning, and at 5 p m in the afternoons on other days, as the soft coal strike of the United Mine Workers begins to touch Florida State College. Mr R K Shaw, business manager, issued the order in an attempt to save the present supply of coal.

If there is to be a meeting in any of the classroom buildings that makes it necessary to have heat at night, it has been requested that the business office be notified before 4:30 p m the day of the meeting so that the heat may be kept on.

Christmas Vespers To Be Presented

Glee Club to Sing Sunday In Westcott Auditorium

The traditional Christmas vespers by the College glee club will be presented Sunday, December 15, at 5:30 p m in Westcott auditorium under the direction of Miss Etta Robertson. Accompanists will be Eleanor Bragg, piano; Miss Mary Reeder, harp; and Edith Smith, organ.

The first group of selections will include "Holy Lord God", antiphonal by Noble Cain; "Cherubin Song", a capella by Bortnianaky-Treharne; "Carol of the Bells", a capella by Leontovitch-Wilhousky; and Garth Edmundson's "Light", a capella sung by Alice Wheeler, soloist, and the glee club.

For the second part of the program the glee club ensemble will sing "Lo, How a Rose E'er Blooming" by Praetorius-Shand; "Christmas Snows of Sweden", a carol arranged by Riegger; and "A Celtic Lullaby" (Irish air), a capella, arranged by Robertson. Miss Emily Bridges, mezzo-soprano, will present Lehmann's "No Candle Was There and No Fire".

Included in the last group will be "List the Cherubic Host", by A R Gaul, presented by Paula Teagarden, soprano, and Phyllis DeKalb, alto; "From Heaven High the Angels Come", a traditional 14th century piece arranged by Clarence Dickinson, presented by Anne Daniel, soprano soloist. Gruber's "Silent Night" by the entire Glee Club will conclude the vespers.

McCollum to Lead Christmas Program

The American Association of University Woman will hold its third meeting of the quarter Tuesday, December 10, at 8 o'clock in Jennie Murphree parlor on campus. A Christmas program will be presented under the direction of Miss Edith McCollum, vice-president and program chairman.

At this time, an ensemble from the college choir directed by Mr Herman Gunter will render several numbers, and Miss Elizabeth Thomson of the speech department will read a Christmas story, "The Littlest Angel." Miss Grace Fox is in charge of refreshments.

Meetings of the association are held every second Tuesday of the month. The November meeting was held at Camp Flastacowo and plans are now being made for a spring reception to be given in honor of the graduating senior class in May.

A Creative Arts contest open to FSC students will be sponsored by the AAUW this winter.

President of the Tallahassee chapter of the AAUW is Miss Marjorie S Judy.

Dr Irish Makes Trip

Dr Marian D Irish, professor of political science, visited Washington, D C, this week to attend the national board meeting of the American Association of University Women. Dr Irish is the Associate in Social Studies on the national board. The board meeting, for which she left Tuesday, was called to discuss social legislation. Dr Irish was scheduled to return last night.

Group Passes On Proposals Of Revisions

Amendment to Be Sent For Senate Approval First of Next Year

Principles for Revising Discussed at Meeting

The proposed revision of the article on amendments was passed by a unanimous vote of the Constitution committee members present at a meeting Wednesday in the Longmire auditorium. The amendment will go to Senate for approval at the first of the year.

The general principles to be followed in revising the entire constitution were discussed at a recent meeting of the committee and embodied in the proposed amendment. These principles were adopted by the unanimous vote of a quorum.

According to these working principles, if student Senate and College Council fail to agree on legislative proposals, final authority will rest in an absolute two-thirds vote of student senate. In carrying out this idea of limited student government, final authority in passing constitutional amendments will rest in an absolute two-thirds vote of student senate and also of the student body.

In judicial matters the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs will act as an advisory body to the student judiciary.

The proposed amendment to Article XIV of the CGA constitution, concerning amendments, follows:

The Constitution and By-Laws of the Association may be amended by the following procedure.

1. An absolute majority vote of Student Senate for the proposed amendment.

2. Approval of the faculty committee on student affairs within 10 weeks after presentation of the amendment by its proponents. When five or more amendments are presented at once the time limit may be extended by Senate. If no action is taken within the time limit the amendment will return to Student Senate and be considered as not having the approval of the faculty committee on student affairs.

3. An absolute majority vote of the Association provided that:
a. The amendment is presented and explained at CGA Assembly and then posted for three days.
b. Voting is held within one week after presentation. Amendments not approved by the faculty committee on student affairs shall be returned to student senate with written objections.
Upon consideration of the report of the faculty committee on student affairs, Student Senate may do either of the following:
a. Revise the amendment and return it to the faculty committee on student affairs. A revised amendment approved by the faculty committee on student affairs shall follow normal procedure.
b. Pass it unchanged by an absolute two-thirds majority vote. An amendment passed by Student Senate over the disapproval of the faculty committee on student affairs shall require an absolute two-thirds vote of the Association become becoming valid.

Christmas Message

"I wish all the college family a most happy and satisfying Christmas, and extend congratulations on a pleasant and successful quarter," President Doak S Campbell said this week as the quarter is drawing to a close.

"Despite enlargement in student body, which has presented many problems, this has been one of the most successful quarters this college has ever experienced," he continued. "There has been splendid cooperation and an excellent spirit has prevailed."

Dr Campbell expressed conviction that such a spirit of cooperation and achievement could not fail to bring about a pleasant and inspiring atmosphere for both students and faculty.

"All are to be commended for cheerful adaptation and for the accomplishments which have been achieved during this fine quarter," he declared.

Men Students To Hold Vote

Ratification of New Constitution Is Issue

Men of the Tallahassee branch of the University of Florida will vote Monday for ratification or rejection of the proposed constitution drawn up by the student constitutional committee.

Balloting will take place in Westcott building and the Administration building at Dale Mabry. The polls will be open from 8:30 a m till 5:30 p m and voting will be by ays or nay.

The results of this voting will be announced at a special assembly next Tuesday at 5 p m in building 442, Dale Mabry. "The new constitution and next quarter's elections will also be discussed at this meeting," said Bill Fussel, co-cairman of the constitutional committee.

John Sullivan, president of the male student body, has gone on record as favoring the proposed document. He said, "I am in favor of adopting this constitution but, whether you vote yes or no, let's all exercise our privilege as a student and vote!" Copies are posted on various bulletin boards on campus and at the base.

The voting decision was made at the meeting of student body officers last Monday when the constitutional committee headed by Dean Wentworth and Bill Fussel, placed their final document before the officers. In order to be adopted as the basis of the student government a two-thirds majority of the votes must favor the document.

Election of new student body officers was discussed at the meeting. Arrangements were tentatively made to hold these elections January 17. A committee headed by Jack Richey was appointed by president Sullivan to handle these eletion details. With Richey were appointed George Croy, Bill Fussel, and Dean Wentworth.

In the men's student government meeting of November 25 a motion was passed to provide for two suggestion boxes to be set up for students wishing to put forth their ideas on how the government should be run.

Botany Students Experiment With Plants in Greenhouse

There are all sorts of unusual things found in the greenhouse and laboratory of the botany department. For instance Dr Herman Kurz, professor of botany, keeps his collection of various rare orchids in a specially constructed box which adjusts the humidity to a certain degree of moisture. There are all sorts of mysterious beakers and jars of plant cuttings which are being artificially stimulated to grow or which are treated with hormones to form odd varieties of their species.

One of Dr C S Nielsen's advanced botany classes is at present conducting an experiment in which the growth of plant roots on cuttings is artificially produced by the use of growth stimulating acids. The acid is placed in a solution in the beaker in which the cuttings are kept and a record is kept of the amount and rate of root production.

This advanced class is also experimenting with the effect of longer days on the growth and maturation of plants. The "longer day" is produced by the aid of artificial lighting during a specified number of hours at night.

Among the unusual varieties of plants produced through the ingenuity of the botany classes and instructors was a seedless tomato. Just after the plant blossomed, certain parts of the flower were removed and a speck of hormone was added in its place. The plant was covered and carefully tended until it fruited. The product was a tomato entirely free of seeds.

More advanced students and those who desire special instruction in botany meet in the laboratory which is equipped with microscopes, slides, fossils and other equipment for special and research work.

The sunny, well-lighted greenhouse is located on the third floor of the history building. There are full-length windows around three sides against which there are shelves holding a great variety of young and mature plants, flower settings, and quantities of material such as corn and beans for use in the classrooms.

Due to the present coal shortage, the greenhouse is kept at a favorable temperature between 62 and 98 degrees Fahrenheit by electric heaters during the cold nights. This duty and that of watering and cultivating classroom plants is the task of one of several laboratory assistants.

Graduation Will Be Held December 18

Families and Friends, Faculty and Students Are Invited to Attend

Campbell Has Reception For Graduating Class

The commencement exercises of the fall graduating class of in the Augusta Conradi theatre, Florida State College will be held Wednesday, December 18, at 4 p m, according to Dr Doak S Campbell, president of the college.

Plans for the program are as yet incomplete, but it will be informal, and the families and friends of the 18 members of this graduating class, and the faculty and student body of FSC are invited to attend the graduation exercises.

A reception honoring the members of the fall graduating class of FSC was held last night at the home of Dr and Mrs Doak S Campbell at eight p m.

The graduation class, by college divisions, is as follows:

Sylbia Meisch to Be Beauty Candidate

Varga Will Judge Seminole Beauty Queen at Fall Frolics

Sylvia Meisch as "Miss FSC" will represent Florida State College today when Varga will select the Seminole Beanty Queen of 1947 during Les Brown's concert from 5-6 p m which is a part of Fall Frolics at The University of Florida.

Five hundred and twenty fivs votes were cast for Sylvia Meisch from Sanford, a sophomore art major and a member of Delta Delta Delta sorority. Winning second place Shirley Rodgers is from Savannah, Georgia, editor of the Flambeau, a senior journalism major and a member of Alpha Gamma Delta sorority. Mary Nell Thrower and Ruby Grace Daniel tied for third place. Others nominated were Elaine Dorfman, Amelia Crossland, Mary J Jones, Norma Chalker, Sarah Ann Davis, Nancy Keener, Betty Shirley, Peggy Jean Pegues and Joy Simpson. The submitted pictures may be obtained by calling for them in the Flambeau office.

The selection of the Seminole Queen will be a part of the annual Fall Frolics program at Gainesville which begins today and lasts through Sunday. Sylvia Meisch will be in competition with other finalists—winners in similar contests in other Florida Colleges plus the contestants who won through photographs submitted to Ronald Reagen and Jane Wyman.

Election Schedule

It has been announced that freshman elections will begin officially on Tuesday, December 7, with final voting to be held on Tuesday, December 14. Publicizing of election candidates may not begin until the candidates are introduced in a freshman convocation which will be held on Thursday, December 9. The calendar for elections follows:

Tuesday, December 7—Petitions must be in by 10:45 p m.
Thursday, December 9 — Introduction of candidates in freshman convocation, after which publicity may go up.
Saturday, December 11—First primary from 9 a m to 8 p m in the junior counselors' rooms.
Tuesday, December 14 — Finals held from 9 a m to 8 p m in the junior counselors' rooms.

Baker Talks To Students

"Orient in Transition" Is Journalist's Topic

"The only hope for the world today is Christianity, belief in the brotherhood of man, and the willingness to lose one's self in order to lessen some of the friction between the power blocs today," declared Dr Richard T Baker, journalist and educator, in an address to the students of Florida State College last Monday, in the Augusta Conradi theatre. Topic of his talk was "Orient in Transition."

Dr Baker, who was one of the first correspondents to return to Japan after the war, stressed the fact that although many of our men saw the world during the war, too few saw it with sympathy and understanding. American prejudices, he said, over things such as lack of plumbing, made them close their minds and hearts against the realities and feelings of the native inhabitants of other countries.

"Wa beat them but we got licked," continued Dr Baker. "Our costly victory has done little to settle things, as the conditions in the Orient are little better than they were in 1942. War is a highly inefficient means of settling disputes since it not only ereates great problems which necessitate the organization of a world security council, but it also builde up such powerful single nations that they defeat the purpose. Our young blood won victory, now we must guard it."

The fact that today if a man, party, or nation strives to save it's life, it must first lose it, was also stressed by Dr Baker. From individuals to nations, all try to attain their own ends. China needs peace today as never before, yet the parties strive against each other.

"The same conditions exist here," he announced, "and we are approaching problems in the same way. The people of America have been trained, through love of freedom, to come to think that each group is separate, and sovereign, and that there is no way to settle problems except by strife between the various power blocs."

In conclusion he added, "If more people in the world today would give Christ a leading hand in settling disputes, and consider the welfare of others instead of putting themselves first, universal good-will could be attained sooner and more effectively."

Dr Baker was sponsored on campus by the Young Women's Christian Association and the Wesley Foundation, the Methodist group. At present he is on a tour of Florida for the Methodist board.

Put the Blame on Mamie; It Wasn't Mrs O'Leary's Cow

"Hello, Mrs Nold. Campuside is on fire."

"What? Who is this calling?"

A nervous voice belonging to Joan' Peters, Campuside resident, hastily explained that the house was actually on fire—flames were coming from an unused flue in the kitchen.

At noon Wednesday Campuside was deserted except for three girls and the maid. Joan heard a knock at her door and there stood the maid who asked in a trembling voice: "Could you come here a minute?" She led the bewildered Joan to the kitchen where flames were coming from one corner.

"What can we do?" was the unasked question as Joan ran upstairs and downstairs in the house searching for someone who could help. Another student came to her aid, but they were unable to determine the proper procedure in putting out the fire. The maid, laughing at their excitement, calmly suggested that they call the head house manager, Mrs Marie Nold.

Soon Mrs Nold and three men came tearing to the rescue. But too late—the fire had gone out. Because the furnaca had been overly fired, the intense heat caused the board covering the flue to burn. Now a piece of metal takes its place, and though they say metal doesn't burn, precautions are being taken so that the furnace will not be over-stoked again.

Choir to Sing Handel Work

FSC College Orchestra To Accompany Group

George Frederick Handel's Messiah will be presented by tha mixed choir of Florida State College students Sunday avening at 8:15 in Westcott auditorium under the direction of Herman Gunter, assistant professor of voice in the school of music.

For the first time the college will have the privilege of hearing this difficult oratorio sung by students. Accompanied by the college orchestra which is directed by William Presser, the choir will present the Christmas sections of the Messiah with solos being rendered by Phyllis DeKalb, alto; Paula Teagarden, soprano; Walter James, tenor; and Herman Gunter, bass.

The college choir began officially this fall under the direction of Mr Gunter who has had wide experience in conducting and singing the Mesisah. Unofficially, it started the summer of 1945 in the summer camp chorus and has developed into the group it is today.

"This performance is shaping up into one of the best in which I hava had the privilege of appearing," remarked Mr Gunter on the return of the choir from its first public performance in Jasper last Wednesday night. "The audiance seemed most appreciative and some remarked how much FSC is doing to increase music appreciation throughout the state."

Those singing in the choir are: Jane Arnold, Emma Neal Ayala, Anne Bache, Joe Ann Barnes, Audrey Beard, Helen Beasley, Marjorie Booth, Inez Bowles, Sue Bush, Mildred Coleman, Joyce Cooper, Lou Jean Crum, Mary Curtis, Priscilla Dale, Carolyn Ellis, Arlia Frink, Mary Louise Gambie, Irene Glover, Mary Grimsley, Patty Hamilton, Joyce Hansen, Effie Hargrove, Pat Harrison, Esther Howard, Perilie Hunt, Victorine Johnson, Billie Kacinski, Margaret Keddie, and Cinda Kent.

Others are Doris Lamb, Marquita Lance, Pat Laney, Glenna Long, Moira Long, Imogene Lyons, Martha McCormack, Nancy McFarland, Rachel McInnis, Mary Sue Michael, Carol Murrell, Bessie Myer, Mildred Nichols, Ann Nicholson, Evelyn Nex, Kate Nunez, Peggy Parish, Suzanne Pettit, Jeanne Phillips, Peggy Rainey, Peggy Rigell, Jacqueline Sauls, Dawn Shirah, Sally Slater, Jeanne tSalnaker, Doris Stallwood, Janet Stephenson, Bernice Strickland, Bobbie Strickland, Margaret Strum, Joann Sumers, June Taylor, Elise Thomas, Martha Waters, Shirley Webster, Martha Wheeler, Gloria Williams, June Williams, Lucille Wooten, Eloise Ziglar.

First tenor is sung by Albert Bradford, Don McDowell and John Sullivan. Second tenor sung by Sandy Boyer, Jesse Burt, Royce Burt, Bill Darman, Preston DeMilly, James Graham, Billy Ketcham, and John Madigan.

Teachers to Sing

Herman Gunter, assistant professor of voice, and William James, assistant instructor in voice, will appear in tha Jacksonvilla Civic Chorus Wednesday, December 11 singing the solo parts of the Christmas sections of the Mesiah.

House Mother and Long-Time Resident Of FSC Recognizes Need for Changes

In room 203, Reynolds Annex, there lives an elderly, slightly stooped retired house mother, Miss Mamie Andrews, who has lived on the Florida State College campus for 33 years.

At first notice one would know that "Miss Mamie" is dainty. A fair, rosy complexion, soft grey hair, and small hands accompany her slight statue. Her eyes sparkle with merriment. Active, regardless of her years, she loves to talk and is very direct with her opinions.

When asked how she had liked being a house mother, she quickly replied, "Loved it! It was most interesting to watch the growth and development of the girls."

About co-education for Florida State, Miss Andrews commented, "It looks good and it looks natural. It is a state of advancement. There are, however, some things which I do not like. It will all have to be worked out. Time and experience alone can do it properly."

She believes that we have outgrown the "Even and Odd tradition" as we out-grew the "Weddings" and hall carnivals.

According to Mrs Susan Sanders, a formar house mother, Miss Andrews used to be constantly "on the job."

"She was up all hours of the night seeing what 'that noise' was. . . . We used to wonder if she ever got any sleep," remarked Mrs Sanders.

Former students who were here when Miss Andrews was a counselor say that she had a way of knowing everything that went on. Some seemed to think that she had a supernatural ability which enabled her to "know all."

Miss Andrews says of herself, "I used to know everyone in Tallahassee and his family history. Now I know only the very old families. I knew all the girls I worked with, their names, addresses and family life. My main interest is people. I wish I could know them all."

Expressing her appreciation to FSC for providing her a home, Miss Andrews said, "The people of the college are very nice to me. They let me live on here. They take good care of me. I never want to live anywhere else."

Recalling humorous incidents that occurred during the time that she was a house mother, Miss Andrews laughingly said of the girls who lived in the former East Hall: "What East Hall didn't think of doing wasn't worth doing." Sha went on to relate some of the things that happened.

There was one girl, Mae, who was always playing jokes on the others.

Mae, it seems, had a knack for original pranks. One night sha took a white night gown, put it on a hanger, and lowered it out her window, letting it dangle outside the window below. By pulling the string, Mae could make the ghostly figure flutter about. The frightened girls in the room below screamed and rushed from the room.

To repay Mae for their scare, these girls went one night into Mae's room and hid, one behind the old-fashioned burean and one behind the dresser. Later Mae went in and began studying. After awhile she looked up to see the bureau and dresser "walking" towards her Screaming, she dashed for the door It was locked. She became frantic The girls could no longer conceal themselves and they all sat down and "laughed it off" together.

These East Hall girls called themselves "Miss Mamie'e Pests."

When "Miss Mamie" was still a young girl, she moved with her family from Bainbridge, Georgia, her birthplace, to Florida. Since 1897 she has lived in Tallahassee. In February, 1913, she became a house mother—she prefers the title "house mother" to "counselor"—at Florida State College, a position which she held until she retired in April, 1941.

Norway ranked fourth among the nations in merchant shipping before the Nazis overran the country in 1940.

Motion Fails

ing the meeting was of abolishment of the rule forbidding dancing on Sunday. A report was given by Sarah Lewis upon the attitude of President Doak S Campbell on this issue.

"Dr Campbell," she said, "does not feel that it is a moral issue, nor one in which his personal opinion need enter. But the college policy is unfavorable to dancing on Sunday because of the belief of parents and other citizens throughout tha state that it is undesirable. This regulation is similar to the ruling against girls wearing jeans on the street. It is not that it is immoral, but that it is not the socially accepted thing to do, and, therefore, is not a college policy."

In order for this ruling to be changed, it would be necessary for public opinion to favor the change, Sarah continued. In this case Dr Campbell would, she believes, carry the question to the Board of Control for their decision.

It would be desirable, suggested one member, that at least Dr Campbell know student opinion on this matter. We as representatives of the student body should, she said, take a vote as to its attitude on this matter.

A motion was made by Ann Hunter that a resolution be sent to Dr Campbell expressing the senate's opinion, and a motion in favor of dancing on Sunday was carried by a vote of 24 to 7. The resolution formally stated, "We as members of senate by vote of 24 to 7 are in favor of Sunday dancing."

An addition was then incorporated into the resolution that the senate express its knowledge of Dr Campbell's position, but that they felt that perhaps public opinion had changed. Therefore they wished him to request the board of control to reconsider their previous decision.

Opera Is Cancelled

The Chicago Popular Opera January 14, 1947 will not be able to appear due to the coal shortaga and the company's inability to find auditoriums to practice in.

Dean K O Kuersteiner is trying to replace this company with another opera company and will announce the results of his effort as soon as possible.

Rotary Club Gives Year Subscription

The Rotary Club of Tallahassee presented Casa Cervantes, Florida State College's Spanish house, with a one year subscription to the Spanish magazine, Revista Rotaria, last week.

Tha purpose of this gift, as stated on the card which accompanied the subscription, is a "token of good will and sympathy" with the hope that its reading will be not only pleasant and interesting, but that it will "contribute towards establishing firmer inter-American relations."

Miss Rivera, director of the Spanish house announced that the first copy, containing articles pertaining to national and international problems and activities, has already been received.

Cashin' In

By John and LeMoyne Cash

On New Year's Day seven of the top ten football teams in the nation will compete in major bowl games. They are Georgia, UCLA, Illinois, Tennessee, Louisiana State, Northb Carolina and Rice.

Georgia, voted the number three grid machine in the final poll of Associated Press sports writers, collides with sixth place North Carolina in the Sugar Bowl classic at New Orleans. The Bulldogs were co-champions of the Southeast Conference along with Tennessee, whereas the Tarheels have a claim to the Southern Conference title. This tilt should provide the outstanding match of the day as the two great Charlies, Trippi of Georgia and Justice of Carolina duel for personal honors.

UCLA, holding the fourth spot, es with fifth ranged Illinois in the Rose Bowl at Pasadena, California. The Uclans and Illini are winners of the Pacific Coast and Big Nine Conferences respectively. They will be fulfilling a contract made recently which sends the champions of those two conferences to the Tournament of Roses.

Tennessee, seven, and Rice, ten, will journey to Miami as opponents in the Orange Bowl. Both schools tied for honors in their conference play, the Vols in the SEC with above-mentioned Georgia and the Owls with Arkansas in the Southwest.

The Razorbacks will furnish the opposition for Louisiana State in the Cotton Bowl in Dallas January Arkansas is rated 16 in the AP and LSU, the eighth ranked team nationally, rounds out the list of bowl-bound players from among the top ten teams of the country.

Notre Dame and Army, ranked one and two respectively in the sports writers' poll, will not play in a bowl extravaganza. Both teams received tentative bids from bowl selection committees but in keeping with their customary practice, turned all bids down. For each of these teams the season is ended. With the Irish winning first place mostly through Army's loss of prestige with a narrow 21-18 win over Navy last week, the Cadets' three year reign at the top of the national football heap was ended. This possibly was an advance indication of how Army will fare in future years. With the graduation of Davis, Tucker, Blanchard and most of the other Cadet standouts Coach Earl (Red) Blaik will have to dig way down into the magic hat to come up with a top ranking team next year.

Here in Florida the up-and-coming Gator Bowl in Jacksonville may well present one of the better games on New Year's day with the matching of North Carolina State and Oklahoma. State, with a record of eight wins and two losses (to Vanderbilt and Virginia Polytechnic Institute) is rated 15 in the national poll. Howard "Touchdown" Turner, All-Southern Conference back, spearheads the Wolfpack attack. The 14th ranking Sooners from Oklahoma are led by halfback Joe Golding, who made All-Big Six Conference and is one of the leading ground gainers in the nation.

With the football season over except for the bowl games and a few late season tilts attention of sports fans has turned for the moment to the All-America teams. The AP team chosen this week placed two Florida boys, Arnold Tucker, Army's great quarterback from Miami, and Herbert St John, Georgia Bulldog guard from Jacksonville, on their third string All-America selections. Broughton "Brute" Williams, University of Florida's bruising end from Tampa, was given honorable mention.

Minus the services of the "Brute," the Gators wound up a perfect season with no wins and eight defeats last Saturday with a 47-12 loss to Auburn and "Traveling Travis" Tidwell. As in recent years, in fact as far back as these young writers can remember, the words of Florida fans and alumni are again "Just wait till next year." Maybe that "next year" will come someday and Florida will field a team that can win one game.

Male Eye View

Can Forida Become a Threat in Southeastern Conference Competition?

By CLINT WILLIAMS

The Florida system of higher education has recently taken, on a temporary basis, the broadest step yet to remedy the condition which places it far below par as compared to other southeastern schools. That step was the co-educationalizing of Florida State College for Women. This step, though taken through necessity, has the earmarks of permanency. The final action as to its life or death depends entirely upon the State Legislature of 1947.

I believe that co-education is the only answer to the question, "What's wrong with Florida football, basketball, and baseball teams?" Each year we find around four hundred students leaving the state to obtain their higher education elsewhere. There are numerous reasons for their leaving, but the dominating cause is our segregation of males and females. It is estimated that approximately to 75 per cent of these students leave because of athletic attractions, co-education, and dislike of general college. The remaining number go elsewhere, following their parents, and for other reasons. I wish to call your attention to the fact that most leave due to conditions which could, with the aid of administration and legislation, be corrected. We have no immediate way of determining the exact number of these students who participate in athletic functions of these scools, but a quick look around the country will give an idea of "what got away," whether through the stupidity of Florida scouts, the lack of the long green to attract them, or for the simple reason that they wanted to go to school with the girls (which is a plausible reason in anybody's book). We find that Jimmy Nelson, All American halfback of Alabama, was a Live Oak boy. Arnold Tucker, star back of Army the past three years, is from Miami. Pist'l Pete Williams, regular halfback for Navy this season also is a Miami boy. Florida produces men of that caliber every season, but is never able to hold them. Now is the time to act to bring permanent co-education to the state, and start organizations which at least resemble athletic teams. This season Florida duplicated its record set in 1916 by not winning a single game of its schedule. On the other hand we have in the state a high school team which has dominated state high school ball the past two years, and is recognized as one of the outstanding high school teams of the south. This team will appear in the Shrimp Bowl of Biloxi, Mississippi, tonight. Three of the four backfield men of that team have been offered athletic scholarships by several outstanding universities of the South. These men will make outstanding college players, yt they have expressed the desire to attend FSC if it remains co-ed and fields a ball team. These are the type players Florida is losing each year to teams which defeat them on the gridiron, hardwood, and diamond.

Furthermore, the graduating high school students and returning veterans are kicked in the teeth before they get started by the prescribed curriculum handed down by both state schools. Two years are spent studying Hector running around the walls of Troy three times before he gets killed and or whether it is better to have a bird's eye view of the bull or a bull's eye view of the bird, along with similar crap. This evil can best be described as a two year prescription of patent medicine by a quack doctor. I fully realize such curses are endorsed by so-called educators, but who wouldn't endorse such procedure when they are dragging down $2190 up per annum, and working only 15 to 20 hours per week. The average student of today is an ex-service man, well developed physically and mentally, and is lookig for a means to increase his ability to make money; not a mess of first class foolishness some people call a well-rounded education. I can see no reason on earth why a student planning to be a lawyer should be forced to take the same curriculum for two years as the student studying medicine, engineering, education, music, or any other field for that matter. That's what this general college amounts to. I attended an out-of-state university for one year before enrollment conditions forced me to return to Florida to continue my education. I found no such rigid requirements facing me as I have found in Florida. This factor is another big reason why Florida is losing it's high school graduates to out-of-state schools.

My hat is off to Governor Caldwell and his assistants for the splendid efforts they are putting forth to awaken the too long overslept Florida system of higher education.

Odd Hockey Team Wins, 4-1 Over Evens

Nancy Ward Is High Scorer for Odd Team Soccer Teams Tie, 2-2

FSC Marching Band Gives Show Between Games

With the Odd-Even soccer teams battling to a 2-2 tie and the Odd hockey team scoring a 4-1 victory over the Evens, the traditional Thanksgiving games were held Saturday, November 23, on the athletic field.

First game to be played was soccer with the Evens getting the opening kickoff. A surprise play at the kickoff by the Evens put them deep in Odd territory where the red, white and purple goal was threatened repeatedly. Fullback Joanne Zewadski pulled the Odds out of danger by kicking a hard ground ball to center Ethel Clann. Moving quickly down the field on their first offensive play, the Odds tallied on a field goal by Virginia Palmer, wing.

In the second quarter, the green and gold team evened the score when Kathryn Aspinwall, wing, kicked the ball through the Odd uprights. At half time the score stood as it did at the end of the game, 2-2. During the second half both teams fought up and down the field vainly trying to break the tied score. Late in the fourth quarter Mickey Chambers, Odd center forward, missed an opportunity to break the tie when she lost the ball on a penalty kick. The game ended with the Evens again knocking at the Odd goal trying to score.

In the second contest a highly favored Odd team lived up to their followers expectations by handing the Evens a 4-1 shellacking. Early in the first quarter, Nancy Ward, Odd, drove down the field for the first goal of the game. In the first part of the third quarter, Rosa Lee Davis, Even center forward, scored the only goal for the green and gold eleven. Taking scoring honors for the game was Nancy Ward, who accounted for two Odd goals in the first half and one in the second. Nita Nord tallied the other Odd goal. The Evens unsuccessfully threatened to score several times in the game hut never was able to muster enough punch to drive the scoring marker in.

Officiating in the soccer game were Miss Grace Fox and Miss Babe Evans. Officials for the hockey match were Miss Mary Jane Lloyd and Miss Laverne Sitton.

Starting out for the Evens were Catherine Sullivan, Elaine Brown, Betty Kennedy, Bopie Whitaker, Betty Stewart, Mary Roundtree, Ellen Schallern, Candy Jones, Jean Lumpkin, Anna K Horne, and Evelyn Shea.

Starting players for the Odd hockey team were Nita Nord, Mae Manning, Nancy Ward, Mary Jackson, Virginia Goodell, Clarice Trueblood, Sis Miller, Mary Nell Goldman, Dottie Patrick, Nancy Gleston, and Catherine Gallagher.

Beginning for the Even hockey team were Claire Smith, Mary Jo Whidden, Rosa Lee Davis, Mary Jane Taylor, Anne McInnes, Amelia Pavese, Amarene Thompson, Joyce Garman, Snooks Lipe, Pinky Simmons and Marion Floyd.

Louise Sims, Flastacowo editor, requests students to turn in their favorite snapshots at the Flastacowo office, second floor of the Longmire building. The snapshots play an informal and entertaining part in the annual, and the staff is anxious to have as many as possible.

Barracks 701 Takes DM Football Crown

Wins 7-0 Over Upper 700; Howell Scores Touchdown

Led by the hard-running of Howard Kelley, Miami halfback, and the smooth ball-handling of quarterback, Wayne Howell, Monticello, Barracks 701 tallied in the last half of their championship game yesterday afternoon to take the Tally Branch intramural football title with a 7-0 win over a scrappy team from Upper 700.

Upper 700 had advanced to the finals with a 6-0 win over Barracks 516 Monday.

The winning score was counted in the last half on a drive mixed with one short aerial and four brilliant running plays. Kelley took the ball on three of the running plays driving through the center of Upper 700's line, then with the ball resting on the 12-yard line Howell held the ball and eased around left end to count the touchdown. An aerial from Howell to Bob Schirmer, Orlando end, notched up the extra point to give 701 a 7-0 lead.

With Bill Parker and Joe Palumbo doing most of the flinging Upper 700 fought back in the dying moments of the struggle and one pass from Palumbo to Lonnie Burt, St Petersburg, almost resulted in a score, but the struggle ended with the ball going over to 701 when their rivals failed to make a first down on the 37 yard line. Both teams made two first downs.

Barracks 701, Lower deck, is currently leading the Tallahassee Branch of the University of Florida intramurals in tournament points with 300 points accumulated.

Walls of Building Resound to Roar Of Broken Machine

"It's happened again . . . quick, phone Mr Rogers!"

Amid appalling sounds which resembled screams, this hurried exclamation was heard for the umpteenth time in the testing office in the Education building.

The cause of all this commotion was the automatic grading machine which is supervised by Dr Mark DeGraff. The machine breaks continuously at the oddest hours and can be repaired only by "Mr Rogers," International Business Machine representative in town.

"Flunkenstein, Jr," as this grading machine is tenderly called by the four student assistants who operate it, is in the midst of grading fifteen thousand examinations for the Citizens Committee of Florida. The original "Flunkenstein" is now located in a similar department at the University of Florida.

All machine examinations, such as the General Educational Development tests given by the Tallahassee branch of the University of Florida, the freshman psychological tests, and the junior cultural tests are graded by this special grading mechanism at Florida State College.

With this interesting information released, need further explanation be given as to why the machine is called "Flunkenstein?"

A Very Merry Christmas

Our entire organization joins in a wholehearted wish for your happy holiday. And may your every dream be realized in the New Year.

Even Modern Dance Team Defeats Odds

"Stephen Foster Suite" Is Even Theme; Odds Choose "Street Scene"

Two Separate Exhibitions Given for Capacity Crowd

The Evens, winners of the modern dance competition, presented a "Stephen Foster Suite," and the Odd dancers gave a number called "Street Scene, New Orleans." Both groups performed before two separate audiences in the Augusta-Conradi theatre, due to the large crowd attending the exhibition.

The judges, Mr Van Ferguson, Miss Louise Gehan and Mrs Lou Miller, scored the dances on (1) choreography, (2) execution, and (3) costumes, lights and music.

Music in the "Stephen Foster Suite" was arranged especially for the dance by Helen Edmiston. In the Largo movement, Dorothy Butts, Doris DuBois, Ruby Lois Duke, Audrey Evans, Anne Shull, Even leader, and Sarah Lee Williams expressed in modern dance patterns the lament of "Old Folks at Home."

The Andante movement was a graceful, dreamlike solo dance by Anne Shull to the music of "Beautiful Dreamer."

Dancers Joyce Cayce, Mickey Chillingworth, Jackie Geiger, Virginia Hatton, Enid Krouse and Avonelle McNair brouaht the suite to a climax in the Scherzo movement. This was the expression of a gay celebration to the tune of "Camptown Races."

The action of "Street Scene, New Orleans" centered around the arrival and departure of a Mississippi River steamboat. The music was from the Mississippi Suite of Ferde Grofe, played by Margie Booth.

The wharf wolves, Bet Cargill, Jean Headley, Bertie Loftus and Dot Wells, appeared first to welcome the steamboat, accompanied by the belles of the town, Vonnie Black, Jane Hardacre and Violet Walters.

When the riverboat arrived, the stage cleared for a duet by the ship's officer, Clara Wilson, and the Creole girl, Betty Brobston.

Providing the comedy in this number were the drunken sailors, Jane Carol Levy, Valda Mock and Lorraine Smith, who stumbled up to the belles of the town and were promptly put in the background by the wharf wolves.

The Odd dance leader was Sis Myers. Mary Lou Norwood and Laura Cason had charge of the lighting effects for the Odd performance. M L Vernon was chairman of this duty for the Evens.

Faculty sponsor for the Odds was Miss Harriet Wolter, and for the Evens, Miss Nellie-Bond Dickenson.

Dr Liddell to Write On Ancient Authors

Dr Anna Forbes Liddell, professor of philosophy, is collaborating with a group of scholars under the auspices of the American Council of Learned Societies, the American Philosophical Association and the Medieval Academy of America in compiling studies dealing with Greek and Latin authors who wrote before 600 A D.

The work will illustrate the history of classical scholarship in the Middle Ages and Renaissance and will trace the contributions of individual authors during those periods. Each collaborator will be in charge of one or several articles, each dealing with a separate author.

Odd Archery Team Winner Over Evens

Windy weather favored the Odds as they took the honors away from the Evens by a score of 250 to 208 in the archery clash held on th archery range Thursday and Friday, November 21 and 22.

Both teams played a Columbia round with eight girls on each side. The FSC Robin Hoods were refereed by Miss Leverne Sitton, physical education instructor, acting as Lady Paramount.

Numbers were drawn for the targets in order that neither team was favored with the better targets.

Pep Stanaland was leader of the Even team while Katherine Johnson, head of the Odds, led her archery group to victory.

Life Saving Corps Hears Zubrod Talk

Mr Bob Zubrod, Field Director for the American Red Cross, spoke to the Life Saving Corps last Tuesday night at their meeting which was held in the gymnasium.

Mr Zubrod gave a short talk about swimming and explained some new changes in various strokes. At the completion of his talk he demonstrated these methods to the girls.

Plans are being made to entertain the charter members of the Life Saving Corps sometime during the second quarter in honor of the 25th anniversary of the corps.

Miss Martha Heifrin, the newly elected sponsor, was introduced to the club and she spoke to the girls for a few minutes. Following this the new members were initiated and a splash party completed the evening.

The new initiates are: Em Turner Nickenson, Gay Sanders, Jean Booth, Constance Bezant, Betty Pierce, Martha McGahee, Dot Edmundson, Catherine Aspinwall, and Leah Abel.

Tarpon Club Holds Election; Initiation

Tarpon Club initiated fifteen new members and elected officers at their meeting held yesterday afternoon in the club room of the Longmire building.

The new initiates are: Faith Adams, Betty Barnes, Joan Boucher, Charlotte Bouland, Polly Shazal, Rosa Lee Davis, Sarah Ellen Glenn, Barbara Irving, Ellen Koenitzer, Jane Carol Levy, May Manning, Dorothy Martin, Jane Shirley, Margaret Swanson and Marilyn Watson.

The new officers are: Carol Claus, president; Joanne Zewadski, vice-president; and Margaret Swanson, secretary-treasurer.

Following initiation the Tarpon club members had a banquet at the Three Torches. A gift was presented to their sponsor, Miss Ernestine Troemel, associate professor of physical education.

Tarpon Members Present Pageant

Perfume Theme Carried Out In Six Water Formations

The Tarpon club members and "Minnows" presented their annual Thanksgiving water pageant entitled "Essence of Grace" last Monday and Tuesday nights at 8:30 in the college pool.

The theme "Perfume" was carried out in six water formations with accompanying music which was suggestive of the moods and names of various perfumes. A duat number by B J Singleton and Carol Claus entitled "Taboo" was also included in the program.

The water formations were as follows: "Opening Night" to the music of "Strike Up the Band" by Mae Manning, Docey Martin, Polly Chazal, Faith Adams, Charlotte Bouland, Joan Bouches, Marilyn Watson, Barbara Irving, Sarah Ellen Glenn and Ellen Koenitzer; "Romance" to the music of "Amedo Mio" by Sarah Ellen Glenn, Ann Richardson, Norma Shaeffner, Joan Zewadski, Barbara J Lindsey, Myra Long, Moira Long and Amelia Pavese; "Sleeping Beauty" to the "Sleeping Beauty Waltz" by Margaret Swanson, Helen Hoerges, Jane Carol Levy, Rosa Lee Davis, Jane Shirley and Bettye Barnes; "Indian Summer" to the "Dagger Dance" by Carol Claus, Margery Holm, Anna Horn, B J Lindsey, Silvia Meisch, Camille Batten, Myra Long, Moira Long, Nancy Mac Edwards and B J Singleton; "Lady in the Dark" to the song "Dancing in the Dark" by Margery Holm, Pat Millican, Amelia Pavese, Anna Lou Rivers, Joanne Zewadski, B J Lindsey, Nancy Mac Edwards and Doris DuBois; "Evening in Paris" to the music "American in Paris" by Carol Claus, Camille Batten, Anna Horne, Silvia Meisch, B J Lindsey, Myra Long, Moira Long, Amelia Pavese, Anna Lou Rivers, Norma Shaeffner, Doris DuBois, Joanne Zewadski and Ann Richardson.

The decorations which followed the perfume theme were under the direction of Nancy Mac Edwards and Sarah Ellen Glenn. Miss Ernestine Troemel, associate professor of physical education, was the sponsor.

Stray Greeks Raffle Winners Announced

Many prized items were given away at the Stray Greek raffle held in the Longmire building last night. The prizes and the winners are: Virginia Budd, two airway tickets to Gainesville for the Fall Frolics; Virginia der Garry, a pair of nylon hose; Peggy Moss, a free meal at a leading Tallahassee restaurant, and Jean Furman, five theater tickets.

A "first Thanksgiving" was celebrated in Maine, not Massachusetts, 15 years before the Pilgrims.

Two Girls Awarded F Club Emblem

Betty Schwartz and Virginia Palmer are to be awarded F Club emblems by Women's Recreation Association sometime this week, announced Betty Gardener, president of the organization, at a meeting Wednesday night. Betty and Virginia have won their emblems on the basis of having earned a letter and five stars each.

Only one or two girls each year usually earn this emblem which represents Odd-Even team competition during all four years of college. Sarah Bennett and Catherine Barrs were the only ones to receive the F Club Emblem last year. Betty has participated in basketball, soccer, badminton, and softball. Virginia has made the teams in volleyball, soccer, badminton, and softball.

At the meeting Herky White was elected Odd basketball leader, and it was announced that next quarter sports would be volleyball, basketball, and swimming.

Nancy MacEdwards, chairman of playnight, announced that there will be no playnight tomorrow because of dead week. Spirogira-Esteren hockey which was scheduled for tomorrow night has been postponed until second quarter.

● SPECIAL DELIVERY, PLEASE

Dear Santa,

Gee, we bet you've been getting just lots and lots of letters from all sorts of important people this year, and maybe you won't even be able to fill our requests what with all the shortages and strikes. But please do your best, Santa, 'cause we really need the things we're asking for.

Say, we heard that one of your workers—believe his name is Johnny Lewis—is striking again and you haven't been able to get anyone to keep the fires going. We certainly do hope you will discipline him severely enough to make him learn his lesson this time.

Santa, we accidentally ran into Mr World the other day. You knew he had been in a serious accident recently, didn't you? Well, anyhow he's still not in particularly good shape so he asked us to write you for him. First of all, he wants to know if you have some good will towards men available this Yuletide—we sort of missed out on it during the year, you know.

Then, too, he said to ask if you had something he could give his daughter "China." Maybe an olive branch or two would do—one for her boyfriend "Red" and one for her other one, "National". Looks like those two boys will never stop fighting over her. Seems to us that one of them would give up sooner or later; if they don't watch out someone else is liable to take their place.

Mr World's son "Yugee" has broken his anti-aircraft guns and wants to know if you have some more or if you have some other kind of artillery he can play with.

"Francie" has been hard at work reconstructing her cities and her government. Mr World doesn't know whether she's written you or not, but he'd like to ask if you wouldn't please see that she has a merry Christmas and that the Fourth French Republic doesn't go the way of its ancestors.

Say, Santa, just between you and us, we think Mr World as forgotten to ask for something which he needs pretty adly. We sure would appreciate it if you and your workers ould figure out a new toy to counteract one we've just inented down here. We're afraid some of the kids don't know ow to use it and they may get hurt while playing. We alls ours the "Atomic Bomb"; maybe you could call yours e "Atomic Bomb Control."

And you knew about the new playhouse Mr World has een planning for his children, didn't you? Well, he hasn't ecided just where to build it yet so the whole family is in ew York for the time being discussing possibilities for it nd also trying to help Mr World back to his feet again. aybe you could help them out on this, huh?

Mr World said that his son "Russ" had already asked r everything he wanted. We just thought we'd sort of elp "Russ" along and ask you if you wouldn't pay a little ore attention to him than other people do. He's a growin' y, you know, and awfully big for his age.

Well, Santa, I guess that's just about all Mr World nted to ask you for with "peace on earth, good will towards men" incorporating most of his requests. Now we'd e to ask a few things for ourselves.

Seems like nearly every year we ask you for some coucation. We see that you managed to put a little in stock his summer and we certainly do thank you. Yep, looks as ow if you and your workers—we believe you call these paricular ones "legislators"—try just a little bit harder this ear, you can probably store up enough co-education to atisfy everyone.

You remember, Santa, that last year we asked for a new onstitution? We don't have one yet, but we're working on t and any help you can give us—in an advisory capacity, of course—will be appreciated. Say, you know, you might sprinkle a few grains of that new type of government—the kind in which the final decision lies in the hands of the students with the faculty in an advisory capacity only—in the toes of the faculty stockings. We think they'd like it if they got a good taste. You might also put a few more senior privileges in their stockings.

And Santa, we need some new dancing shoes—some we can wear on Sunday. You see, there's not much for us to do on our campus on Sundays and we thought maybe if we had pretty enough shoes and some that weren't too noisy, we might be allowed to dance on this day.

We guess this about all, Santa, except that if the output from your mint has been pretty good, our budget committee certainly neds some money—there's just not enough to go around!

Well, Santa, this will be all for another year. We know we've asked for a lot, but we hope it's not too much. We know you'll do your best to fill the bill. We've all been very good little girls so we're looking forward to stockings just crammed full of nice things.

'Bye, Santa, and lotsa love.
The Girls at FSC.

P S: Santa, if you think you might get hungry on your Christmas Eve trip you better bring your own food. Miss Tracy gives out every once in a while especially if you have classes up until 15 minutes before the dining hall closes. And you'd be awfully uncomfortable in the Sweet Shop. since it doesn't have a ceiling . . .

● WE, THE PEOPLE

The constitution for the Tallahassee Branch of the University of Florida has been completed this week. It has been posted for students to read and is on its way through the proper channels to be approved by the Board of Control. It has already gotten the approval of the Tally-U administration, and the students are voting on December 9 so they can start the wheels rolling as soon as the final decision comes through.

It is interesting to note that this constitution has been drawn up to last as the supreme governing document of the men at Tally-U as long as they are here at Florida State College. It took little over a month for the constitutional committee to draw up this document, similar in length and general organization to the Agreement that College Government Association and the faculty here have been operating under for many years and which takes a year to amend.

The tragic truth of the situation is that the entire men's constitution will probably be approved and go into effect before the amendments proposed by our student senate last spring gets back to the FSC students for a vote.

The large constitutional committee chosen by the FSC students has been working as long as the committee of Tally-U, but as yet they have been able to get only one amendment as far as Student Senate—which should prove something about the red-tape and obstacles that lie in their way in the form of the old Agreement and different approvals that must be obtained before they can be sure of any work they present. The idea of revising our present "constitution," which is really an agreement and not a constitution, completely through amendments is one of the main stumbling blocks that will hold up the progress of any student committee working on improved government.

We are watching the progress of the men's constitution with much interest, and we will be eagerly waiting for its official okeh. The men who are responsible for the speedy action in constructing it should be commended, and we hope that their method of presenting a complete document will be adopted by the FSC constitutional group if it proves successful.

● THE LOST SUNDAYS

The proverbial stone wall has again borne the brunt of the beatings of numerous heads. After discussions in Senate meetings, a forum, and among the student body, the question of Sunday dancing, it is now disclosed, is not within the jurisdiction of the students—it is an administrative problem.

In its capacity as mediator between the tax-payers and the students the administration has deemed it necessary to establish and maintain regulations on those matters which, in its opinion, are not socially accepted by the populace. Into this category, it seems, the recent action taken by Senate has fallen.

We have no quarrel to pick with the administration, but it seems that they are assuming a lot in regards to the rules which govern our actions. We believe that the parents of most of the students here would rather have them participate in properly chaperoned Sunday dancing than have them wander around aimlessly most of Sunday.

As far as the administration's considering whether the laws of the college are or are not socially acceptable, may we point out that the majority of the tax-payers in the state have voted to make the selling of liquor legal in their respective counties. Yet we do not advocate a repeal of our college regulation that forbids college girls attending FSC to drink. We hold that this, which has been approved by most of the Florida tax-payers to be acceptable, is not acceptable to the situation in which we find ourselves.

Now when it has been proved that we need additional Sunday recreation, and that dancing is one of the easiest ways of providing that necessary part of college life, there is no reason to assume that the people of the state are automatically against it. As yet they have not found it necessary to pass laws forbidding Sunday dancing.

It is true that a small portion of the parents of the students would object to Sunday dancing, but it is also true that the majority of the parents would not object, and even more of them would not object if they knew the limited recreational facilities we have for the number of people who use them.

A form letter could be sent to the parents of each student in school at the present time requesting that they indicate whether or not they would find Sunday dancing on campus acceptable. This would solve the problem for both the studenta and the administration and leave no doubts in anyone's mind.

The Kitchen Sink

(Guaranteed not for years, not for life, but guaranteed . . . Keeper of the Dutch Cleanser, M L Norwood; Holder of the Sponges, B J McLeod.)

Winter has at last begun, term paper dead-lines are fast approaching, and the Thanksgiving Holiday has gone by. Thanksgiving Holiday . . . that's a term meaning the four days you either stayed here and worked like a Trojan on your term papers or went home and spent four days worrying about them. Term paper is a phrase which in our case means too little, too late, too often. The same definition applies to the attendance of members of the Constitution Committee to meetings.

The cold weather brings to mind again a scheme we've been harboring for a long time. It is a source of wonder that someone hasn't tried it before. We want to cross silver foxes with kangaroos and get fur coats with built in pockets.

Along with heavy coats the weather has brought out stocking caps which are really nothing but tams with a two way stretch.

The secret of how much mending college girls don't do on clothes that don't show was almost disclosed last week. As one of our friends was dragging classward she was stopped by a member of the male faction who asked her name. Quickly seeing that the situation demanded a clever answer she told him her name. He said, "That's what I thought Some of your laundry came home in mine." When her breath returned after four minutes of horrified thoughts she sagaciously inquired, "What?" Ducking his head he replied, "A handkerchief."

We noticed several of the newly initiated Esteren members weighed down by life size teapots in appropriate colors dangling from their often protruding necks. Upon inquiry we learned the trinkets were presented to them by their goat mothers. Our only comment is that their goat mothers must have been scared by a Saint Bernard dog. Brew about it a while, girls.

The poll taken in CGA assembly Tuesday night, which by the way was supposed to be a vote as set up by the Traditions Committee, was so close we ate through out mortar boards and dusted off the crumbs with our tassels in our nervousness. In the results, 137 more people voted to have one big show than voted to hold the three different productions. The closeness of the vote certainly makes the action of the Traditions Committee difficult no matter at what decision they arrive.

The Traditions Committee, we believe is one of the best moves yet made to bring our campus up to date. Its work is parallel in traditions with the Constitution Committee's work on the constitution. The purpose of the committee is to investigate, evaluate and improve on our existing traditions which like our rules, become out-dated and no longer fulfill a useful purpose. Therefore we would like to send an orchid to Dr Campbell for appointing such a committee, roses to the committee for the work they have plunged whole-heartedly into, and a stink weed for McLeod who has not appeared this week to help with this column.

This week there's been a lot of talk about what to do with the Student Activity Fund. The Flambeau could certainly use some petty cash to buy not typewriters (we wouldn't ask for anything like that even though two of ours refuse to work) but typewriter ribbon. Our ribbons have been used so long that the reporters have to hit the keys with little hammers to make the indentations of the letters deep enough for the copy readers to read it by the braille system.

This is the last issue of the Flambeau and therefore of this column until second quarter. Issue happy? We wanted to do something nice for not only ourselves but for our readers who have been faithful during this monumental quarter which has witnessed our birth and adolescence. Along with our hilarious humor we have tried to give little hints and advice to all undergraduates and so we can truly say that the old, old adage now reads: "A girl's best friend is still her mother." To ourselves and our readers we give a four weeks vacation—and a wish for a Merry Christmas and a see you in the New Year.

Tally Ho

A UTOPIAN FSC!

And I'm referring to the past week-end, enjoyed by the "select few" who deemed it best to remain on campus. For the other 3,000 of you irresponsibles, here's a picture of FSC last week-end, Utopian style: no lines at the dining hall . . . no injuries sustained in the usual mail rush in lower Westcott . . . choice of seats on DM buses (when they ran!) . . . no place around campus to waste money or gain weight on pecan pie and coffee (the Sweet and Mecca locked and bolted the doors after Wednesday night!) . . . no trouble checking out books in the libe . . . no mob to fight in order to see Glenn Ford's "Gallant Journey" at the Florida . . . no blaring radios in the dorms, nor proctors, nor noisy neighbors with 8:30's every morning . . . no confusion . . . nothing, in fact—but plenty of peace and quiet!

CAUSTIC COMMENTS:

She has a very even temper—she's always MAD! . . . Well, I guess you'd call us friends. We have the same enemies. . . . Gossips have a keen sense of rumor. . . . Since women carry little cases designed for making up their faces, I wish they'd have some other kinds designed for making up their minds . . . (pome!) . . .

TAKE HEART, FELLERS

Though term papers may be stacked up: tests which necessitate cramming (nahsty word!) are forthcoming; parallel, play-reading, and book-reporting has more or less been lost in the shuffle, never fear. Maybe you're smarter than you think. Maybe you'll even PASS this quarter's work when Judgment Day comes.

After all, didn't Albert Einstein's teachers classify him as a "dunce"? And even his parents (usually a child's most appreciative and understanding critics) thought dear Albert a bit backward.

And then there was Thomas A Edison who was always at the foot of his class in school because he couldn't remember his three R's. His teachers called him Stupid.

And then there's—us!

BEST GO!

One of the freshmen, home over the week-end, brought back this evidence of her wit (or lack of it), supposedly a parting scene with her date.

She: Sometimes my father takes things apart to see why they don't go!

He: So what?

She: So you'd best go!

The Case of the Lost Landis Turtle

"Mary is lost! Wonder where she is? Did you look in your laundry bag?" Two girls in Landis Hall searched in despair for Mary for two weeks.

Finally, one day she wandered out from under a bed and stood in the middle of the floor wagging her tiny tail at them.

"There's always excitement with one turtle, but two of them to watch really make life interesting," declared one of the owners of the two tiny pets.

Solving the food problem for the pets was a difficult thing. Fish food was ignored, and when the proud owner killed an ant and put it in the water, the turtles just looked at it curiously and then nonchalantly swam away. One of them has learned to like raw hamburger and lettuce, but Mary, the other, is still on a starvation diet.

When asked what she was going to name the other turtle, the possessor said, "I don't know yet. I'll have to watch his personality to find out."

Library to Display Dickens Selections

Climaxing the Christmas theme in the library and continuing an old college custom, Miss Kemper Moore, speech instructor, will read selections from Charles Dickens' Christmas Carol in the browsing room of the library, December 17 at 8 p m.

Several Christmas displays have been placed in the lobby of the library. One of the bulletin boards is arranged upon the theme "Heralding Christmas Traditions Around the World," which, in conjunction with informative booklets, explains the various customs in foreign countries.

In a special book trough noted by the sign "So hallowed and so gracious is the name," there is a collection of books and stories about the life of Christ. A group of famous paintings, ranging from the works of Sandre Botticelli to Masha, depicting the Christ Child in art are being exhibited in the glass display cases.

Tea Postponed

Because of the interruption caused by the Thanksgiving holidays the Hillside-Campuside at home which was to be held Wednesday was postponed until the second quarter.

Although the college calendar had it listed to take place on December 4, its postponement has already been decided upon by the office of the Dean of Students.

Students Speak . .

By JUNE GRINDSTAFF

With Thanksgiving holidays over, students at FSC could presumably and not illogically be expected to settle down to some last minute learning before those dreaded exams begin. But Christmas is in the air, and studying will have to take a back seat while plans for the holidays are made, and dreams of the celebration of Christmas are indulged in.

This year young men as well as young women in colleges everywhere are looking forward to spending Christmas at home with their families under the familiar richly decorated evergreen tree. Last year at Christmas time, however, things were not quite so rosy for a number of the boys who share our erstwhile feminine campus this year. Many of them were waiting around at discharge centers for that precious scrap of paper that would make them free men again, and some less fortunates were still overseas. Most of FSC's former GI's will be spending their first Christmas at home in several years.

L W Summerland, a freshman at FSC this year, was a radioman in the Navy for two years and didn't receive his discharge until June of this year. When asked where he spent last Christmas he replied, "At Pier 91 in Seattle, Washington." L W's home is in Daytona Beach, and this year he will spend his first Christmas at home in three years. "We had Christmas dinner aboard the ship," he says, "and it was pretty good, but nothing to compare with home. I was luckier than some though, he admits, "because I had some friends in Seattle and spent most of Christmas day with them.

One of his close friends Fred Honour, also a freshman, started out with L W from their home town in Daytona Beach as radioman in the Navy. Fred, however, spent his Christmas in Shanghai, China. He was stationed there on the repair ship Sierra A D. His Christmas, he remarks, "was particularly dull because we were the only ones celebrating Christmas. The Chinese, of course, do not." It had been two years since Fred was at home. "Since we were the only ones celebrating Christmas and didn't receive any of our packages from home until months after Christmas it just seemed like any other day to us, except for the extra special dinner they had for us," Fred continued. He added that to complete the irony of last Christmas he had just received a letter addressed to him in Shanghai that should have been received at Christmas time. Fred was discharged from the Navy last August and is looking forward to "two wonderful weeks of holidays this year with the folks."

Arthur Cobb, freshman, was in the Army Air Corps with the Fifth Air Force for three years and spent his second year away from home at Yuletide time in Irumagawa, Japan. He reports a gala celebration at the base complete with six course Christmas dinner, Christmas tree and party for the exchange of presents.

In addition to that he states that "the Red Cross gave all the boys a present and even the Japanese made a pretense at celebrating Christmas for the benefit of the GI's stationed thare." Arthur had some friends in town whom he called on Christmas day for tea. "The family," he remarks, "had lived in the United States for about 12 years and the mother had studied and received her degree at Vassar. They lived in New York and operated a little grocery store before they returned to Japan." Arthur returned to his home in Pensacola last February when he received his discharge.

Clyde Daniels, freshman, served three years with the Army Air Corps as an aerial engineer on a B-24. "I spent last Christmas at Hamilton Field near San Raphael, California and a very dull one it was too," Clyde says. "We went into Berkley for the day with a bunch of fellows from the base but all of us were wishing we could be at home. I hadn't been home for a year," Clyde reports. Discharged in February of this year, Clyde plans to go home to Sebring this year to spend Christmas with his family.

Jack Ketner, freshman, says "I was in the middle of the Atlantic ocean last Christmas." Jack spent three years with the Coast Guard before he was discharged in June and sent back home to Tampa. "We were on the Monticello, AP 61, near the Azores, which is some distance off the coast of North Africa and I had to work all Christmas day." Jack remarks. "We had a good Christmas dinner, but our packages from home didn't come until we got back to the states in January." Jack hadn't been home for 17 months and admits to a slight case of homesickness experienced while working in the laundry last December 25. "We made up for it Christmas night though," he counters, "with a big celebration in the ship's laundry. There were some Army nurses aboard and they helped us to celebrate."

It seems that all of the boys interviewed about their celebration of Christmas last year conclude that there's no place like home, but all seem to have been capable of making the best of an unfortunate situation when it was necessary. All have indicated that when they go home for Christmas this year they will appreciate it more than they ever have before and will most certainly make the best of every minute of it.

Or Forever Hold Your Peace

Letter to the editor

The adoption of the proposed constitution to be voted on Monday by the student body of the Tallahassee branch will mean essentially this to the students:

(1) That student government will operate legally under a document approved by the students.

(2) That the existing student government will cease to function upon the election of the officers provided for in this constitution and upon their assumption of office.

(3) That there will be set up the time honored system of tripartite government with each department serving as a check and balance of the others.

As members of the student body and having assisted in the framing of the proposed constitution, we are aware of the time and effort to draw up a document of this nature.

We believe that adoption of the proposed constitution, drawn up with an eye to the future will serve the interests of the student body now, and then.

Signed
Members of the Constitution Committee.

There are 378 waterfalls in Brazil, 184 of which have a potential power of at least 5,000,000 horsepower.

Temperamental Chimes Have Tolled a Decade of Time

The ringing of the chimes is as much a part of campus life as the 9:30 struggle in the post office or the after-class trip to the Soda Shop for a coke. This fact was evidenced by the general concern expressed last year when the chiming system was out of order for a time.

Not only the students, but also the nearby residents depend on these chimes. One man even complained that they were not loud enough to be heard at his home several blocks away and wanted something done about it.

The system of chimes, which was presented to the school by the class of '36, has quite a history behind it, and has more than once caused the electricians grave anxiety. In the beginning the chimes were placed in the top of the library but this turned out to be far from satisfactory. Miss Richardson, the head librarian, was the first to protest, and also also Dr Raymond Bellamy, who had classes in the History building, complained that the chimes "rang so loud and so often that they disturbed his napping students."

At that time the chimes played every fifteen minutes. The system was soon moved to the Westcott tower where it has been ever since.

Another problem of the electricians is that of keeping the system in working order, especially during the war and post-war months when it was difficult to get new parts. The chimes sound like the ringing of a hnge bell but actually the ringing is produced by a small gong with an amplifier. It works on the order of a radio.

Two minutes before the hour and the half-hour it starts warming up and then is ready to strike on time. The prompter is the clock in the information booth on the second floor of Westcott. But everything doesn't always go so well. If the system doesn't chime properly at, say, 10 o'clock one morning, an electrician has to be on hand at 10 the next morning to see if he can find the trouble. If he misses it he has to wait around until the next morning and try again.

The system is arranged so that any program can be sent out through the amplifier, such as speeches, transcriptions, or organ music. On V-E day a program of music was ordered by the officials. The whole system promptly broke. No one knew what to do until a soldier from Dale Mabry decided he could fix it. Then they could find no turntable for the records — the records which they didn't have. They finally found the turntable in town and the records in the music department so the program was held.

All went well on Monday, Armistice day, however, when at 11 o'clock "America" and "The Star Spangled Banner" were played.

Spanish Caballeros Entertained at FSC

"Buenas noches, senores," chorused a dozen girls of Florida State College's Casa Cervantes Saturday before last as they opened the door to greet twelve caballeros who had just arrived from the University of Florida.

The dance given by the girls living in the Spanish House for "Los Picaros," a Spanish honorary, was held in Landis recreation room.

Beneath the flags of the twenty-one Spaish republics, the senores and senioritas danced to both American and Spanish music. The tempo of a slow American waltz was followed by the quick rhythm of the South American rumba and by the even quicker beat of "The Coffee Song," as the Spanish speaking boys gaily jitterbugged the American way with their laughing companions.

One of the girls, Vivien, was called "Bibien" all evening until she finally taught her dancing partner how to pronounce the English "V." Since he was just learning the English language, they spoke first in her native tongue and then in his, for she is eager to learn how to speak Spanish. "Surprisingly enough", the boys spoke slowly and distinctly, and we could easily understand them," she said.

On the end wall was a huge outline map of South America. As each picaro entered he was given a little colored flag with his name. This flag he placed on his native country outlined on the map. Among the countries represented were Colombia, Costa Rico, Guatemala, Ecuador, Peru, and Cuba

The next day, Sunday, the boys toured the campus and visited Dale Mabry.

"Look at the beer!" cried one as he pointed toward a pigeon perched atop the music annex. "Or, no—the English word for your Spanish pajaro is b-i-r-d—bird," she explained hurriedly to him. Of course, the mistakes the girls made in Spanish will never be disclosed.

The unanimous opinion of the girls was thet these soft-spoken Spanish "hombres" are just like American boys, gay and humorous.

The girls of Casa Cervantes are thinking of organizing a chapter of the fraternity here, and looking forward to the next visit of the Picaros.

FSC to Offer Aviation Class

Curriculum Committee Approves New Course

A course in aviation has been added to the curriculum of Florida State College beginning next quarter, according to Dr Doak S Campbell, president of the college. This course has been approved by the faculty and curriculum committee of the college, and approved by and in cooperation with the Civil Aeronautics Association.

For those taking elementary aeronautics, physics 244 is required. The course comprises 24 lecture hours, 40 laboratory hours, and includes the elements of aerodynamics, meterology, air navigation, servicing of aircraft, and Civil Air Regulations. Laboratory work comprises 22 hours dual and 18 hours solo flight in 65 hp airplanes. After successful completion of this course, the student is prepared to take the Civil Aeronautics examination for private pilot's certificate. Candidates for this course must have a valid CAA medical certificate

Students with private pilots certificate and one hundred hours logged flying time may quit elementary aeronautics course and substitute advanced aeronautics which is physics 245-6-7.

Those having commercial pilots certificates are qualified to take the physics 248 course which is advanced aeronautical training. Upon completion of this course the student is eligible to take the examination for Instructor Rating.

The last aviation course to be offered is Physics 249, which is the use of aeronautical instruments. This consists of 60 hours laboratory, including 10 in Link trainer and 20 hours blind flying. Completion of this course prepares for examination for the CAA Instrument Rating.

Aviation was at one time before the war included in the curriculum of FSC for a short time. It is hoped that it will be more successful this time than before.

Both the Tallahassee Air Corporation and the Wheeler Flying Service are accredited flying schools in cooperation with this program on campus. They offer training in Taylorcraft, Ercoupe, Aeronca, Cubs, and other light aircraft.

Late-Comers Arrive In Early Morning

Bryan hall sat up and blinked its weary eyes last Sunday night when it saw a crowd of weary co-eds straggling in its doors after the hour set for the return of students after holidays.

It seems that they all got home all right, but when the time came to catch a bus for college—there just weren't enough buses there! Those that were there were so crowded that they made very slow progress and turned up a trifle late.

Worried students felt a lot more comforted when they pulled up in front of Byran to find they had the company of a lot of other late-comers. "Well, I'm glad to know that I'm not the only one that got fouled up," sighed one weary sophomore.

The boys on the buses couldn't understand why the girls were in such a hurry to get back until it was patiently explained over and over to them that they couldn't come in late at night as the boys have the freedom to do.

Browsing Room Is a Little Used, Seldom Opened Portion of Our College Library

A little-used, seldom-opened portion of the Florida State College library. That's the Browsing room.

"Our chief regret is that so few students come to the Browsing room," Miss Louise Richardson, head librarian, stated. "We try to open it an hour each day at a time when we think the most students are free."

A small sign is placed in the foyer of the library to announce when the Browsing room is open, according to Miss Richardson.

Comfortable chairs with ottomans and sofas are grouped about the room facing the large window overlooking Bryan. Books of all kinds are placed casually on the numerous tables. This is one spot on campus where a person can be sure of finding the latest copy of New Yorker.

"Everything in the Browsing room is a gift," Miss Richardson confided. "It all started when the class of 1929 gave $650 to be used for furnishing a room in which the students could relax and read for pleasure.

"Then, in 1930, Carnegie donated $5000 to be spent for purchasing books of a type that the girls would like when they want to get away from studying," Miss Richardson continued. "As you know, no text books, pencils, notebooks or pens are allowed in the Browsing room. We want to encourage the girls to use this room for extra-curricular reading and not for studying or reading parallel."

Also in 1930, the College Government Association gave $250 for books, and the class of 1926 voted that $450 be donated by their alumnae association towards buying books for this room. Then, the class of 1932 gave $500 for additional furniture, Miss Richardson found in her report reviewing FSC library features.

"The books in the Browsing room, which include classics and moderns in fiction, travel, poetry, art and drama, were purchased over a period of a year by a faculty-student committee," Miss Richardson explained, "and each year we try to add a few new ones. Many students and some faculty members have donated books to be used in this room only."

Miss Richardson said that the Browsing room isn't opened any more than it is because so few students make use of the room that the expense of keeping it open is not worth it.

Boys at Dale Mabry Stand in Long Lines To Get Mail From "Chicken Coop" Boxes

"What are all the chicken coops for?" queried a Tally University student as he surveyed the new post office at Dale Mabry.

This might sound a bit preposterous, but it is true. There are boxes row upon row fenced over with wire and under each is a number. Yes, because of the shortage of locks, there are the boxes you get mail in at Dale Mabry.

At first you might think it would be much simpler to carry around a pair of wire cutters than to remember a combination to your box, but the Tally U boys have no such luck. They have to stand in one of the lines that Florida State College is famed for and wait patiently for their turn to ask the postmistress for their mail.

There is a terrible rush in Westcott for the 8:30 mail, but it is nothing compared to the long wait in line that the boys endure. Instead of being pushed and jammed out of reach of your box you get your mail by that unbearably long line.

During lunch hour the post office remains closed but the boys still come through to see if they have any mail. "It boosts my morale to see a letter in my box, even though I can't get it to read. I wish they would leave the boxes open, or something," said Robert Shutte. In a way those Westcott "batties" aren't so bad. You can usually fight your way through and get your letters, but at Dale Mabry, no, you wait until the P O opens.

There is one complaint that seems to be common in both the Tally U and the FSC post office, and that is, "There just isn't enough mail." It seems as if the men look forward to getting mail more than the girls do.

One boy wanders out looking very disappointed. "No one's box could collect as much dust as mine does, though," he said. That seems to be the opinion of the girls as well as our co-eds.

CGA Assembly Held Tuesday

Student Senate Gives Exhibition Meeting

A poll was taken by the Traditions committee, about Junior Minstrels, and Odd-Even demonstrations, as to whether the students favored one production, three productions or none at all at the last CGA meeting for this quarter which was held Tuesday night in Westcott auditorium. The one production won by 134 votes.

Sarah Lewis, president of CGA, announced the Dead Week officially began last night at midnight and would last through the following Friday. Also that during this time no activities are to be scheduled.

Herkie White, freshman advisor, said that freshman elections for president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer, parliamentarian, athletic manager and five representatives to senate would be held January 6-15.

An announcementwas also made of a forum on "Better Distribution of Activity Fees" which was held Wednesday night at 7:30 in room 402 of the Longmire building.

Unclaimed Article Sale Is Postponed

The auction of unclaimed lost and found articles which was to be held Wednesday has been postponed until after Christmas, announced Mrs Edith Gulick, director of the Longmire building.

All items unclaimed after 60 days will be offered for sale after Christmas except the more valuable ones which will be kept longer in case the owners call for them.

Mrs Gulick also reported that the Wedgewood plate, which had been missing from the main lounge of the building, was returned by mail.

Dr C P Heinlein Has Article Published

A paper on "The Validity of Personality Questionnaires" written by Dr C P Heinlein of the psychology department has been accepted for publication in the January issue of the Psychological Bulletin, official journal of the American Psychological association.

Said Dr Heinlein, "Many mental testers have blindly adopted statistical methods of evaluation which fail to diagnose human personality." Dr Heinlein expressed the view that it is practically impossible to predict the nature and course of a person's social adjustments from his score on a personality questionnaire.

In the conclusion of his article Dr Heinlein recommends that mental testers re-examine a number of questionable assumptions on which much of test construction and validation are based.

Sorority Chit Chat

December 14 seems to be the most popular day on the social calendar for the sorority groups and the Christmas parties they have planned to provide a few minutes relaxation between exams. Pledge parties and skits still hold their own among Greek social functions with after dinner coffees helping to climax the social season for this quarter.

Jean O'Steen, Kay Harrison, and Barbara King were in charge of a spaghetti supper at the Kappa Alpha Theta house last Sunday.

On December 14. Christmas festivities will be held at the house. The pledges will give their skit and original song afterwards.

Last Sunday night Kappa Delta gave a picnic at Games Woods with vesper services afterwards led by Mac Cooper.

The Phi Mus are having their annual Christmas party also on December 14. Mary Jane Lassiter is in charge of the festivities with co-workers Frances Taylor, Betty Jean Giberson, Margaret Tooley and Mary Ann Berry. A surprise Santa Claus will be there and gifts will be exchanged.

Delta Zeta pledges are giving a Christmas party for the members December 14. Nancy Jo Gonzales is in charge of the activities. Later in the evening "little" and "big" sisters will exchange gifts and the pledges will present their program.

Sigma Kappa members and pledges will give their annual Christmas party next Tuesday at which time pledge "mothers" and "daughters" will exchange gifts. Pledges will sing their pledge songs after the festivities of the evening.

Alpha Chi Omega pledges gave a night club party for the members the first of last week.

On Sunday of last week, patrons and patronesses enjoyed a coffee at the house with Jane Arnold in charge of arrangements.

A Christmas party will be given by the members for the pledges December 14.

Mrs Dodge, house mother of Zeta Tau Alpha, gave an informal party last week for three bride-elects, Sue Walters Arnold, Dorothy Peacock and Dana Willson.

Nicky Sartoris honored Dorothy Peacock with a shower last Wednesday evening. Thursday night patrons and patronesses were entertained at an after dinner coffee at the house.

On Sunday, December 15, members, pledges and guests will enjoy their annual Christmas party.

The ZTA party for other sorority pledges was held Tuesday, November 26 with a Thanksgiving theme carried out by favors and a skit. The setting for the latter was a fourth grade classroom where the "professor" and several "pupils" related Columbus's discovery of America and the founding of the 13 original colonies (the 13 sororities represented by pledges).

The annual Christmas party held last night headed the Tri Delta social calendar for this week. A brightly decorated tree centered the jook room of the house and the evening's main event was the singing of original songs by the pledges.

The Pi Phi's were honored this week with a visit from Mrs John Tyler, their Zeta province president. Mrs Tyler was entertained by the respective classes and pledges for breakfast, lunch and dinner.

Delta Phi Epsilon honored their housemother, Mrs Murr, and their faculty advisor, Miss Lucille Wagner, at a coffee Tuesday evening at the house.

Last Tuesday evening the A D Pi's entertained Tallahassee alumnae and patrons at a coffee. The pledges presented a short skit in which they sang their original songs.

Last night the Alpha Z's held an informal program with Mr David Avant as guest speaker.

The Alpha Z's will exchange gifts at a Christmas get-together on the Sunday during exam week The actives will present a skit for the pledges and there will be the traditional singing of Christmas carols.

The Alpha Gams have also chosen December 14 as the date for their annual Christmas party. Betsy Bird, social chairman, is in charge of all arrangements and names have been drawn for exchanging gifts. As is their custom, the gifts which the Alpha Gams present to one another will be toys which later will be sent to the children in the two summer camps sponsored by the sorority. Also at the Christmas party, the pledges will entertain the members with their original songs.

FSC Nursery School Children Expect Good Santa Claus

"I want a tricycle, a wagon, a little jeep and a Shetland pony:" said 4-year-old Mickey of the Florida State College Nursery School as his eyes lit up like an electric Christmas tree cherub's. "And I want a piggie that plays the piano," beamed 3-year-old Dee Anne in response to the same question as to what she had asked Santa Claus to bring her for Christmas.

The colorfully wrapped presents from Santa to little blonde 3-year-old Sherry will not be much of a surprise, because, she confided, "I dreamed I went to the North Pole, and I saw Santa Claus making all my toys, and I'm gonna have a baby-doll that says 'Mama'."

Kitty, 3-year-old daughter of John and Vivian Sherlock, History and English Fellows in those departments on this campus, said excitedly, "I want lots of things—but not everything," she added after a moment's reflection. Kitty went on to say quite generously that she wanted Santa Claus to bring her older sister, Ellen, a tricycle and that she wanted a "velocipede" for herself.

David, 4-year-old son of Mrs Harry Nicholson, student at FSC, is confident that Santa Claus is going to bring him an electric train that he can ride in all the way to Jacksonville." Electric trains are high on the lists of many of the nursery school children with pianos and footballs as runner-up items.

The nursery school, with Miss Betty Hatch as director, is run by Florida State College for 2-year-old to 5-year-old children of working or student mothers. At present there are about 60 children enrolled. The school cares for the children from 8 o'clock in the morning until 5 o'clock in the afternoon for the convenience of the mothers.

Areo Club Elects Cone as President

Vera Cone was elected president of the newly organized campus Aero club at the first meeting of th organization, held last night in 104 History building. Mr Ivan Monroe was selected adult sponsor for the club at this time, and tentative plans for the club charter were drawn up.

Other officers also elected at this meeting were: Jackie Story, vice-president; Margaret Barnett, secretary, and Betty Sue Gray, treasurer. Faculty sponsors for the group will be selected at a later meeting.

All students, including men enrolled at the University Branch, who are interested in aviation and in becoming charter members of the Aero club must be present at the second meeting, according to Jackie Story, vice-president of the organization. This meeting will be held on January 9.

KDP Has Party

Alpha Delta chapter of Kappa Delta Pi, education honorary, held initiation services and a Christmas party last Tuesday afternoon in the Rowena Longmire Lounge.

The following girls were initiated: Virginia Fran Gallemore, Ruth Jones, Beatrice Lewis, Julia Nesius, Mary Louis Perfect, and Mabel Ruth Pope.

Following an annual tradition, Miss Martha Chapman, English professor, conducted the Christmas party. The members sang carols and enjoyed refreshments.

Out of the 4300 varieties of flowers grown in Europe, only 420 have agreeable perfume.

Religious Groups Plan Convention, Initiation, Play

Plans for a Hillel convention, Newman club initiation, and a play to be presented by Methodist students are foremost on the calendar of events for religious groups.

The regular meeting of the Hillel Foundation was held Tuesday afternoon at Temple Israel. At the meeting, Irene Gross, president, announced that members at Florida State College have been invited to attend a Hillel convention in Havana, Cuba, during the Christmas vacation. The convention plans were outlined and discussed during this meeting.

Plans for a supper celebration of Chanukah, the Feast of Lights, were announced by Polly Marks, social chairman. This supper will be given December 14 in the Temple vestry, at which time a play portraying the spirit of Chanukah will be given by Sonya Heyman, cultural chairman. She will be assisted by members of her committee.

Rabbi Lorge, Hillel director, announced that the University of Miami foundation is sponsoring a debate tournament for Florida Hillel members next quarter. It was decided at this time to send several members to Miami to represent FSC in the tournament.

Between 70 and 80 members of the Newman Club were taken to the Catholic church in a special chartered bus November 24. Newman Club Sunday, for the initiation of its 49 new members.

Father Joseph M Borg, moderator, presented each candidate with the Newman club colors and a Miraculous medal. Ann Parker, freshmen advisor to the club, pinned them on each new member as Gloria Basila, president, pronounced the official words of enrollment.

At 7:30 that night a coffee in honor of the new members was held in the clubroom of the Longmire building. Many of the parishioners and faculty members, including Dr and Mrs Paul J Coughlin, club sponsors, were present. Entertainment was given to more than a hundred guests by Mary Baxter and Olga Vega playing piano solos; a sextet of girls sang a number of popular tunes; by Gloria Basila; and the new Schubert's "Ave Maria" was sung. Male members of the Newman Club sang "I've Been Working on the Railroad".

The initiates were: Ann Barton, Jan Clark, Marguerite von Reeden, Beatrice Oblesby, Aileen Murphy, Ellen Bossidy, Ruth Fiezl, Olga Vega, Marie Berry, Muriel Perry, Marion Marotta, Dina Di Fabrizio, Angelique Vocelle, Helen Burch, Mary Agnes Parker, Mary K Murray, Mary Baxter, Catherine Colonneso, Juanita Muller, Sarah Sanders, Kathleen Park.

Anna Fernandez, Violetta Sosin, Rose Marie Nunnari, Jeanne Erickson, Angel Lappington, Nina Shuman, Marguerite Myers, Joan Downey, Edith Clark, Amante Semmes, Doris McLeod, Frances Williams, Violet James, Thyrza Wilcox, Jean Dobarganes, Mary Theresa Sims, Patricia Roache, Helen Hobbs, Anna Holden, Roberta McAtee, Catherine Austin, Lois Brinkmann, Margaret Braun, Leonard Brooks, Thomas Kane, Ross Schwelm, Basil Vocelle, Maurice Arnow.

A play entitled "No Room in the Hotel" will be presented at 6:30 p m in the Methodist student house on December 15 by the Methodist young people.

Characters in the play are portrayed by Garth Bower as the Man, Grace Trice as the Woman, Francis McLamore, who takes the part of the Reporter, Mary Jane Lassiter playing the part of the Clerk, John Cash as the Travelling Man, Evelyn Johnson as the Scrub Woman, Lemoyne Cash who plays the Senator, Jackie Fosdick who is the Senator's Wife and Bruce Flanders as the Bellhop.

After the play there will be a Christmas party at the student house at which time the usual exchanging of gifts will be dispensed with and in its place gifts for overseas relief boxes will be given.

Sylvia Maish, chosen as FSC representative, will compete in a state-wide beauty contest at Gainesville. This will be a feature of the Fall Frolics program.

Two Co-eds of FSC To Marry During Christmas Holiday

Well, it's happened!

The approaching marriage of two students who are attending Florida State College is really evidence of the changing order of things on the campus today.

The tradition-breaking couple is Jeanette Herndon of Bristol and W L "Dub" Bailey of Blountstown. "We decided if other couples could manage marriage and a college education that we could do it too," said the petite bride-to-be.

Their marriage will take place in Blountstown on the nineteenth of December. When they return to college next quarter they will live in the married veterans quarters at Dale Mabry. "I've already drafted all my friends to help me decorate the apartment," laughed Jeanette.

Jeanette, a red-gold blonde of 5 feet 3 inches, and W L, who measures about 6 feet 2 inches, have become a familiar twosome on the campus. They do a great deal of their studying together and their favorite haunt is the Sweet Shop where they sit for hours planning their future.

"Gosh, I'm so excited I don't know how I'm going to study for exams," confided Jeanette, "but what really worries me is that when my teachers call, 'Mrs Bailey', instead of 'Miss Herndon',—I won't remember to answer them!"

Choir Makes Trip

The Florida State College mixed choir, under the direction of Mr Herman Gunter, presented a performance of Handel's Messiah in the Jasper High school auditorium last Wednesday evening at 8:00. The coed orchestra, directed by Mr William Presser, accompanied the choir to Jasper.

The bass solos of the Oratoria were sung by Mr Gunter, and tenor solos by Mr Walter James. The soprano and alto solos were omitted from this performance.

The Christmas oratorio, which is to be presented on Sunday evening at FSC, was not presented in costume. Girls wore black dresses, and boys were dressed in dark trousers and white shirts with maroon neckties. During the performance at FSC, singers will be dressed in white.

The approximately 100 members of the mixed choir and the approximately 25 members of the orchestra were entertained at a dinner in the High School cafeteria as guests of the school.

The singers and musicians made the trip to Jasper in special buses, leaving campus at 3:30 in the afternoon and returning late that evening.

French families are growing smaller. In 1835, the average was four children, now it is only two.

Former CGA President Returns to FSC To Become Assistant English Instructor

"My return to Florida State College two years after graduation has proved quite enjoyable," stated Miss Jere Turner, assistant instructor in English and former president of College Government Association on campus.

Miss Turner, who is getting accustomed to her status as a teacher and not as a student, believes that FSC has become a very different college as far as the students are concerned. "The effects of co-education are quite noticeable, plus the fact that the faculty and student body is much larger since I returned," she said.

"The most amusing incidents have occurred now that I am on the other side," exclaimed Miss Turner. "Imagine the uncomfortable feeling I experience during meal times when students who happen to sit with me begin to pour out their troubles concerning their teachers and professors! It is rather difficult for me to console them," she continued.

The library presented a difficulty which Miss Turner had to conquer at the beginning of the year. It took a bit of persuasion to convince the reserve room employes that, being on the faculty, she could reserve books for her classes. "They are now acquainted with me, and I have at last been accepted as a teacher!" laughingly exclaimed Miss Turner.

At the first faculty meeting of the year, Miss Turner was quite astonished to see many of her former classmates introduced as new faculty members also. "Having these faculty friends here causes me to look for other familiar faces which I used to see on campus several years ago," she stated.

After graduating from FSC Miss Turner attended the University of Virginia in Charlottesville, Virginia, where she worked on a master's degree.

Breakfast Honors Goats Party Given for Members

Following a week of various activities, 28 goats were initiated into Spirogira, Odd honorary, the weekend of November 22.

After the initiation one of the new members, Anne Hunter, solved a mystery that has baffled the Spirogira members since October 28 by confessing that she sent the coffin-shaped box containing a skeleton to Frances Myers, Spirogira president, as a joke. The cadaver that caused so much consternation is now in the biology department.

Sunday, November 24, a breakfast was given at the Sweet Shop by the Spirogira members in honor of the new members. Other activities included a party given by the goats Friday night, November 22, for the members and a party for the team members given by Spirogira and Esteren after Playnight, November 23.

Traditional Dinner

A Christmas dinner will be held for all the seniors in Gilchrist dining hall Saturday, December 14, at 6:00 p m. They will all attend in their caps and gowns. After the dinner, they will go caroling to the governor's mansion and various faculty homes.

Helen Stone and Sarah Ellen Glenn are in charge of the decorations and Ruth Ervin the caroling.

Students Organize State Horn Society

Six students at Florida State College have organized the Florida State Horn Society, the first of its kind at the institution.

The sextet includes Jean Elden, Ralph Hartsfield, Peggy May, Wanda Miller, Annette Vitsky, and Kitty Wagner. They will play in recital for the first time when they are featured in the Band Concert second quarter under the auspices of Owen F Sellers, director of the band. They hope to branch out into professional activities in the future and will accept offers to play for other groups.

This group is analogous to a chamber music ensemble. It will specialize in chorales, arrangements of symphonic selections, and other types of music appropriate to horn renditions.

Anyone who can qualify for admission to the society is welcome to attend the meetings which are held in Westcott 113 on Tuesday afternoons.

Organists to Have Christmas Party

The Tallahassee branch chapter of the American Guild of Organists will hold a Christmas party and program at 4:30 p m, Sunday in the tower organ studio of Westcott building. The Trinity Methodist junior choir, under direction of Walter James of the Florida State College faculty, will present a program of varied selections at this time

Mrs W R Latham and Nell Duncan are in charge of refreshments for this occasion; Fawn Trawick, decorations; and Miss Rebecca Rodenberg, program. The following organ selections will be included: Pachelbel's "From Heaven High to Earth I Come" played by Eleanor Caldwell; Brahms' "Lo, How A Rose E'er Blooming" played by Sally Slater; Bach-Brigg's 'Fanfare Fugue" by Sue Petit; Bach's "Pastorale" by Margy Haldeman; from The Guest, Gillette's "Behold There Came Wisemen" by Mildred Marm; and Guilman's "Processional March" by Irene Coleman.

Junior Bazaar

Junior Bazaar, the new young woman's fashion magazine, has because of publication difficulties, restricted its circulation to high school and college students. Mr Jack Gaddy will be in the Flambeau editorial office, second floor of the Longmire building, on Monday afternoon from 1 to 6 o'clock to receive subscriptions from students. Subscription rates are three dollars for one year, five dollars for two years.

McBride Plans For 300 Men

Male Students to Be Housed in New Dorms

About 300 new male students are expected to enroll for the second quarter beginning January 3, 1947, according to announcement made by Dr Otis McBride, dean of men for the Tallahassee branch of the University of Florida. Several new buildings at Dale Mabry are being partitioned into rooms for use as men dormitories.

Purchasing of these buildings is part of the program to expand the facilities at Dale Mabry to accommodate 1,000 men students. The sum of $150,000 was voted for the expansion program recently by the Florida state cabinet. This is the remainder of the $300,000 requested by the state board of control last August.

New students will find an almost complete unit next quarter, said Dr McBride. The Dale Mabry cafeteria has been equipped to provide meals for additional students. Miss Edith Manford, head dietitian at the base, stated that the dining hall wing of the cafeteria which is not in use now will be opened next quarter.

A bookstore has been installed in the administration building and requests for new stock are being filled as soon as possible. A new post office, in operation for the past several weeks, offers complete postal service and is equipped with individual boxes for students and faculty members residing at Dale Mabry.

Another convenience is a small grocery line recently added to fill the needs of married veterans. The stock of groceries is being increased daily as demands for needed products are received by the store. Most needs, with the exception of fresh meats and vegetables, can be met.

At present the purchasing is being done through the bookstore since the new store has not been set up for purchasing facilities.

'FLEET'S'

Student Has Flighty Ambition For Girls and Boys of FSC

Have you noticed a small Piper cub being flown over the campus of Florida State College? The pilot is Jackie Story, a sophomore at FSC from Lakeland, who has 34 solo hours and 20 dual hours of flying to her credit.

Jackie started taking flying lessons in Tallahassee last March, flying whenever she could find time to leave her studies for a few hours. She flies the smaller type of plane and has flown a BT-13, which is a larger plane. In order to get her pilot's license, Jackie had to fly to Jacksonville from Lakeland, the longest trip that she has made.

"My mother is responsible for my interest in flying," Jackie said. "She had hoped that I would know how to fly before I could drive an automobile, but that was impossible as I started driving at the age of 12," she continued. "I was not able to start my lessons before last year because there was no one in Lakeland who taught flying. Since I have gotten my own license I have not been able to fly on long trips because I haven't my own plane," she added.

Jackie's ambition is to have a Republic Sea-bee It is a four passenger plane and is equipped to land in water and on the ground. Jackie said that it won't be much longer before she will be able to get her plane as they are starting to deliver them for the first time since the war.

"A club should be organized at FSC for all those students who fly," Jackie stated. "Through this club other students interested in flying could obtain some information about the lessons and the general requirements to fly."

Jackie said that the opportunities for every one to learn to fly are increasing and those who already fly should help others to get started. "Airplanes are here to stay," said she.

Players Produce Shaw's Pygmalion On FSC Campus

"You cawn't do it, old boy!"

"I'd jolly well like to know why not?" answers Higgins, who is Shaw's modern version of Pygmalion.

Out of a London tenement comes Eliza who wants a job in a flower shop but can not speak proper English. She goes to Higgins to take lessons in diction, and on a bet, Higgins undertakes to pass her off as a duchess in six months time.

The result is "Shaw on a Holiday," says Time. "Some of the funniest scenes in modern theater," says the speech department.

The playmakers are busy on British stage diction, on Cockney accents, and on elaborate settings using three complete scene changes under the aegis of Miss Yvonne Cody, instructor in speech, and Mr David Avant.

With the production in its third week of rehearsal, many girls who tried out are still grieving over the lost part of Eliza Doolittle During those crucial tryout days the director, Miss Cody, was showered with cockney accents from morning till night by ambitious students.

Some desperate "Cockneys" who wished to get rid of their rivals were seen looking around for the arsenic left over from the last play.

In spite of the contest, everyone took it good-naturedly when Joy Fleming won the coveted role of Eliza. Co-starring is Herbert Aldous as Higgins.

The supporting cast includes Gloria Wells as Mrs Pearce, Evelyn Johnson as Mrs Higgins, Katherine Moore as Mrs Eynsford-Hill, Claire St John as Miss Eynsford-Hill, Curtis Proctor as Freddie, Herman Gunter as Doolittle, Mary Anne Cannon and Pat Yates as bystanders and Barbara Pennell as a parlor maid.

YW Cabinet Draws Quarter to a Close

The cabinet of the Young Women's Christian Association held its last meeting of the quarter in the clubroom of the Longmire building Tuesday night at 8:30. After the business was completed, refreshments were served by the social chairman, Dorothea McRee, and the group sang carols. The party was in honor of Dixie Kennedy, Willardeen Pulliam, and Betty Lee who will be interning next quarter. A Christmas present was given Miss Phyllis Greife, executive director of YWCA, at this time.

The YWCA will be in charge of the Christmas chimes this year which are to be played over the amplifier from 5 to 5:30 the last five week-days students are on campus from Wednesday, December 11, through Tuesday of exam week. Dixie Kennedy and Jane Ranson will take charge of arrangements.

Mrs Coyle E Moore was elected as the chairman of the advisory board last week.

Library Opens Mabry Branch

Opening Set for Today, Lynn Will Supervise

The Dale Mabry branch library is scheduled to open today according to Miss Louise Richardson, head librarian at Florida State College. It will be under the supervision of Miss Nell Lynn, a graduate of Emory University's librarian school, who comes here from the Albertson Public Library at Orlando.

At present only a limited number of books are available. The general basic reference books, including dictionaries, encyclopedias and other research material, will be on hand as will special reserve books. Only books that are of use in, and pertaining to, subjects being taught at the base will be kept in reserve. A number of fiction books and popular novels have been secured and a large order has been placed for more, but the shipment is not expected to arrive for some time. The greatest portion of the books for the new library were taken from the FSC library, and in addition to the ones that were ordered and bought, faculty members donated many.

An effort is being made to collect a large list of magazine subscriptions. These will deal chiefly with science and mechanics. The only out-of-state newspaper subscribed to is the Sunday New York Times, but from 20 to 25 Florida newspapers are contributing their subscriptions.

A heating plant has been secnred to replace the proposed pot-bellied stoves, and flourescent lighting is being installed.

"We are making every attempt to have a comfortable place in which the men at the base may study and read. Of course, the auxiliary at Dale Mabry cannot hope to ever match the FSC library which has been growing for the past 50 years, but it will be kept as up to date as possible," Miss Richardson stated.

A staff of three will be maintained until Christmas. It will consist of Mrs H P Becker, Mrs Eloise Dillon and Miss Lynn, who will be in charge.

Organ Students Start AGO Chapter

Organ students of Florida State College met November 22 to form a petition for a college chapter of the American Guild of Organists. The Tallahassee branch of AGO is the first college chapter of that organization to be formed in the state.

The group chose the following officers, who are awaiting ratification: Edith Smith, chairman; Sally Slater, secretary; Nell Duncan, treasurer; and Courtland Morper, librarian. The chapter will be under the direction of Mrs Ramona C Beard, head of the organ department. Meetings will be held in the tower organ room at 4:30 p m on the third Friday of every month. Programs will be announced.

LOOK RECORD REVIEW

TOPS IN WAX—Vol. 2 King Cole Trio. Capitol's album release of their top-flight trio provides nearly thirty minutes of today's best record entertainment. Nat "King" Cole (piano-vocals), Oscar Moore (guitarist), and Johnny Miller (bass) dip into the song hits of the past and produce memorable song and instrumental stimulation. The album offers four 10-inch discs with these titles in standout: I Don't Know Why and I'm In The Mood For Love, both with King Cole vocals; and, as instrumentals: To A Wild Rose and I Know That You Know. Here is music with inspired arranging and a jazz beat . . . it's King Cole Trio Time!

Eddie Howard and Trio make a superb recording of the hit that is currently sweeping the country—To Each His Own; then he with band reverses to Careless (Majestic). EFFECT MUSIC—Boyd Meets Stravinsky. Boyd Raeburn, who has the most talked of band in the country, waxes his best of the year. Raeburn produces effects, not moods. In Stravinsky, Boyd does a subtle three-part descriptive: Part One introduces the band as it might be in a pre-Stravinsky cycle—fast, with tricky effects, as any modern type band might play it. The cycle closes with a drum break which also introduces Part Two. This represents the epic meeting of Boyd and Stravinsky. The part closes with another drum break to open Part Three. Here is the modernist Raeburn of post-Stravinsky influence, whose defiance of tradition has excited nation-wide attention. The reverse, I Have Only Eyes For You, has a David Allyn vocal (Jewel).

DANCE—Woody Herman and his combo from within the band play a fast jump—Fan It. Featured are the vibes of Red Norvo, Woody's vocals, and solos by tenorman "Flip" Phillips, Bill Harris (trombone) and Sonny Berman (trumpet). Backing this up, Woody and band play Blowin' Up A Storm. Solos on this side that rate special mention: Woody on clarinet; Chubby Jackson, bass; Billy Bauer, guitar, and Bill Harris, trombone (Columbia). Capitol makes a scoring with their second Billy Butterfield release: Sharp Scarf, an adaptation from Chaminade. Solo honors are divided between Butterfield and Bill Stegmeyer (clarinet). Both augment the effectiveness of other's passages. On the reverse—Rumors Are Flying, with a Pat O'Connor vocal.

Christmas Fashions

These days your head is in one dizzy whirl, and you have the hours and minutes counted till that glorious Christmas holiday. It's all going to be one breathless round, and you know full well that's the only way to live. You have Christmas dances on your mind, and plans for winning stag lines. There'll be afternoons full of fun, too—skating, skiing, and movie dates galore. And there'll be a towering Christmas tree showed with tinsel, and just what you've been yearning for wrapped up in shining packages under the tree. Of course all this makes that geometry theorem just twice as hard to learn, and the corollary next to impossible.

And then you're reminded of your very own "corollaries"—those dresses now hanging in your closet, waiting tot ake you gaily through all the flurry of this Christmas fun. You've reviewed your dresses one by one, and you know by heartw hich one you're wearing where. But you're pining for just one more holiday dress, and the minute Mother says "yes" you know exactly what you're going to choose. Your new dress will be a bold and beautiful toast-warm plaid, designed for curling up in front of open fires, and for looking just right among your cousins and your uncles and your aunts on Christmas Day. Such a dress is the one we've sketched. You'll treasure its smooth simplicity, its high throat-hugging collar,a nd its minuescule middle. You'll hunt for a kitten-soft wool plaid for this dress, and it will be a plaid with lots of bright, bright red in it. When it's done, you'll add your favorite leather belt. Or choose a two-piece wool, and you'll have a skirt htat can go places with any sweater as well as with its own topper. This is a light-hearted two-piecer with the new long-line sweater over-blouse, and generous box pleats all around the skirt. It, too, has a high little collar, and lines that will do the most for a precious plaid. Choose either design, and you're ready to meet each and every moment in your holiday whirligig.

Tumbling Belles Win Campus Males

"Gosh, you're cute, what's your name?"

"Wouldn't you like to be my girl?"

The two blushing girls had been surrounded by a group of entranced admirers before they were aware that they were being observed by the boys who were waiting for the bus.

This doesn't sound like the usual scene on this campus, but it happened the other day over in front of Bryan when two pert young misses decided to try out their favorite sport of rolling down the hill beside the sunken gardens of Bryan Hall.

Only five short years of experience with the problems of this world hadn't quite prepared them for all the sudden masculine attention they were attracting—so they ducked their heads and ran as fast as their short legs would allow them.

But wait until they are old enough to go to college!

Workshop Program To Feature Carols

Spanish House Will Present WTAL Radio Show Tonight

Christmas carols in Spanish will be sung on the radio workshop program tonight at 7:45 over WTAL. The program is presented by the Spanish house under the direction of Miss Carmen L Rivera, residence counselor.

The four carols to be sung are "Silent Night," "Hark the Herald Angels Sing," "Las Posadas", a Mexican carol, and "Los Reyes de Oriente", a carol from Puerto Rico.

Mr Herman Gunter, assistant professor of voice, worked with the group in preparing for the program. The continuity was written by Martha MacCann and will be announced by Joe Hosford, both members of the workshop.

The students at the Spanish house who will sing the carols are Mary Frances Allen, Dot Bush, Shirley Colley, Mary Evans, Lilia Fernandez, Lou Hargis, Ondina Lorbardero, Frances Lyon Annette Maples, Jean Olsen, Elizabeth Pierce Natalina Rogolino, Vivian Schaeffer and Sarah Shriver.

The first broadcast of the radio workship last Friday night was put on by members of the radio class, said Miss Kemper Moore professor of speech and sponsor of the workshop.

Dem School Band To Have Concert

The first concert of the Demonstration School band will be held on December 13, announced Dr R L Goulding, principal of the school. The band, consisting of approximately 35 students, is under the direction of Mr R G Smith, assistant director of the college band. Also participating at this same time will be the tonette band, composed of 25 student players.

Among other pre-Christmas activities will be the annual Winter Formal dance which the junior high school will hold on December 13 at the school.

Dr Goulding also stated that the school will close for the holidays at 3 p m on December 18 with Christmas assembly programs. The classes will be divided into three groups, the primary, elementary and junior high. Each group will present its own special program which will consist of Christmas music and plays.

Stewart Receives Omicron Nu Cup

The annual presentation of the Omicron Nu scholarship cup was awarded this year to Doris Stewart at the meeting of the Home Economics Club last Wednesday in the Longmire building at 7:45 p m. Honorable mention was given to Margaret Phipps.

Miss Mary Devers, instructor in the home economics department at FSC and member of Omicron Nu, spoke on the "Aims and Purposes of Omicron Nu and activities of local Pi chapter. President of the club, Esther Dale, made the presentation at the close of the meeting. Afterwards a reception was held in the club room honoring the winner.

The cup is awarded to the sophomore home economics major who maintains the highest average during her freshman year. Doris Stewart is accredited with an average of 2.77. The holding of this honor cup was begun in 1926 and has been awarded each year since that time.

Jerome Davis Will Address Student Body

Correspondent to Appear In Westcott Auditorium Next Friday Night

"Japan in Defeat and After," Is Subject of Talk

Dr Jerome Davis, lecturer, author, teacher, and foreign correspondent, will speak in the auditorium next Friday night at 8 o'clock on the subject "Japan in Defeat and After." Tickets will not be necessary for admission.

Dr Davis recently returned from Russia, where for the past year he has served as a foreign correspondent. His articles have appeared in Colliers, the New Republic, and other American magazines. During last year Dr Davis had his headquarters in Moscow. He visited Baku, Astrakahan, Stalingrad, Kiev, Kharkov, Smolensk Odessa, Sevastopol, Leningrad, Rumania, the Finnish frontier and India.

Dr Davis has taught at Boston University, Dartmouth, Harvard, the University of Wisconsin, the New School for Social Research, and has been president of the American Federation of Teachers. He has written and collaborated on 14 books, including Capitalism and Its Culture, Labor Problems in America, The New Russia, Labor Speaks for Itself on Religion, Christianity and Social Adventuring and Business and the Church.

Dr Davis has been to Europe 11 times, three times as correspondent for American newspaper syndicates. In 1935 he toured the world, lecturing. In 1938 he flew around South America, making investigations in Brazil. Son of a missionary-statesman who founded the first Christian university in Japan, Doshisha, Dr Davis traveled over the entire Orient in his boyhood. In 1916 the American secretary of war sent him to Russia to direct prisoner of war work in Turkestan, under the Czar regime. He saw the Russian revolution at first hand, and became head of all YMCA war work in Russia.

Sophomores Conceal Annual Hop Theme

Lack of Intermission Is New Feature of Formal Dance

Valentine decorations, details of which are being kept secret, will furnish the background for dancing to the music of a ten-piece band from Camp Gordon Johnston at the annual Sophomore Hop in the Physical Education building the night of February 9.

This year there will be no intermission but something much more exciting to take its place, according to Georgia Jaeckel, chairman of the Hop. "Speaking with an unprejudiced mind, I am sure Sophomore Hop will be quite the gayest of the gay, and our added attraction about which 'I'll never tell' will be of interest to all," she declared.

Tickets for the occasion have gone on sale in lower Westcott from 11 until 1 o'clock at a price of 50 cents stag or drag. When a sophomore buys her ticket she will be given, if so desired, as many present cards as she wants to give to stag boys.

The guest list will include: Dr and Mrs Doak S Campbell, Dean Olivia N Dorman, Miss Kay Warren, Dr and Mrs H F Richards, Miss Marie Donahue, Miss Es-

Winslow Featured In Recital Tonight

Miss Mary Esther Winslow, pianist, will be featured on the program of the faculty tonight in Westcott auditorium at 8:15.

At the age of seven Miss Winslow began studying piano. She later studied at Chicago Musical College and Columbia School of Music in Chicago where she received her masters degree in music.

She is a member of the Mu Phi Epsilon, national music honorary, and the president of the local chapter of Pi Kappa Lambda, also a national music honorary. She taught at Columbia School of Music, Chicago, and Roycemore School for girls in Evanston, Illinois. For the past eleven years Miss Winslow has been a member of the Florida State College faculty and is now Assistant Professor of Piano. She is also a member of the faculty trio.

On the program tonight Miss Winslow has included classic, romantic, and modern selections.

Jerome Davis, lecturer, author, teacher and foreign correspondent, will speak next Friday night at 8 o'clock on "Japan in Defeat and After."

FSC Orchestra Gives Concert

Dramatic Soprano Makes Appearance Here

The annual concert of the Florida State College symphony orchestra was presented Monday night under the direction of Dr Walter R Cowles with Mrs Patricia Millett, dramatic soprano, making her first appearance here.

Mrs Millett, instructor in voice, taught at Drake University, Des Moines, Idaho, before coming to FSC last October.

Her study of voice first began during her freshman year at MacMurray's School for Girls in Illinois and later at the University of Illinois, where she was a student of Bruce Foote, who now appears on the Chicago Theatre of the Air every Sunday night.

During her college days Mrs Millett appeared in Gilbert and Sullivan operetta as well as grand opera.

Reports, Elections Are Senate Business

Shiver Is Judiciary Member, Ratliff, House-President

Student Senate's business Wednesday afternoon included reports from the legislative and codifying committees, a report from the committee appointed to draw up the recommendation advocating unlimited light privileges for all students, and the unanimous elections of Betty Ann Shiver as senior representative to Judiciary and Marie Ratliff as house president for the off-campus houses.

Speaking for the legislative and codifying committees, Beth Fuhrer and Mary White, respectively, gave reports on how those committees are planning to clarify the Gold Book and told of what progress has been made in the revision of the book.

The committee appointed at the last meeting to draw up the recommendation on unlimited light privileges read the recommendations which they were to present to College Council yesterday. Along with this recommendation the committee was also to present a list of reasons for considering this rule necessary. Further discussion of other reasons was asked for and several additional ones were added to the list.

Sarah Lewis, chairman of Senate, asked that Senate members make an effort to meet new freshmen members who will be elected next week, and to help them become accustomed to their duties as Senate representatives.

Reeves Appointed Contest Chairmon

The new chairman for the creative arts contest, sponsored by the American Association of University Woman, is Miss Cynthia Reeves, instructor in industrial arts, according to Dr Carmen Rogers, last year's chairman.

Dr Rogers said that sub-committees have not yet been named. There will be faculty members in charge of the following committees: arts and crafts work, musical composition and creative writing, dance composition, and literary creative writing.

Miss Reeves has been an instructor at Florida State College since 1943. Prior to this she did creative art work in Winston-Salem, North Carolina, on three levels. They were grade school, high school, and college levels. Miss Reeves also did some play production work while there.

Vets Attend FSC Under GI Bill And Vocational Rehabilitation

Thousands of returned servicemen are taking advantage of the GI Bill of Rights by going back to their old alma maters and resuming their studies which they had to leave at the outbreak of the war. Many are going to college for the first time with the help of the government, and having the opportunity of learning more about the democratic ideals for which they fought.

While ex-service men are enrolling at the University of Florida, there are ex-service women enrolled at Florida State College. Three students, Emeline Gala Torney, Mary June Livingston, and Mary Louise Bevis are under the GI Bill of Rights No 346, and Lois Robinson Taylor and Marguerite Scull are under the Vocational Rehabilitation Bill—Public 16. At present these five are the only GI's we have, but more are expected in the near future.

Miss Mary Louise Bevis is a first quarter freshman having just begun school on January 4, after completing two and one half years in the Navy. Mary Louise was a pharmacist mate first class in the hospital corps, and worked in Navy hospitals in New York, Jacksonville, Florida, Camp Lejuene, North Carolina, Washington, D C, and her last duty was in the United States Naval Hospital at Pensacola, Florida.

"Of all the experiences that happened to me while I was in the Navy, the one that I shall remember the longest and the one that made the most lasting impression on me was caring for the sick and wounded boys who had fought on Iwo Jima and Okinawa. After seeing them in such agonizing conditions, it made me appreciate even more all that they did for us," said Mary Louise.

Emeline Gale Torney is another ex-service woman who was in the WAVES. She was a seaman first class, and was in the Navy for one year. Emeline was stationed in New York City, Oklahoma and Idaho, and she said that being in the WAVES gave her a chance to see many parts of the United States that she had never seen before. This was an education in itself, and she enjoyed being stationed out West a great deal.

"While I was in the Navy I had the opportunity of seeing and meeting many famous people. Some that I met who were very

25-year-old Choir to Give Program January 26

As part of their sixteenth national tour which began in New York at the Metropolitan Opera House, the Don Cossack choir will present their return engagement at the Florida State College on January 26.

The 25-year-old choir composed of 30 singers and their diminutive leader, Serge Jaroff, have traversed over a million miles of the earth's surface, appearing before our armed forces in every theater of war. These Muscovites are the only citizens of the United States who can write the entire constitution of the United States States by memory from beginning to end in Russian and English.

"A Russian who does not sing is no Russian," says Serge Jaroff, whose choir voices are arranged in six or eight parts, touching the upper and lower limits of the voice from reedy soprano to subterranean bass.

During this season, the Don Cossacks will appear at the United States Military Academy at West Point and will also perform with the Philadelphia orchestra.

Students holding "A" Artist Series tickets will be able to see the performance.

Ransam Is Elected New Y Treasurer

Ann Ramsam was elected the new treasurer of the Young Women's Christian Association of Florida State College at the meeting of the organization last Monday evening in the Longmire Building.

Plans were also made at the meeting concerning the trip to the Area Conference to be held at Rollins College, Winter Park, Florida, the week end of January 26 at which all YWCA members in the state may participate. Any member of the "Y" who wishes to go may do so if they will see Margaret Clayton, president, before next Thursday.

FSC Radio Workshop To Begin Next Week

Musical Selections Included In Program Last Night

In the Garnet and Gold newscast from the college studio last night, announcement was made that the FSC radio workshop, directed by Miss Mary Tom Colones, will make its debut next Thursday night in the first of a regular series of broadcasts.

Garnet and Gold's announcement stated that the first program is scheduled for 9:15 Thursday night, January 24, and that other programs will follow at tha. hour every Thursday night.

News commentator for the weekly broadcast last night was Sara Norman. Editors of the music section were Alice Wheeler and Phyllis DeKalb, soprano and contralto singers. They were accompanied by Miss Ruby Dunstan and Miss Lucile Wagner, respectively. Alice sang "The Enchanted Forest" by Phillips, and "The Little Shepherd's Song" by Winter Watts. Phyllis' selections were both from Brahms—"Minnelled," or "Love Song," and "Lullaby."

Garnet and Gold is broadcast each Thursday night at 7:30 from the college studio via WTAL.

Pepper Gives Views in Talk

Advocates Loan to Russia, Division of Germany

Advocating a U S loan to Russia, a revision of the Potsdam agreement to provide for the division of Germany into separate states, and a better understanding by Americans of what he termed Britain's "liberal" labor government, Senator Claude Pepper, member of the Senata Foreign Relations Committee, spoke to some 1,000 students, faculty, and townspeople in the auditorium of Florida State College at 8 o'clock last Friday night.

Standing before both microphone and amplifier, Senator Pepper, dressed in a dark blue serge suit, told his two audiences (one, the radio listeners of Tallahassee) about his visists to the leading capitals of Europe and tha Middle East. He talked for more than an hour without benefit of notes in the same clear forceful voice which has, in the past seven years, been raised so often in the halls of Congress.

"We are so strong and so powerful," said he, "if we are not careful, it will be the United States against the world, or the world against the United States." To prevent this catastrophe, Florida's leading liberal urged

FSC Delegates Plan Trip to Gainesville

Chemists of Florida Section Will Meet January 19

According to Dr L J Lewis, professor of chemistry, several members of the department of chemistry plan to attend the one hundred and fourteenth meeting of the Florida section, a branch of the American Chemical Society, to be held in Gainesville on January 19.

The featured address of this meeting will be one by Walter J Murphy, editor of Industrial and Engineering Chemistry, who will speak on "Scientific and Industrial Intelligence Work Abroad". Dr Lewis related that Mr Murphy had spent two months in Europe on a special assignment for the Foreign Economic Administration and the Chemical Warfare Service.

"For the past few years," said Dr. Lewis, "travel conditions made it almost impossible to have more than the local people at the sectional meetings. This condition may be contrasted with a meeting several years ago when the Florida section met at Panama City, Florida, as the guests of the Southerncraft Paper Company. At that time a national record was set in regard to the total number of miles traveled to attend a state meeting."

Dr Lewis said that the 1946 officers would take over at the Gainesville meeting. He added that the new chairman was Dr Roland B French, biochemist of the Florida Experimental Station at Gainesville.

College Buys Dale Mabry's Bowling Alley

Equipment for Six Alleys Is Valued at $9,000 Reports Shaw

Building Plans Are Underway To House Naw Sport

Six bowling alleys have been purchased very recently by Florida State College from the Dale Mabry Army Air Field Post Exchange, according to R K Shaw, acting business manager of the college.

The equipment, including six hardwood alleys, bowling balls, pins, maple benches for players, and slanting score-card tables, had a total value of $9000 when it was new. It was manufactured by the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Company in Chicago, Ill, reputedly one of the best in that field. All of the equipment is in first class or "new" condition, according to Mr Shaw.

Plans for housing facilities for the bowling alleys on this campus are being formulated, but Mr Shaw has said that there is no definite building schedule. The proposed site of a building for this athletic equipment is north

Pre-Med Honorary To Install Members

FSC First Woman's College In Alpha Epsilon Delta

Fifteen students will be installed into Alpha Epsilon Delta on February 23 into the first and only pre-medical honorary in a woman's college in this country, according to Ella Mae Baer, newly-elected corresponding secretary of the honorary. Dr Emmett Carmichael of the University of Alabama will be present at the installation.

The charter for this campus chapter has been accepted by the national Alpha Epsilon Delta. The Florida State College pre-medical honorary will be a beta chapter since the alpha chapter has been established at the University of Florida.

Newly elected officers of the honorary are Joye Funke, president; Margaret Limroth, recording secretary and treasurer; and Ella Mae Baer, corresponding secretary.

Charter members are Helen Fletcher, Velna Jacqueline Partin, Sue Searcy, Ella Mae Baer, Lois

Building Bids in For New Dormitory

Construction companies have been authorized to place bids on the building of a new dormitory to be located north of the infirmary by recent action of the State Board of Control, according to President Doak S Campbell. Soundings in order to determine the nature of the subsoil at the site of the proposed structure meanwhile are continuing.

The contract for construction of this dormitory, which will house 280 students and take approximately one year to complete, will probably be let at a meeting of the State Board in March, according to Dr Campbell.

Dorothy Thompson Expounds Personal Opinions in Interview; Gives Comment on Education, Publications and Communism

By BARBARA BECKMAN and ANNE HUTTON

Punctuating her vivid conversation with animated hands and a well-coiffed grey head, Dorothy Thompson, outstanding woman journalist, discussed her personal opinions informally for more than an hour in a private interview with Flambeau reporters.

Speaking on education, Miss Thompson said that our education has become too selective, and that there are too many technical subjects. She stressed the importance of integration of courses and said that "an educated person must have a picture in mind of the world as a whole at any period of time."

The militant authoress doesn't feel that the newer sciences are sciences but that Latin or Greek, logic, higher mathematics and history are far more important to a liberally educated person. Miss Thompson, as an example, pointed out that sociology is not a science but, because it is new, people think it is progressive. She also said that economics, if a science at all, is a "bastard science."

Under our present system, the lecturer believes that anyone can become a teacher. "Teachers are born and not made," Miss Thompson said. She explained that those who are going to be teachers are taught the methods of teaching while they lack the knowledge and enthusiasm necessary to stimulate student interest.

Miss Thompson went on to say that when students ask her what she considers the best preparation for her journalistic career, she replies that she feels the study of Latin has helped her most. Latin gives one not only a knowledge of the structure of the English language but it teaches mental discipline, logical thinking, and develops a good memory, she believes.

"While Bertrand Russell is an excellent mathematician," the analyst said, "his educational theory is the bunk."

Crossing her nylon-clad legs, Miss Thompson said, "Liberal arts colleges today are not tough enough. The curriculum has been watered down so that anyone can get a degree." Not everyone is fit to be educated, the commentator stated, and it should not be socially degrading if one is more suited to training rather than education. She feels that the two should not be confused.

In foreign universities the students choose their tecahers, often going from town to town to study under an outstanding lecturer, Miss Thompson recalled. While studying at a university the student is not considered "in residence," but is regarded as a mature person about whose private life the administration "doesn't give a hang."

The journalist further stated that the few critical magazines, such as Politics and the Virginia Quarterly Review, remaining in this country have practically no circulation. Taking the Nation as an example, she said that she hates to read the publication because she knows before reading it just what the articles will say. Miss Thompson mentioned the Chicago Tribune as being a one-man newspaper with Colonel McCormack's editorial views coloring even the news stories. On the other side, she said, PM is just as bad in that they publish no story unfavorable to the campaign they happen to be carrying on at that time.

By the use of adjectives, Time tells the readers what to think about the person before they tell what the person said, she continued, giving a typical example of this: "Mr B, agreeing with the red-baiting and corrupt Senator X, said . . ."

Leaning forward in her chair the speaker denounced the "common fallacy" that there are two sides to every question. "Too much importance has been placed on tolerance," she continued. "We cannot be against communism and yet tolerant of it. It isn't logical and anyone who says it is, is a damn fool."

When asked her definition of communism, Miss Thompson pounded her fist and said, "When I say communism, I mean communism." The definition of communism as that perfect state where no government is required being mentioned, the noted correspondent declared, "That isn't communism—that's Heaven!"

Playnight Will Be Stink-Potters vs Skunk-Hollowers

The "Skunk Hollow" Spirogiras will play the "Stink-Pot" Esterens in a basketball game for the unathletically inclined at Playnight tomorrow night.

At the Tuesday convocation, Spirogira Rosetta Carver first challenged Esteren Sarah Bennett, but deciding that "she's too big," she challenged Madelyn King. Nell Clark followed suit by challenging Martha Jane Brown.

Members of the Odd honorary were becomingly attired in navy blue bloomers and white middy blouses. They bounced a decrepit basketball which rose at least six inches off the floor at each bounce.

The game will start at nine o'clock Saturday night and promises to be unique in that Dr Harold Richards and Dr Milton Carothers will be the officials for the Odds and Evens, respectively. Following the game, Spirogira will hold its annual party for Esteren.

Six Speakers To Visit Here

Committee Gives Plans For Youth Conference

The annual Youth Conference, at Florida State College will be held this year the first through the third of February. Six visiting speakers will discuss the topic and theme of the conference, "Christian citizenship for today's world."

The planning committee of the Youth Conference met last Sunday afternoon at the Methodist Student House, and was presided over by Peggy Lou Thomas and Martha Jane Brown, co-chairmen of the conference. It was announced at this meeting that Mrs Martha Jean Leath, Mr Edward Reece, Dr Bush, Anauta, and Dr Winburn T Thomas would constitute the speakers.

Dr Winburn T Thomas, director of the Student Conference, and general secretary of the Student Volunteer Movement, has spent many years preaching in the Japanese churches. Dr Thomas received a Ph D degree from Yale in 1942, using as a thesis the establishment of Protestant Church in Japan.

Anauta, the only Eskimo woman on the American lecture platform, was born in Baffinland, 400 miles from the North Pole. She will speak of her adventures in a strange land and her contacts with Christianity.

Dr Francis W Bush, who will also speak at the conference was a missionary of the Methodist Church, and was interned in Santo Tomas prison during Japanese occupation. Dr Bush, though a

Blount Seeks Girls To Pick Best Name

Two dollars in merchandise will be given to any six girls, not participating in the contest for renaming the old Spic and Span, who will volunteer to choose the best name from the list of suggested names turned in by contestants, announces Mr L G Blount, half-owner of the Sweet Shop, who recently purchased the Spic. Mr Blount would like for these girls to make the selection the weekend of January 26-27, which will be one week from the closing date of the contest on January 20.

A correction is to be made of the announcement of the contest in last week's Flambeau concerning Mr Blount's address, to which all entries are to be mailed. His correct address is 701 west Jefferson Street, Tallahassee.

It is not possible to state the specific opening date of the new shop, stated Mr Blount, but he promised it to be a big day with free ice cream.

Textbook Delay Is Foult of Factory

The delay in the procurement of textbooks this quarter has been due to causes at the factories and it is not the fault of the bookstore officials or the teachers, said Miss Jewell L Graham, acting manager of the bookstore.

Miss Graham said that many of the orders had been canceled altogether, and almost all of them had been cut down so that only a certain per cent of the books ordered were sent. Many of the textbooks ordered were out of print, also.

She said that she hoped the books would come in soon, but she could not say exactly when the orders would be filled.

Correspondent Lectures to FSC Students

Views on Russia and UNO Presented by Thompson Wednesday Night

"Crucial Days" Compared With Munich in 1938

"If the Soviet Union wishes to remain aloof, I would a thousand times rather have an organization of the rest of the world without the Soviet Union than what we have now — a pretense of an organization which is at least as dangerous as none at all," Dorothy Thompson said, Wednesday night, in Westcott auditorium.

There is no hope in the present United Nations Organization, she said, refuting Senator Pepper's "dream thinking" of last week. She advocated four changes to strengthen the UNO peace plan because it is now identical with that of the 1938 Munich big three power alliance which preceded World War II, a complete rejection of the principles of the Atlantic Charter.

The governments of Great Britain and the United States realize that the Security Council would be utterly incapable of settling any dispute in which a small nation appealed for protection against a Big Power, she thought, and therefore the Security Council may be embarrassed if Iran insists upon having her case reviewed in the near future.

Changes Advocated

Miss Thompson asked for four changes, the first of which is to insist upon access to facts, "breaking the conspiracy of silence which keeps the American people shut off from what is happening."

Next, she stressed the need for clear specific laws regarding the conduct of nations, and for their enforcement. Only law, not peace, can be enforced, she said; peace is only a by product of law and order.

Miss Thompson wants the Security Council to be enlarged by at least two additional permanent seats, given to groups of small nations. She suggested one composed of the Scandinavian nations and the low countries and another a collection of the South American countries "who agree with each other."

Fourth, she advocated the establishment of a police force of highly paid volunteers recruited preferably chiefly from small states, according to a quota system. This force would be exclusively responsible to the world organization. National armed forces should not be prevented, but restricted and limited by the international control commission. Violation of these armament restrictions would be considered aggression, according to Miss Thompson's plan.

The Russian trial of the sixteen Poles, the representative Polish government in London, the collectivization of Polish farms, and the Russian puppets in the Balkans were some of the many and varied topics on which students questioned Miss Dorothy Thompson at the reception given in her honor by the college and the Artist Series Committee after her lecture Wednesday evening.

Miss Thompson held her own

Contest Sponsored By Hunter College

In celebration of its 75th anniversary, Hunter College, New York City, is offering a series of valuable prizes through an essay contest on intercultural relations.

College students are asked to write on the general topic, "How Can American Colleges and Other Social Institutions Promote the Appreciation of the Culture of Other Peoples and Cooperation Among Them?" Contestants may concentrate on a small portion of this topic but essays must not exceed 1,500 words. A first prize of $1,000, a second of $500 and 18 prizer of $100 each will be awarded to the winners.

In addition to the above mentioned sums an award of $1,000 will be given to the college which the winner of first prize is attending.

The judges will give greater consideration to material based on observation and experience than to theoretical discussions.

Teachers may also compete by discussing the subject "How Can the American Teacher Help to Foster Intercultural Relations?"

Further information can be obtained in the Personnel Office or by writing Hunter College, PO Box 7, New York City, New York.

The contest closes March first.

an International Health organization.

Mr Pepper introduced bills to provide equal pay for equal work for women, to authorize the broadcasting of the proceedings of Congress to establish the Office of War Mobilization and Adjustment, to provide for voluntary retirement fo Postal service employees after 30 years service, to assist states in providing for Dental Health programs, to grant certain benefits with respect to accumulated leave to personnel in the land and naval forces, and to provide for Federal aid to states for maternal and child welfare.

Mr Pepper received the Bachelor of Laws degree from the Harvard Law School, in 1924, after being awarded the Bachelor of Arts degree and Phi Beta Kappa at the University of Alabama. He was an instructor in law at the University of Arkansas, Fayetteville, from 1924-1925. He engaged in active practice of the law, in Perriy, Florida, for five years.

His extensive private practice in Tallahassee, 1930, received state wide recognition. He also served as a member of the State Board of Law Examiners, the Florida State Bar Association, the American Bar Association, the Lower House of the Florida Legislature, and State Board of Public Welfare.

Senator Pepper played an important part in the founding and installation of the Alpha Chapter of Florida of Phi Beta Kappa at Florida State College for Women.

He is a member of the Phi Beta Kappa, Kappa Alpha social fraternity, the Benevolent and Protective order of Elks, American Legion, "40" and "8", and Kiwanis. He was State Democratic Executive Committeemen, 1928-1929, and Lt Governor of the Western Division Kiwanis Clubs, 1929.

New Y Members Recognized Monday

Discussion of Coming Events Includes Rollins Trip

A recognition service for the new members of the Young Woman's Christian Association who joined this week will be given in the clubroom of the Longmire building on Monday at 7:45 PM. The program will open with a Vesper Service after which the five groups of YWCA will meet separately to discuss plans for the quarter. The groups will then reunite for a business meeting to be climaxed by refreshments and a social hour.

The program was planned at a recent meeting of the creative activity group of YWCA, also, at which time, Guerry Bushay was appointed chairman to plan a program to be given at a later date.

On the YWCA calendar for this quarter of number of events are in view, one of which is the annual State YWCA meeting to be held at Rollins College in Winter Park, Florida on January 26. January 29-30 will bring to Florida State College Miss Rosalie Oaks, National Secretary for the Southern region, who will speak at a YWCA meeting and also at a tea for the faculty advisory board and student cabinet. The "Y" worship committtee is making plans for a campus-wide observation of World Student Day of Prayer on February 17. This day of prayer is annually obesrved by members of the World Student Christian Federation.

Students Display Works in Pottery

The industrial arts department has a new exhibit in the Rowena Longmire building. Exceptional pottery work done by the ceramics classes during the fall quarter is on display in the exhibit cases on the first and second floors in the Longmire building.

Representative of the most artistic work of the class in glazed pottery are the seal and the camel, modeled by Katharine Campbell, states Miss Cynthia Reeves, instructor in industrial arts.

The works of the eeramics class will be displayed in the exhibit cases throughout this quarter. As the class progresses the cases will be changed and the most outstanding pieces will be on exhibit.

Students Present "Benedictbeuren"

A large group of American Guild of Organists members and guests assembled at Ruge Hall on January 6 for the presentation of a medieval Epiphany play, the "Benedictbeuren," which was presented by the Episcopalian student group of Florida State College. The choir, under the direction of Sarah Lewis, lent to the spirit of the pageant with its old church chants. Organ accompanist was Betty Jean Linderman.

In a short informative talk, Mrs Fran Luce, student director at Ruge Hall, explained the history of the old medieval church play.

A program was concluded with a supper and "The Feast of Three Kings."

Phi Mus Elect Cox For Chapter Proxy

Burma Cox was elected president of the Phi Mu at their chapter meeting last Monday night.

Other officers, elected at the same time, include: Betty Anne Sinclair, vice-president; Helen Broward, secretary; Tess Daniels, treasurer; Mary Jane Lassiter, social chairman; Zeane Lanier, assistant social chairman; Yvonne Boatwright, rush chairman; Joan Kinsburry, pledge trainer; Barbara Lanford, assistant pledge trainer; and Frances Myers, Pan-Hellenic representative.

Alumnae News Is Published

FSC Quarterly Bulletin Is Prepared by Gehan

The winter issue of the alumnae edition of the quarterly bulletin of the Florida State College fo. Women is being mailed to all graduates this week.

This bulletin is prepared by Miss Louise Gehan, class of 1938, executive secretary and editor of the bulletin.

The bulletin is chiefly made up of the "news of the classes," giving information about the graduates of FSC in regard to their present address, what they are now doing, other graduates with whom they have come in contact, and bits of news concerning things that have happened to them. The information comes from letters and notes included with alumnae dues payments.

The first class mentioned is the 1914-1915 class with information in regard to only one graduate, Bernice Prevatt (Mrs K W Schwartz) mother of students Joanne and Betty Schwartz. The column is continued with mention of all the classes ending with the class of '43.

The rest of the bulletin includes the news of current interest on campus and information of interest to the alumnae including Dr Conradi's Memoirs, the largest active membership in the history of the alumnae association, an excerpt from an internee's letter, a message to the alumnae from President Doak S Campbell, information "From the Secretary's Desk," news on the alumnae board meeting, introduction to the board members, visitors to the alumnae office, notices, a memoriam and a book corner of publications of FSC alumnae.

This winter issue is the fourth edition of the 38th volume.

Committees Named For Sophomore Hop

Georgie Jaeckel, chairman of Sophomore Hop announces that all sophomores who are interested in working on the hop, which will be held February 9, are asked to sign up in lower Westcott by Monday.

At the last sophomore class meeting, the following committees were appointed: Martha Peacock, business manager; Jackie Magee, construction; Joyce Petty, decoration; Irma Lee Shepherd, tickets; Polly Gage, door checkers; Jean Sharer, programs; Judy Rhodes and Jean Sharer, refreshments; Pep Stanaland and Elaine Gavagan, clean-up; Iris Parsons and Connie Savage, invitations; Evelyn Shea, arrangements; Marian McEwen, hostess; Ginger Hatton, orchestra; Marian Floyd, lights; Rose Marcoux, publicity; Betty La Bree, posters; Lucy Feiden, press, and Anne Fielding and Catherine Sullivan, "We'll Never Tell."

Bewildered freshmen arriving on compus for the first time January 2, were received by members of Sophomore Council who helped them through the confusion of registration.

After helping them settle in their respective dormitories Council members took the newcomers on a tour of the various buildings on campus and also aided them in registering.

Since there were so few freshmen this quarter in comparison to fall registration, Sopbomore Council was able to give the girls more individual instruction.

Jo Long, president of the organization, said Council members plan to repeat this service each quarter.

Dormitory Teas

To allow a larger number of freshmen to attend, the dormitory teas have been changed to Thursday afternoons, starting this week.

Shubert's Unfinished Symphony was played during the Jennie Murphree tea. Polly Chazal was in charge as chairman for this week, with Margie Holm helping as dormitory social chairman.

Student talent was the source of entertainment at the Thursday afternoon tea in Bryan. Gladys Hughes was program chairman with Geneva Bettie assisting. Those assisting were Sue Read, Anne Turbiville, and Margaret Blocker.

In Broward and in Gilchrist, music was furnished by the phonographs. Anita Bisbee had charge in Broward, while Marie Dozier, Dorothy Fincher, and Carolyn Patterson were responsible in Gilchrist.

The purpose of the tea in Landis was to honor the new girls in that dormitory. Entertainment was furnished by Helen Mosely and Marian Booth, who played the piano alternately. Jane Northen was the chairman for the afternoon with 16 girls assisting her as hostesses, helpers in the kitchen, and servers.

A musical program was the high-light of the Thursday afternoon tea in Reynolds Hall, which honored the new freshmen. The program included two accordion solos by Mayne Lutha Wheeler, a reading by Esther Rasmussen, and solos by Bartha McCormack. Marion Trice was the pianist. Louise Illingsworth was in charge of the tea, while Katherine Klein was in charge of the entertainment.

Students Learn of Changes at Meeting

Rule and Tea Hour Revised; Bad Conduct Reported

Relaxation of the restrictions concerning trips to Wakulla, change in the weekly tea hour, and the manners of Florida State College girls were among the topics discussed at the first monthly house meetings since the holidays which were held last Tuesday night in the several dormitory parlors.

As the rules governing Wakulla trips now stand, four students or more are required on a day trip, one of whom must be approved as a chaperon by the residence counselor. In the evening an adult chaperon approved by the counselor must accompany the group. All students may go along with a date during the day, but juniors and sophomores must be accompanied by another couple or upperclassmen in the evening. The rule forbidding freshmen to ride in cars at night prohibits them from visiting Wakulla with a date after 7 p m.

The weekly tea hour has been changed from 5 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon to 5 o'clock on Thursday afternoon.

The clipping from the Daily Democrat concerning the display of ill manners at the recent Artist Series, was read and students were asked to show more courtesy, if not for themselves, for the sake of the college.

An announcement was made that Senator Pepper would speak in the auditorium on conditions in Europe as seen in his recent tour. About 1000 seats will be saved for students. The rest of the auditorium will be opened to faculty and town people for this lecture.

It was also announced that regular convocation would be held next Tuesday at 7:30 and 8:30 p m with the college band presenting a program of music.

Zeta Formal to Be Tomorrow Night

Tomorrow night the annual Zeta Tau Alpha formal will be held in the auditorium of the Longmire building. Dancing to the music of a six-piece band will continue from 8:30 to 11:30.

According to Callista Hatcher, who is in charge of all the arrangements for the formal, special guests for the dance will be Mrs Winifred Dodge, Zeta housemother; Dr and Mrs R S Cotterill; and Miss Vela Cleveland.

Committee chairmen for the dance include: Mary Smith, decorations; Peggy Moss, refreshments; and Betty Lou Brown, invitations. The floor committee consists of Shearer Hines, Sue Walters, Mary Nicholas, and Virginia Summer.

Holiday Activities Prove Interesting

Traveling, hunting, fishing, and becoming engaged were just a few of the events that took place during the Christmas holidays, according to Florida State College students.

Barbara Lindsey spent part of her vacation in Miami where she rode on one of the floats in the Orange Bowl parade on New Year's eve.

Santa Claus was generous with engagement rings this Christmas —through the help of his younger assistants. Rosemary "Roses" Marcoux and Ken Adams became engaged Christmas eve. Gracie Widden had her engagement announced by Jimmy Dorsey while she, Rudy Myer, her fiance, and Jean Douglas were "nightclubbing" in New York. The engagement was announced at the 400 club, after which the band played "I Surrender Dear" in honor of the couple. Lynn Starbird and Ann Carolyn Allison also accepted rings during the holidays.

Myra and Moria Long spent four days of their vacation in New Orleans where they visited old high school friends and took in the Sugar Bowl game.

Bessie Odlund, who lives at the mouth of the Swannee river spent much of her spare time during the holidays in hunting turtles and squirrels and fishing in the Swannee.

Eleanor Bayer took a trip to Miami during her vacation where she saw the Orange Bowl game and parade. She stayed with Marilyn Michael, former FSC student.

Fall Distaff Is Out, Next One in Making

Fall issues of the Distaff have been distributed to all students except sorority house residents, Winifred Meldrim, editor of the Distaff, announced Tuesday. Because of the difficulty of reaching the sorority girls, they are being asked come to the Distaff office in the Longmire building to receive their copies on Monday or Tuesday of next week.

Material for the second Distaff has gone to the printer, but there is still time for contributions if they are turned in soon, Winifred said. The deadline for submitting material for the spring issue of the Distaff has been tentatively set for the first week of February. All types of contributions are needed, said the editor.

Recreational Hall Girls to Have Rooms

All students living in recreational halls and in the non-smokers' club room in Landis are expected to have dormitory rooms by the end of this week according to Miss Edith McCollum, director of residence.

There is no waiting list of girls coming to Florida State College. "All have been bedded," Miss McCollum said.

The two off-campus houses, the "Lodge", and the new floor to Reynolds, which were added at the beginning of the fall quarter, plus a drop in enrollment so far in this quarter is believed to have made this possible.

The Students Speak...

By JERRY CRUME

The Tallahassee Daily Democrat of January 7 has made the following comments on the behavior of the students of Florida State College during the recent performance of "Romeo and Juliet":

"Courtesy of the audience was one of the things lacking at the far from outstanding performance of 'Romeo and Juliet' Saturday evening at Florida State College for Women.

"We have come to the conclusion that the two least sympathetic and courteous audiences in the world are composed of college students and GIs.

"Giggling occurred at the most ridiculous times during the presentation of the Shakespearean tragedy, and when the curtain failed to close, roars of laughter filled the auditorium.

"A discourteous audience can ruin any presentation, no matter how good it might have been."

The various students interviewed concerning their opinions regarding the behavior at the performance all seemed to be of one thought—the students conducted themselves in a manner unbecoming any group of college women.

"I was ashamed to be a part of an audience so rude as the one attending the last Artist Series. Such conduct is a reflection on this college."

Jo Anne Savory, Sophomore

"I think the conduct at the recent Artist Series was unbecoming to supposedly-adult college students."

Nell Lester, Junior.

"I think that the FSC girls acted more like high school than college students at the last Artist Series."

Ruth Geiger, Freshman.

"I was sitting in the balcony and the noise was so loud and the comments so distracting that it would have been impossible to enjoy the performance even if it had been good."

Betty Lou Henneke, Senior.

"I could hardly say that the conduct at the last Artist Series was fitting to college women. I think the reason the students were noisy was because they could not understand all that was said on the stage."

Ana Martin, Sophomore.

"The conduct of the students at 'Romeo and Juliet' was comparable to an audience at a melodrama. The students' conduct indicated a lack of appreciation for some of literature's most beautiful lines, a lack of consideration for the players and other members in the audienee, and a lack of maturity."

Lucille Luce, Junior.

"The conduct of the audience at the performance Saturday night was not at all fitting for college students. If we cannot conduct ourselves in a better manner maybe it would be best that the Artist Series be discontinued."

Jane Allen, Freshman.

"My motto is 'Leave quietly if you are bored'."

Sheila Smith, Senior.

"Disgusting is the only word to describe such conduct of supposedly intelligent college women."

Marjorie Davis, Sophomore.

"For such a fine play by a distinguished group of artists I think that the students of this college really disgraced themselves by the rudeness exemplified that night"

Doris Sherman, Junior.

"I think that FSC girls not waiting for the curtain calls was inexpressable rudeness"

Helene Dwoskin, Freshman.

"I was completely disgusted. The least response expected of a college audience would be one of courtesy to the performers, as well as to other members of the audience Obviously the bookstore could make a little profit on a shipment of Emily Post's Book of Etiquette."

Joann Gentry, Senior.

"I think the students showed lack of consideration to the cast."

Barbara Horne, Freshman.

"Although the performance was not what I expected of an Artist Series, I did think the audience should have been more appreciative."

Anne Lindsey, Sophomore.

FSC Orchestra Gives Concert

Dramatic Soprano Makes Appearance Here

The annual concert of the Florida State College symphony orchestra was presented Monday night under the direction of Dr Walter R Cowles with Mrs Patricia Millett, dramatic soprano, making her first appearance here.

Mrs Millett, instructor in voice, taught at Drake University, Des Moines, Idaho, before coming to FSC last October.

Her study of voice first began during her freshman year at MacMurray's School for Girls in Illinois and later at the University of Illinois, where she was a student of Bruce Foote, who now appears on the Chicago Theatre of the Air every Sunday night.

During her college days Mrs Millett appeared in Gilbert and Sullivan operetta as well as grand opera.

Reports, Elections Are Senate Business

Shiver Is Judiciary Member, Ratliff, House-President

Student Senate's business Wednesday afternoon included reports from the legislative and codifying committees, a report from the committee appointed to draw up the recommendation advocating unlimited light privileges for all students, and the unanimous elections of Betty Ann Shiver as senior representative to Judiciary and Marie Ratliff as house president for the off-campus houses.

Speaking for the legislative and codifying committees, Beth Fuhrer and Mary White, respectively, gave reports on how those committees are planning to clarify the Gold Book and told of what progress has been made in the revision of the book.

The committee appointed at the last meeting to draw up the recommendation on unlimited light privileges read the recommendations which they were to present to College Council yesterday. Along with this recommendation the committee was also to present a list of reasons for considering this rule necessary. Further discussion of other reasons was asked for and several additional ones were added to the list.

Sarah Lewis, chairman of Senate, asked that Senate members make an effort to meet new freshmen members who will be elected next week, and to help them become accustomed to their duties as Senate representatives.

Reeves Appointed Contest Chairman

The new chairman for the creative arts contest, sponsored by the American Association of University Woman, is Miss Cynthia Reeves, instructor in Industrial arts, according to Dr Carmen Rogers, last year's chairman.

Dr Rogers said that sub-committees have not yet been named. There will be faculty members in charge of the following committees: arts and crafts work, musical composition and creative writing, dance composition, and literary creative writing.

Miss Reeves has been an instructor at Florida State College since 1943. Prior to this she did creative art work in Winston-Salem, North Carolina, on three levels. They were grade school, high school, and college levels. Miss Reeves also did some play production work while there.

Vets Attend FSC Under GI Bill And Vocational Rehabilitation

Thousands of returned servicemen are taking advantage of the GI Bill of Rights by going back to their old alma maters and resuming their studies which they had to leave at the outbreak of the war. Many are going to college for the first time with the help of the government, and having the opportunity of learning more about the democratic ideals for which they fought.

While ex-service men are enrolling at the University of Florida, there are ex-service women enrolled at Florida State College. Three students, Emeline Gale Torney, Mary June Livingston, and Mary Louise Bevis are under the GI Bill of Rights No 346, and Lois Robinson Taylor and Marguerite Scull are under the Vocational Rehabilitation Bill—Public 16. At present these five are the only GI's we have, but more are expected in the near future.

Miss Mary Louise Bevis is a first quarter freshman having just begun school on January 4, after completing two and one half years in the Navy. Mary Louise was a pharmacist mate first class in the hospital corps, and worked in Navy hospitals in New York, Jacksonville, Florida, Camp Lejuene, North Carolina, Washington, D C, and her last duty was in the United States Naval Hospital at Pensacola, Florida.

"Of all the experiences that happened to me while I was in the Navy, the one that I shall remember the longest and the one that made the most lasting impression on me was caring for the sick and wounded boys who had fought on Iwo Jima and Okinawa. After seeing them in such agonizing conditions, it made me appreciate even more all that they did for us," said Mary Louise.

Emeline Gale Torney is another ex-service woman who was in the WAVES. She was a seaman first class, and was in the Navy for one year. Emeline was stationed in New York City, Oklahoma and Idaho, and she said that being in the WAVES gave her a chance to see many parts of the United States that she had never seen before. This was an education in itself, and she enjoyed being stationed out West a great deal.

"While I was in the Navy I had the opportunity of seeing and meeting many famous people. Some that I met who were very

Don Cossacks Will Return

25-year-old Choir to Give Program January 26

As part of their sixteenth national tour which began in New York at the Metropolitan Opera House, the Don Cossack choir will present their return engagement at the Florida State College on January 26.

The 25-year-old choir composed of 30 singers and their diminutive leader, Serge Jaroff, have traversed over a million miles of the earth's surface, appearing before our armed forces in every theater of war. These Muscovites are the only citizens of the United States who can write the entire constitution of the United States States by memory from beginning to end in Russian and English.

"A Russian who does not sing is no Russian," says Serge Jaroff, whose choir voices are arranged in six or eight parts, touching the upper and lower limits of the voice from reedy soprano to subterranean bass.

During this season, the Don Cossacks will appear at the United States Military Academy at West Point and will also perform with the Philadelphia orchestra.

Students holding "A" Artist Series tickets will be able to see the performance

Ransam Is Elected New Y Treasurer

Ann Ramsam was elected the new treasurer of the Young Women's Christian Association of Florida State College at the meeting of the organization last Monday evening in the Longmire Building.

Plans were also made at the meeting concerning the trip to the Area Conference to be held at Rollins College, Winter Park, Florida, the week end of January 26 at which all YWCA members in the state may participate. Any member of the "Y" who wishes to go may do so if they will see Margaret Clayton, president, before next Thursday.

FSC Radio Workshop To Begin Next Week

Musical Selections Included In Program Last Night

In the Garnet and Gold newscast from the college studio last night, announcement was made that the FSC radio workshop, directed by Miss Mary Tom Colones, will make its debut next Thursday night in the first of a regular series of broadcasts.

Garnet and Gold's announcement stated that the first program is scheduled for 9:15 Thursday night, January 24, and that other programs will follow at tha. hour every Thursday night.

News commentator for the weekly broadcast last night was Sara Norman. Editors of the music section were Alice Wheeler and Phyllis DeKalb, soprano and contralto singers. They were accompanied by Miss Ruby Dunstan and Miss Lucile Wagner, respectively. Alice sang "The Enchanted Forest" by Phillips, and "The Little Shepherd's Song" by Winter Watts. Phyllis' selections were both from Brahms—"Minnelied," or "Love Song," and "Lullaby."

Garnet and Gold is broadcast each Thursday night at 7:30 from the college studio via WTAL.

Personnel Notice

Students interested in merchandising, advertising, styling, and display may secure application blanks from Dr Elizabeth Andrews, director of personnel, for information concerning the Tobe-Coburn School for Fashion Careers located in New York.

Three full tuition scholarships, valued at $750 each will be gvien to girls meeting the requirements of the school.

Notice to Seniors

All seniors who expect to graduate at the end of this quarter must apply for their degree at the Registrar's office before January 31.

Pepper Gives Views in Talk

Advocates Loan to Russia, Division of Germany

Advocating a U S loan to Russia, a revision of the Potsdam agreement to provide for the division of Germany into separate states, and a better understanding by Americans of what he termed Britain's "liberal" labor government, Senator Claude Pepper, member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, spoke to some 1,000 students, faculty, and townspeople in the auditorium of Florida State College at 8 o'clock last Friday night.

Standing before both microphone and amplifier, Senator Pepper, dressed in a dark blue serge suit, told his two audiences (one, the radio listeners of Tallahassee) about his visits to the leading capitals of Europe and the Middle East. He talked for more than an hour without benefit of notes in the same clear forceful voice which has, in the past seven years, been raised so often in the halls of Congress.

"We are so strong and so powerful," said he, "if we are not careful, it will be the United States against the world, or the world against the United States." To prevent this catastrophe, Florida's leading liberal urged

FSC Delegates Plan Trip to Gainesville

Chemists of Florida Section Will Meet January 19

According to Dr L J Lewis, professor of chemistry, several members of the department of chemistry plan to attend the one hundred and fourteenth meeting of the Florida section, a branch of the American Chemical Society, to be held in Gainesville on January 19.

The featured address of this meeting will be one by Walter J Murphy, editor of Industrial and Engineering Chemistry, who will speak on "Scientific and Industrial Intelligence Work Abroad". Dr Lewis related that Mr Murphy had spent two months in Europe on a special assignment for the Foreign Economic Administration and the Chemical Warfare Service.

"For the past few years," said Dr. Lewis, "travel conditions made it almost impossible to have more than the local people at the sectional meetings. This condition may be contrasted with a meeting several years ago when the Florida section met at Panama City, Florida, as the guests of the Southerncraft Paper Company. At that time a national record was set in regard to the total number of miles traveled to attend a state meeting."

Dr Lewis said that the 1946 officers would take over at the Gainesville meeting. He added that the new chairman was Dr Roland B French, biochemist of the Florida Experimental Station at Gainesville.

College Buys Dale Mabry's Bowling Alley

Equipment for Six Alleys Is Valued at $9,000 Reports Shaw

Building Plans Are Underway To House New Sport

Six bowling alleys have been purchased very recently by Florida State College from the Dale Mabry Army Air Field Post Exchange, according to R K Shaw, acting business manager of the college.

The equipment, including six hardwood alleys, bowling balls, pins, maple benches for players, and slanting score-card tables, had a total value of $9000 when it was new. It was manufactured by the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Company in Chicago, Ill, reputedly one of the best in that field. All of the equipment is in first class or "new" condition, according to Mr Shaw.

Plans for housing facilities for the bowling alleys on this campus are being formulated, but Mr Shaw has said that there is no definite building schedule. The proposed site of a building for this athletic equipment is north

FSC First Woman's College In Alpha Epsilon Delta

Fifteen students will be installed into Alpha Epsilon Delta on February 23 into the first and only pre-medical honorary in a woman's college in this country, according to Ella Mae Baer, newly-elected corresponding secretary of the honorary. Dr Emmett Carmichael of the University of Alabama will be present at the installation.

The charter for this campus chapter has been accepted by the national Alpha Epsilon Delta. The Florida State College pre-medical honorary will be a beta chapter since the alpha chapter has been established at the University of Florida.

Newly elected officers of the honorary are Joye Funke, president; Margaret Limroth, recording secretary and treasurer; and Ella Mae Baer, corresponding secretary.

Charter members are Helen Fletcher, Velna Jacqueline Partin, Sue Searcy, Ella Mae Baer, Lois

Building Bids in For New Dormitory

Construction companies have been authorized to place bids on the building of a new dormitory to be located north of the infirmary by recent action of the State Board of Control, according to President Doak S Campbell. Soundings in order to determine the nature of the subsoil at the site of the proposed structure meanwhile are continuing.

The contract for construction of this dormitory, which will house 280 students and take approximately one year to complete, will probably be let at a meeting of the State Board in March, according to Dr Campbell.

Dorothy Thompson Expounds Personal Opinions in Interview; Gives Comment on Education, Publications and Communism

By BARBARA BECKMAN and ANNE HUTTON

Punctuating her vivid conversation with animated hands and a well-coiffed grey head, Dorothy Thompson, outstanding woman journalist, discussed her personal opinions informally for more than an hour in a private interview with Flambeau reporters.

Speaking on education, Miss Thompson said that our education has become too selective, and that there are too many technical subjects. She stressed the importance of integration of courses and said that "an educated person must have a picture in mind of the world as a whole at any period of time."

The militant authoress doesn't feel that the newer sciences are sciences but that Latin or Greek, logic, higher mathematics and history are far more important to a liberally educated person. Miss Thompson as an example, pointed out that sociology is not a science but, because it is new, people think it is progressive. She also said that economics, if a science at all, is a "bastard science."

Under our present system, the lecturer believes that anyone can become a teacher. "Teachers are born and not made," Miss Thompson said. She explained that those who are going to be teachers are taught the methods of teaching while they lack the knowledge and enthusiasm necessary to stimulate student interest.

Miss Thompson went on to say that when students ask her what she considers the best preparation for her journalistic career, she replies that she feels the study of Latin has helped her most. Latin gives one not only a knowledge of the structure of the English language but it teaches mental discipline, logical thinking, and develops a good memory, she believes.

"While Bertrand Russell is an excellent mathematician," the analyst said, "his educational theory is the bunk"

Crossing her nylon-clad legs, Miss Thompson said, "Liberal arts colleges today are not tough enough. The curriculum has been watered down so that anyone can get a degree." Not everyone is fit to be educated, the commentator stated, and it should not be socially degrading if one is more suited to training rather than education. She feels that the two should not be confused.

In foreign universities the students choose their tecahers, often going from town to town to study under an outstanding lecturer, Miss Thompson recalled. While studying at a university the student is not considered "in residence," but is regarded as a mature person about whose private life the administration "doesn't give a hang."

The journalist further stated that the few critical magazines, such as Politics and the Virginia Quarterly Review, remaining in this country have practically no circulation. Taking the Nation as an example, she said that she hates to read the publication because she knows before reading it just what the articles will say. Miss Thompson mentioned the Chicago Tribune as being a one-man newspaper with Colonel McCormack's editorial views coloring even the news stories. On the other side, she said, PM is just as bad in that they publish no story unfavorable to the campaign they happen to be carrying on at that time.

By the use of adjectives, Time tells the readers what to think about the person before they tell what the person said, she continued, giving a typical example of this: "Mr B, agreeing with the red-baiting and corrupt Senator X, said . . ."

Leaning forward in her chair the speaker denounced the "common fallacy" that there are two sides to every question. "Too much importance has been placed on tolerance," she continued. "We cannot be against communism and yet tolerant of it. It isn't logical and anyone who says it is, is a damn fool."

When asked her definition of communism, Miss Thompson pounded her fist and said, "When I say communism, I mean communism." The definition of communism as that perfect state where no government is required being mentioned, the noted correspondent declared, "That isn't communism—that's Heaven!"

Playnight Will Be Stink-Potters vs Skunk-Hollowers

The "Skunk Hollow" Spirogiras will play the "Stink-Pot" Esterens in a basketball game for the unathletically inclined at Playnight tomorrow night.

At the Tuesday convocation, Spirogira Rosetta Carver first challenged Esteren Sarah Bennett, but deciding that "she's too big," she challenged Madelyn King. Nell Clark followed suit by challenging Martha Jane Brown.

Members of the Odd honorary were becomingly attired in navy blue bloomers and white middy blouses. They bounced a decrepit basketball which rose at least six inches off the floor at each bounce.

The game will start at nine o'clock Saturday night and promises to be unique in that Dr Harold Richards and Dr Milton Carothers will be the officials for the Odds and Evens, respectively. Following the game, Spirogira will hold its annual party for Esteren.

Six Speakers To Visit Here

Committee Gives Plans For Youth Conference

The annual Youth Conference, at Florida State College will be held this year the first through the third of February. Six visiting speakers will discuss the topic and theme of the conference, "Christian citizenship for today's world."

The planning committee of the Youth Conference met last Sunday afternoon at the Methodist Student House, and was presided over by Peggy Lou Thomas and Martha Jane Brown, co-chairmen of the conference. It was announced at this meeting that Mrs Martha Jean Leath, Mr Edward Reece, Dr Bush, Anauta, and Dr Winburn T Thomas would constitute the speakers.

Dr Winburn T Thomas, director of the Student Conference, and general secretary of the Student Volunteer Movement, has spent many years preaching in the Japanese churches. Dr Thomas received a Ph D degree from Yale in 1942, using as a thesis the establishment of Protestant Church in Japan.

Anauta, the only Eskimo woman on the American lecture platform, was born in Baffinland, 400 miles from the North Pole. She will speak of her adventures in a strange land and her contacts with Christianity.

Dr Francis W Bush, who will also speak at the conference was a missionary of the Methodist Church, and was interned in Santo Tomas prison during Japanese occupation. Dr Bush, though a

Blount Seeks Girls To Pick Best Name

Two dollars in merchandise will be given to any six girls, not participating in the contest for renaming the old Spic and Span, who will volunteer to choose the best name from the list of suggested names turned in by contestants, announces Mr L G Blount, half-owner of the Sweet Shop, who recently purchased the Spic. Mr Blount would like for these girls to make the selection the weekend of January 26-27, which will be one week from the closing date of the contest on January 20.

A correction is to be made of the announcement of the contest in last week's Flambeau concerning Mr Blount's address, to which all entries are to be mailed. His correct address is 701 west Jefferson Street, Tallahassee.

It is not possible to state the specific opening date of the new shop, stated Mr Blount, but he promised it to be a big day with free ice cream.

Textbook Delay Is Fault of Factory

The delay in the procurement of textbooks this quarter has been due to causes at the factories and it is not the fault of the bookstore officials or the teachers, said Miss Jewell L Graham, acting manager of the bookstore.

Miss Graham said that many of the orders had been canceled altogether, and almost all of them had been cut down so that only a certain per cent of the books ordered were sent. Many of the textbooks ordered were out of print, also.

She said that she hoped the books would come in soon, but she could not say exactly when the orders would be filled.

Correspondent Lectures to FSC Students

Views on Russia and UNO Presented by Thompson Wednesday Night

"Crucial Days" Compared With Munich in 1938

"If the Soviet Union wishes to remain aloof, I would a thousand times rather have an organization of the rest of the world without the Soviet Union than what we have now — a pretense of an organization which is at least as dangerous as none at all," Dorothy Thompson said, Wednesday night, in Westcott auditorium.

There is no hope in the present United Nations Organization, she said, refuting Senator Pepper's "dream thinking" of last week. She advocated four changes to strengthen the UNO peace plan because it is now identical with that of the 1938 Munich big three power alliance which preceded World War II, a complete rejection of the principles of the Atlantic Charter.

The governments of Great Britain and the United States realize that the Security Council would be utterly incapable of settling any dispute in which a small nation appealed for protection against a Big Power, she thought, and therefore the Security Council may be embarrassed if Iran insists upon having her case reviewed in the near future.

Changes Advocated

Miss Thompson asked for four changes, the first of which is to insist upon access to facts, "breaking the conspiracy of silence which keeps the American people shut off from what is happening."

Next, she stressed the need for clear specific laws regarding the conduct of nations, and for their enforcement. Only law, not peace, can be enforced, she said; peace is only a by product of law and order.

Miss Thompson wants the Security Council to be enlarged by at least two additional permanent seats, given to groups of small nations. She suggested one composed of the Scandinavian nations and the low countries and another a collection of the South American countries "who agree with each other."

Fourth, she advocated the establishment of a police force of highly paid volunteers recruited preferably chiefly from small states, according to a quota system. This force would be exclusively responsible to the world organization. National armed forces should not be prevented, but restricted and limited by the international control commission. Violation of these armament restrictions would be considered aggression, according to Miss Thompson's plan.

The Russian trial of the sixteen Poles, the representative Polish government in London, the collectivization of Polish farms, and the Russian puppets in the Balkans were some of the many and varied topics on which students questioned Miss Dorothy Thompson at the reception given in her honor by the college and the Artist Series Committee after her lecture Wednesday evening.

Miss Thompson held her own

Contest Sponsored By Hunter College

In celebration of its 75th anniversary, Hunter College, New York City, is offering a series of valuable prizes through an essay contest on intercultural relations.

College students are asked to write on the general topic, "How Can American Colleges and Other Social Institutions Promote the Appreciation of the Culture of Other Peoples and Cooperation Among Them?" Contestants may concentrate on a small portion of this topic but essays must not exceed 1,500 words. A first prize of $1,000, a second of $500 and 18 prizes of $100 each will be awarded to the winners.

In addition to the above mentioned sums an award of $1,000 will be given to the college which the winner of first prize is attending.

The judges will give greater consideration to material based on observation and experience than to theoretical discussions.

Teachers may also compete by discussing the subject "How Can the American Teacher Help to Foster Intercultural Relations?"

Further information can be obtained in the Personnel Office or by writing Hunter College, PO Box 7, New York City, New York.

The contest closes March first.

Students May Intern Here

Seven FSC Students Teach Under New System

For the first time in the history of the Demonstration School, students from Florida State College have the opportunity of interning as a practice teacher here on the campus for a period of eight weeks. Prior to this year, prospective teachers taught only one hour a day for the entire year. According to Dr D L Goulding, principal of the Demonstration School, this system was very unsatisfactory for not only the practice teachers, but for the children who attended the school. There were so many different teachers who taught them daily that it was confusing and hard on the young students

This quarter there are seven girls interning in the various grades at the Dem school. Ethyl Essa is practice teaching in the fifth grade, Sara Evelyn Pollhill in the second, Della Mae Rhodes in the seventh, Bobbye Usher in the eighth, Eva Mae Murray in the ninth, Mary Evelyn Stuckey in physical health and education, and Norma Virginia Clarou in Spanish. These girls report at 8:30 in the morning and teach practically the entire day, with the exception of one period which they can devote to work in their particular major.

The Demonstration school offers a complete range of teaching experience for the college students. In addition to the actual teaching they also have the opportunity of working in the school office, library, and extra-curricular activities. During this quarter certain girls have been appointed to the task of being responsible for the children who ride the [illegible] bus. Since [illegible] and the bus does not arrive until 4, it is necessary that the children are cared for during the hour.

"The permanent faculty of the Demonstration school is composed of persons with M A degrees or higher, who have had special training for teaching in certain areas. They are exceptionally well-equipped by experience for instructing and directing student teachers," said Dr Goulding.

at the barrage of questions thrust upon her with a great deal of wit and skill which showed her command of international affairs and wide experience with the statesmen of yesterday and today.

When asked about the collectivization of the Polish farms, which Miss Thompson said that the Russians had instituted, she emphatically stated that she had been to Poland and seen the collectivized farms and she did not like them. She affirmed that the Polish peasants were in worse circumstances than they had been under the Polish landowners as they were given, by the Russians, a small plot of land with no implements with which to work the land.

In the course of the student interrogation the question of privilege for certain groups came up Miss Thompson said, "Since when has it become a crime to have special privileges?" She went on to say that the United States has never been a "Bolsheviki" country and that special privileges exist here.

In a discussion of India's place in the world and in the United Nations Organization, Miss Thompson said that Ghandi should be given a place in UNO since he believes sincerely in peace and has demonstrated his belief by refusing to take part in any violent action.

Miss Thompson was asked by a student if it were true that she had made a statement that the trouble with statesmen was that they played too much poker and not enough chess. With a laugh Miss Thompson admitted that she had made a statement to that effect. She then said that she was sure that Mr Byrnes played poker!

During the course of the reception the members of the Alpha Chi Omega, of which Miss Thompson is a member, were introduced to her and were given an opportunity to talk to her for some time.

Anonymous Interview Presents Views of Average FSC Student

By JEAN DOUGLAS

Editor's Note: This is the first of a series of anonymous interviews to appear in the Flambeau, and to present the opinions of average FSC girls. The people who appear here are chosen by mathematical calculation, so collect your opinions. You may be next.

On Tuesday last at 5 in the afternoon — tiffin time — a mysterious individual sat in the shadow of Westcott fountain, counting, counting, counting — "seven, eight, nine, ten"—and was starting on her toes when she suddenly remembered her mission. Levelling a finger at the tenth person to walk out of Westcott's vast doors, she called a "halt," and buttonholing the girl—who shall throughout this article remain swathed in a veil of anonymity—proceeded to fire questions at her.

Miss—ah—is rather a small person, about five-feet-one in height. She has medium brown hair and hazel eles. Her major is English, and the career she plans for after one more year—she's a junior—is marriage. Her "man"—this would get in at the first—is a six-foot, blue-eyed blond, a former Air Corps man, recently discharged. Maybe it's a good thing she remains anonymous.

Her hobby is reading, and her favorite books are the current best-sellers. She also enjoys music very much, and plays the piano, strictly for her own pleasure, in which she concentrates on popular and semi-classical numbers.

When asked her opinion on the quarter system, she stated that she likes it fine, much better than the semester system. She enjoys not having exams hanging over her throughout the Christmas vacation, and finds it much easier to study under the present system than under the semester system.

The quality she finds most likeable in a teacher is understanding. They should attempt to see things as the students see them, and thus reach them in a more effective way. Another quality she likes in a teacher is that of giving the students a chance to air their own views in class.

She could eat fried chicken all day, she intimated, and her favorite color is red. (When interviewed she wore a red coat and carried a red wallet). She is a non-sorority girl, and prefers lemon in her tea to cream.

She particularly dislikes people who are not straightforward and honest, and "catting" people behind their backs she finds strictly not to her taste. On the other hand she admires fairness and a taste for a good time in others.

Her favorite memories after school she believes will be those of Friday night escapades with her gang, which isn't as bad as it sounds. Their Friday night entertainment consists of a shrimp dinner uptown, followed by a show. She will also remember her classes in education.

To the question, "What is your opinion concerning coeducation?" (plug) she replied, "I believe Tally ought to stay just as it is. Coeducation just wouldn't be right here; it's sort of traditional."

Students to Meet

A secretary of the Day Students' organization will be elected at a meeting of the club this afternoon at 5 p m in the Day Students' lounge. Candidates for this office are Mary Sade and Nancy Koelliker.

Other business to be discussed at this time includes a trip to camp by members of the organization.

Strickland Rejoins Dem School Faculty

Mr Virgil E Strickland has rejoined the faculty of the Demonstration School after an absence of three years. Mr Strickland, recently discharged from the Navy, has resumed his duties as the seventh grade teacher, and after February 1 he will be in charge of the physical education work at the school.

During his career in the Navy, Mr Strickland served as a lieutenant junior grade in command of an LCI-R, rocket ship, and participated in four amphibious landings in the South Pacific. He was also in the typhoon off the shores of Okinawa.

Dr R L Goulding, principal of the Demonstration School, said there are still several members of the faculty on leaves of absence. Major Ward T Fletcher and Major Donald Loucks are now instructing in mathematics at West Point. Major Hope Harrin of the Women's Army Corps is serving in Europe at the present date.

or northwest of the gymnasim, where there will probably be an extension of the main physical education building. The time required to provide a place for installation of the bowling alleys will naturally depend upon the speed with which plans for all new structures on campus can be carried out, which rate of speed may be measured in months or years, according to Mr Shaw.

The bowling alleya and related equipment were not government-owned property, but were owned and operated by the Post-Exchange service, a national co-operative organization for the purpose of serving all service men. Funds paid by the state in procuring the bowling equipment for FSC will be used in Post-Exchange facilities over the nation.

For the present the bowling alleys are still installed at Dale Mabry Field, where they will remain until space is prepared for them on campus. They cannot conveniently be put in storage elsewhere without risk of warping and other damage, said Mr Shaw.

that we cooperate with the other nations of the world, that we show definite signs of friendliness, particularly toward the Soviet Union. As soon as peace treaties with the Balkan countries are completed, he believes that Russia will withdraw her troops from that area. After describing the terrific amount of destruction and great loss of man-power suffered by the Soviet Union Senator Pepper emphasized that Russia is capable of re-construction alone, and that she will become a great power, with or without the aid of the United States. "And so," he continued, "the best thing for this country to do is to give Russia a loan, a loan which will hasten her giant job of reconstruction by five years, and which will prove that we are her friends."

In telling of his visit to the Kremlin, Senator Pepper spoke of Marshal Stalin's quick humor, of the way his eyes light up and his mustache twitches when his interest is aroused. Marshal Stalin's parting request of Florida's senator was "Tell your people just to judge Russia as she is upon fact and not rumor."

While flying over Germany, Senator Pepper saw the battered remnants of some of her largest cities. After conferring with General Dwight D Eisenhower and General Lucious Clay, Senator Pepper, spent ten action-packed days at the Nuermberg trial where he watched Germany's top war criminals testify. Chief Justice Robert Jackson, allied prosecutor, explained to him the care which the U S, Britain, France, and Russia took in formulating procedure to build jurisprudence which now, and in the future, will appear just and fair to the writers of world history.

Believing that it is a danger to the peace of the world if we allow Germany to remain a nation from 60-70 million people, Senator Pepper said, "I am going to advocate that the most serious consideration be given to revision of the Potsdam agreement. I feel that Germany has forfeited the right to be a nation until she has done penance." Pepper's penance for the German nation would be to divide the country into districts of not more than 30 million people each.

After landing in London, Senator Pepper met and talked with Prime Minister Clement Attlee and other leaders of the British Labor Party. He spent his last hour in London chatting with the world-famous figure, Winston Churchill.

"Many Americans," the senator said, "misunderstand Britain's newly elected Labor Party government. It is not composed of communists or agitators, but in it are centered all the liberal elements in Britain. Mr Attlee," he continued, "is a man determined, by nationalizing basic industries, the bank of England, and certain transportation industries, to bend the power of the labor government for his country's restoration."

Senator Pepper flew to Tehran and visited the countries of the Middle East where, he said, the people are divided into the very rich and the very poor. The Arab league, he said, is just beginning to realize its political strength and from now on, it will exert more pressure in international affairs.

Following the hour long speech broadcast over WTAL, Senator Pepper answered questions from the audience. Refusing to commit himself by a definite "yes" or "no," the senator said he did not know at present how he would vote on the conscription bill now before Congress.

He deplored the fact that emotional Americans eager to have their men return home are depleting vital occupational forces abroad, and said, "Since I've returned home, I've seen signs of increasing isolationism, such as that exhibited by the 'America First' organization just before the war."

Believing that there is no danger of war within the next 15-25 years, Senator Pepper said, "I have found that Americans have stronger faith in the UNO than any other peoples in the world, and I believe that we are entering upon the greatest period of peace and prosperity the world has ever known."

Students Select, Direct, Act in Plays in Workshop

Selecting, casting, directing and staging a series of 18 one act plays is the task that confronts members of the speech department's new workshop theater this quarter and next. This year, for the first time an experimental workshop is being conducted in order to give students the opportunity to experiment with all various parts of play production from acting in the starring roles to performing the necessary duties of a lowly stagehand.

A missionary play of Burma to be presented February 2 for the Youth Conference will be the first of these one-act productions. Entitled Ba Thane by Edna Baldwin, this play is being directed by Sarah Lewis.

Following this, The Bridegroom Waits, by Mary Jane and Joseph Hayes, will be presented under the direction of Joy Fleming. It is a polite comedy with a cast of eight girls. The third of the one act plays to be presented during the first week in February will be a modern comedy entitled Mind of Her Own by Marguerite Brokart. Directed by Virginia Green, who also rewrote the play, this production is a character study with six characters.

Tryouts for the second group of one-act plays will be held in approximately two weeks and every three weeks thereafter. All students who are enrolled in any speech course may tryout for parts in these productions, according to Miss Mary Wood, assistant professor of speech, who has charge of the experimental workshop.

Eighteen students are directing plays for this new project. These productions will be presented in a series of three performances at intervals of three weeks throughout the remainder of the year. No admission price will be charged for the productions.

nice, and whom I liked the best were Lt Franklin D Roosevelt, Jr, Orson Wells, Larraine Day and Peggy Ryan. If it had not been for the fact that I was a WAVE, I doubt if I would have ever gotten a glimpse of them, much less actually talking with them," said Lois R Taylor.

Lois is enrolled for a two-year pre-technician course, followed by two years in a laboratory, which will give her a BS degree. During her stay in the Navy, Lois was in the U S Hospital Corps and her rank was hospital apprentice, first class. She was in a year, and stationed at New York City, San Diego, California, and San Francisco, California.

Miss Marguerite Karen Scull, formerly Private Scull of the WAC'a, Air Corps, is a sophomore here at FSC. While in the Air Corps, Miss Scull was meterologist, and gave the pilots the weather forecast for the day which determined their flying status. She spent most of her six months in the Army at Maxton Air Base, Laurinberg, North Carolina.

Miss Scull is majoring in home economics, and upon her graduation in the summer of 1947, she plans to become a home demonstration agent. In this work she will go to rural areas, and help women can food and teach them new ways of preserving food for their families.

Miss Mary June Livingston who spent two and one-half years overseas as a master sergeant in the Judge Advocate General's Department is a freshman at FSC this year. Mary June was secretary to the Assistant Judge Advocate General in the Mediterranean Theater of Operations. She was stationed in Algiers, Algeria and Naples, Italy.

On her leaves Mary June went on sightseeing trips to many historical places in Capri, Salerno, Sorrento, Rome, and Milan. "I had the most interesting time and fun in Switzerland while on a seven-day leave. It was wonderful seeing famous skiers perform on the mountain sides of the Alps."

"When I look back now on all the experiences that I had overseas, there is nothing to equal the thrill and joy I had when the boat that brought me back to the United States entered New York Harbor, and steamed past the Statue of Liberty, which was a symbol of home to me," said Mary June.

Campus Machinery All Kept in Repair By College Garage

"We do a little bit of everything here," said one of the mechanics at the college garage. Practically every machine around the college is subject to repair in the little shop beneath the new dining hall.

There are four men employed by the garage, three for full time work and one for only part time. There is no foreman, but the men are all directly responsible to Mr H D Mendenhall, resident engineer.

Keeping the refrigeration, all the lawn mowers, all the elevators, all the vehicles and bicycles on campus in good repair keeps the men busy, and makes the garage an essential business.

A few days ago, millions of nuts, bolts, and odd-shaped gadgets covered the floor of the garage. It seems that half of this mixture was the freezing unit for one of the dining hall cold counters and the other half was the motor of a lawn mower. The unit and motor were both being overhauled, and one of the men said that there would be no difficulty about getting them back together again.

All of the lawn mowers on campus are being overhauled. Necessary repairs are made and paint jobs given in order to get them ready for their heavy spring work.

All college-owned vehicles are cared for by the garage. Dr Doak S Campbell's Buick and Mr R K Shaw's Plymouth receive attention there, too. The attendants are prepared to do any service—"gas 'em up," charge the battery, wipe the windshield, put air in the tires, remove dents, or fix a flat.

The mechanics, in addition to "keeping 'em rolling" perform that all-important task of keeping the elevators in repair. The ones in Landis are the only ones that give them any trouble, one said. "They were no good to start with," he said, "and the girls not knowing how to handle them doesn't help any."

The mechanics have very little contact with the students. "Although," one said, "occasionally a girl comes in here to get air in her bicycle tires."

Gator Talk . . .

By Johnny Walker and Tom Henderson

Following last December's brilliant, scholarly treatise we descended from the high spiritual plane evinced in said treatise, and fled the campus for two weeks' yuletide debauchery at home. But lo! . . . Another genius (that makes three of us) hath caught our spirit in far lovelier phrases than we could muster.

Yan know, my Friends, how lang since in my Hause
For a new Marriage I did make carouse:
Divorced aid barren Reason from my Bed,
And took the Daughter af the Vine to Spouse.

Having quenched for the moment our Bacchanalian desires (through the heroic efforts of Schenley Distilleries) and assuming that our last literary efforts did not provoke a general wave of nausea, we shall struggle from our celibate sacks and once again launch ourselves into a sprightly commentary on the joys of monastic life here on the University of Florida campus.

Taking a cue from Drusilla Pearson, we would like to make a prediction of things and people to come on the campus. . . FLASH —Old Black Joe (this guy's been on his way since the days of Stephen Collins Foster, and his head is bending low) . . . FLASH —The Interfraternity Conference will bring a big time dance band to the campus for Spring Frolics in March.

A PEEK INTO THE NEWS OF THE WEEK. . . According to campus opinion, Florida's new football coach will be named within the week. . . Work on the veteran's housing program is progressing with several buildings nearing completion. . . Jack White, Florida's star tackle, was invited to participate in the New Year's East-West football game in San Francisco, but he was unable to attend because of last minute SEC ruling.

The dawning of the new year and the shortage af news, coupled with our ever present desire to give to our readers some sound bit af philosophy by which to guide their lives, makes this an apportune time for the gratuitous dispensing of our deep and esoteric knowledge of astrology. In fact, the study af heavenly bodies has become aur life's wark.

Therefore, we have prepared a character analysis and behavior guide which we hope will benefit those born in January.

Practice Progresses For Odd-Even Teams

Leaders Report Optimistic Outlook for Future

Practices for second-quarter Odd-Even games are progressing admirably, according to the various leaders of the teams-to-be. All report many students out for practices and good spirit among those out.

Carol Claus, of the Even swimmers, states that, though the practice periods began last week, it has been necessary to hold dry-land drills and exercises because of the closing of the pool for repairs. She also said that all the Odd-Even leaders are at work making up a permanent set of rules to govern future Odd-Even swimming meets.

Odd swimmers have held only one dry-land drill, on Monday afternoon. Sis Myers, Odd leader, reports that there are quite a few experienced juniors out, and that the freshmen show great promise.

Since the pool has now been opened for use, both Odds and Evens have had one practice in the pool to date.

The Even volleyball leader, Sarah Bennett, states that interning has hit the team to some extent, but that she still has several key players out, and that quite a few other experienced players have come out for practice. The number out this week increased over the number last week from 27 players to 51, she stated. Eighteen practice points are possible, and twelve are required for the player to be eligible for a team. There remain four more weeks of practice before class games.

Marli Richardson of Odd volleyball announces that 83 players have so far signed up, and that 65 were out to last Friday's practice She also says that very few of last year's players are out this year, but she is leaning on the many able and experienced freshmen.

Mart Wilson reports that 32 Evens are out for basketball, and that seven of last year's team have returned this year. Two seniors are interning this quarter, and though they will be missed by the team, Mart declares that the talent in reserve more than makes up for the lack.

The Odd basketball leader, Clarice Trueblood, also reports exceptional promise embodied in the freshman turnout. She has seven former team members out to practice, six of them from last year's team.

Library Display Features Year's Good Reading Theme

"Presenting 365 days of Good Reading" is the theme of the library exhibit on the main floor of the library.

Carrying out this theme, the bulletin board, next to the circulation desk, invites students to have "A New Year Dedicated to Books." Some of the book suggestions in this group are the following: The Woolcott Reader" published by the Viking Press, The Patriot by Pearl Buck, Benjamin Franklin by Carl Van Doren, The Long Watch in England by Eugene and Arline Lohrke, Gardening On Nothing a Year by Mary S Griffith, and others.

Another book shelf held books which suggested some "Arm-Chair Travel". Suggested books in this group were the following: The New Burma by W J Grant, The Soviet World by Anna Louise Strong, Exploring We Would Go by Ellen Gatti, On Mediterranean Shores by Emil Ludwig, and others.

The main display case in the middle of the lobby has a display of "Unique Dedications". The display caption warns the reader "Don't skip the dedicatory page of the book you read. You may miss something gay, clever, poetical, puzzling, spicy or even ridiculous". Dedications such as: "To Three Long-Suffering Ladies", "To my wife who bullied me into writing this book", and "To the pioneer doctor who boldly faced the wilderness and to the pioneer who bravely faced the doctor" are found on the dedicatory pages.

"What the Future Holds in Store" is the theme of the information center. A large newsmap on the bulletin board shows the position that the United States holds as an important center in the world. Some pamphlets beneath map contain information in regard to the movement in world cooperation. The pamphlets are designed to clarify many of the conferences and meetings which have been held for world cooperation. There are several pamphlets on the Bretton Woods proposals. A magazine is open to an article which discusses the UNESCO, which tries to give an understanding of the political and educational aspects of this movement. There are other books in the rack on the table which give an insight to the future in science and business. Books on the table tell of the new inventions in plastics and new modes of travel.

The information center presents maps, pamphlets, and books on current problems concerning topics which the students ought to know something about since they are going to be affected by them in the future world.

The Browsing Room has books on Florida as its exhibit. Florida—The America Guide Series and Florida—Land of Change by Dr Katherine H Abbey, formerly in the history department of Florida State College, are two of the books which are offered for reading in the Browsing Room.

All types of books are included in the Browsing Room collection. Books have colored dots instead of call numbers: fiction books have blue dots; biographies, red; poetry, silver; essays, gold; drama, orange; travel, green; science, two red dots; and art and music, two blue dots. For the aid of readers there is a card catalogue which lists the books according to their titles or the alphabetized names of the authors.

Pepper Tells of Colorful Arabian Host In Discussion Following Lecture Here

The colorful King Ibn Saud of Saudi Arabia has beaten the Tommy Manville marriage record by far more than 100 wives, according to a comment of Senator Claude Pepper during discussion following his speech at Florida State College last Friday night. Although King Saud is restricted to a maximum of four wives at any one time, he has managed by hook or by crook to achieve a grand total of close to 150 mates. And his favorite of the four current spouses has stood the test of time to the great extent of at least two or three years.

An elaborate state dinner was held in honor of Senator Pepper during his visit in Saudi Arabia. Four great platters, upon each of which was a half of a sheep, were brought out, but the old King would not partake of the sumptuous meal. Afterward he revealed the key to his "ripe old age" when he consumed an apparently usual repast of one-half gallon goats' milk.

Senator Pepper found that it was customary for visitors to attire themselves in native Arabian costume during their sojourn in the palatial tent. Upon his departure his host presented him with two complete ensembles of flowing garments, both winter and summer, along with other rich tokens of diplomatic good will.

During an evening of parable-quoting and other entertainment the old King snapped his fingers and bade a servant bring forth the little Princess. He patted her lovingly on the head and mada a most perspicacious remark. "She is only a girl but I love her very much." Senator Pepper said he also added with utmost naivete, "And I love her mother, too." (Note: the place of women in Saudi Arabia.)

This fabulous King Ibn, who made such distinctive impression when Senator Pepper visited him during a diplomatic tour of 19 foreign countries, has long been well-known in domestic and foreign relations of the Near East. This military leader and founder of Saudi Arabia was born at Riyadh, Nejd, about 1880. Grandson of a deposed sultan of Nejd, Saud recaptured the capital, Riyadh, 1901, in a bold and cunning attack with the aid of 15 followers. As sultan of Nejd and head of the Wauhabi sect, he induced Arabs in large part to live in settled colonies or villages, stabilized by agriculture, each colony being a division of a standing army. Tribal loyalties were transformed into the closest approach to a national loyalty since the days of Mohammed.

With British aid he attacked the Turks during World War I and, in 1924, captured the Hejaz from King Husian, whom British aid in World War had made powerful. In 1927 he assumed the title of King of Hejas and Nejd. His rule united all central Arabia in a kingdom which he later named Saudi Arabia. His territory is important internationally for its tremendous stores of raw material.

Denominations Plan Various Activities

Speakers, Deputation Groups, Radio Program Included

Sunday morning in the Baptis Student House at 8 o'clock there will be a breakfast to climax the Pill Week, and all students who have taken part are invited. At 8:30 "The Baptist Hour" will be heard over the radio and the pills will be revealed.

Buses will leave from the Baptist student house instead of Bryan Hall and will take the udents to Sunday school.

At the monthly meeting of the Canterbury Club last Sunday ght Nancy Jones, Mildred Hor- , Joyce Williams, and Pat dolp were elected to fresh- n an vestry. The president of vestry will appoint the new members to the following offices: secretary pro tem, assistant program chairman, house chairman and scrapbook chairman.

Next week is the Foreign Emphasis Week for the Presbyterian Church. Miss McNealy, who was secretary for the foreign missions committee for 36 years, will speak Sunday evening at the supper meeting at 5:45. Miss McNealy has recently come to live in Tallahassee with her niece, Margaret Blaire.

Sunday morning Margaret Mallard, state chairman of foreign missions, will teach the Sunday school class, and the foreign offering will be taken up.

The Methodist Student House is planning Deputation Program for the week end, and the students plan to go into local Methodist Churches around the vicinity of Tallahassee. Four students constitute a Deputation team, and put on a program, beginning Saturday night with a party, including church Sunday morning, a discussion group in the afternoon and ending with worship Sunday night.

There will be a training day at the Methodist Student House on Saturday, January the 19th from 3 pm until 10:00 pm.

The people helping on this program are: Rev Claude Haynes, Miss Mary Gilliam from Quincy, Miss Martha Koestlin from Gainesville, and Miss Alpharetta Leeper, director of the Wesleyan Foundation.

Probably the most important phase of the program will be the discussions groups, which will be based on "Ideas About God," "How our ideas of God affect our ideas of right and wrong," "How our ideas of God effect our prayer life," and "How our ideas about God lead into active Christian living."

Those participating on the training committee are as follows: Dorothy Binger, Betty Labree, Ann Carolyn Allison, and Martha Jane Brown.

Catterson Joins College Faculty

Increasing to seven the number of members added to the faculty at Florida State College this quarter, Mr Lorace E Catterson has been appointed instructor in political science, according to Dr Doak S Campbell, president.

Mr Catterson has recently returned from Italy, where he served in the Air Corps as navigator on a B-17 with the rank of first lieutenant. Previous to his career in the armed forces, Mr Catterson was a member of the faculty at the University of Missouri and later at Arkansas Polytechnical College. He received his MA degree from the University of Wisconsin.

Band Notice

All students interested in joining the Florida State College band are urged to get in touch with Mr O F Sellers, band director.

Clarinets are especially needed at this time.

FSC Reported to Be Second in Enrolling

Largest Woman's Residential College Is Texas State

Florida State College continues to hold the rank as the second largest residential college for women in the nation, as was stated in the December 29 issue of School and Society. The figures in this report, which was compiled by President Raymond Walters of the University of Cincinnati, were based on full-time students for the first quarter (or semester as the case may be in other colleges) of 1945-46.

Although there is a slight drop in the number of enrolled students this quarter compared to the first quarter enrollment of 2409, FSC remains next to Texas State College for Women, which ranks highest with its 2559 students.

The enrollments of seven other of the largest women's colleges are: the University of North Carolina, 2140; Smith, 2108; Wellesley, 1594; Vassar, 1363; Simmons, 1264; College of St Catherine, 2111; and Radcliffe, 1180.

Work of Twelve Photography Students Displayed in Rowena Longmire Clubroom

Miss Elizabeth E Lynn, assistant professor of physics and counselor to Senior Hall, announces that the projects of the fall quarter photography class are now on exhibit in the club room of the Rowena Longmire building. The exhibit includes various effects of lights and shades, portrait studies, scenic views of the campus, artistic arrangements, and special effects with unusual subjects and backgrounds.

The work of the class of twelve students, states Miss Lynn, represents an endeavor to take photographs in a technically as well as an artistically correct manner. Each prospective photograph is carefully planned out, new photography techniques are applied and experimented with, and only after hours of preparation does the student-photographer snap the shutter. The students develop, print, and enlarge their own negatives, and while all of them use their own cameras, the department provides two large camaras for student use.

The photography class is a one-quarter class only, and the background work prerequisite to taking it is a course either in physical science, or physics. The students have some trouble in gaining access to film at present, but the photography department itself has had little trouble securing enough film for its needs, Miss Lynn declared.

Some of the outstanding achievements in photography along both mechanical and artistic lines, Miss Lynn states further, are the portraits, one of which represents high skill in lighting and shade, giving the face a dramatic effect, done by Judy Burnett. An example of an experiment in effects that might be useful in advertising work is a photograph of a bottle of Chanel, flanked by a lace handkerchief on one side and a golden slipper on the other, by Estill Malphurs. Action shots taken at the athletic field by Josephine Dawkins were commended by Miss Lynn. Other noteworthy pictures, she related, are those of private homes taken by Winifred Winter, Dorothy Vincent, and Aspacia Demetrelus.

Other students of the fall quarter class whose works appear in the exhibit are Mary Rivero, Anne Galther, Mary (Teeny) Langston, Jane Mobley, Sharer Hines, and Katharine Condurelis.

Art Exhibition Discussed By Members of Department

The exhibition of modern still life paintings, circulated by the Museum of Modern Art, New York, now being held in the auditorium of the Longmire building, contains 17 still life paintings by contemporary artists.

Every day at 5 o'clock a discussion of the paintings has been made by a member of the art department. These are Miss Helen K Haughton, Miss Beatrice B Williams and Miss Mary E Mooty. The discussions for this afternoon and for Monday will be conducted by Miss Mooty.

According to Miss Williams the lectures are aimed at telling the painter's problems whether it be of line, color, shape or pattern. The observer, she said, must approach the paintings by bringing something with him such as an interest and knowledge of the painter's problem.

Miss Haughton, assistant professor of art, told observers during one of her lectures that the primary way of enjoying art was through an aesthetic emotion, a feeling of being more alive. She stated, however, that people vary in their susceptibility to art just as they do in their enjoyment of music.

Miss Haughton said that of the artists represented, Matisse is probably her favorite, and she also expressed a liking for Paul Klee's work.

Shrimps by Henri Matisse was described by Miss Haughton as daring and different. She said that the artist was interested in line, shape, and relationship of line the two dimensional as well as the three dimensional.

Miss Williams, professor of art, said that she thought that The Journal, painted by Juan Gris is the "gem of the whole show" This painting has a very strong pattern of light and dark Miss Williams said that the artist was working for patterns and interesting shapes.

Miss Williams described Paul Klee's Heart's Chalice as very emotional. Miss Haughton said that he was a master of line, fond of symbols, images and linear design.

Pablo Picasso is one of the most important artists of the day, according to Miss Haughton. She said that he was really too great to be anyone's favorite. His Still Life With Choir Coning, which is on exhibit here, is not a very good example of his work, in her opinion. It does, however, successfully represent the Cubist movement.

Preston Dickinson's Still Life was described by Miss Williams as having excellent composition. She said that he had used distortion because he wanted a rectangle of a particular size. He was interested mostly in color and three dimensional quality.

Miss Williams also said that Juan Miro's technique in the Ear of Grain is worth studying. It has vitality, though it insists on details, according to her evaluation.

Jimmy Savo's Shoes by Loren MacIver is a study of the character of the owner of the pair of shoes, Miss Williams observed. She said that this particular painting lacked organization.

Country Fair by Pierre Roy was commented upon to a great extent by the visitors to the exhibit. Miss Williams said that it was a beautiful painting and that the artist had a genius for bringing everything together. Miss Haughton, on the other hand, said that she thought it would be valuable only as a magazine cover.

Both Miss Williams and Miss Haughton expressed a regret that there was not a better example of Charles Demuth's work than the the Corn and Peaches on exhibit.

Miss Williams pointed out the repetition of various rectangles in Miklos Suba's South Eighth Street Barber Shop Interior. It is done in light and dark, and repeats variations of the same color.

All the members of the art department said that the pictures here are not great examples of the best-known artists, but that it is a good group for study.

SPIRIT OF THE WEEK

"WE'LL NEVER TELL" ABOUT THE SOPHOMORE HOP

● IN THE BALANCE

This week on the stage of Westcott auditorium members of the college and the people of Tallahassee were privileged to hear two outstanding speakers voice their opinions on the situations, problems and general conditions of the world today as they see it from a vantage point of wide experience and the so-called "inner sanctum" of our governmental machinery.

It must be generally admitted that both Senator Claude Pepper and Miss Dorothy Thompson are excellent examples of platform artists. Both speeches were superb performances; both speakers had at their fingertips intensely interesting information; and each speaker had at his command techniques of speaking which succeeded in holding the attention of his audience.

But of far greater importance than the momentary pleasure of hearing words dramatically delivered, is the fact that in the span of less than one week we have heard diametrically opposed points of view presented, as by all good speakers, with force, a supply of facts, and firsthand information. Senator Pepper expressed the idea that the only hope for peace is the United Nations Organization, while Miss Thompson declared that "if the only hope for peace is the UNO, then get busy, brother, because there's no hope in the UNO."

Perhaps both speakers' convictions were fortified to a large extent by incontrovertible facts. The unthinking listener was given ample opportunity immediately to accept as final either one point of view or the other without feeling the necessity of using the speeches as starting points for further investigation and careful weighing of facts and opinion.

Next week, students will be able to hear another speaker well qualified to stand before an intelligent audience. Jerome Davis, noted educator and lecturer, is scheduled to give his opinion on one aspect of international affairs, "Japan in Defeat and After." Here, again, the students will have the opportunity to hear another person's opinions on topics vital to them.

It must be remembered, however, that any opinion is not necessarily the ultimate and unassailable truth, but should serve as an eye-opener and an instigator to further investigation on the part of the persons hearing the opinion. For the intelligent person, truly concerned with the issues of his day and the future of his world, will not be swayed by the dynamics of oratory alone. He will make a conscious effort to learn more and always more, and he will let the scales of careful scrutiny and evaluation weigh his final decision.

● OBSOLETE

There seem to be in the world words and tenets and beliefs that men cling to long after their value has faded and their meanings been distorted and outmoded. Such a word, according to Senator William Fulbright of Arkansas is "sovereignty"—the Word That Blocks Lasting Peace.

Rising from an era when men were slaves and their masters imposed their will by the divine right of kings, this medieval word has been adopted by highly patriotic nationalists today as a basis for objection to universal law and co-operation, as a barrier behind which nations work to their own advantage. No longer providing a picture of feudal tyrant and despot, "sovereignty" has come to symbolize national prestige and international freedom.

Yet, "if sovereignty means anything and resides anywhere," continued the Arkansas senator in a recent New York Times article, "it means control over our own destiny and it resides in the people." Two wars within 30 years show our power over our own destiny to be imperfect and defective—our "sovereignty" of little value. So it is that delegation of power to an organization such as the UNO is no negative action, resulting in the loss of something we possess; it is rather a positive action, an effort to create a power over destiny we can no longer attain as individual nations.

For if we are to find lasting peace, if we are to achieve the only practical means of defense—that of prevention—it becomes necessary to reexamine old belief and tenets and key our thinking and our actions to modern needs and usages. It becomes necessary to find new means of avoiding mistakes that have been made through the ages.

● COLLECTIVE BARGAINING

The quarter system has now been in effect for a little more than one quarter. Students, faculty members, and the administration have been shown to some degree both flaws and good points. Whether we continue under the present quarter system, a revised one, or return to the discarded semester system, education and training will go on, classes will be conducted, and we will have a curriculum.

A curriculum necessitates a committee for choosing and planning courses of study; such a committee in the past and at present is composed of those who teach. However, for future planning of what we are required to study we would like to see a committee of those who learn, students, established in order to give students an opportunity to voice their opinions and offer suggestions as to what they believe to be valuable and serve their needs in the realm of education.

This committee of students might very well serve in an advisory capacity to the faculty committee.

There are those who will immediately project the idea with firm conviction that students are not capable of judicious and wise decisions in such matters because they lack broad educational and technical background. We recognize our lack of long experience, but we are no less firmly convinced that what we have observed and undergone in the way of learning from a student's point of view would be of considerable value.

This idea is not being advanced for the first time Approximately two and a half years ago a similar plan was unanimously adopted by Student Senate, but it was, we gather, gently laid aside somewhere in its course along the "proper channels", for there has been no action taken as far as we can see.

Nor would a student curriculum committee in an advisory capacity be peculiar to our college. Already Randolph Macon, Vassar, Smith, and Bennington colleges have committees of this nature actively functioning. In regard to their value in a particular case, Vassar's President McCraken once remarked that his school could not do without its student curriculum committee.

More recently Miami University created a coordinating faculty-student committee to study the problems and revise the curriculum of the School of Education.

Students interested in seeing a more effective and beneficial curriculum on this campus should be able to do more than discuss it in bull sessions. Such an opportunity would come with the establishment of an active, participating committee of students.

We follow labor in their request for "collective bargaining."

● WE HEREBY ELECT

Elections are once more in the campus eye and the feeling of good-willed competition is running high. We upperclassmen smile down upon the young freshmen and indulgently watch their hectic campaign tactics, for we feel that these are mere childish pranks which we must condone and let them give vent to for the last time before they become mature young ladies.

But our attitude changes when it comes time to elect our CGA and class officers and fill other campus positions. Long before election time we gather in our individual groups over a cup of coffee and discuss among ourselves the numerous possibilities for candidacy.

Then, the week before primary elections as numerous petitions are given to us for signing, we seriously consider each one and sign the one for the girl whom we believe best-suited for the office. We never sign one because it is the first petition to be handed to us.

And of course we all attend the convocation for the presentation of nominees. We listen attentively to each girl as she states her platform. Oh yes, our candidates do not rest their elections upon the passing of a few pleasantries and high-sounding ideals from the speaker to the audience, but rather, they have carefully weighed the possibilities of problems pertinent to the office and take a definite stand in respect to those problems. And they are always planning to do new and constructive things for the school. This is all due to the fact that we have an active student governing body and have the facilities at our finger tips to institute needed reforms.

Certainly it cannot be said of an FSC election that the candidate was chosen because of her popularity and how "cute" she is—all of our officers are elected because of their ability. If we don't know the candidates, we make it a point to find out who they are and what qualifications they have for holding a major office.

Sometimes one hears of an election where there is only one candidate for an office. This is not the case on our campus because we realize that no one is indispensible and that there is more than one person who is capable to hold each position.

And we are always so eager to vote that a crowd is continually milling around the voting booths. You never see anyone going from room to room trying to get enough members of a class to vote for its officers or having to extend the voting time so that a majority can be reached.

Yes, the student body of FSC is vitally interested in its government. Let it not be said that our major elections are as ridiculous as the freshmen's . . . the freshmen only know who their candidates are!

● MORE RECREATION

We note with satisfaction the college's recent purchase of six bowling alleys from Dale Mabry Field. Students have long expressed the desire for bowling facilities since the only one located in Tallahassee is restricted for use to us by college regulations. Before it was generally known that bowling alleys had been acquired, students interviewed for the column, "Students Speak," again named this as one of the forms they wished to be made available.

Along with bowling perhaps further provisions for recreation such as riding stables will be soon forthcoming "now that the war is over."

The Students Speak...

By JACKIE NEVERS

Now that we have no war on which to blame our shortages and shortcomings, the problem of recreational facilities can be studied in a more imaginative and less conservative light. The question of the week is "What recreational facilities do you think that we should have on campus which we do not have now?"

"We don't have enough dances."

Maude Eddy, Sophomore.

"I think the school would be better if we had a skating rink and bowling alleys for the girls and more places where girls could take dates if they're lucky enough to have them."

Polly Gage, Sophomore.

"I think that the girls should be allowed the use of the parlors in the Student-Alumnae Building when they have dates."

Flossie Du Rant, Junior.

"We need an opportunity to take flying lessons with aviation classes."

Elizabeth Lee, Junior.

"First and foremost, more dances, then horseback riding and bowling"

Florence Morrison, Freshman.

"After dinner games such as shuffleboard and quoits and badminton which everyone could participate in."

Lee Wells, Junior.

"I think we need my favorite pastime (and I do mean past)—'jouer le sommeil' — commonly known as the thing unknown on fifth floor Gilchrist—Sleep!"

Georgia Jaeckel, Sophomore.

"I think theer should be a bowling alley either on campus or in town that the students could use. Camp Flastacowo could be enlarged to accommodate more students."

Jeanne Cushman, Freshman.

"I think a bowling alley and a riding stable would be tops for the campus."

Jeanne Koesy, Senior.

"I think we ought to have some pool tables. It's a gentleman's sport even if it does have a bad name. It would be interesting for the girls who have never had an opportunity to play. It's also a coming social pastime."

B Jo McLeod, Junior.

"Out door barbecue pits for Sunday night suppers."

Jean Sharer, Sophomore.

"More emphasis on the cultural side of recreation would please me. I would like to have a room similar to the Browsing room, but open all the time and having in it both books and records."

Winifred Meldrim, Senior.

"I think we ought to have horseback riding."

Billie Washburn, Freshman.

"I think we ought to have bowling and facilities for horseback riding."

Jean Helms, Junior.

"If it were possible I should like to see some of the recreation facilities that we already have made available for use at night for example, lights on the tennis courts, etc."

Herky White, Junior.

"I think it would be good if horseback riding were made available to the students again."

Evelyn Stuckey, Senior.

"I think it would be nice to have good musical programs, like orchestras such as Tommy Dorsey's."

Anne Irving, Freshman.

"Bowling alleys would be a very popular addition."

Emma Jean Hackle, Senior.

"I think we should have more places to take a date."

Peggy Moor, Freshman.

MAGAZINE JOTTINGS

Life's editorial for January 7. 1946 asks the question, "What is 'liberalism'?" Mr Harold Laski, famous political scientist and chairman of Britain's Labor Party, lectured in New York last December. From his speech on "The Challenge of the Atomic Bomb" came these words:

"We have come to the boundaries of the final dividing line between liberalism and socialism . . . There is no middle way. Free enterprise and the market economy mean war; socialism and planned economy mean peace. All attempts to find a compromise are a Satanic illusion. We must plan our civilization or we must perish."

Life says that if Mr Laski's visit causes his liberal friends to think at all, he will have performed a public service. "Liberalism," to Americans, has always been such a vague and roomy kind of faith, meaning no harm to anyone, least of all to socialist Russia whose freedom from businessmen Mr Laski so much admires. As Mr Laski used the term, it is almost synonymous with free enterprise and a free market. This is what most Americans believe in; therefore they are "liberals" according to Mr Laski. Wholly committed to socialism, Mr Laski argued a few years ago that it would come through balloting, "revolution by consent." America could answer then that she had not reached the age of consent. Now "Mr Laski is more implacable . . . and the believer in free enterprise is tempted . . . to declare war on socialism." "That," says Life, "would certainly simplify the problem of definitions and force our 'liberals' to decide which side of the economic argument they are on."

"Liberal Tenets"

Since "liberalism" actually means more than an economic system Life says that "battle with Mr Laski must be refused, at least on his narrowly chosen ground." An understanding of the breadth of ground covered by the word "liberalism" is provided by William A Orton's recent book, The Liberal Tradition. He holds that liberty is the highest political end, but he skirts the pitfall of individualism and insists that a well-ordered community life is indispensable to freedom."

The fact that every government, no matter how good, must recognize some greater law which limits its own laws is a liberal tenet which socialists either deny or forget. Another principle of liberalism "is that good ends never justify dubious means" and democracies must resist the temptation to become "welfare states." Liberals reject doing good by force.

"A third principle is an abiding distrust of pure, unaided reason." During the course of history different political movements such as anti-clericalism, laissez faire, nationalism, Wilsonian internationalism, and Positivism have been espoused by liberals, but the liberal tradition has always realized sooner or later that no political system offers the perfect answer. Thus, according to Mr Orton "liberalism is the denial of all absolutes in the realm of political organization."

The liberal is marked by his willingness to compromise on politics, but on the question of morals he will not compromise. Mr Laski says, "We must alter the central principle of our civilization to plan production for community consumption. From that central principle alone do there flow the ethical values which can renovate and refresh this dying civilization." Here lies the basic difference between Mr Laski and a liberal. Mr Laski seems to think that once the Age of Plenty has been attained "ethical values" will flow automaticaly. Life says that a liberal desires the Age of Plenty, but knows that ethical values flow "only from the hearts of men who believe in something greater than any political or economic system"

When attempts are made to erect altruism into a social philosophy, the liberal becomes alarmed, says Life. "He remembers how and at what cost he once went for Rousseau, who first planted the hope . . . that social reform would make self-reform unnecessary . . . The liberal's first task in the coming era . . is to remind men that only good individuals, whether rich or poor, can make a good society."

Life Saving Corps Initiates Tonight

Thirty girls who passed their senior life saving examination were initiated into the Life Saving Corps last night in the club room of the gymnasium, according to Anna Horne, newly appointed president of the corps.

On February 2, members of the organization plan to go to Wakulla Springs for an outing Miss Margaret Stanion, instructor in physical education, will act as chaperon.

DO NOT FEED THE PEOPLE

In This Our Time

By GLORIA REED

United States

Reaction to President Truman's recent address to the people asking them to write their representatives and Senators demanding legislation to accomplish the administration program of fact-finding seemed to indicate that his attack had hurt Congress very little. The President received only 100 telegrams, mostly favorable, and Congressional mail showed no evidence of public outrage.

Over the nation the reconversion strikes still holds interest. The United Automobile Workers Union of the CIO called a halt to their 54-day strike in General Motors plants by accepting a government proposed wage raise of about 17 1-2 per cent.

After GM's refusal of the increase, UAW announced it will reinstate its original 30 per cent increase demand if the corporation does not reconsider its rejection by Monday. Meanwhile, the National Labor Relations Board summoned the GM Corporation to a hearing on charges by the CIO UAW that the company had failed to bargain in good faith in the wage dispute.

The question of GM's ability to pay may be injected into the NLRB hearing on January 28. This was the issue on which GM walked out on hearings of the fact-finding commission. Throughout negotiations with the union GM has maintained its "ability to pay" was not properly a subject for collective bargaining with its workers' representatives.

The Westinghouse Electric Corporation notified the CIO of its terminating its wage contract while the General Electric Company announced an indefinite suspension of its principle business after all its plants were closed by a strike of 200,000 workers. GE President Wilson holds that it will be impossible to receive materials or to ship equipment from electric plants until the strike has been settled and the workers return to their jobs.

To date no settlement of the threatened steel strike of 800,000 workers set for next Monday h been reached. CIO President Mu ray and B F Fairless, Preside of the United States Steel C poration are in conference at t White House, but the Preside declined to say what counter pr posals Fairless had made to t CIO's demand for a $1 50 a d wage increase.

More than 300,000 meat pla workers (AFL and CIO) went strike Wednesday in support their demands for an immed 17 1-4-cent raise. The Gover ment's conciliations experts, ho ever, in a last minute effort find a compromise urged the u ions accept a 13 1-4-cent-an-ho pay boost. In return the Gover ment would grant a meat pr increase of about a cent a pou to the packers. Such a price crease met with strong opposit of the OPA, which had a repr sentative taking part in the hea ings.

College Comments . . .

By ALVERA ASHE

Whether or not inspired by the performance of a Shakespearian play, a writer for the Los Angeles Collegian has written a poem which will no doubt strike a note of familiarity to most of us here at FSC.

TO BOO OR NOT TO BOO

To boo, or not to boo: That is the question:
Whether 'tis nobler in the mind to suffer
Their screams and errors of outrageous performers.
Or to take arms against sea of actors,
And by opposing end them. To groan, to hiss;
No more: and by a hiss to say we end
The headache, and the thousand nauseous shocks
That "pash" is hair to, 'tis a consummation
Devoutly to be wished. To hiss, to groan:
To groan; perchance to clap; ay, there's the rub:
For in that clap of hands what dream may come
When they have shuffled off their costumes gay,
Must give us pause: There's the respect
That makes calamity of such long plays;
For who would bear the whips a scorns of critics
The spectator's wrong, the d rector contumely
The pangs of despised art, t pay's delay
The insolence of playwrites, a the spurns
That patient rehearsal of t unworthy takes
When they themselves might th exeunt make
With a brave flourish? Who wou make-up bear
To grunt and sweat beneath t weary lights
But that the dread of someth afterward,
The undiscover'd playhouse fro whose stage
No Thespian returns, puzzles t will
And makes them rather be those plays they have
Than fly to others that they kn not of?
Thus censure doth make cowar of them all,
Thus the native hue of approb tion
Is sicklied o'er with the pale c of odium,
And scenarios of great pitch a moment
With this regard their actors tu awry.
And lose the name of excellen

Alpha Chi Formal To Be Friday Night

"Moonlight and Romance" is the theme of the annual Alpha Chi Omega dance which will be held tomorow night at their bouse. Members and their dates will come through a vine covered lattice gate to enter the living room which will be illuminated only by pale blue lights and burning candles.

Music for the dance will be furnished by the "Florida Footwarmers," a five piece band from Chattahooche, Florida.

Invited as special guests for the affair are: Dean Karl O Kuersteiner, acting Dean of Music and Mrs Kuersteiner; Mrs Van Ferguson, instructor in Home Economics and Mr Ferguson; Dr Milton W Carothers, registrar, and Mrs Carothers.

Gloria Wells, Margaret Johnson, and Margie Austin formed the committee in charge of the dance.

Tea Tuesday Fetes 35 New Freshmen

Thirty-five new freshmen were bonored at a tea given in the Longmire building Tuesday afternoon from five to six, with active Mortar Board and Executive Council members acting as hostesses.

Featured on the program for the afternoon were Eleanor Bragg who played "Ritual of The Fire Dance," and Jimmie Rogers who sang "The Star" and "The Piper of Love".

Miss Elizabeth Thompson, assisted by sixteen girls, helped serve the refreshments of tea and cake.

History Building Provides Excitement As New Wing Construction Continues

TAMI THOMAS

The classes in the new addition to the history building are becoming inured to the unexpected noise, sights, and sounds that are accompanying the stay of the builders.

This is well, for there are to be four stories in all, and the second is only now nearing completion. The fourth story will be the attic floor with the same dormer windows that grace the rest of the buildings on campus.

During the time since the work began, amusing things have happened

Once, the water main broke, and the brand-new classrooms were flooded. Students and teachers squealed and waded.

A few days later, the superintendent was approached by a slightly flustered lady. She was a teacher who had come to have him investigate a report that the sewer pipes were broken. It seems there was a most peculiar odor permeating the classrooms, of which the occupants were becoming slightly annoyed and had taken to slamming the doors. Mr Robinson assured everyone that no sewerlines are beneath the addition, but thought he knew where the trouble was. Sure enough, the drama department was fooling around with glue again.

It wasn't long until another hurdle to knowledge came up, or was put there. The front entrance had a pretty little, freshly-painted sign hung over the door that said Closed. Enterprising students scrambled around to the back entrance and climbed over a pile of bricks and mortar and arrived in class only a little out of breath.

However, classes go on as scheduled, and no one seems particularly unhappy, except maybe the girl who has a morning class and can't keep her mind on language for watching interesting shadows. She watches the shadows of the workmen up above and wonders which one will be the first to fall off.

Inside, the seating is comfortable. That is, the seats are the same as those in the regular classrooms. Of course, the ceiling fixtures are not all in, but most of the big bulbs still hang down on two insulated wires, but everything will come in time. The windows have no shades, and do not go up and down on automatic pulleys yet, but ventilation is provided.

Outside, the place looks good on the ground floor. The dirt is bare around and there is no landscaping as yet. The upper regions still reem to be trying out as a nightmare. Scaffolding, ladders, and winch machines which are the transportation arteries for each small brick and endless nails, are the most noticeable thing about the building, next to the workmen clambering and hammering around on top.

The building contractors, Paul Smith and Company, have built several of the other newest buildings on the campus. Among these are the New Dormitory, the Village, and the top floor of Reynolds.

Guy C Fulton is the architect of the history addition and L G Robinson is the superintendent of the job.

Department Honors Visiting Professor

The Modern Language department of Florida State College held a coffee in honor of Dr Lincoln Canfield, visiting Spanish professor on campus last week-end.

The reception was held in the home of Dr Margie Burks, professor of Spanish, and Dr Lucy Lester, professor of French. Special guests for the occasion included Dr Guy L Diffenbaugh, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, and Dr Arthur Seymour, retired head of the Modern Language department.

Dr Canfield is interested in getting Spanish teachers to spend some time in Mexico. He has recently returned from a six months stay there.

PEA Fashions

By JOYCE PETTY

Fashions ranging from sport suits to evening dresses were modeled by physical education majors last night at the regular meeting of the Physical Education Association in the college gymnasium. The purpose of the program, planned by Catherine Barrs, was to show what the well-dressed "major" should wear from breakfast in the morning until bed at night.

There was no lighting except a white spot which focused alternately on the mistress of ceremonies, Nancy MacEdwards, and the models.

To portray the picture for the background music of "School Days," Shirley Palmer modeled a royal blue and white striped dress with an interesting effect of stripes going both horizontally and vertically, and Bobbie Lincoln showed a pink affair with a low peasant neck worn with white sandals—definitely the thing for an afternoon date on an early spring day in Florida.

With an eye on "Old Man Winter," Charlie Snyder and Patsy Callahan sauntered around the floor wearing the "dere ole" sweater and skirt combins with pearls to soften the neckline.

Especially important in the wardrobe of the "major" are the white plaited shorts and sport shirt which were worn by Alice Taft as she started ont for a game of tennis.

Also, a must for the sport-loving college girl is the casual plaited skirt and blazer jacket modeled by Evelyn Stuckey. This number is especially recommended for golf when worn with brown and white loafers and white socks.

Designed for wear on a special picnic date was the brilliant red slack suit which was worn by Joyce Cayce. Definitely different from the frequently-worn blue jeans, it featured a Chinese jacket fastened with gold buttons down the front and at the cuffs of the full sleeves.

Charlotte Bouland, having everything for a riding date except the horse, modeled a complete riding habit with brown leather boots matching suede vest worn over a plaid cotton sport shirt.

After an afternoon of teaching in the well-known white short suit of the physical education major, which was shown by Amelia Pavese, the student can find relaxation at the dormitory teas in the black crepe worn by Corky Herman. This model was striking in its simplicity and the criss-cross neckline added interest at the top. To the simple black, Betty Donnally added elbow-length fuschia gloves and a close-fitting hat with a streaming veil down the back.

"As the sun goes down and the moon comes up" the spotlight is focused on formal attire. Nita Bowles appeared in a solid black formal modeled on simple lines with a delicate net inset at the shoulders. With it she wore a black taffeta grosgrain cape and her rhinestone bag matched the shimmering bracelet on her arm. By way of contrast, Anne Shull showed a backless white crepe with illusive sparkles dotting it from top to bottom.

"After the ball is over" it is home to bed with Jennie Booth who manages it with a sky blue chenille robe and tailored butcher-boy polka-dotted pajamas of the same shade.

Magnolia Girls Enjoy Rustic Picnic Supper

About 90 girls from Magnolia Hall enjoyed a rustic picnic in Game's Woods last Friday night. According to Jane Whitfield, social chairman, food in plentiful quantities was taken along, with the bill of fare consisting of hot dogs, baked beans, doughnuts, and coffee. After supper, the group singing was led by Lynn Starbird.

Honor guests at the picnic were Mrs Harriet C Bardsdale, residence counselor at Magnolia; Miss Mary Cadman, assistant resident counselor, and Miss Lynette Thompson, instructor in classics and assistant counselor.

Among social activities coming up for Magnolia girls is the dance planned for March 2nd. A committee has already been appointed to formulate plans for the annual formal.

Broward Dance Uses 'Paper Moon' Theme

Broward hall residents will enjoy their annual formal dance tomorrow night from 8:30 until 11:30 in the Broward parlor. In keeping with the theme "Paper Moon," the rooms will be decorated with crescent moons and stars.

During the evening, refreshments will be served in the clubroom, and at intermission, a short musical program will be presented.

Ruby Grace Daniel, social chairman of Broward, is general chairman for the dance. Committee chairmen are: Virginia Budd, hostesses; Rose Baisden, refreshments; Polly Marks, decorations; and Sarah Lee Williams, program.

Invited guests are: Dr and Mrs Doak S Campbell, Dr and Mrs Harold F Richards, Miss Callope Papatsos, Miss Daisy Parker, Miss Olivia N Dorman, Miss Kay Warren, and Miss Edith McCollum.

Delta Zetas Spend Active Social Week

Delta Zetas have enjoyed a week of activities including a reception, informal party, fashion show, and pledging ceremony.

Wednesday evening was the reception, with Dot Vincent greeting the guests at the door. Bette Parker presided at the punch table, and Ramona Rodriguez furnished background music during the reception.

On the following day an informal "Gabfest" was held, with Dot Boring in charge of the program. Paula Jeanne Teagarden entertained with several musical selections.

Saturday night members enjoyed a fashion show put on by chapter members, who modeled clothes suitable for week-end wear.

Carolyn Cox was pledged in a ceremony on Wednesday afternoon, according to Margie Grace, publicity chairman for the Delta Zetas.

Field Trips Made To Study Wildlife

Trips to the Gulf of Mexico and to Wakulla river have recently been made by members of the physiology and zoology departments in order to observe migratory wildlife and to collect invertebrate specimens. Another field trip was made by members of the botany department this week in order to collect algae.

Dr Viola Graham, professor of physiology and Dr Ezda Deviney, professor of zoology, journeyed to the lighthouse at St Marks Sunday for the purpose of observing migratory ducks and geese.

Miss Carolyn Trump, instructor in zoology and Dr Deviney also accompanied a class in invertebrate zoology and students from an independent study group on a recent field trip to Wakulla river. A number of invertebrates were collected at this time, including microscopic forms, which have been used in laboratory work in these classes.

Journeying to Lake Jackson and the Ochlockonee river Saturday morning were Dr Herman Kurz, professor of botany, and 5 students in advanced botany classes.

Village Dance

The spring dance of the Village will be held on Saturday night at 8 o'clock in Landis recreation room. Kay Moore, chairman of the social committee, is in charge of arrangements. The chaperones will be Dr and Mrs Robert F Miller, Mr and Mrs Owen F Sellers, Miss Lynette Thompson, Miss Henrietta Greenberg, and Miss Fannie B Shaw.

Electric Oven and Cold Storage Room Included in Fixtures for New Bakery

How's your capacity for pastry these days? Well, if it's more and better sweets you want just stick around here at FSC and you'll have it. Yes, that's what that new brick addition is between the new and the old dining halls, an extension to the bakery. The output of sweets will be exactly doubled

Back and before the year 1932 the bakery was run entirely by coal, but in the same year Mr Mendenhall designed the one we now have, and converted it into steam beating. Once again in 1946 Mr Mendenhall has the bakery running entirely by electricity and has undertaken to enlarge the size of the bakery.

The extension which was begun in October 1945 is 13 feet by 53 feet in plan and is making room for an additional electric oven, a quick freezing cold storage room, a big double sink, and a stainless steel work table. The extension will correspond with the existing bakery in finish and style. There will be a cold storage room that will consist of two refrigerated rooms and refrigerated entrance vestibule. One of the refrigerated rooms is designed to have a temperature of 10 degrees below zero, for the storage of frozen fruits and dairy products. The other compartment will be 32 degrees above zero, just freezing. The walls, ceiling, floors, will all be insulated so the temperature may be withstood, and rooms will be lined with moisture resisting tile.

The bakery in its entirety houses huge pastry machines, a do-nut machine, large steam kettles in which sauce and fillings for cakes and pies are cooked, also an electric oven.

The structure will be completed in about thirty days. The delay has been in obtaining the electrical devices, but in six months the job will be complete. It is being done under the auspices of the Paul Smith Construction Company, and around 25 workers have been employed on the building. The installation of utilities will be done by the college electricians and the installation of equipment will be done by the college technicians.

The only problems that have been encountered is the problem of getting the equipment into the space that is allotted.

The work has not been suspended and will be completed on schedule.

Actor Tells of USO Experiences In Informal Discussion Period

To tell tales of the theater and to offer advice to the young hopefuls of Florida State College's stagecraft classes, came actor Barton Stone and his wife, Pat, who is a former student and graduate of this college. The Stones held an informal question-and-discussion period on Tuesday afternoon at 4 00 in the auditorium of the Augusta Conradi Little Theater, in which members of the Speech department participated.

In his talk to the class, Mr Stone told briefly of his recent tour of the European war theater, playing a part in "Junior Miss" with a USO camp show. Tracing the journey, he said that the troupe arrived in Scotland from New York, and went from there to London and the English coast, where they embarked for the French mainland.

Regarding the London theater, he stated that he believes it much more alive and vital than the New York theater. While there, he had the good fortune to see Lawrence Olivier perform in Shakespeare's "Richard III." In his opinion Mr Olivier is the greatest living actor in the world.

In France, they opened first at Versailles, and his most outstanding memory was of the famous Versailles gardens, which the dressing rooms overlooked. Another distracting factor was that the stage jutted far out into the auditorium so that the players were surrounded on three sides by the audience, instead of having them directly in front of the stage. Also, the stage sloped downward from back to front, to accommodate those sitting in the front rows, and the actors found it rather disconcerting to dash onstage and suddenly have to dig in their heels to stop the impetus.

They went then to Dijon and Nancy, playing in surrounding areas, and one of their playhouses was the Bijou Theater, which Mr Stone described as a little jewel, the most beautiful theater in the world." After playing in Marsailles, Paris, and other cities of France, the cast retired to the Riviera for the winter.

Though there were originally eighteen in the cast, it was pared to fourteen by the limitations of transportation. Their stage set was necessarily a model of simplicity: it consisted of three canvas drops, a back and two wings, on which were painted doors, windows, and pictures. Stage doors were merely flaps in the canvas, and curtains were pinned to the canvas over the painted windows.

This USO theater group was in the nature of an experiment in overseas service entertainment, and Mr Stone declared it to be a success: "the reception we had was wooderful," he said.

Mrs Stooe, who was formerly Patricia Mack, is a graduate of FSC class of 1940, and she has been in New York as secretary to James Thurber and to several playwrights. Her interest is in the production end of the theater, and her talk concerned writing, buying, production, and speculation in the theater. She suggested to those who plan to enter theater work that "the best people to know are the producers, since you work for them, and the playwright, for they have the last say in casting."

She also said that best way to get into the theater was not through training in special schools, but through joining a summer stock company, since in that way one gets real and valuable experience in acting, and also gets to know other actors, absorb the atmosphere of the theater.

She put in a special word of encouragement for budding young playwrights, stressing the need for them and the lack of them in the theater today Plays are not nearly so good now as they were thirty years ago, she stated, mentioning that there is now only on hit in thirty, whereas hits were then in a ratio of one to fifteen.

A last word of advice was, "Success doesn't come quickly to anyone. Don't be discouraged if recognition takes a long time coming. Remember, no one can possibly be a real success before twenty-five. Get started early in the first opening you can find, and work from then on to get experience and to know people. Success is erratic, it may come to you and it may not, but it is certainly worth a try if you are geouinely interested in the theater as a career."

Alumnae Is Married In Leige, Belgium

Lorena Simms, class of 1938, recently wrote a card to Miss Louise Gehan, alumnae secretary, telling her about her recent marriage and her experiences in overseas work.

Miss Simms was married to 1st Lt Francis Clyde Schafield, Corps of Engineers, U S A, on November 8, L Liege, Belgium. They apent a week in Brussels honeymooning.

They are both in Marburg, Germany where Lorena is serving as an Army nurse, and her husband is serving in the regular Army. They both expect to be there for another year.

Mrs Schaifield said that the differences in reconstruction which can be seen in travelling through European countries are appalling. 'France has done so little reconstruction work, and Belgium has done miraculously well in rebuilding and returning to normal generally speaking."

She promise to send more news of the reconstruction of the various countries in her next letters.

Senior Hall Gains 21 New Members

Twenty-one new first quarter seniors are living on senior hall, filling vacancies left by 28 senior hall girls who are interning this quarter, according to Miss Elizabeth Lynn, counselor to senior hall.

Ten seniors either withdrew or graduated at the close of last quarter, leaving more rooms available. Every request for a senior hall room received by the registrar has been granted.

9th Graders Camp

The ninth grade of the Demonstration school spent the past week-end at Camp Flastacowo participating in various camp activities.

About fifteen children accompanied by Miss Matilda Willihrand, camp director; Miss Mabel Houser, ninth grade homeroom teacher; Mr Wesley Carter, physical education director of the Dem School, and Mrs Carter; and two student teachers, Delia Mae Rhodes and Emma Mae Murray left here Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock and returned the following afternoon.

New York became a city of 2,000,000 telephones in 1945.

Class of '45 Sets Up Fund

Dr Conradi Scholarship Valued at $200 Yearly

The class of 1945 has set up a Dr Conradi Scholarship Fund. The scholarship, which is only available to juniors and seniors for completing their undergraduate work, is administered by the Scholarship Committee of the Alumnae Association. The value of the scholarship is $200 for one year.

The class of 1945 asked that the scholarship be put on a part loan, part gift basis if the Alumnae Association Scholarship Committee felt that the amount of money in the fund warranted it. However, the scholarship as it now stands is merely a loan.

If anyone is interested in the scholarship they may apply to the Alumnae Association Scholarship committee. Dr Ruth Schornherst, assistant professor of botany, is chairman of the committee.

The scholarship was started at the beginning of the fall term of this year. Since the catalogue is printed in the spring, the committee was unable to have the scholarship listed in the scholarship and loans section of the catalogue Miss Louise Gehan, alumnae secretary, said that this was probably the reason that there have been no applicants.

The Alumnae Association began campaigning among the alumnae for the fund in November and December. The campaign will continue throughout the year. Faculty members and students who are interested in the fund may contribute to the fund, but there will be no campaigns among them according to Miss Gehan.

On Tuesday the scholarship fund had reached $1108.00. Miss Gehan said that further reports would be given out on the drive as they appeared advisable.

Housing Improved

Housing on campus is in an improved condition according to Miss Edith McCollum, director of residence.

The girls are now living in regular dormitory rooms, and redecoration of the recreation rooms is to begin soon. The candy kitchens are to be refurnished, also, and announcements will follow as to their dates for use.

There are no more official moving days, according to this office "Stability is an important aspect of the college girl's life." Miss McCollum said, adding that this means not moving and changing rooms at any moment.

From Teaching English to Building Big Ships Calls for Self-Conversion Plus

By JOYCE PETTY

The war-conversion of a hairpin factory into a bomber plant was no more drastic than the self-conversion of J A Preu, assistant professor of English, when he switched from the profession of teaching to that of shipbuilding.

When school was out in 1942, Mr Preu left his position as head of the English department at Friends College, Wichita, Kansas and entered the employment of the Alabama Dry Dock and Shipbuilding Company in Mobile, Alabama. "I decided to go there because of the money in it," he said.

"At these particular shipyards," he related, "we built 22,000 ton T-2 tankers which, unlike the victory ships, are a very sturdily built boat. The first one built took a year, but as we got organized we could turn them out in 60 days." By that time they had progressed far enough to build 12 ships at a time.

Mr Preu said the interesting thing about shipbuilding was that all the workers were new. Since there had been very little shipbuilding in peacetime America, there were really few professionals at the job.

It made no difference that you were an ex-lawyer or an ex-teacher, for a fellow who had worked on ships for six weeks was a "hoary-headed" veteran.

Mr Preu was at the shipyards when the race riot was staged in June of 1943. He agreed that the story was played down by the papers which stated that there was no one killed. He told it the way he saw it, saying that, "the cause was allowing Negroes to weld. The white workers objected and several of them protested at the office one morning. A crowd gathered and the riot ensued. Finally there were 30,000 workers fighting each other, and it was getting exceedingly rough when the authorities called the troops in."

When questioned about strikes, the professor said there were very few because the union wasn't very strong. "The few minor ones which occurred were for the purpose of getting a little rest from the constant labor day after day," he explained.

The only strike that occurred during his employment there was on his third day at work. The employees walked off because the company began charging them a five cent ferry toll to get to and from the island on which the shipyard was located.

When Mr Preu first started his wartime work he was a progress inspector in the department of production control. It was his duty to keep tab on all the welding done on the hulls. He was over a group of men who made specific statistics of the amount of overhead welding, vertical welding, and all the other types.

Later he superintended the work of the arc time checkers. This work came into being as a check-up on the efficiency of the welders. Because the workers were in the hull of the ship which is made up of intricate passageways, there was no way of checking the amount of labor done. In order to see if they could not remedy the wholesale loafing on the job, the company attached these meters, about the size of a cigar box, on each worker's machine They were read at the beginning and end of each shift. Another problem was to get them read swiftly so that no time would be lost between shifts.

Some of the workers were welding on the top of the ship about 90 feet from the ground and it was very difficult to get up there to read their meters. Mr Dreu said that they solved the problem by training a group of girls to literally be "human cats." They climbed around the mast and read the meters. "At times," Mr Dreu added, "there would be no foothold except a pole."

While on the subject of women workers, Mr Preu said a few over half of the 30,000 workers at the Mobile shipyards were women. They were paid the same wages as men and were generally favored because the company needed them badly.

According to the professor, the big excitement came when a ship was launched. Among the well-known people there for the occasions were Bob Hope, comedian, and Admiral Land.

Although Mobile was supposed to be the most crowded war city in the United States, Mr Preu said he didn't have as much trouble finding living quarters there as he did when he came to Tallahassee. This condition was partially explained by the fact that part of his family lived in Mobile.

When asked about the future of shipbuilding in postwar America, Mr Preu said he did not believe it would continue to any great extent. "There are already ship graveyards appearing all along the coast. However, I hope they do keep quite a few of the better built ones in running condition," he said.

"We'll Never Tell" Committee at Work

The sophomore hop's "We'll never tell' committee is functioning diligently, Georgia Jaeckel, chairman of sophomore hop, said Monday. It is composed of several sophomores who are looking for talented sophomores, but they'll never tell why—at least not until February 9 from 8:30 to 12 p m in the gymnasium. Meanwhile, they examine dancers in the Longmire game room and listen to people singing in showers. Roses Marcoux looked long for a sophomore with a high squeaky voice (she'd never tell why), finally drafted that of her roommate, Ida Lee Rentz.

The sophomores want many things for their dance: they want to be sure that the Gordon Johnston ten-piece band which promised to play for them is not going out of business with the camp: they want the science department to quit wondering why they will want to dim the lights, and give them the reostat; they want the two white benches on the Tri Delt lawn; most of all they want the letters they've written to Gainesville to bring a group of young men to this campus for a day.

New York City has more telephones than in all South America, Central America and the West Indies combined.

"Progress in Peace" Will Be Forum Topic

CGA to Sponsor Discussions About World Issues

A student forum entitled 'Progress in Peace Since V-J Day" will be held Wednesday evening at 8 p m in the auditorium of the Longmire building under sponsorship of the College Government Association. Issues concerning the Big Three, the United Nations Organization and occupational and relief policies will be discussed by four student speakers at that time.

Shirley Duggan will enumerate various issues that have been of chief consideration among the United States, Great Britain and Russia since peace has been declared. Developments concerning the United Nations Organization and the Bretton Woods agreement will be reviewed by Virginia Collins.

Also on the forum will be a discussion of Allied occupation policies in Germany and Japan by Barbara Wickham. The fourth phase of the panel will be a discussion by Carol Bradford Stephens on the UNRRA and relief areas in need

A committee to assist Rob Hill, who has charge of CGA forums, will be elected following panel discussion. This committee will consist of a senior, a junior and a sophomore.

Spanish Conference Will Be Held Here

A conference in the "Teaching of Spanish' will be held on the Florida State College campus February 8 and 9 according to a letter received by Dr Lucy Lester, acting head of the Modern Language department, from Thomas N Morgan of the State Department of Education.

Sponsors of this conference will be the Florida chapter of the American Association of Teachers of Spanish, the Inter-American Center of Florida, FSC, and the State Department of Education The Southeastern chapter of AATS in Miami is expected to participate, also, according to the same source.

Don Cossacks To Reappear On Saturday

Red Tickets to Be Honored For Third Performance Of Russian Chorus

Serge Jaroff Directs Group Ballads and Hymns

The third appearance of the Don Cossack Russian male chorus will be presented tomorrow night at 8:15 in the college auditorium. Artist Series' red tickets will be honored, and students not having the tickets can purchase them at half price in the college book store

This year's program includes folk songs, church hymns, and Russian war ballads.

One of their numbers, "Who Knows?" by Kakharoff-Shvedoff, is the story of a Russian girl and her bashful lover who sighed and said nothing. Once he sent her a letter composed only of dots, and somehow it melted her heart.

A more serious number, "Kama Song" by N Gogotsky, tells of the Kama river, which is a tributary of the Volga. It flows through a gloomy landscape, and this atmosphere is reflected in the melody.

"Parting" by C Shvedoff is a comic song about a young lad and his sweetheart who were returning to her home after an evening party. They are not successful in reaching their destination—it is impossible for them to say goodbye

Serge Jaroff, their leader, arranged one number entitled "Cossack Song of 1812." It praises the bravery, fighting spirit, and heroic deeds of the Cossacks during their wars.

"Recollections of Tchaikovsky," arranged by C Shvedoff, is a collection of lyrics. The first part tells of the hard work of the peasants, their dreams and hard fights for life and happiness. The second is of a military parade in town. The third is of the simple quiet life in the country. There are other numbers in this group.

Their first four selections are church hymns. They are "The Credo" by A Gretchanoff, "Cherubim" by A Kastalsky, "The First Psalm of David" by Kiero-Pechersky-Monastery, and "Last Prayer in the Liturgy" by a Tchesnokoff

Soph Hop Leaders Plan Refreshments

In reply to Sharpie's commentary about visions of thirsty Sophomore Hop dancers looking like marathoners, Georgia Jaeckel, Hop Chairman, said yesterday that plans had been made to serve refreshments to all guests at the dance, and that people who wish to leave the dance may do so in accordance with college dance regulations even though there are no provisions for a specified intermission time.

Polly Gage has been appointed chairman of the door checkers committee and Jane Bryson has been made chairman of the construction committee. Georgia also said that there are still places to be filled on the committees, and all sophomores interested are asked to contact her. Volunteers are needed to decorate for the dance Saturday morning, February 9

The sophomores have a new song composed by Jean Sharer, Judy Rhodes, and Martha Peacock especially for the Hop. It's to the tune of "Here's to us in the Blue and White."

Tickets are still on sale in lower Westcott from 10 till 1 o'clock each day

Eyman and DeGraff Go to Quincy Today

Dr R L Eyman, dean of the school of education and professor of education, and Dr Mark H DeGraff, professor of education, will attend a Gadsden County Teachers' meeting in Quincy today.

Dr DeGraff will discuss with the teachers the problem of the county program of testing. Dean Eyman will discuss plans for the three-weeks summer workshop for the county.

Dr Eyman returned Wednesday from a conference of county superintendents which he attended on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday of this week at the University of Florida.

The conference was concerned with the resources, use certification scholarships and debt services of the state said Dr Eyman.

THE DON COSSACK male chorus will reappear on the Florida State College campus tomorrow night at 8:15 in Westcott auditorium.

Zeta Phi Eta Presents Play

"Hans Brinker" Directed By Sara Norman

"Hans Brinker and the Silver Skates" will be presented tonight at 8:15 in the Little Theater, the play's director, Sara Norman, announced. Admission will be ten cents. The annual children's play is being presented by Zeta Phi Eta, honorary speech fraternity, instead of by the speech department this year, Sara said.

Dramatization of Hans Brinker and the Silver Skates, a book by Mary Mapes Dodge, was done by Dorothy Albert. The story is set in Amsterdam, Holland, in the year 1876. The Brinkers, a poor Dutch family, are handicapped because the father, Raff, has been an idiot ever since he was injured

Chemistry Teachers Attend Conference

McKinnell and Claybrook Are FSC Representatives

Miss Isabel McKinnell and Miss Mary Claybrooke of the department of chemistry at Florida State College, who attended the annual meeting of the Florida section of the American Chemical Society in Gainesville last Saturday, stated that they were gratified to see the largest attendance at one of these meetings since 1941. Miss McKinnell said that over a hundred Florida chemists and chemical engineers were present.

Walter J Murphy, who since the war's end has spent two months in Europe with the Chemical Warfare Service of the U S Army Intelligence Corps collecting scientific papers from laboratories in Germany, made the featured address at the meeting. Miss McKinnell reported that Mr Murphy's address told how the most important of these scientific documents will be photostated and microfilmed in order to facilitate their cataloging and filing in various depositories.

Mr Murphy told the delegation that Russia is making the scientific research field attractive to German scientists, Miss McKinnell said.

Anonymous Interview Presents Views of Average FSC Student

By JACKIE NEVERS

It's getting so that you can't even walk into the Sweet Shop without having someone leap over a salt shaker and greet you with an outstretched pencil. At least that's what the three girls who unsuspectingly entered the Sweet at 10 p m last Tuesday night think They happened to be the third set of three to come in, and before they could say "pecan pie a la mode," their anonymous interview had begun.

Misses Red Dress, Brown Coat, and Yellow Sweater (collectively speaking that's what they were wearing) sat down and fortified with a cup of coffee attempted to answer the questions being fired at them.

"Red" is a roly-poly sophomore with brown hair and a cheerful face. Her major is men and her minor English. She prefers a not-too-handsome male with interests similar to her own and an ability to converse intelligently. If possible his occupation should be writing.

"Brownie" is a rather tall, well-built person whose large brown eyes give her a perpetually surprised expression. A junior, she has chosen journalism as her life work, but wants to emphasize the life as long as she can. The ideal man to her is six feet tall, has black hair and blue eyes, and as she puts it "physique plus technique."

"Yellow," referring to her sweater, is of medium height, rather stocky and has short curly black hair. Majoring in physical education, she wants her man to be a perfect physical specimen, and versatile as well. Dentist, lawyer, or politician may apply for an interview.

Next to the opposite sex, food and good times rate the most attention. "Food" to all three is typified by a huge luscious steak and added short subjects from French fries to angel food cake. B C (brown coat to you) expressed a craving for some good coffee—strong enough to leave a rim around the cup. Yellow Sweater wouldn't complain if we were served ice tea every day or shrimp cocktail twice a day.

Canoeing on Lake Bradford in the moonlight with voices echoing across the lake is our junior's idea of the most enjoyable part of college. Red likes the after-light-flash bull sessions, especially the ones about controversial subjects. "Being with the crowd I like and doing anything is fun to me," adds our yellow sweater girl.

"We don't have an honor system! Everything we do is watched

Alumnae Secretary Has Office Records Of 7500 Graduates

The function of the Alumnae office is to carry on the work of the Alumnae Association which is to promote the interest of Florida State College and to maintain among the graduates a spirit of cooperation and service, according to Miss Louise Gehan, alumnae secretary.

Records of every graduate of the school including married name, address, occupation, etc, are up-to-date in the office. A recent inventory shows that at present 7,500 graduates of FSC are recorded in the office.

Another part of the work of this office is to carry on a constant correspondence with graduates, to keep up the records, to obtain news for the quarterly issue of the Alumnae Bulletin, and to carry on the committee work of the Alumnae Association. This Alumnae Bulletin which is sent to all alumnae, is published quarterly by the secretary and her assistants. Mrs Marian Phillips Berry, Nancy Koelliker, and Letitia Croom.

The students who are going to Rollins are: Betty M Lee, Carolyn Smith, Laura Lee Butler, Robin Lawson, Ann Ranson, Margaret Cockrell, Marvis Core, Anne Singleton, Doris Hill, Wilna Humphrey, Jo Neil Segree, Willardeen Pulliam, Margaret Clayton, and Betty Ruth Goode.

Youth Rally Begins Here Next Weekend

Five Speakers to Attend Three-Day Conference On Religion

Christian Citizenship Today Is Theme of Meeting

Next week-end religious and educational leaders, many of whom have recently returned from devastated war areas, will present various aspects of the problem of "Christian Citizenship for Today's World," central theme of the FSC Youth Conference.

Three full days, Friday, Saturday, and Sunday will be devoted to seminars, forums, and discussions in which students of the University of Florida will participate with FSC girls. Peggy Lu Thomas and Martha Jane Brown are co-chairmen of the conference and Joyce Petty is acting as publicity chairman.

Among the visiting speakers who will inform Florida students of the role of a Christian in the post-war world are Mr Raymond H Reese, advisor to the Christian Youth Council of Greater Miami; Dr Winburn T Thomas, who for seven years prior to the war was engaged in social and religious work in Japan; Mr Francis W Brush, pastor of the Central Student Church in Manila; and Anauta, an Eskimo woman from Baffin Island.

At 8:15 Friday night, Martha Jane Brown will formally open the conference. Her welcome will

Senior Elections

Catherine Gallagher and Betty Trigg Thompson will be opponents in the final ballots, which are to be held Monday morning, to choose a senior representative to Senate, according to returns from the primary held yesterday.

Other candidates participating in the elections were Ruby Plant and Jean Gifford Slay.

Martha Jane Brown, president of the senior class, asks that all seniors be sure to vote in the finals Monday. Booths will again be in lower Westcott.

Notice to Seniors

Placement registration for seniors will be continued beginning January 28. Those not registered before Christmas and not receiving an appointment for conference are asked to report to the Personnel Office not later than January 30.

Radio Class Makes Debut

Workshop Presents Initial Production on Incas

Making its debut last night the Radio Workshop, a production of the Radio Speech Class of Florida State College, broadcast the first in a series of programs concerning subjects of interest related to the college.

The premier performance was a dramatization of Inca culture as depicted in the Peruvian collection now on display in the Longmire Building.

Mr Sidney Snow, director of the college Inca museum, assumed the leading role. As the visitors attended the exhibit Mr Snow related the history of the Inca nation. As his story progressed the audience was carried to the Peru of many years ago when Pizarro and his followers conquered the Incas, slew their king and obtained for themselves the wealth of the Peruvian civilization.

The Workshop, under the direction of Miss Mary Tom Colones, instructor in speech, will be presented each Thursday night at 9:15 for the purpose of promoting student interest in exhibits on campus of other countries.

The cast for last night's broadcast included Mr Snow; Colonel H D Mendenhall, resident engineer, who portrayed the Inca chieftan; Florence Bartleson, narrator; and Phyllis Cole, Betty Usher, Ruth Kennedy, and Jean O'Steen, visitors to the museum.

Service to Be Held For Dr B M Briley

FSC Economics Professor Dies In Daytona Beach Hospital

Miss Beulah Briley, former head of the department of economics and commerce at Florida State College, died Sunday afternoon at Ridgewood hospital in Daytona Beach where she was recuperating from a nervous collapse of several months ago. Funeral services will be conducted at the Briley home in Ames, Iowa, Sunday afternoon.

A brief memorial service will be held on campus Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock in the Augusta Conradi Theater with Dr Claude M Haynes, minister of the Trinity Methodist Church, officiating.

Dr Doak S Campbell, president of FSC, will preside over the service, which was planned by a committee of three faculty members: Dr Margie Burks, chairman, Dr P F Finner, and Dr Venila L Shores. A short address in appreciation of Miss Briley is to be given by Miss Sadie Young, and instrumental music will be furnished by Mr O F Sellers and Miss Mary Winslow. The service will be open to faculty, students and townspeople.

Dr Briley had been a member of the FSC faculty since 1927, when she came here from North Dakota State Teacher's College. She has also served on the faculty at the University of Iowa and

Parker Gives Talk At Council Meeting

Miss Daisy Parker, instructor in political science, spoke on "History and Traditions" of Florida State College at a Sophomore Council meeting last Thursday evening in the auditorium of the Longmire building.

Plans for spending the weekend of February 16 at camp were formulated and discussed at the meeting to Jo Ann Long, chairman of Sophomore Council. All active members are given the opportunity to sign up this week, through next Monday, for the trip to camp.

The "old" or inactive upperclassmen members may sign up after Monday for participation in the week-end camp trip, and juniors will be given preference over seniors. Definite plans were made at the meeting for a dinner at camp on Sunday, February 17, to which all girls who belong, or have belonged in the past, to the Sophomore Council organization will be asked.

Freshman Elections Climaxed

Tuttle Wins Presidency After Traditional Campaigning

Looby Elected Vice-President Over Nightingale

Climaxing a week of poster-making and campaigning, Pauline Tuttle, new president of the freshman class, defeated Ann Seaward in the final elections held Wednesday in the junior counselors' rooms.

Helen Looby was elected vice-president over Jane Nightingale; Mary Ann Berry, secretary over Faith Adams; Virginia Goodell, treasurer over Rovena Hutchins; Mary Calley, athletic manager over Lucille Harding, and Patricia Yates, parliamentarian over Laura Bentley.

Those chosen to represent their class in Senate are Virginia Anthony, Winifred Anthony, Ann Carter, Katherine Cooper, and Jean Furman. Their opponents in the finals were Phyllis DeKalb, Catherine Gallagher, Joan Grimsley, Valda Mock, and Esther Rasmussen.

The results of the elections were announced at a freshman class meeting held at 2 Thursday. Lois Meriwether, chairman of the freshman elections committee, introduced the winners to the class.

Other candidates entered in the primaries were: president: Kathleen Chaires, Rosemary Fleming, Betty Jean Phillips, Gwendolyn

Speech Teacher Is Faculty Addition

Dingwell Replaces Wood As Professor of Theater Arts

Joining the Florida State College faculty this week is Captain W L Dingwell, succeeding Miss Mary D Wood, assistant professor of speech, who recently resigned.

The new professor received his A B degree from Drake University, Iowa, and an MFA degree from Yale University. He served as a captain in the 75th Infantry Division of the United States Army. While overseas as a company commander in 1944 he was assistant director of Shrivenham, an American university in England. Captain Dingwell expects to receive his discharge sometime in February.

Captain Dingwell formerly directed dramatic classes at the University of Rochester, New York, and is the author of "The Handbook Annual of the Theater."

The classes instructed at FSC by Captain Dingwell deal entirely with theater work and include acting, production, and the history of the theater.

Two additional positions have been filled in the psychology and art departments, but it has been requested that their names be withheld until the meeting of the Board of Control sometime in February.

Westcott Tower Chimes Return After Two Months of Silence

By JUNE GRINDSTAFF

Students of Florida State College no longer have a legitimate excuse for arriving late to classes, for the Westcott Tower chimes are once more in working order. Every 30 minutes their deep throaty tones remind us of the passage of time.

Until this past week the chimes had neither played nor tolled the hours for nearly two months, because there was a maladjustment in the time coordination with the master clock, which the college electricians were unable to correct until such time as certain necessary materials were again made available. Although students are no longer deprived of the ringing of the chimes, the special music which they have brought in the past will not be enjoyed until further adjustment has been made.

Although the chimes are a fairly recent addition to our campus many students feel that they are like the other eternal traditions of Florida State College. They seem to have always been here, and they probably always will be—except at such times as their mechanical adjustment goes on the blink.

The classes of 1934 and 1938 made the installation of the chimes possible by their contributions to a fund that was set aside for their purchase. The chimes were first installed in the tower of the library, where it was discovered that students were too much aware of their presence for study purposes. It was in 1941 that they were transferred to the Tower Organ Studio on the fourth floor of Westcott. Originally the chimes were adjusted to sound every 15 minutes, but as Dr Raymond Bellamy, professor of sociology, has been quoted as saying, the regularity of the chimes woke up his classes too often.

In addition to chiming the hours away, the chimes can be used to broadcast music programs. Organ music, Christmas carols, Easter music, recordings, and many other types of music have been broadcast on special occasions. Electrically operated, it is possible to hook the chimes up to a microphone which transmits any sound made over it to the whole campus. The music heard by students over the chimes broadcasting system is made possible through the combined efforts of Mr Herbert D Mendenhall, resident engineer, Mrs Ramona C Beard, associate professor of organ, piano, and theory, and the electric department.

Now that the chimes are ring-

Campaign Ladder May Provide Means For Elopements

Ladder, ladder, on the wall, how can you spare the time to lean there at all? It's been for almost two weeks now, and curiosity finally got the best of me. Room 113 Bryan held the answer to this mystery, I found, and its inmates were not surprised at my visit. "People have been asking about it all week," said Clarissa Day, "and I just tell them that I'm planning to elope some night."

But the truth is, that the ladder was used by candidates, Rio Olsen and Rosemary Fleming to hang a sign in their campaign for freshmen elections. Two junior counselors "just picked it up somewhere and forgot to take it back." Fine example to freshmen!

And so it has remained ever since. Rio, Rosemary, and Clarissa have become accustomed to having strange heads popping in the window at all hours. "They always say, 'Aren't you surprised or boo'," the three complained. I felt it my duty to point out the numerous advantages to having a ladder by one's window, but to no avail. It seems that the screen won't open.

Campus Drive Nears Close

Contributions of Clothing Asked for Collection

Helping to relieve Europe's critical clothing shortage, the International Relations Club is supporting the United National Clothing Collection which is sponsored by the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration. A drive on the campus began last Monday and will end Sunday, the day after tomorrow.

"We do want all warm clothing, leather shoes, cotton dresses, and things like that," said Doris Hill, chairman of the drive, "though we cannot use bathing suits, sandles, evening dresses, hats, or pocket books."

Boxes in which to leave clothing have been placed in each dormitory and off-campus house. The local depot is room 218 Landis, according to Doris, who says it is the only room on campus that is available. It can be used as it belongs to two students who are interning this quarter.

Sophomore Council and YWCA have volunteered to help with the bundling, sorting, and tying-up precedures at the end of the week.

The people working on the drive in the various dormitories are Doris Hill, Landis; Betty Hill and Alice Cromartie, Gilchrist; Bobbie Perkins, Broward; Ann Parker, Bryan; Betty Loy, Jennie Murphree; Jean Ann Daly, Reynolds; Gertrude Franke, Village; Barbara Wickham, sorority houses; Anne MacInnes Magnolia; Mona Ferguson, off-campus houses.

Last year the clothing collected on campus was picked up by the Tallahassee drive and sent on as a part of the city's contribution, Doris says.

Jerome Davis To Make Talk At 8 Tonight

"Japan, Defeat and After" Is Topic of Address In Auditorium

Gilchrist Formal Reception To Honor Ex-Professor

Dr Jerome Davis, ex-teacher of philanthropy at Yale Divinity School and more recently a European correspondent for American newspapers, will speak on "Japan in Defeat and After" tonight at 8 o'clock in Westcott auditorium.

Dr Davis was born in Japan, the son of an American missionary, and lived there for 12 years. His last visit to that country was in 1935 when he toured the world lecturing in the universities and conferring with the high governmental leaders.

After the address in the auditorium, Dr Davis will attend a formal reception in the parlor of Gilchrist hall at which residents of that hall will be given the opportunity to meet him.

The speaker is recognized as an authority on several subjects. He has been in Russia and Europe during the war working as a correspondent for newspaper syndicates, and has written several books and articles on his experiences and observances there.

His dismissal, after 13 years of service, from Yale Divinity School attracted the attention of newspaper and magazine readers in 1937. He appealed for a statement of the reasons for his dismissal, but according to an investigation made by the National Educational Association committee on Tenure, he was refused a hearing for that purpose.

The professor claimed that he was being dismissed because of his political and economic beliefs, and the investigation conducted by the American Association of University Professors stated that "the reasons given by the university for dismissal were not valid." All three investigations made of the case failed to disprove Dr Davis' statement.

Among the reasons given by the university officials for his dismissal was that he was neither a scholar nor a teacher. However, the investigators found that his classes were rated above average by 75 per cent of his students and all of them rated them at least average. Also published in the AAUP report was the fact that students from Canada and the United States voted one of his classes as the most valuable class offered at Yale for the training of ministers.

Said the Christian Century of the case, "In a school that receives such large private donations as $10,000,000, it is to be expected that the author of such a book as Capitalism and Its Culture would not be appreciated on its faculty." The magazine added a quote from the AAUP investigation saying that "the obligation of the University could not be discharged by final appointment for one year."

School and Society published a summary of the AAUP report which contended that "termination at so late a date (after 13 years of service) of Dr Davis' position was a violation of the principles of academic tenure, which must be maintained if freedom of expression of opinion. . . be a reality for members of the facilities of our institutions of higher learning." The report of the NEA committee agreed with that of the AAUP and further recommended that Dr Davis be restored to his former position as associate professor of practical philanthropy.

Bill Still Pending

The measure allowing for light cuts to be placed on the honor system has been sent to Executive Council, stated Ann Carolyn Allison, president of College Government Association.

The bill is still in process, but no action can be taken until another meeting can be held. No date has been set for this meeting because Miss Olivia N Dorman is in Jacksonville due to the illness of her mother.

Ann Carolyn also announced that regular convocation will be held on Tuesday evening, and Senate will meet at its scheduled time at 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

SPIRIT OF THE WEEK

22—I just remembered where I left my gum!

• WHAT CAN YOU SPARE?

College girls have hopes of soon getting nylons and crisp bright cottons again . . . The war weary people of Europe have hopes of soon getting something—anything—warm to put on their backs and shelter them from cold and disease.

It has been said that when Christian people sit down to a good meal they sometimes think of the people in other parts of the world who are starving. But, when we don our sequin covered crepes, soft furs, or even smart "Chesterfields" how often do we think of those who are without sufficient clothing for warmth?

It is admirable to think of those less fortunate than ourselves, but now we have an opportunity to do something for them. There are boxes in each of the dormitories and off-campus houses in which students are asked to place usable, clean, warm clothing as contributions to the United Nations National Clothing Collection which is being sponsored by the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration and conducted on campus by the International Relations Club. It is asked that no evening dresses, hats, pocket books, bathing suits, or sandals be contributed as the people to whom the articles go will have little use for such luxuries.

During this drive students are not asked to give up a coke or a movie so that they may contribute. Even that is not necessary. Each student is only asked to look through her closet and pick out those wearing articles which have been discarded or neglected for something newer. It is those few pieces which each college girl will hardly miss that may mean salvation from a fatal disease to a girl in Europe.

In this drive, as in any other, success depends on the contribution of each individual. Individuals in Europe are suffering the after effects of war—spared individuals in this country, on this campus, can help them. Will students here negligently think their contribution won't be missed, or will each student want to add her bit to show how glad she is to be able to share her comparative wealth with those less fortunate?

• SINE QUA NON

Thoughtful student-faculty discussions about vital issues and significant ideas are the sine qua non (without which there is nothing) of education.

Discussions of this kind have been sadly neglected on this campus for a long time. For this reason it is especially disappointing that the first "forum" sponsored by the College Government Association this year was uninspiring for the thinking individuals.

Let it be understood that we think the four students, who spoke on the topic "Progress in Peace Since V-J Day," did an excellent job of research and delivery. Each had a certain phase of the general subject to discuss, each as far as we know, exhausted the supply of reading material on their respective topics. Facts were at their disposal and the small audience listened, but when the hour terminated and the chairman asked for questions there reigned a silence—a stagnant silence.

Silence had to reign. The audience had just finished listening to facts upon which no opinions or conclusions were drawn. Dorothy Thompson had numerous facts at her disposal, but she supplemented lucrative opinions and personal conclusions.

We believe facts alone are not enough for a beneficial, thought-provoking discussion. True, they are necessary as a foundation for the opinions expressed.

The speakers, unknowingly, further avoided any controversy by enumerating entirely different series of events. By doing this it was utterly impossible to create any differences of opinion, thereby automatically dulling the listening group.

Varied opinions based upon facts, such as the facts about the strikes in the United States, have meaning and educational value. By educational value we mean teaching individuals to understand and to cope with situations with which they may be confronted.

The CGA is planning reading groups, small groups of students who read and discuss the same magazine and keep a "diary" of their proceedings. We hope the students who enter into this plan will record ideas in their "diaries" which will make future forums more successful. The facts themselves can be found in the magazines; it is our job to think about them.

• A WORTHY CAUSE

Making its first appeal for money to benefit the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis since the death of its founder, Franklin D Roosevelt, the March of Dimes arrived on campus last week. Financial assistance is needed to secure technicians and special treatment for over 13,000 infantile paralysis cases which occurred during 1945.

This brings a poem to mind:

> "Does it matter losing your leg?
> For people will always be kind,
> And you needn't show that you mind
> When the others come in from hunting
> To gobble their muffins and eggs."

We have muffins in the dining hall every morning. Can you spare a dime?

• OFFICES, NOT OFFICERS

Hand painted signs huff the dormitory walls, figured boards are suspended from strings across the arcades, and favors are given to passing students—all for freshmen elections. Counsellors urge the underclassmen to vote on certain days, sororities sponsor their pledges, and friendly clans stick together in their voting. Competition is high and interesting and loud screams of praise and exclamation are heard all over the halls in congratulations to the winner of the office. The freshman is on her way almost at once towards sophomore council, other class offices, and perhaps special recognition in her senior year.

But what happens the sophomore year? The freshman winner finds fewer opponents on the ballot sheet, less voters per class members, and very little congratulatory praise. She accepts the absence of the signs but is a little reluctant in finding her success less praiseworthy as the year before.

Her junior year, if she is still running, is practically a run-over. She has two opponents, whose combined votes total only a bare majority, and she wins with a vote victory. She carries out her routine duties, receives her routine recognition and honor, and decides to run again the next year.

By her senior year she finds her name the only one listed on the ballot. It seems she is either the only one running or the only one suited for the position. She accepts the latter explanation and settles down with the duties of her senior office.

But in the interim what happened to the signs? Where did the urging councelors go, and why aren't there any handshakes offered the office winner in her junior and senior years? Why do people know her name but don't know her face? Is she just a mere name that appears on each year's ballot and nothing else to her careless voting classmates?

In actuality the girls who painted the signs for their political minded classmates and supported their friends in elections have settled down into dull indifference. They have seen the radical defeated time after time, the liberal has stopped running or become conservative, and the conservative run and win every time.

The presidents of the classes still hold meetings, smile in their annual pictures, get tapped for Eastern and Spirogyra, and carry out the duties that are assigned—she sponsors an annual hop, a drive, and attends special teas and receptions. The chairman of judiciary to all appearances of the voter still makes slow solemn speeches in convocation and always sees that detailed typed case histories are put on the bulletin board. Senate members still answer the roll call, hear an opposing viewpoint and vote for the one they think will have the best chance of going by unnoticed. The president of CGA spends hours a day doing detailed work, accepting honors, acknowledging invitations, planning convocation, contacting speakers, and begging fellow students to do odd jobs. The other CGA officers are deciding whether to have 50 or 60 pages in the next year's Gold Book, checking budgets, and making appointments with the faculty committee on student affairs.

Each office holder works hard and spends a great deal of time and effort in carrying out her specified duties. She believes, and rightfully so, that she is rendering service to her school and to her supporting classmates. Yet she is almost immediately confronted with numerous responsibilities and few opportunities. She can go only so far in her leadership and no further. In many cases she tries to eliminate trite rules and regulations, dismiss reactionary social mores, and introduce new plans and suggestions. She finds herself a link in a chain only, with the faculty committee and its final decision the clasp that holds and binds.

And that is where the hitch is: the reason for the lack of voting spirit, lack of voters, and lack of those being voted on. Upper classmen don't object to the officers but the offices for they soon see how the various positions on the campus are merely routine jobs without pay." Each officer carries out her duty as specified in the Gold Book and does no more. Reading reports, checking budgets, stating facts in a judiciary report are all meticulous duties and can be carried out by any average careful student. Anything a senator may suggest that is a change or somewhat new is either stifled in the senate voting itself or shelves somewhere along the proper channels. All serious judiciary decisions are subject to a faculty committee, all dance chairmen subject their plans to this committee. No final decision rests with the student officer, no vital issue, or anything that involves important thinking or action.

So the freshmen candidate booster becomes a disinterested sophomore, an indifferent junior, and finally a non-voting senior. She accepts any candidate, knowing most any student can fill the position if she is willing to give the time and effort. She stops looking for the healthy liberal, the natural leader, or the capable office-holder and votes only for the one who runs and if there is a choice on the ballot she votes for the one she's either seen the most of on the stage or heard her name more in the club membership list. Or in most cases she doesn't vote at all.

The Students Speak...

By PAULETTE BLANK

The Artist Series, a big campus feature which brings to Florida State College artists in various cultural fields, is widely discussed both pro and con. This week the students express their opinions on what they think the Artist Series should bring to the campus.

"It seems to me that it would be very nice to have some modern stage plays since opportunity to see anything of this kind this side of New York is definitely limited."

Anita Hebble, freshman.

"I'd like to see acting by a professional group—'Romeo and Juliet' on the ball—and also more lecturers like Dorothy Thompson and dance groups like Mia Slavenska."

"Not being the partial type, I like to see a good variety presented on the Artist Series. So far this year I've enjoyed everything."

Sibyl Colegrove, freshman.

"I'm all in favor of more well-known speakers on various subjects. In the past the speakers have been authorities on world events. Why not have some scientific lecturers?

Leila Browning, freshman.

"Drama! More drama, is my cry. In the past we have had very little of this; therefore, a little more would probably prove very stimulating."

Louise Rabb, sophomore.

"I'm all for some concerts and bands—something not too classical. In other words a good variety is what we need."

Jane Talbot, junior.

"More ballerinas and dancing troups would add color and action and would probably interest everybody."

"I think it would be wise to have as wide a variety as possible, for in this way the students will be introduced to a wide field of interests."

Ginger Hatton, sophomore.

"When we get a new auditorium with some good acoustics, let's have some plays."

Marianne Jones, junior.

"More lecturers like Vincent Sheean and Dorothy Thompson would suit me fine"

Dot Fouts, sophomore.

"I'd like to see the Artist Series bring Lin Yu Tang, Jeanette MacDonald, Nelson Eddy, and a return visit from Alec Templeton would also be nice."

Ferne Quinn, sophomore.

"Some operas would definitely please me."

Lola Rose, junior.

"I personally would like to have Rise Stephens appear here. It seems to me that FSC would be able to book more big name artists than we have had."

Madge Pilcher, sophomore.

From Me To Y'all

HARPIE

Sharpie sends her stand-in this week. All of her avid readers will regret to know that she has taken to her bed (and not her storm shelter) in illness, but being the hale and hearty character that she is, contrary to many opinions of her, she is making a fast recovery.

Meanwhile let me introduce myself before I set about giving you the desired answers to all your many problems. Just call me "Harpie." I will not go into lengthy details about my qualificatons as a consultant, but let it be said that anyone who can stand-in for Sharpie is well equipped. Perhaps, someday I, too, may have an "S" precede my name.

But on to the bulging mail bags. . . .

From just one gander at the situation even Lil' Abner could see that the frosh are far from happy this week. To pick at random, one freshman intent upon "quelling controversy" wants the Flambeau, in particular, and other upperclassmen, in general, to stop grandmothering them with a supercilious air. She says, and we quote: "What makes an upperclassman deign to refer to a freshman as a cupie-doll (sic) whose brain has not yet matured when it comes to a matter such as the campaign we are now in the midst of?" Well, freshmen, if all the upstir was caused by the editorial in last week's gazette, I hasten to tell you 'twas misinterpretation of the printed matter that caused it all. Four years experience in reading Flambeau editorials has given me much insight and Harpie is sure that the poisoned pen was directed toward what another freshman in an-othr letter terms the "EXULTED (sic) EGOTISTS" that are the upperclass politicos. Feel better, freshmen, and let those abused take up the fight.

Well, let us pass on, (no, no, not out, little chickens). This letter comes from a character who signs herself "Phosphorescent." (Wait while we turn off the light and watch her letter glow in the dark. It makes us happy. It's just the little things in life that make us happy.) But to continue, "Phosphorescent" wonders if there's a dying chance that the faculty will act favorably upon the recommendation from Student Senate that students be allowed to use their lights at their own discretion.

All we can say, "Phosphorescent," bless your heart, is that you may feel free to "glow" on hoping and perhaps the faculty will see the light.

It came to our attention, as many things do, that a friend of Dr Campbell wrote a note to him expressing his pleasure in seeing a movie short of the "Porpoise Club" of FSC. Maybe you can help me a little. Can you explain just what the "Porpoise" of this misnomer is? Keep your Tarp on, swimmers . . . no offense meant.

Sharpie would like to have it noted that she highly approves Soph Hop committee members' decision to serve refreshments to all the guests. After all, FSC isn't the Sahara Desert. I said, AFTER ALL.

Please don't hold this column against Sharpie (unflex that bicep!) She will be back next week

Editor's Note: Webster says to tell you all that "sic" is used in a quotation within brackets in order to call attention to the fact that the quotation is literally given, though containing an ingrammaticism or misstatement: as, whom (sic) do men say that I am?

Freshman Clinic Is Conducted by Preu

The freshman English clinic under the direction of Mr J A Preu, assistant professor of English, has held its first two meetings

"The course is to offer practice in everyday speech needs and is not an oratory or elocution course. Its purpose is to give poise and self-confidence in extemporaneous speaking," Mr Preu said. The course is open to any freshman who feels that she needs help in oral English.

This voluntary clinic is divided into two sections, one meeting Monday and Wednesday at 10 o'clock in the morning and the other on Tuesday and Thursday at 3 o'clock in the afternoon in 302 Westcott, according to Mr Preu.

Krentzman Studies School Libraries

Miss Sara M Krentzman, demonstration school librarian and library consultant for the State Department of Education, left Tuesday for a ten-day trip through the state. During this trip she will hold consultations with principals, supervisors and school librarians. She will return on February 9.

Miss Krentzman is making this trip in an effort to help local schools develop adequate libraries for the elementary and high school grades. She will hold consultations in Jacksonville, Winter Haven, Kissimmee, Leesburg, Palatka, Fernandina and Stewart.

She was on leave of absence last year studying in the field of library science at Columbia University. She was working under a fellowship which was granted by the General Education Board.

"Miss Krentzman is considered to be outstanding in the library field in the South," said Dr R L Goulding, principal of the demonstration school.

Class Hears Talk

Miss Ann Aab, Girl Scout executive in Tallahassee, spoke to the English government class Tuesday afternoon in the Longmire clubroom on the subject "Wartime England".

Flambeau Poll

The results of the Flambeau poll which was conducted last Tuesday and Wednesday to determine the preferences of the student body and the members of the faculty as to the quarter or semester system will be announced in next week's issue. At press time the returns had not been fully compiled and tabulated.

In This Our Time

By SHIRLEY RODGERS

A Home Front View

Labor and management have extended their battle lines along several different fronts this week. The threatened steel and meat-packing walk-outs become realities; the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers prepare to take strike votes; General Motors employees go into their ninth week of striking; electrical workers are still out; and the possibility looms of industrial shut-downs throughout the nation as the steel tie-up forces numerous coal pits to close.

Meat-Packing

The nation's eyes and stomachs look for a quick conclusion of the meat-packers walkout as announcement comes from the President that government seizure of the plants will be effected Saturday. Seizure and operation of the plants will be done by the Department of Agriculture with the aid of the War Department if it becomes necessary.

Union reaction to this announcement brought forth a proclamation from the A F of L Meat Cutters and Butchers Union ordering its 70,000 members to return to work Saturday as "loyal Americans." No pledge has been received as yet from the 193,000 CIO strikers that they would return to work, and officials of the union refuse to commit themselves. If the CIO fails to order its members back on the job, the question of one union crossing the other's picket lines seems likely to arise. Meanwhile, fact-finding hearings continue.

Railroad Dififculties

Chairmen of two railroad brotherhoods are scheduled to meet in Cleveland February 1 to discuss the possibility of a strike. A F Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, announced Wednesday that the ballots were being prepared for a poll of that organization's 215,000 members. The meeting of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, under the leadership of grand chief engineer Alvanley Johnston, may authorize a strike vote of 78,000 engineers.

The two issues in the dispute between the unions and the railroads concern a proposed 25 per cent increase in wages and changes in the operating regulations to improve working conditions.

Both heads predicted that in the case of an affirmative strike vote, which is practically inevitable, it would only be a matter of three and a half weeks before the nation's transportation lines were cut.

No Luck!

Presiden Truman's efforts on behalf of the steel industry were of no avail as steel plants in 29 states closed down Monday, and approximately 750,000 CIO Steel Workers went out on strike. The union's refusal to consider anything less than Truman's proposal of 18 1-2 cents per hour and industry's refusal to offer any higher than 15 cents increase per hour has caused a deadlock with little sign of immediate solution.

Philip Murray, president of the United Steel Workers, charged American big business with attempting "to exact unconditional surrender from the American people and the United States Government" in a combined press conference and radio broadcast Monday night. He accused the steel, automobile, and electrical industries of joining in "an evil conspiracy."

Repercussions from the steel walkout have already been shown in the necessary shut-downs of several coal mines and more shut-downs are expected in the near future.

Minor Victory

Labor chalked up one victory this week when Henry J Kaiser contracted with the United Steel Workers to raise wages 18½ cents per hour in his Fontana, California, mill. An agreement was also reached between the United Auto Workers in the Kaiser-Frazer auto plant at Willow Run, Michigan.

Long-Winded

For the first time in its history, Congress received a joint budget and "state of the nation" report this week from the president. Mr Truman submitted them together because "the budgetary program and the general program of the government are actually inseparable."

He devotes the greater part of his message to a discussion of the economic conditions on the home front and what must be done if the nation is to avoid inflation or deflation. "The outlook for business is good, and it is likely to continue to be good, provided we control inflation and achieve peace in management-labor relations," stated the president.

He said that the future must be planned on a "full employment economy" and repeated his demand of a few weeks ago for congressional action on bills already introduced. The bills to which he referred were his request for authority to create fact-finding boards, full employment and expanded unemployment compensation bills, universal training program, proposed unification of the armed forces, and other measures. Truman also urged earliest possible action on continuation of food subsidies, higher minimum wages, expanded social security, health aid, and aid to education.

Truman also recommended statehood for Hawaii and Alaska and United States aid in Philippine economic rehabilitation.

The budget report showed an estimated 25 billion dollar decrease in the national debt. This is the first time since 1930 that a decrease has been shown. The sale of savings bonds will continue according to the president's report and on the matter of taxes he declared, "this is not the time for tax reduction."

Or Forever Hold Your Peace

To any ill-wishing upperclassman (In care of the Florida Flambeau)—

I don't want to get into hot water over such an issue as this, but when any controversy arises it should be quelled. What makes an upperclassman deign to refer to a freshman as a cupie-doll whose brain has not yet matured when it comes to a matter such as the campaign we are now in the midst of? Freshmen are, and I know it, new at these jobs, but where do we find any assistance in the learned council of the sophomore, junior or senior? You folks must have carried on similar hoaxes, or did you have a guiding hand to tell you not to make fools of yourselves when going out for responsible positions?

We do need help in learning how, but more than this, we need not this supercilious attitude of grandmothering, but a relationship akin to friendship, where one can help another without being a burden.—We don't feel slighted, we're just burning up!

Sincerely,
PHYLLIS DeKALB

P. S.: No hard feelings.

Flunkies Assist In Clothing Drive

The Freshman Flunkies poster committee has recently been engaged in setting out notices for the International Relations Committee clothing drive on the campus, according to Pat Dillard, president of the Freshman Flunkies. Laura Simpson is chairman of this committee.

The work of the Freshman Flunkies is of wide variety The typing committee, under the leadership of Fran Ewart, chairman, gets out senate notices from time to time. Last quarter it worked on the Odd Demonstration script. The job of distributing convocation notices and running College Government Association errands is accomplished by the miscellaneous committee, Jane Nightingale chairman. These are only a few of the many duties of the Freshman Flunkies.

be followed by a faculty roundtable discussion of "The Problems of Christian World Citizenship" with Dr Thomas acting as mentor.

Included on the Saturday morning program of forums and seminars are "Facing World Problems" by Mr Reese; "Christianity's Prospects in the Far East" by Dr Brush; and "Can We Live With Japan?" by Dr Thomas.

Saturday afternoon, Anauta, who is disillusioned about what she calls "America's so-called Christianity," will be featured. Anauta, who has been puzzled by the complexity of the "American Way of Life," will appear in Westcott auditorium.

Saturday afternoon seminars from 3:15 to 5 o'clock will include a student address by Mrs Martha Jean Leath on "Basis for Interracial Understanding." Mr Brush will speak on "Personal Religious Living"; Mr Reese, on "Practical Approaches in Florida"; and Dr Thomas, on "How to Choose a Vocation."

According to the co-chairman of the conference, these speakers are well qualified to discuss the above subjects, for many of them have worked for years with young people's associations all over the country.

A dinner in the faculty dining hall will be served at 6:30 for the visiting speakers and students who pay the one dollar fee to attend the various seminars.

At 8 o'clock Saturday night in the Augusta Conradi theatre, the Drama Group of the Youth Conference headed by Sarah Lewis will present "Ba Thane."

Sunday morning at 8:30 there will be a student panel discussion on "Where Do We Go From Here?" led by Dr Thomas.

At 11 o'clock Sunday morning in Westcott auditorium, Dr Brush will lead a student worship service. This sermon will bring the Youth Conference to its conclusion.

Students desiring to attend the conference, seminars, and banquet must pay a dollar registration fee at Ruge Hall next Friday afternoon between the hours of 2 and 5 o'clock.

nae and is at their service at all times.

One of the duties of the alumnae secretary is to represent the Alumnae Association to the student body, faculty and administration. This is done through attendance at official college functions through membership on college committees and through formal and informal discussions with the personnel of the college.

This office of the Alumnae Association is located on the main floor of the Longmire Building. The office is divided into three rooms; a recepton room followed by the office of Miss Gehan and the back room used for records.

"Major" Upset!

Cr-r-ra-a-sh! Bang! Bump! Then, into the shocked silence of the Sweet Shoppers, "Hello," twinkled the dark-haired major from his very awkward position, piled up in a corner beneath chairs and tables and surrounded by broken dishes.

To the casual onlooker, he might be trying to portray "The Face on the Barroom Floor," but those know better who saw him teeter backwards uncertainly in his chair, then make a wild grab for the dish-laden table, which promptly obliged by ditching the dishes and joining the general melee. The only casualty was perhaps a cleaning bill—the mayonnaise went astray.

ferent idea of this governmental system from the American interpretation. Also, misunderstandings of the Potsdam agreement have brought on strained relations between the nations.

The Moscow conference brought about certain measures of conciliation and compromise, Shirley declared, among them an agreement on the disposal of atomic power, a formula for drafting peace treaties, and adoption of new measures for meeting the Far Eastern situation.

Shirley stated that the security of Big Three relations will be of supreme importance; therefore, she said, they should try to cooperate and to form international policies rather than to support the unilateral power policy.

Reporting on the progress made by the United Nations Organization, Virginia Collins said that UNO has received three problems of international differences Syria and Lebanon have advanced a protest that English and French troops are interfering in her internal affairs. Iran has charged Russia with intervening in her domestic affairs by aiding dissenting elements in Iran. Russia has agreed to remove her troops. Also, Russia has accused Britain of participating inadvisably in military actions in Java and Greece.

Virginia then outlined and explained the structure of the Bretton Woods agreement, and the plan of the economic basis of peace, and discussed the International bank and the International Monetary Fund.

Barbara Wickham spoke next on occupational theories under the Potsdam agreement regarding Germany and Japan. It specifies uniform treatment of the defeated peoples in all zones, disarmament and control of industry, reconstruction of German politics to help her rule herself, prosecution of war criminals, construction of a single economic unit, payment of reparations according to her ability, and enforcement of the freedoms of speech, press and religion.

The final speaker was Carol Stevens, who discussed and reported on the progress made by the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration. Its policy is to assist only those countries which have been occupied by the enemy, its administrational staff is international, and it is financed by contributions from the 47 countries participating. Policies have been worked out and the groundwork has been laid for future accomplishments, but organization as yet has been poor. The extreme destructiveness of the war in Europe has caused the UNRRA to make its slow start. However, with better organization and more efficient personnel, it hopes to effect widespread reconstruction in Europe.

A question period was called to follow the forum but in the absence of any question, the business of electing a forum committee was proceeded with. Dalia Santos was elected sophomore representative to the committee, Barbara Wickham, junior representative, and Peggy Lu Thomson, senior representative.

A kind friend, Hilda, gives them the money to buy one pair of skates, and Hans insists that Gretel enter the race. Meanwhile, a doctor, Mynheer Boekman, has operated on Rafi and restored his memory. The money is found beneath a willow tree and the Brinkers look forward to a happier life. The race for the silver skates climaxes the play, and to the joy of everyone, Gretel is the winner. Hans loses in the boys' race, but is consoled when the doctor offers him a chance to study medicine at the university.

The play's cast will be as follows: Hans Brinker, Bobbye Usher; Gretel, Bonnie Hunt; Dame Baekman, Nancy McLaurin; Hilda Van Gleck, Katherine Steed; Peter Van Holp, Sarah Lewis; Annie Bouman, Maurine Petty; Katrina Flock, Anne Hunter; Jacob Poot, Louise Illingsworth; Benjamin Dobbs, Joy Fleming; Voostenwalbert Schimmeljennick, Barbara Holt.

Dormitory Teas

Landis Hall had their weekly tea yesterday afternoon from 4-6. The parlors were decorated with dark sprays of evergreen.

Alice Neef was chairman of the tea, and Mable Ruth Pope and Mary Frances Rutland played the piano.

Gilchrist had no tea this Thursday because of the formal reception it is giving tonight for Jerome Davis.

Mrs Mansfield of Cockrell Hall said that the change from Wednesday to Thursday of weekly tea dates has caused the Village to have a lack of music at teas because music majors have to go to recitals on Thursdays.

Jennie Murphree gave an "At Home" party and tea this week. Lois Joyner was chairman of the affair. Dorothy Aberle was head of the hostess committee and Amante Semmes was head of the invitation committee.

Other girls who planned entertainment and tea service were: Antoinette Minardi, Marily Bassett, Jean Furman, Marjorie Norris, and Ann Carter.

Background music was played by Betty Jean Lang, Marjorie Headley, Virginia Goodel, and Ruth Wilkie.

Campuside, Hillside, and Parkside gave a combined "Get Acquainted" party in Campuside parlor Thursday afternoon.

New Hall, Broward, and Bryan did not plan special programs this week, but had their teas as usual. Irene Coleman sang for New Hall.

and we are always being hindered by petty rules." At this point it must be admitted that Brownie choked on her coffee and was only able to conceal her emotion after three minutes of silent prayer. When she finally spoke it was to agree with the previous statement and say, "We have rules that our parents would like, although every college must have some form of rules." Red's contribution was, "I don't think it's honor to report someone for something I don't consider wrong."

ing again, some of the students who had not missed the comfort of depending upon the chimes to get them to class and other appointments on time will perhaps appreciate their return more fully. Some of us who missed them and noticed that they are ringing again feel that the chimes are more important to hold as traditional. If a college needs traditions to give it prestige, and far worthier of being preserved than many of the old ideas and sacred cows, which are so eulogized and played up as deserving of respect or having any consequence in our campus lives.

"Black and Gold Sweethearts" Will Be Theme at Theta Formal

"Black and Gold Sweethearts" is the theme of the Kappa Alpha Theta formal which will be held tomorrow night in the Longmire auditorium from 8:30 to 11:30.

Decorations in the sorority colors of black and gold will carry out the theme, and the music will be furnished by the "Stardusters."

A special feature of the dance will be the coronation of a Theta king and queen. The queen is to be chosen for "attractiveness, beauty, and vivaciousness." She will be presented with her crown and an arm bouquet of red roses by the judges, who will remain anonymous until that time

Lucy Brown, social chairman, is in charge of arrangements for the dance, and her committees consist of Betsy Zurwelle, Jean Oldfather, Marian McEwen, Ricky Ewing, Lydia Moore, Esther Malfus, Lorraine Smith, and Jean Gifford.

Faculty guests who will chaperone include Dr and Mrs Doak S Campbell, Dr and Mrs H F Richards, Dr Jennie Tilt, Miss Mildred Finnegan, Miss Edith West, Mrs Margaret Mattice, and Mrs J H Morgan, Theta housemother.

Athletes Feats

By EYELN SHEA

The basketball clinic, which will be held tomorrow at Gainesville has as its purpose, the helping of coaches with their teams and for the specific objective the training of officials for officiating. Thisclinic is the first of its kind in the state of Florida and it is to be hoped that other teachers and groups will institute clinics of their own in various parts of the state just like it. This clinic at Gainesville is under the auspices of the National Section of Women's Athletics.

Miss Grace Fox, Miss Caliope Papatsos and Miss Mary Jayne Medlin will be speakers at Gainesville and Catherine Barrs, Clarice Truehlood, Nancy Ward, Anna Giese, Amarene Thompson and yours truly will journey along with them to help demonstrate basketball techniques, both defensive and offensive team techniques, and basketball rules.

Our little expedition will venture into the P K Yonge laboratory school on the Florida campus.

Martha Twitty, former FSC graduate is the sponsor of [illegible]. She is now teaching at the P K Yonge school.

It is the belief of your correspondent that other clinics like this one will be of invaluable aid to girls' basketball. Because of the scarcity of women officials in Florida, due largely to the enlistment of college graduates into the armed forces, some girls are taught by men coaches and even incorporate into their game some of the rules employed by the men.

There should be lots to tell you on this subject come next week

GOOD NEWS?????

The Sports survey class of Miss Fox's has been going to the bowling alley on Wakulla Road and seems as though they've been having a good time. The owner has expressed the desire to have his alley approved by the college and has offered to consult with college officials concerning the matter . . . in fact he has even been quoted as saying he would close his alley to the public during certain hours, for the college girls. Since there's no telling how long it will be before the bowling alleys purchased by the college from Dale Mahry will be erected, it seems like a suggestion worth thinking over more than one time.

MERE CURIOSITY . . . .

Why is it that Landis Hall, New Hall, The Village and all the off campus houses have never entered a team in the intramurals activities? These dorms are supposed to elect an athletic manager who in turn is responsible for producing a team from that hall. Surely there must be some girls in each of these dorms who are interested in good recreation. Why aren't the Athletic Managers doing something about this and if the halls do not have athletic managers, why not????

ODDS AND ENDS. . . . . .

Theresa Munroe, Intramurals manager is interested in training any and all girls who are thinking of running for that office in spring elections. If you are interested see Theresa Munroe at the Pi Phi house . . . Today is the last day for all teams entering the bridge tournament to sign up. All playing cards must be at the Pi Phi house by noon Sunday. This tournament begins January 28 through February 1 and will be conducted by Culbertson Duplicate Bridge Rules with fixed hands given to each table. The one who makes the most out of these hands is the winner. By the way, this is the first time a tournament of this kind has ever been held on this campus . . . and that's all for now.

Trio Is Featured

The faculty music trio will be featured this evening at one of the concert series programs of the Indian Music Club, Cocoa, Florida. At this time the artists will present two groups of trios and also a solo group by each member of the trio.

Members of the faculty music trio are Miss Mary Esther Winslow, piano; Miss Olga Eitner, violin, and Mr Owen F Sellers, cello.

Guest Is Honored

Ball Clinic Will Be Held i nGainesville

National Rating Board Set Up For Women's Basketball

A group of physical education instructors and students from FSC will hold a basketball clinic and set up a permanent nationals rating board for women's basketball officials in Gainesville tomorrow.

Miss Caliope Papatsos, Miss Grace Fox and Miss Mary Jane Medlin, instructors in physical education, will take the students to Gainesville to set up the fourth rating board in Florida. Miss Papatsos is state chairman of basketball for the National Section of Women's Athletics, under the National Education Association. Miss Fox is former state chairman of basketball. Miss Medlin is chairman of the Woman's National Official Rating Committee.

The three FSC instructors are working in conjunction with Miss Martha Twitty, FSC alumna now teaching physical education at the P K Yonge Laboratory School in Gainesville. Miss Twitty is making local arrangement for the clinic at which persons in the Gainesvilla area will have an opportunity to qualify and become nationally rated women's basketball officials.

Students from here who will assist with the clinic are Anna Giese, Catherine Barrs, Nancy Ward, Amarene Thompson, Clarice Trueblood and Evelyn Shea. Coaches and players from schools and teams in the area, as well as women from the armed forces, will attend the clinic.

Other permanent rating boards in the state are located in Tallahassee, Miami and Tampa. Miss Papatsos announced plans to hold clinics in other sections of the state and to set up other rating boards in the future.

Newman Club Plans Lecture and Picnic

Dr Edward Annis, town physician, will lecture on "Eugenics" at the Newman Club meeting Sunday evening at 7:30 in the clubroom of the Rowena Longmire building.

There will be a short business meeting before the lecture. All Newmanites are invited to attend and are asked to invite their friends, said Eileen Perry president of the organization.

The Newman club girls will be given a picnic at Lafayette Park this Sunday from 3:30 until 6 p m by the Catholic women of the parish. All those who wish to attend are asked to meet in front of Westcott in time to catch the 3 o'clock city bus. Arrangements have been made at the park for girls who want to bring their shorts and slacks with them to change. The girls are asked to bring their tennis rackets, balls, skates, and game equipment with them since there are accommodations but no equipment for sports at the park, said Eileen.

Last Saturday afternoon a group of Newmanites went on a picnic to Games Woods. Mary Cooney, social chairman, was in charge of the arrangements. Amelia Pavese and Gloria Basila worked with her.

Deadline Nears

The second issue of the Distaff will come out the first week of February and will feature a surprise photograph on the cover, according to Winifred Meldrim, editor.

The second week in February is the final deadline for contributions for the third issue and Winifred states that there is a great need for materials of all kinds of poems, articles, andstories.

The Distaff is making plans for sponsoring a short story contest for all students. Further announcement of this will be made later.

Smudge Pots Defeat Shunk Hollowers; No Holds Barred in Playnight Spectacle

By JACKIE NEVERS and LAURA LEE BUTLER

Things hitherto unknown to basketball—or to any other ball—were attempted by the "Smudge Pot" Esterens and the "Skunk Hollow" Spirogiras at Playnight Saturday night. Using rules which would have hampered less versatile players both teams displayed remarkable endurance and ingenuity in the hard-fought contest, but, spurred on by a wild scoring spree in the second quarter, the Smudge Pot team finally triumphed 17-10 over their black and white clad opponents.

Amid cheers from the spectators, the two teams made their grand entrance onto the court at the stroke of nine. Singing and dancing to their own version of "Daisy," the green and white costumed "boys" and girls of Esteren were first led upon the court by Sarah Bennett and Dink Ashton. Several of the Esteren members wore huge E's on their blouses and one or two even sported four stars as an added mark of their athletic ability.

Spirogiras, clad in black or red and white bloomers with giant red and purple bows in their hair soon followed. A black suit with painted bones covered Rosetta Carver from head to toe and the Spirogira skull and crossbones decorated the backs of several white sweaters.

Shirley Duggan, chairman of the play night committee, then introduced referees for the game, Jitter Green for Spirogira and Miss Louise Gehen for Esteren. Following this she announced "important — and strictly original — rules" for the game. "Pyramids of more than 3 players are," she said, "absolutely illegal as is the carrying of any concealed balls." Explaining that different rules were to apply for each quarter, she said that during the first quarter all passes were to be made backwards between the legs and all goals likewise must be made while the player stood backwards to the basket. Finally, and she emphasized this as a very important rule, players were absolutely forbidden to shoot dice during the game.

As had been foreseen, none of the general rules on walking with the ball, personal fouls, etc. applied in this case. The first quarter was entirely spontaneous and unrehearsed with the Evens having no little difficulty in passing the ball through their long white skirts. A goal was finally made for the Odds by Betty Schwartz, but was declared illegal since it was shot in the orthodox manner.

Third quarter was then played before second, and new rules had been devised to keep things from becoming relatively simple. This time passes were to be made from under the right leg and the ball had to pass upward through the basket. The game then continued with no holds barred and the Evens suffered a casualty in the person of Audrey Evans, who was dragged off the field still clutching the battered ball. For this "foul" the Odds were penalized ten yards. After a center toss between the two referees, the game continued until the Evens pushed a ladder under the basket and made seven consecutive tries at the goal. None were successful, however, and it was later discovered that the end of the basket had been wired together.

Following this exhausting ordeal, time out was called by the players. To amuse themselves during this brief period of relaxation, Esteren enjoyed a fast game of "pass the shoe," while Nell Clark read to the resting Spirogira players.

Regulations for the second quarter, which followed the third, concerned an entirely unique method of shooting goals. The ball was to be passed to a fourth forward stationed in the balcony, who would then drop it through the basket. Thus Frannie Myers and Herky White mounted guard over the Spirogira basket, and Sarah Bennett and Catherine Sullivan did likewise for Esteren. After some difficulties, the Odds succeeded in scoring several baskets, but the Evens retaliated almost immediately by making innumerable goals of their own and the score was tied. Frantic scorekeepers could hardly keep track of the numerous baskets made thereafter, but as the whistle blew ending the second quarter the score stood at 17-10 in favor of Esteren.

Following this wild scoring spree, the hard fought contest was called "due to extreme weariness of the referees." And so, ending as it had begun—in general confusion—this epic in the annals of basketball history closed with a general handshaking among opposing players.

Outing Club Elects Ver Hoeven Advisor

The Outing Club has recently elected Miss Lois Ver Hoeven, instructor in physical education, as their faculty advisor, announces Amarene Thompson, president.

Miss Ver Hoeven, now on the faculty this year, is a graduate of Perdue University . She has had past experience in planning trips of this kind, and is especially intent on seeing that the club has many interesting excursions throughout the year.

"The Outing Club is for the whole school," stresses Amarene, "and not for just a select few." Everyone is urged to attend the club meetings and help them in planning future trips.

The Outing Club's new vice president, which will be the athletic manager of the freshman class, will take office at the close of the freshman elections.

The club will hold it's next meeting Monday at 5 o'clock, at which time they will discuss plans for a coming trip to either the Ravine, or the Park.

Future plans for the Outing Club includes a weekend at camp, and trips to Wakulla in the spring.

During their trip to the dairy last weekend, the club discovered that the horses, which before had not been for public use, are now being rented to anyone who wishes to ride them.

Odd-Even Practice Shows Rosy Future

Despite much undesirable weather, Odd and Even practices have been continuing with no dampening effect on enthusiasm.

Marll Richardson, Odd volley ball leader, states that the Odds are concentrating on more specialized practice. Old members coming out to the practice are: Virginia Palmer, Joyce Benton, Mae Manning. The first scrimmage game between the Odds and Evens was played last week.

The Odd swimming team, headed by B J Singleton, and Sis Myers, is practicing mostly on endurance. "Our form, and speed are practically perfect," boasted B J.

Miss Ernestine Troemel, associate professor of physical education, is the newly appointed coach for the Even swimming team. The Evens are stressing form this week, but next week the accent will be on speed.

The Odd basketball team is concentrating wholly on team play, the ultimate objective being a team which will beat the Evens, according to Clarice Trueblood, captain.

"The Even basketball team has settled down to good, hard practices, and is working particularly on techniques and teamwork," says Mart Wilson, leader. Several of those formerly at practice have dropped out, but two more seniors came out this week.

F Club Begins Work On Games' Woods

At a meeting of F Club this week, it was decided to do something about the present condition of Games Wood as a project for this quarter. Off to a good start they have begun by appointing a committee, headed by Mickey Chambers, to secure a blue print of this area so as to see exactly what belongs to Florida State College.

As soon as this is done the entire organization will begin work on clearing off the land, making new paths, building a bridge across the creek, building tables for picnicing and digging a pit for cooking. They hope to make it a much better place for outings.

Senators May Bar Interns From Office

Extended Light Privileges Are Not Discussed

Motion Is Defeated for New Standing Committees

Senate discussed tha possibility of disqualifying candidates who would be interning during their year in office and defeated a motion to make the Legislative and Codifying committees standing committees of Student Senate Wednesday afternoon in the Longmire auditorium.

Senate's recommendation for extended light privileges for all students was not mentioned at senate this week since it had not yet come back from the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs.

Nominations for the chairman of the off campus committee will be made in Senate next week, Sara Lewis, first vice president of College Government Association, announced.

The problem resulting from interns holding office was committed for further consideration to a committee, according to a unanimous vote of Senate. It was discussed at length and will be discussed further at a future meeting before final action is taken.

The Legislative and Codifying committees will continue to function as regular committees of the Senate, according to Sara, but will not necessarily go on indefinitely, as the rule now stands. A revised proposal may be presented if any one is interested, Ann Allison said.

"Recommendations from the Organizations committee" were scheduled on the Senate blackboard to have been presented Wednesday, but the members agreed to postpone their consideration un-

Inca Theme Feature Of Radio Workshop

Snow, Director of Museum, Depicts Peruvian Life

Continuing the Inca theme featured in last week's debut performance of the Florida State College Radio Workshop, Mr Sydney Snow, director of the college Inca Museum, opened the Workshop program at 9:15 last night by reviewing the history of the Inca nation, which he had related on the first program.

Depicting the life and times of the Peruvian peoples during Pizarro's conquest and after, the scripts of the programs presented last week and this week were written with Early Peruvion culture in mind and attempted to tell the stories behind the Incan collection now on display on the fourth floor of the Longmire building.

In last night's radio show, which was directed by Miss Mary Tom Colones of the speech department, several Incan eharacters were portrayed. Material concerning many of the sculptures and other creative works of the Incans was woven into the narrative.

Characters in the performance included: Mr Snow: Col H D Mendenhall, resident engineer; Bet Gargill: Elissa Mays: Mr W L Dingwell, assistant professor of speech; Bettye Usher; Ruth Kennedy and Doris Lorber. Control-board engineers were Florence Bartleson and Jane Wooten, and music was under the supervision of Mary Lou Norwood, Lois Wat- ns, and Dorothy Miller.

Two Alumnae Spend Week-End on Campus

Miss Louise G Gehan, acting alumnae secretary for Florida State College, announced the names of two alumnae who visited this campus recently.

Kathryn Bixby was in the Women's Army Corps and has just been released. Miss Bixby is from Chevy Chase, Maryland and graduated with the class of 1944. She was an active in the Delta Delta Delta sorority on campus.

Floread Brown, from Tampa, spent last weekand at FSC. Miss Brown was a member of the class of 1941 and belonged to Spirogira, F Club, Senior Hall, Mortified and the FSC Glee Club.

Senators Chosen

Betty Trigg Thompson defeated Catherine Gallagher for senior representative to Senate in last week's elections. Cora Lee Wells was elected over Barbara Wickham for junior representative to Senate according to votes cast in Lower Westcott.

New Bowling Alleys Part of Equipment For New Gym Wing

"Let's go bowling." The long awaited day when we can say this may not be far away. According to Mr Herbert D Mendenhall, resident engineer at Florida State College, negotiations are now being made to purchase a building suitable for tha temporary housing of the six bowling alleys that the college recently brought from Dale Mabry. If such a building can be secured it will be moved somewhere on campus.

At present the alleys are still installed at Dale Mabry but the equipment going with them has already been moved and stored here on campus.

According to Mr Mendenhall, plans are being made for the addition of a new north wing to the gym but no date has been set for construction to begin. The new wing will be a great deal like the wing which holds the swimming pool and the blueprints include facilities for eight bowling alleys. Later the bowling alleys recently purchased will be moved to the new wing, even if a building is purchased for them now.

The main purpose of the new wing will be to increase the existing facilities of the gym, since the present facilities are no longer sufficient for the use of the increased enrollment.

Zeta Phi Eta Gives Hans Brinker Play

Capacity Audience Attends Children's Production

"Hans Brinker and the Silver Skates," written by Mary Mapes Dodge and dramatized by Dorothy Albert, was presented last Friday night in the Little Theatre to a capacity audience. A hundred people were turned away because there were no seats left, said Sara Norman, director of the play.

This year's children's play was acted, staged, and directed by members of Zeta Phi Eta, honorary speech fraternity, instead of by the speech department. The play, climaxing three weeks of rehearsals, began with a short introduction by Mary Jane Inabnit for the benefit of the children in the audience.

Amsterdam, Holland, in the year 1878, is the scene of "Hans Brinker and the Silver Skates." The set was a typical colorful Dutch interior. Scene 1 of the play deals with the desire of the Brinker children, Hans and Gretel, to enter a race for a pair of silver skates, and their inability to do so because of their extreme poverty. Their father has been an idiot ever since he was injured in a flood ten years before, and he is unable to remember where he buried the family fortune.

Scene II shows the Brinkers as they look forward to a happier life. The father's memory has been restored by an operation, and he finds the lost money beneath a willow tree. Scene III climaxes the play. By the shouts offstage the audience knows that the race for the silver skates is

Male Chorus Gives Song, Dance Concert

Russian Singers Present Third Performance On FSC Campus

Cossacks Leave Immediately After Program

Across the footlights of Westcott auditorium last Saturday evening the Don Cossack male chorus presented their third performance on this campus. The last visit of the Russian singers was on November 27, 1944, when a similar concert of song and dances of their native country was given.

The concert Saturday night included folk songs, church hymns, a new Russian song with a light theme, and Russian war ballads. There were several special request numbers interspersed throughout the program, such as Hospodi Pomeloy and the Song of The Volgo Boatmen.

The four opening numbers were Russian hymns. First came The Credo, a popular and effective church composition by Gretchaninoff in which the chorus sang the word "Credo", while a soloist read the full text of the Symbol of Faith. The ancient melody of the Cherubim Hymn is attributed to one of the monks of the St Simon Monastery where it was sung very often. The Cossacks sang Kastalsky's arrangement of that hymn, in whieb the additional solo passages were in accord with the original style. The last number before first intermission was the Last Prayer in the Liturgy, a prayer for the Patriarch, the bishops, the priests, for a victorious army and for all the people.

"Recollections of Tchaikovsky", arranged by C Shvedoff, and several old and new songs from Russian folk music made up the second part of the concert. The last number on this part of the program was Lezginka, which is based on a Caucasian melody. It began with a prayer and ended with a dance, in increasing tempo, by three members of the chorus.

The final numbers were Partisans' Songs, Kama Song, a folk song called The Blue Flute, Parting, and the Cossack Song of1812. The latter ballad praised the bravery, fighting spirit and heroic

Phychology Teacher Added to FSC Staff

J P Thompson is the newest member of the psychology department of the Florida State College faculty. Mr Thompson is an assistant professor of psychology.

Mr Thompson was recently employed by the War Department in Washington, D C, for almost three years. While in Washington he worked on the Information Education Division of the Research Branch of the War Department as a social science analyst and statistician.

He received his AB and his MA degree from Colorado College in Colorado Springs, Colorado. He has also done work toward his Pb D degree at the University of Nebraska.

Dem School Teacher Tells Experiences As Captain of Rocket Ship in Pacific

Okinawa is a tiny island in the Pacific. You will find it rather difficult to locate on the average-sized map. Of course, this isn't news, but how a teacher now at the Demonstration School escaped death when nature went berserk and started a terrifying typhoon is news.

The teacher is Virgil E Strickland, a former lieutenant (jg) in the United States Naval Reserve, who was in the service three years and recently resumed his civilian career here at the Florida State College campus.

Prior to procuring his commission in the naval forces, he taught in the College of Education at FSC. When Mr Strickland completes his tenure here this year he plans to go to Ohio State College to obtain his doctor's degree. After an absence of a year and a half he intends to return to FSC as a professor in the School of Education.

"One of the most exciting experiences that I had," Mr Strickland told a reporter for the Flambeau, "was the typhoon that struck Okinawa last September."

He was the captain of an LCI-R, rocket ship, which participated in shore bombardment before invasions, and which gave close-in short fire support. His 150 foot vessel also made runs along the coast to find enemy fire, and screened merchant and battle ships at night from suicidal attacks by Nipponese fliers.

"At the height of the typhoon I was summoned from my bunk, where I had been confined several days ill with influenza, to assume full responsibility of my ship.

"We encountered waves at times that were fully 80 feet high, ehurned to this size by the terrific force by the typhoon, whicb reached the velocity of 135 miles an hour at times.

"Once the boat almost capsized when we tried to rescue four men on a pontoon. What happened to the men is not known. The pontoon and its frightened men disappeared in the blinding rain and raging wind.

"Our sturdy boat survived the storm and not a single person aboard was lost. However, we were badly shaken up. I was taken ashore to a hospital on Okinawa where I was told that I had developed pneumonia. I remained there for almost a month," continued Mr Strickland.

The crew of Mr Strickland's boat was given credit for slaying more than 500 Japanese in one engagement.

"Returning to our base after

Jerome Davis Urges Students To Take Interest in Freedom

"Wherever students go, whatever they do, they should speak out for freedom of speech and of the press, for racial equality and for the trade union movement," Jerome Davis, noted educator and journalist, told Flambeau reporters in a private interview Friday afternoon.

Leaning forward in his chair, the distinguished-looking, gray-haired correspondent emphasized his words. "True," he declared, "we have academie freedom in America, freedom to speak in accordance with accepted ideals and prejudices."

"You students should get out of your rut," he challenged. "Learn about unfortunate conditions," he urged, "and act on what you believe."

"Do you know the local union leaders in Tallahassee?" Dr Davis demanded. "You students should hear their views on labor and you yourselves join cooperative movements," he declared.

Emphasizing further that students should protest against injustice where aver found, Dr Davis mentioned the filibuster now being carried on in congress by southern senators against the Fair Employment Practices Commission. "Yon students should," he emphasized, "write to your congressmen protesting against this undemocratic action."

Turning to the curriculum side of education, the former Yale professor stressed sociology and economics. He believes in an educational system under which students take general cultural courses during their first two years of college after which they would receive an AB degree. Then, he thinks, they should continue in

Colin English Speaks to FSC

State School Head Gives Views on Education

Dr Colin English, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, in his address at Tuesday's convocation, stressed his view of education, its relation to the American standard of living, and the responsibility that students should feel toward education.

It is his view that education is the great force tha. brings about change; it determines a country is determined by its educational system. Dr English continued that today in America we have one of the best educational systems and therefore we have a high standard of living. In America the privilege of having access to good education is due to sacrifices made by parents and taxpayers. This being the case, his opinion is that students should be willing to promote education.

In order to better education, then, it is his belief that students should accept responsibility and appreciate it. The time to do this is while here in college where the students have tha opportunity to run their own government and practice leadership. That training in responsibility will carry over with the student when he returns home to be a leader in civic organizations and all organizations that form the best part of life.

In emphasizing the importance of education, Dr English showed how the public schools were affected by the education gained here. This, he said, is because many Florida public school teachers are educated at Florida State College.

"If education determines the standard of living then the greatest profession in America is edncation," remarked Dr English. Although one is not in the teach-

FSC Faculty Trio Presents Recital

The college faculty trio, whicb consists of Miss Olga Eltner, associate professor of violin, violinist; Miss Mary Esther Winslow, assistant professor of piano, pianist; and Mr Owen F Sellars, band director, cellist, recently presented a concert in Cocoa.

The concert, given under the auspices of the Indian River Music Club, took place on Saturday, January 26, in the Indian River Hotel Ballroom. Featured on the program were group numbers given at the beginning and end of the concert, and two solo numbers given by each member.

IRC Clothing Drive Ends Successfully

The clothing drive sponsored by the International Relations Club under the auspices of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitations Administration ended last Saturday. Doris Hill, ehairman of the drive said it was a great success, with piles and piles of sweaters, coats, shoes and other woolen clothing being contributed by the students.

Included in the city of Tallahassee's contribution to the national drive, Doris said the committee from the Tallahassee Service Center was pleased that so many good things were collected.

Tuesday morning Sophomore Council with Miss Caliope Papatsos, the council's advisor collected clothing form the houses on campus. Freshman Flunkies aided by making posters publicizing the drive.

The clothing had been checked in 219 Landis, the only available room on campus, where it was examined, tied, bundled and sorted by the committees from IRC, YWCA and Sophomore Council.

Dr Annis Addresses Newman Clubbers

Physician Says Understanding Is Salvation of Peace

Claiming that understanding is the salvation of world peace, Dr Edward Annis, town physician, addressed Newman Club Sunday night in the Longmire building club room.

Emphasizing the evils of a biased presentation of facts, Dr Annis discussed the importance of a responsibilie and open-minded outlook toward the world situation.

"The newspapers," he said, "often hamper logical thought on vital questions because of their biased presentation of news. Using the present labor situation as an example, he illustrated the unfair treatment labor received in newspaper reports while the strikes of capital against labor have not been brought to the public eye.

Advocating opposition to power politics, Dr Annis said worl problems should not be left to the solutions of a few diplomats but that the families of America must have an understanding of and concern themselves with today's critical situation for the peace to be successful.

"A recognition of the basic principles of life as taught by Jesus Christ," he asserted, "can result in a successful post-war world."

Dr Annis, who has spoken to Newman Club on previous occasions concerning the Catholic viewpoint on many current problens, will leave for Miami shortly to establish a practice there.

Display Features Foreign Articles

Foreign items are on display this week in the show cases in the library. The display was arranged by a committee of students from the Youth Conference and it centers around the theme of the Conference, "Christian Citizenship in the World Today."

Included in the display is a red tray with two gold crests and a Japanese hymn painted on it. In Japan when you receive a gift, you must pay your respects by returning a gift. This is an example of a return wedding present. At the left of the tray is the husband's family crest, and at the right is that of his wife. Below is written a Japanese hymn which was sung at their wedding.

There is also a wide. banded Turkish bracelet of silver and a silver snake-shaped ring from In-

Garnet and Gold Features Soprano

Jonnie Mires, soprano, gave the musical program last night on the weekly broadcast of the Garnet and Gold radio program.

"Summertime" and "My Man's Gone Now", by George Gershwin, "Do Not Go, My Love", by Richard Hageman (words by the Hindu poet, Tagore), and "Ma Li'l Batteau", by Lily Strickland, were the songs featured on the program. Jonnie Mires was accompanied by Miss Margaret Dunn, instructor in piano.

Sara Norman was the announcer for the program and Bonnie Hunt was the news editor.

Winburn T Thomas, general secretary of the Youth Conference, will speak at the opening meeting tonight at 8:15 in the Longmire auditorium.

Promotion of Freedom Urged

Jerome Davis Tells About Controls in Japan

"If America is to profit by the lesson of Japan's defeat, she must promote freedom in education, politics, and economics," said Dr Jerome Davis in his speech last Friday night in the Westcott auditorium. Using his theme, "Japan in Defeat and After" to illustrate his points, Dr Davis showed how Jopanese violations of academie freedom and freedom of speech have often been paralelled in this country.

"Academic freedom is the right of the teacher to express the truth as he sees it in the classroom and have the same rights outside class as the average citizen. Many of your own professors can tell you more about it than I can," the former Yale professor declared. He added that if returning war veterans were eourageous enough they could greatly affect the lack of such freedom in the United States.

Advocating that teachers' salaries be tripled, the speaker pro-

Mistrel Tryouts Will Begin Monday

Junior Minstrel tryouts will be held February 4-8, in the music annex auditorium from 8 to 9:30 in the evening, it has been announced by Mary Lou Norwood, chairman.

Monday night will be devoted to vocal tryouts including choral, solo and ensemble parts. Speaking parts are scheduled for Tuesday along with any instrumental and piano numbers. Dancers will perform Wednesday in the classes of ballroom, ballet, tap or modern. Thursday there will be tryouts for those who were not able to appear at their scheduled time

All students are eligible, Mary Lou said, including freshmen, sophomores and seniors, as well as juniors. She described the coming show as a musical extravaganza with an unusually large cast

Backstage and committee workers are asked to sign up on the Junior Minstrel bulletin board posted in Westcott.

World Travels and Experiences Related In Don Cossacks' Backstage Interview

The Don Cossacks arrived backstage last Saturday night dressed in the traditional black uniforms of the Cossacks of the Don, which their publicity manager stated they wear most of the time in everyday life.

In the approximately 20 minutes before curtain time, as the stage and wings began to fill with tall, black-uniformed men, snatches of song could be heard from corners hither and yon, little groups gathered to ruminate over this and that—in Russian—and only slightly frantic stage managers and other officials roamed around making last-minute arrangements. In the last moments before the curtain was due to rise, a manager signaled by clapping his hands, and the group filed on stage, gathered in a large semicircle, and received what appeared to be a pre-game pep-talk, from Mr Jaroff. One huge singer composedly ran a comb through his hair, unconcerned as any actor before his entrance. Then they all filed off, took places in a line backstage, and when the curtain rose, marched smartly on again to begin the concert.

The publicity manager, who was also a member of the choir, stated that the Cossacks come originally from different places within the Don River area, which is about the size of New York State. The group was formed about 25 years ago in Turkey, a little after the Civil War in Russia. They first sang as a church choir in the Russian Orthodox Church of Sofia, Bulgaria. A concert in Vienna was soon followed by a journey to the United States, where they made their American debut in Carnegie Hall, New York Since then they have toured in Australia, New Zealand, India, Africa and Europe. In 1938 they were touring Germany at the outbreak of the war, and one of the choristers stated that at this time the Germans insisted that they remain in Germany for the two or three weeks that the war would last. Escaping through Norway they were able to get back to the United States. They have recently returned from a USO tour of western Europe, in which they played to American camps in Germany, Holland, England, France and Belgium.

Among the phenomena of the organ-voiced ensemble is their ability to create from two voices a note so low it is considered impossible for the human voice to

Registration of FSC, U of F Youth Conference to Be Held This Afternoon at Ruge Hall

Banquet Will Be in East Dining Hall Saturday Night; Speakers Will Hold a Conference Sunday At Florida A and M College

Registration for the annual Florida State College and University of Florida joint Youth Conference to be on campus this weekend will be held this afternoon from 3 to 6 at Ruge Hall, the Episcopal student house. Registration fee is $1 and will include the cost of the banquet Saturday night.

This banquet will be held in the East dining hall rather than in the faculty hall as was announced last week. Harriet McCarter, chairman of the banquet committee, asks that all those planning to attend be in Reynolds parlor by 6:15 so that the meal may be served promptly at 6:30.

This conference is a project of the Florida Chain of Missions and is sponsored on this campus by the Religious Workers' Council. Student chairmen and committees do most of the mechanical work of the conference with the aid of members of the religius workers' council. Miss Alpharecta Leeper, Methodist student secretary, is acting as all-over advisor this year.

Pat Cleveland and Len Jones, co-chairmen of the conference from the University, hava estimated that 75 boys will attend this weekend. The number is an increase of 25 over the group that came in 1945.

The climax of the event will come Sunday morning when, after a weekend of lectures and seminars, the conference will be officially closed by a worship service in Westcott auditorium with a sermon by the Rev Francis Brush. An offering will be taken at this time to be given to the World Student Service Fund.

After this service the speakers will hold a conference at Florida A and M college on the south side of Tallahassee for the rest of the day, but some of them will return Sunday night for informal discussions at the various student houses.

Woodward Replaces

Martha Jane Brown and Peggy Lou Thomas, co-chairmen, announced this week that the Rev Leonard Woodward, minister from Troy, Alabama has been secured to replace Dr William Marshall who is not able to attend because of ill health. Reverend Woodward was born of missionary parents in the Philippines and spent most of his childhood in the Far East.

The program will be officially opened Friday night at 8.15 in the Longmire auditorium. After the welcome by Martha Jane Brown, response by Dr Winburn T Thomas, general secretary, and worship by a Gainesville student, there will be a round tabla discussion on the "Problems of Christian World Citizenship."

Saturday the meeting will begin at 9 a m in the Longmire auditorium. There will be a forum on Christian Solutions, and a intermission at 10:15.

At 10:30 the first round of seminars will begin. Dr Thomas will hold one of "Foundations of Christian World Citizenship." Dr Raymond Reese will touch the local situation with his group on "Facing World Problems in Florida." Mrs Martha Jean Leath, who is now working with migrants in Florida, will discuss making world eitizens of this nomadic group. And, Reverend Brush and Reverend Woodward will begin the discussion on the Far East

Reporters Tricked By Senior Editors In Surprise Party

By JACKIE NEVERS

"It's only a Flambean there, underneath the Westcott stair"—to the tune of this parody a group of girls trooped into the room which holds their hopes, dreams, and copy paper. They wore red shirts to represent their alleged Communistie leaning and blue jeans because oddly enough the invitations had specified jeans. The senior editors were giving them this party in consolation for the screams, curses and general uproar that accompanies each issue of the Flambeau

Memorial Service Held for Dr Briley

Rev Haynes and Dr Campbell Participate on Program

A brief memorial service was held for Dr Beulah B Briley, former head of the department of economics and commerce, last Sunday afternoon in the Augusta Conradi Little Theatre. Dr Briley died Sunday, January 17, at the Ridgewood Hospital in Daytona Beach, where she had been resting from a nervous collapse for several months.

President Doak S Campbell offered the prayer of invocation followed by the reading of a scriptural passage by Dr Claude M Haynes, minister of the Trinity Methodist Church. Miss Sadie Young spoke in appreciation of Dr Briley's years on this campus, and after the singing of a hymn by the attending faculty members, townspeople and students, Dr Haynes pronounced the benediction.

Instrumental music was furnished by Mr O F Sellers and Miss Mary Winslow.

On the platform were two bouquets of white gladioli in tall white standards, the gifts of a former student and two faculty members. Part of this flower arrangement was later put in the library as a continuing memorial to Dr Briley.

Funeral services were conducted at the Briley home in Ames, Iowa, that same Sunday afternoon.

First Auction Sale To Be Held Feb 4

The first Lost and Found Auction Sale of this year will be held in the Longmire Auditorium February 4 at 7:30 p m.

Mrs Edith Gulick, acting director of the Longmire building, said that no articles which have come in since December 1, 1945, are to be sold.

"Everything is usually authorized for sale after thirty days, but I think it is too bad for some of the girls to lose their belongings when it may be a case of their just not knowing where things are turned in when found," Mrs Gulick said.

"If any of the girls will come to claim articles now, before the sale, they will be here for them," she said.

Annual Pictures

Margaret Baugh, editor of the Flastacowo, announces that all students must return their proofs to the Campus Studios by Wednesday, February 6, if they wish their pictures in the annual.

SPIRIT OF THE WEEK

ELLIPTICAL BILLIARD BALL

House Council is probably more familiar to more students on campus than any other branch of CGA. They have charge of administering the minor rules that pertain to group living in the dormitories.

Years ago when the House Council idea originated, its purpose was to act as an advisory council to help the people under its jurisdiction, to help them understand the difficulties of group living, and to promote a better student attitude toward the rules that govern them.

Lately it has become apparent that house council is now a mechanical process. A rule is broken, the offender goes to house council, and it is easier to penalize than to delve into the background of the case and advise.

We have nine different house councils on campus with nine different ideas of just punishment for the infraction of a rule An offense that may warrant one week's punishment in one dormitory may warrant a month's restrictions in another. There is no uniformity of justice dispensed. Some house councila have been too slack, and others too strict. All suggestion of justice for the poor offenders seems to have been lost along the way.

There is a new plan in existence in over half of the house councils on campus in which the hall proctors sit in on the regular weekly meetings and observe the cases as they are brought in. The object of this plan is to give the students a chance to see how the system works, and to give them a better understanding of their part in the operations.

This plan is a step forward, but it is not enough. There is still no way of making punishment more just and equal, or of bringing house council back to an advisory capacity.

As college women it hardly seems feasible to send us to bed an hour earlier because we were bad little girls. Generally the petty offenses are not committed in flagrant disregard for rules, but because of circumstances.

Many people understand that they are entitled to three warnings before being sent to house council but this is not true. A person who breaks a rule the first time is as liable for punishment as the "lucky" girl who has broken it ten times without being caught.

If the house councils were to revert to the original idea of being an advisory group many of the injustices could be erased. The girl who unintentionally breaks a rule could be shown the error she haa made. The girl who repeatedly breaks the rules could be sent to lower court where she could at least be sure that her case will be judged by the same group with the same idea of justice as the other girls who have committed the same offense on the other side of campus.

LIP SERVICE

Freedom of speech and of the press, personal liberty, academic freedom. These phrases have been used—and misused—so often that statements of belief in them have become mere truisms to which we all at least pay lip service. This week, however, we have heard these theories expounded again by Dr Jerome Davis, prominent educator and sociologist; and, prhaps because he has really acted upon these tenents, they have taken on new meaning for us.

"If freedom of speech is to mean anything," Dr Davis declared during the course of his evening's lecture, "we have not only the right but the duty to speak out (on what we believe) to other people."

In these words we may well recognize a challenge for self-examination. How many of us really speak out on what we believe? How many of us, in fact, actually approve in all specific instances of those things which we profess to believe in?

We believe in freedom of the press, but do we applaud a newspaper which exposes unfavorable conditions and injustice in prominent places when these places also happen to be in our own backyard?

We believe in individual liberty. We think the free exchange of ideas is intellectually stimulating, but do we advocate a spesker who even hints that our government and society are as guilty of pernicious practices as those of countries which we freely and openly condemn?

Or if we don't object to these things, we confine our "radical" ideas to mere theories, expounded in the privacy of friendly bull sessions. Of course we realize that by failing to speak against an act against injustices as we see them we are failing to exercise our duties as members of a supposedly free society and actually abetting these evils. We realize, furthermore, that we are setting a precedent of silence that others will find it harder than we to break. But we are afraid, afraid of censure from the crowd, afraid of bucking custom and tradition, or afraid of other possible consequences.

Of course we believe in individual liberty and in freedom of speech. But where are we when it is time to take action? We are still talking in general terms about occurrences in faraway places.

NO, THANK YOU, MA'M

In an editorial of The New York Times, January 18, comment was made concerning the recent action taken by a group of senior students of the Crosby High School at Waterbury, Conn. According to the editorial, these students rejected the annual Good Citizenship Award of the Daughters of the American Revolution which consists of a travel scholarship offered to a high school representative from each State for a trip to historic American shrines.

The spokesman of the Waterbury students, the editorial further explains, gives as their reason for the rejection of the scholarship that they "just didn't think it was feasible to name a candidate for a good citizenship award aponsored by an organization that refused Negro musicians permission to use Constitution Hall for concerts."

The editorial goes on to say that the point is honorably taken. "Any tour of American shrines must lead the traveler to the homes or the working places of a number of historic figures, men and women, who labored with deep conviction and unflagging effort to eliminate precisely that kind of discrimination which has been practiced in Constitution Hall. The ladies of the D A R are responsible for many good works In this case, catering to an unworthy and patriotic prejudice, they have made a mistake which will haunt them until it has been corrected," the editorial concludes.

In close relation to this, The New York Times published a letter from Mr Edward E Bradley of Sarasota, Fla, on January 24. Mr Bradley writes: "One of the most encouraging and hopeful signs of the times that have recently come to my attention is the action of the Senior class of the Crosby High school in Waterbury, Conn . . ."

Mr Bradley praises "these young people who have taken their stand so clearly on an issue so vital to the welfare of our country and vital also to our hopes for the success of the United Nations Organization."

He believes that there is hope for the future of the world in young people who hold such convictions and are willing to implement them with appropriate action.

From Me To Y'all

By SHARPIE

Now it can be told. Sharpie was called away last week to advise Dorothy Dix and Mr Anthony. In spite of the number of requests that she stay away, we're happy to see that here we are. Before we start on replies to numerous pressing problems, let us make this clear. There is positively no truth to the rumor that this column will be syndicated for thousands of daily papers from coast to coast. Perish the thought.

Now for our first problem which concerns a fine point in etiquette A reader who seems to be one of the original Americans says, "Ugh. Much rumpus raised about rude students at Shakespeare classic. Teachers walk out at Davis lecture making such graceful exit that audience hear stampede and turn around to watch academic procession." How, friend. You shall hereafter be known as Goldentongue, but you failed to ask a question so we can't solve your problem. Did you want to know if that was traditional or polite?

Here's a letter from a girl who lost a red wallet in Westcott. She wants to know, "Has the honor system of which we're so proud developed honest people? According to what I hear, business isn't booming over at the lost and found department. Seems that things are more lost than found." This girl is evidently suffering from a persecution complex. Won't somebody restore her faith in human nature? Please, please, take things to the lost and found so we can have a big auction and everybody can buy back little mementos they have grown to love, if they're not claimed.

"Jumpy" writes us that she will go mad if she is startled once more by those far from musical voices in the library which sneak up from behind and shout CLOSING TIME Dear child, you have no troubles. We've had letters from girls who shriek everytime that happens to them and another girl got so wound up over it that she still runs like a clock

We have a letter from "Skeptical" who has a head shaped like a question mark, which distinguishes her from the rest of us. She asks, "What are we doing here?" This is just one of those problems. If "Skeptical" ever finds the answer we wish she would advise us and accept absolutely free a copy of the gold book with our compliments.

Here's another one of those letters that got sent to the jail by mistake and it's ending up here for some reason. It says, "You can imagine how I felt when I saw Dorothy Thompson smoking in the alum drawing room. Doesn't she know how much that rug cost?" Hmmm. Guess not.

A girl who signs her name, "K-9," (maybe that's her convo seat) wants a job for one hour on Tuesday nights. It must pay 25c so that she can afford to cut. We're going to get to work on this right away because that's the way most of our admiring (?) public feels. Few of us can afford to cut everytime. This hardly seems fair to our way of thinking. But then, we're prejudiced.

We'll have to leave you now but don't cry because we'll take our typewriter from behind our ear and beat out more wise words next week which you can put to practical use. Many of our readers inform us that they use our column for papier-mache. Others advocate wobbling it up into a little ball and using it to clean eyeglasses. There are all sorts of practical uses for it, especially with the Kleenex shortage, so don't anybody else tell us they don't like our column 'cause we just don't care.

achieve. They also boast among the super-bassos a man who is one of the few singers in the world to reproduce the extremely low A-below-middle-C note.

Just before the intermission the dancers arrived, and with intermission-time backstage became again a dignified, well-behaved bedlam. The officers of the organization again flitted forth, the several backstage kibitzers descended upon this or that lone Russian, the dancers limbered up and "warmed up" the stage, and the main body of singers retired to the rear of the stage for a bull-session, in Russian again, and your reporter decided perhaps she'd better not seek a translation. Some of the others just wandered about stage, and the bursts of song soon again filled the air.

During the next portion of the program, after the curtain had gone up, the dancers came forth more bravely and entertained the aformentioned kibitzers with a few lessons in ballet, or how not to do ballet. The younger one, he of the white satin blouse, immediately after executing a difficult bit of dance declared he much prefers jitterbug. All three dancers declare their boots are not specially made for dance. They are no different from the regulation Cossack boots, except that they are perhaps lighter, they say.

The ensemble, which elects its own officers every year, arrived in Tallahassee from Miami via St Petersburg, and left soon after the performance for an engagement in North Carolina.

National Secretary Visits FSC Campus

Miss Rosalie Oakes, national student secretary of the Young Women's Christian association for the southern region, spoke at a meeting of the campus YWCA last Monday night in the Longmire auditorium on matters concerning the "Y" activities and participation at Florida State College.

Coming here for this week-end's Youth Conference, Miss Oakes also spoke Tuesday afternoon to members of the faculty advisory board and the student cabinet in the Longmire clubroom. Her topic for the speech was on the "Y" as a world movement and as a force on this campus.

Attending the meeting Tuesday afternoon were Dr Elizabeth G Andrews, Dr Raymond Bellamy, Miss Vela Cleveland, Miss Marguerite R Dressler, Mrs Myrtle R Johnson, Dr Anna F Liddell, Dr Robert D Miller, Miss Daisy Parker, Dr Paul W Shankweiler, Mrs Melton Ware, Margaret Clayton, Joyce Petty, Ann Ranson, Wilma Humphrey, Betty Ruth Goode, Marvis Core, Betty Dowd, Betty Lee, Anne Singleton, Doris Hill, and Margaret Cockrell.

Miss Oakes also met with the student cabinet last Tuesday night at their regular business meeting.

Judges Are Chosen To Re-Name 'Spic'

Next Thursday the new name for the old "Spic and Span" will be chosen by six FSC girls and three staff members selected last night by Mr L G Blount to act as judges in re-naming his new store which will open on February 16.

The judges who will select the winning name from over 100 entries are: Mrs Esther Fergusen, councilor in Gilchrist, Mrs Molanie Turner, assistant councilor in Gilchrist, and Miss Alice Henderson, secretary and assistant to the business manager, Martha Wight, Virginia Allen, Shirley Agress, Ruth McCallister, Helen Tarapani, and Theresa Munroe.

The winner will receive a total of $10 in merchandise from the new store and the judges will receive $2 each in free merchandise.

Four new counters, 25 tables, 100 chairs, and a juke box are included in the equipment for the old "Spic and Span." Mr Blount plans to paint and remodel the store and discontinue the booth service.

Students to Choose Playnight Records

Inaugurating a new plan at Playnight this Saturday, Shirley Duggan, chairman, announces that votes will be taken up at the door for favorite dance recordings. These votes will be tabulated and the top three selections in popularity will be purchased and played the following Playnight. "In this way we can build up a huge stack of new recordings," said Duggan.

Playnight this Saturday will be composed of local talent, the details of which are not to be revealed beforehand. The evening's fun will begin at 8 o'clock and will last until 10, with the program being slated to begin at 9. There will be dancing before and after the program.

Hostesses this week will be Mary Calley, Tot Carter and Betty Strickland. Girls are encouraged to bring their dates.

The committee is now holding meetings regularly every week, whether there is to be a Playnight every week or not, for the purpose of planning bigger and better Playnights, Duggan said.

WSSF Drive Reopens Late Next Week

An appeal is being made to those students who have not paid their pledges to the World Student Service Fund, by acting chairman of the drive, Lola Miller, who announces that a table will be set up in lower Westcott next Wednesday and Thursday and a member of the committee will receive payment of the voluntary pledges. Lola said the students who were saving money for Christmas will now have an opportunity to fulfill their obligations to the fund for students overseas.

The WSSF drive began last November with a speech by Dr J Huntley Dupree, executive secretary of the WSSF, who called upon the students of FSC to give as much as they were able. He stated that it is the WSSF which must provide hospitalization, as well as food, sanitary supplies, clothing and materials for study for the students in the war-ravaged countries. Students of FSC are reminded of this speech and are asked to stop by the table next week and pay their pledges.

Before the war, 99 out of every 100 Japanese children were in school.

delivering supplies to a nearby island," said Mr Strickland, "we saw a number of Japs on the southeastern tip of Okinawa. We opened up on them with all our guns, which included 20 and 30 millimeter guns, and five inch rockets. The nex day a reconnaissance reported that an estimated 500 Japs were dead."

The former naval officer told of a sensational rescue of five men who were trapped in a Japanese infested cove. His orders from the flotilla commander were to proceed into the little bay, and try to reach the five stranded soldiers. At the risk of every man's life on this ship, Mr Strickland obeyed the orders, and succeeded in wiping out three Japanese machine gun nests. When most of the enemy fire ceased, a crew of four men in small boat from the rocket ship advanced to the place where the Americans were marooned, and brought them safely back to the larger ships.

"With hot lead flying all around, it is a miracle that we did not lose many of our men. One young boy nineteen years old was killed on our ship during the fracas," Mr Strickland declared.

After a severe Kamikaze attack, Mr Strickland and his crew found themselves near an LST ship which had been hit by one of the suicide planes. Flames engulfed the entire bulk of the boat which were being fought by all members of the LST. Pulling along side of the boat as close as they could, and with flames leaping all around, the rocket ship's crew began the long and tedious fight against the conflagration. It was 9:00 in the morning when they began to put it out, and the fire was not under control until 5:00 that evening. All the men on the LST were transferred to the rocket ship and returned to Okinawa.

While on sea duty in the South Pacific, Mr Strickland's ship was the target for two Kamikaze planes, but very fortunately neither were direct hits. One experience that made all on board the LCI-R believe that luck was really with them when a bomb fell on a 20 millimeter magazine on the deck of the ship. Instead of shattering the boat completely, the bomb ricocheted and exploded in the ocean about 25 feet away.

"Although my eleven years of school teaching have not proved to be nearly as exciting as the three I spent in the Navy, it is very nice to be back, and I am happy and thankful to be safely home." Mr Strickland said.

ed themselves, a little bewildered by the unusual courtesy being shown them. Holding one's editor in one's arms so tenderly was quite an experience!

But finally the Great One spoke and offered them little slips of paper. "Oh, goody, goody, a game," they thought crowding up toward her. "Not exactly," was the answer — truer words were never spoken. Sentences such as "Make like a broom—or dust out our files," loomed up before their startled eyes.

Clouds of dust, stacks of old newspapers, and a general haze of industry filled the Flambeau office. Grime was somehow transferred from floors and walls to jeans and reporters. Through all the carnage, the evil editors stood by and leered-uh-cheered.

"Just a little fond affection," moaned one small reporter as she staggered out loaded with six million copies of unappreciated newspapers "As a reward for your labor, we will treat you to anything under a nickel," was the generous reply. As a result the Coca-Cola bottling works was enriched by twenty-three nickels and two devilsfood cakes (how appropriate) were extracted from the debris.

In typical attitudes of humility, the reporters were immortalized (they thought) in film. Shortly afterward however, it was discovered that the camera contains another gadget which had remained unnoticed. Thus, we have no permanent record of this unique affair, except these words written by a sadder and wiser reporter — never trust an editor even when she cames bearing invitations!

deeds of the Cossacks and their leaders during the Napoleonic War of 1812.

After heavy applause, the encores were a second presentation of the Cossack Song of 1812 and the Lezginka dance.

Since the Cossacks were scheduled to present a concert in New Orleans the following evening, Sunday, it was necessary for them to leave immediately after their performance here to travel by bus to New Orleans. There was no time for special entertainment in their honor, according to Mr Karl O Kuersteiner, dean of the School of Music.

Intramurals Bridge Tournament Takes Spotlight With Players Vieing For Cop

By EVELYN SHEA

Two diamonds—three spades—four hearts—PASS, this chant was undoubtedly heard this week as the intramurals bridge tournament got under way. Bridge is just one of the many competitive games in which participants vie for the coveted Intramurals Cup, given by WAA.

For fifteen years, this silver cup has been held before the eyes of dormitory and, sorority girls as they strive to accumulate the highest score in volleyball, basketball, badminton, bridge, golf, softball, ping pong, shuffle board, and tennis. Nine, seven, five, three, and one points are awarded for team winners for first, second, third, and fourth places respectively. The climax of the year's rivalry comes when the intramurals manager presents the prized cup to the winning team with the highest number of points and girls formerly ignorant of the outside athletic activities at FSC applaud the winner of this trophy.

This year's intramural activities are headed by Theresa Munroe, "the little gal behind the big wheel" who keeps the program running smoothly. After being elected manager last spring, Theresa automatically became a member of the WAA board. Theresa, too, is the one who helps determine when and where each intramurals sport shall be played. Miss Papatsos, faculty sponsor for the organization, along with Theresa and faculty members, help set the dates for the various contests in the spring before the fall semester begins. Any girl from "A" health to "D" health can join in the fun-filled round of athletic activities because the program ranges from "standing sports" to "sitting sports," such as bridge.

So far this year, over 220 girls have turned out for volleyball and basketball, the two sports scheduled for the first quarter.

Volunteers from Physical education depart and Odd-Even players referee the games.

"Girls interested in making Odd-Even teams often play in the intramurals to achieve a better technique and gain necessary preliminary experience before going out for the 'big time teams,'" declared Theresa. "Another reason for the success of the program is because it provides recreation for those who just want to play and are not interested in making Odd-Even teams, asserted the diminutive manager

On a bulletin board in the basement of the gymnasium are posted the latest scores and news for the girls who participate in the program.

Today, Reynolds Hall, as winner of last years' Intramurals, has possession of the cup which will be passed on to this year's winner at the last convocation in June.

Since 1931, when Chi Omega boasted the silver cup, Alpha Xi Delta, Alpha Chi Omega, Jennie Murphree, Ruge Hall, Spirogira, Kappa Alpha Theta, Delta Phi Epsilon, Pi Beta Phi, and Reynolds Hall have each become proud winners of the transferable trophy one or more times.

And who will be the winning dorm or sorority of 1946? Only time and score cards and Theresa Munroe will tell tha tale.

posed a continual increase in educational opportunities. A liberal education should correlate practical training for life, and the student should be taught the actualities of politics as they exist in his home state, Dr Davis believes. Freedom for both the teachers and the rising generation is essential to produce the "character and brainpower that is the most vital asset of any nation."

"Any government will grant freedom of speech for accepted beliefs, but if freedom of speech is to mean anything at all, it must be the right and duty to express ideals contrary to those of the authorities," Dr Davis continued.

Dr Davis asserted that labor is social-minded and is striving to aid the millions He called upon college students to "enlist your lives on the side of the people." The case for captialism, he said was fully set forth for all to read in what he termed "The Saturday Evening Post."

On his return to Japan in 1935, Dr Davis asserted that he found a greatly altered nation. The Japanese were attempting to superimpose materialism on their old feudalistic culture. This resulted in imprisonment of university professors and others who dared to criticize the new regieme. "We seldom send our most popular professors to the penitentiary in this country," Dr Davis commented, 'we allow them to go elsewhere."

Citing the case of a Japanese student who organized a boycott which last for three years. The student was expelled from his university, but later became the head of a re-education program for Japanese prisoners. "We can admire this student for standing up against injustice in Japan, but how many students in this institution have ever organized a boycott against an unfair practice?" the speaker inquired.

Paralleling capitalism in Japan, where a "Big Four" dominated all industry, with the Uniter State, Dr Davis said, "Here the president of the U S Steel can reject President Truman's wage proposals." He expressed approval of the idea of fact-finding boards, but said the proposal should be worded carefully because "the boards cannot function if capital refuses to listen to them."

Corrective not punitive measures are the solution to the Japanese problem, Dr Davis believes. Academic freedom for teachers and students, political freedom, trade unions, and economic justice are needed for a democracy as he sees it.

"The Christians and liberals in Japan should be used to form a re-education system," the speaker said. He quoted the Emperor as having said to the American people, "Now you Christians can do anything you want to with us. I am interested to see what you will make of your opportunity." Dr Davis emphasized that the Christian Japanese are crying to America to send them missionaries, and there is a great need for contributions to mission boards.

"Fighting for the right is the greatest fun in life," Dr Davis stressed as his final point. "The best society is the one that raises the greatest number of people to the highest level."

Italy Discussed

Her experiences in Italy will be the subject of Miss Miller's talk at the meeting of the Home Economics club, Thursday, at 7 45 p m, in the Longmire auditorium, publicity chairman.

Refreshments will be served after the meeting, Elizabeth said.

The Reverend Francis Brush, Anauta, and Dr Raymond Reese, respectively, will hold seminars over the weekend on the general Youth Conference theme of "Christian Citizenship for Today's World." Two other speakers, the Reverend Leonard Woodward and Mrs Martha Jean Leath, are not pictured here.

Eskimo Speaker Leads Strange Life While in This Country

"She is either crazy or innocent," said a railroad detective of Anauta, the Eskimo speaker who is on campus this weekend for the Youth Conference. "I told her she was trespassing, and she started quoting the Lord's Prayer to me."

This was just one of the incidents that happened to the stranger from Baffin Island during her orientation to the American way of life. "It's a wonder I'm not locked up or in an insane asylum," said she. "I just didn't understand anything."

The above mentioned episode happened soon after she and her children bought their first house and were learning to take care of it. "One day I saw this strange man drive up to the house next door and start filling the woman's cellar full of black rock. Curious : to why a strange man was doing this to my neighbor's house, I went out to watch. The lady also came out and explained that we must have that to keep us warm in the winter and that I should be getting mine soon."

"While walking by the railroad track one day during the next week, I saw some of the coal and decided I could get my own. I proceeded to do just that and for four days I worked at it undisturbed. The fifth day the railroad detective came by, but I thought he was just a man trying to get my coal and I told him to go to the other side and get his. 'Lady,' he said, 'don't you know that you're trespassing?' I had heard that word before since the children were teaching me the Lord's Prayer. "You're not saying it right, it's trespasses — not trespassing. 'Forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us.' " He followed her home and told the neighbors to explain her misdemeanor to her.

Soon after the death of her husband some 20 years ago, Anauta came from Baffin Island to Canada to bring an orphaned baby to its grandparents in St John's, Canada.

Unlike the Alaskan Eskimos the Baffinlanders have a fair skin and non-slanted eyes. If Anauta is a typical example, they are very thin rather than fat like those of Alaska. She is barely five feet tall, has a thin face and wears her graying hair in a soft pompadour with tight braids wrapped around her head twice. The only noticeable characteristic of her speech is a slight clipping of her words and very precise diction.

Anauta likes traveling on a bus, but does not like train rides. However, she has had unusual experiences on a train. She said, "One dark night I got on a dimmed-out train and since I was very tired, I soon fell asleep. When I awoke I saw that I was lying on the lap of a gentleman. I raised up gently thinking he must be asleep; and when I found that he wasn't, I was very embarrassed and apologized profusely. 'That's all right, Lady,' he replied with an Oriental blandness of his native China, "you sleep, me sit.' "

"I realize what a different life I live down here from the one I lived at home when I try to write my brother," said the lecturer when she was speaking of the way she had lived before coming to the United States. "I can't tell him that I took a train and went somewhere because he doesn't know the place I went nor what a train is. He used to ask me in every letter when I was coming back home, and I would answer that the children were going to school here learning to read and write the way the Americans did and that I couldn't return until they were finished. Finally, he wrote that I might as well come on back because if they hadn't learned to read and write in all these years, it was hopeless."

The children did stay in school for some years, and after graduation from The University of Indiana, her youngest daughter joined the Army Air Force and served as a dietitian during the war.

Craftwork Display Offers Comparison

A collection of modern Latin-American craftwork is on display in the Peruvian museum on the fourth floor of the Longmire building.

The collection, shown under the sponsorship of the Florida Inter-American Educational Program of the State Department of Education, offers an interesting comparison of modern crafts with the ancient Incan relics in the same room. It is open from 2:30 to 5 o'clock Monday through Friday. The modern collection will be removed after February 9.

Dr Myra L Yancey, associate professor of education, announced the exhibit. She has acted as consultant in Spanish for the State Department's inter-American program. Miss Cynthia Reeves, instructor in art, is art consultant.

Dolls, glass, pottery, tin, silver jewelry from Mexico, baskets, weavings in bright colors, and other objects are included in the group, which comprises over 75 items.

The collection was brought to Tallahassee primarily for display on February 8 and 9 to Florida Teachers of Spanish, scheduled to hold a meeting at the college on those days. Through the courtesy of Thomas M Morgan of the State Department of Education it has been made available to the general public immediately.

ing profession, he should contribute to education, he added. Then he said incidently, that according to reports from insurance companies, teaching is looked upon as a field in which people live longer.

In conclusion, he said that if education is neglected we will fall by the wayside as many other nations have.

They are: Dorothy Aberle, Nancy Ware, Joyce Carter, Jean Carter, Betty Jane Wright, Virginia De Garry, Betty Sweet, Mary Hart, Virginia Croghan, Judy Rhodes, Ann Mustaine, Harriet Dews, Bettye Wills, and Mary Jean Launders.

Alpha Gamma Delta—

Ann Butler, Clara Jane Carroll, Donis Clifton, Katherine Cooper, Betty Dot Galbraith, Alice Miller, Marion Moorhead, Jesse Sprott, Margaret Swanson, Violet Walters and Mary Pat Warner are to be initiated in Alpha Gamma Delta tonight at 6:30 p m.

Following the initiation, a Rose banquet will be held at the Cherokee for the new initiates. Also to be honored at the banquet are 5 girls who were initiated first quarter. They are: Kathleen Rohh, Peggy Futch, Norma Lewis, Betty MacIntosh, and Betsy Byrd.

Chi Omega—

Climaxing the initiation of 16 pledges, the Chi Omega sorority held their iniation breakfast Sunday morning at the Three Torches.

Centerpieces of cardinal and straw flowers decorated the tables. Upon entering the new initiates were presented with corsages of white carnations.

Awards were presented to the girls who proved themselves outstanding during pledging. Mae Gwynn was awarded a scholarship bracelet for having the highest grades among the pledges. Margaret Flynn was presented a silver loving cup as the most outstanding pledge. For having the best pledge scrap-book Peggy Bates received a special gift.

Nell Clark and Claire Cashen were in charge of entertainment which consisted of a poem about each of the initiates. Laura Platt was general chairman of arrangements.

Those initiated were Betty Nelson, Georgie Jaeckel, Patty Bates, Estelle Jones, Virginia Gallemore, Ann Wiggins, Elizabeth Alexander, Jo Anne Whitehurst, Ann Knight, Margaret Flynn, Isabel Glass, Betty Patterson, Mae Gwynn, and Mary Margaret Davis.

Out-of-town alumnae visiting were Mrs Robert Tucker, Tampa; Miss Jean Flynn, Jacksonville; Miss Yvonne Cody, Gainesville, and Mrs Wells Nelson, DeFuniak Springs.

Tallahassee alumnae present included Mrs J W Oven, Mrs George Lewis, Mrs Robert Jenkins, Mrs Hill Luce, Mrs J R Pugh, Mrs Chancey Oven, Miss Claudia Houston, Miss Betty Harrison, and Mrs Robert Glass.

Pi Beta Phi—

A round of social activities honoring 24 girls initiated Saturday afternoon, featured events on the Pi Beta Phi's social calendar last weekend.

A cookie shine was held Saturday night against a background of wine and blue at which the new initates were honored by the old members. Jackie Fosdick had charge of refreshments for this occasion.

Also feting the Pi Phi initiates was a breakfast Sunday morning at the Cherokee hotel. Louise Brown, chapter president, addressed the new initiates at this time on the topic, "Within the Gate". A brief talk was also given by Mrs Hope Diffenbaugh, a Pi Phi alumna.

Highlighting the affair was the presentation of awards to Esther Rasmussen for scholarship, to Pat Dillard for having been best pledge, and to Theresa Monroe for improvement in scholarship.

The Floridan hotel will be the scene tomorrow evening of a banquet honoring the eight Sigma Kappa initiates. These new initiates includes Martha Cordray Mary Jo Jones, Terry Johnston, Bettye Berney, Anne Grant, Beverly McCollum, Lois Joyner and Carolyn Coser.

Newman Clubbers Enjoy Hunt, Hike

Members of Newman Club were entertained Sunday afternoon at 3:30 at a picnic and treasure hunt given them by the Catholic women of the parish.

The group of thirty girls hiked to Lafayette Park where "hidden" clues awaited them, which, if followed correctly, led to the buried treasure—a glass bank full of pennies. After the picnic, the girls competed in various games at the park's recreation grounds.

Chaperones for the outing were Father Borg and Father Heffernen, parish priests.

Gala Valentine Ball Saturday Night Highlights Big Kappa Delta Weekend with their respective subjects of "Christianity's Prospects in the Far East" and "Can We Live With Japan."

Afternoon Session

The afternoon session will also be opened in the Little Theater at 2 p m with a speech by Anauta, an Eskimo from Baffinland. Her topic will be "Land of the Good Shadows," which is her own name for her native land. After her speech, students will go to their separate meeting places for a second round of seminars. The subjects for this time includes: "Bases for Interracial Understanding," "Opportunities for Fulltime Christian Service," "Personal Religious Problems," "Practical Approaches in Florida," and "How to Choose a Vocation."

Anauta will have an informal group in the Little Theater at 8 o'clock when she will discuss the humorous side of her adaptation to American life. Also, in the Little Theater at this time, Sara Lewis and her dramatic group will present "Be Thane," a one-act play based on the experience of a missionary in India.

Sunday morning at 10 o'clock there will be a student forum on "Where Do We Go From Here?" after which the participatns will adjourn to the worship services.

The KD's tea dance, featuring a bar, strictly for coca-colas, will be given Saturday afternoon, at which time the sorority pledges will entertain the actives with a skit. Marjorie Miller is in charge of arrangements for the affair. Completing their big weekend the KD's and dates will journey to Wakulla Springs for a picnic Sunday.

General chairman for the entire weekend is Jeanette Chapman, Other committee chairmen include: Charlotte Healey, invitations; Louise McMichael, decorations; Lois Wilson, music, and Jackie Nolan, arrangements for the picnic.

Athletes' Feats

By Evelyn Shea

The basketball expedition to Gainesville last weekend proved quite successful and it is my hope and the hope of Miss Fox, Miss Papatsos and Miss Medlin, instructors in physical education, that more clinics like this one will be held throughout the state.

Early Saturday morning 10 sleepy-eyed college girls crept out of Bryan Hall to the waiting cars of Miss Fox and Miss Papatsos. Everyone talked furiously for 30 minutes but slowly and surely the sandman overtook us and everyone was catching an additional 40 winks before we reached our goal.

Naturally yours truly was in the middle of the back seat and try as I would I couldn't get to sleep. The thought of having to speak before students was beginning to overtake me and there I sat at 7:30 trying to read "Team Sports for Women" so that I could learn what I was to say. You all may think that with the girls majoring in Physical education it's "All brawn and no brains," but after my little experience I can truthfully say that quotation should be reversed so that it reads "All brains and some brawn."

Anyhow we cruised along and with my nice woolen socks (which were still wet from the washing of the night before) acting as an air guide, Miss Fox had no trouble finding Gainesville.

We were first on the program and after the individual techniques and team tactics were covered, and lectures given by the Misses Fox, Papatsos and Medlin were finished, instructors and students interested, took the Woman's National Official Rating Committee basketball test. Five passed the national test and two passed the intramural test. Martha Twitty, the head instructor at the P K Yonge laboratory school, was the instigator for the clinic. Her girls put on exhibition games with Alachua high school and Gainesville high school. Approximately 150 girls attended with 15 teachers. Other cities represented were Orlando and St Petersburg.

This clinic served a three-fold purpose: first, to improve coaching for girls' teams; second, to train more women officials, and third, to interest more girls in becoming officials. Because so many girls' basketball teams throughout the state are coached by men and their games refereed by men, the National Section on Women's Athletics is hoping that all who attended the Gainesville clinic will go back ot their communities and open WNORC boards of their own, thus allowing all teams the opportunity of being coached and refered by women officials. This is the first step towards better girls basketball teams through the state.

Let's hope that the people who attended this clinic will go out and have clinics of theri own and bring up basketball standards in general for Florida . . . and that's all for now.

Sorority Chit-Chat . . . .

Sparkling champagne, the tinkling of glasses, and the bright lights of Broadway—well, the bright lights anyhow—seemed to have found their way to FSC. "Night club" parties, with even some sparsely scattered males for the more fortunate ones, have blocked the social calendar this week.

The traditional "Five O'clock Club" of the east coast had nothing on Alpha Chi Omego girls last Thursday night. Pledges were entertained as strictly elite lassies at their annual "night club" pledge party.

Actives had excitement in store when pledges surprised them with a fish bowl party Wednesday.

New pledges to the sorority are Sally Dates and Irma Lee Shephard. Those being re-pledged are Anne Mustaine and Harriet Ruth Dews.

An after dinner coffee will be held Monday night at 7:30 in honor of Miss Lucy Bringhurst, Gulf Provinee president, who is to arrive Sunday afternoon.

The man shortage had no effect on the Alpho Xi Delta members last Friday. With members dressed as boys and the girls portraying the fair damsels of the campus, a night club party complete with floor show, highlighted the evening. Sally Joyce sang "The Man I Love." Billy Kaciski was in charge of the party.

Jayne Close was pledged Monday night.

Following their initiation eeremony and banquet last weekend, coca-cola parties are now in style at the Pi Beto Phi house. Anne Allen and Jackie Fosdick will be in charge of one Saturday evening.

Odd-Even Practices Continue to Improve

Repairs to Swimming Pool Complicate Meet Plans

A broken swimming pool complicated swimming practices for the Odd-Even swimming meet which is to be held March 1, according to Betty Jane Singleton, captain of the Odd swimming team.

Carol Claus, captain of the Even swimming team, announced that land practices were being held on the Even practice days, which are Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday at 5 p m.

Odd volleyball practices are going on as usual, Marli Richardson said, in spite of the fact that their coach, Miss Henrietta Greenberg, is out of town. Miss Greenberg is in Atlantic City, New Jersey, attending a meeting of the National Recreation Association, according to Marli.

Sarah Bennett, captain of the Even volleyball team, stated that practices were proceeding as planned and that the girls were improving in their game.

Evens out for basketball are working on perfecting their scrimmage and defense techniques, and co-ordinating their teamwork, Mart Wilson said.

Clariee Trueblood, captain of the Odd basketball team, said that her team would be in fine shape by the time practices were over on February 15. Class games are scheduled to begin the week of February 18. Odd-Even games will be held on Saturday, March 2, she announced.

Life Saving Corps Sponsors Lecturer

Commodore Longfellow, founder of the life saving and water safety division of the American Red Cross, will lecture in the Augusta Conradi Little Theater at Florida State College at 8 o'clock, February 20. Although the lecturer is being sponsored by members of the Life Saving Corps on campus, all others who are interested are invited to attend, according to Anna Horne, president of the Life Saving Corps here.

Commodore Longfellow has recently returned from Europe and is now making his last tour before retirement.

"The Commodore's lecture will be enjoyable, possibly humorous, and certainly profitable, and all students are urged to attend," said Anna.

their own fields of specialization during their junior and senior years.

Dressed in the olive drab of an army war correspondent, Dr Davis wore campaign ribbons, testifying to his ability to speak with authority on the present situation in Europe. When asked, therefore, about the prospects for democratic governments there and especially in Germany, the lecturer shook his head sadly. "When men are hungry," he replied, "they damn well aren't very likely to adopt the form of government of the country that allows them to starve."

Traveling mentally on to Russia, Dr Davis renewed his general theme on education. He spoke of numerous government scholarships granted to boys and girls for study in Russian universities. "Academic freedom in Russia," Dr Davis asserted, again mentioning his favorite subject, is about the same as in the United States. The only difference is that our respective prejudices are a little different."

In order to illustrate his point the tall, angular journalist mentioned a specific example. "In the USSR, for instance," he asserted, "you aren't allowed to speak against communism, while in Florida we aren't expected to talk on"—he hesitated—"Shall I say racial equality?"

"I think that an American loan to Russia is highly desirable," Dr Davis declared. Emphasizing his words with his slender, artistic hands, he continued, "If we had a damn bit of sense, we'd know that Russia would pay us back. I heartily concur with Senator Pepper's sound judgment in regard to Russian American relationships."

When a student asked in protest about Russian seizure of her small western neighbors, Dr Davis frowned and declared that she is only regaining what the Allies took from her at the end of World War I. "If someone stole your pocket book and dress, you'd feel you had a perfect right to go to him and demand your posessions back, wouldn't you?" he inquired.

He then declared that the assertion that Russia is the chief proponent of the Big Nation's veto power in the UNO is "just another fallacy of anti-Russian propaganda." "It is rather the United States," he asserted, "that wants this power. I personally would be willing to see it abolished only if we could have a truly democratic world organization based upon rational representation according to population.

"Russia," he said, "is at least attempting to give a fairer share of the nation's wealth to the common man. While we have also made progress along this line," he conceded, "certain corporations are now trying to block further just wage increases." He then spoke of a certain steel company's refusal to accept President Truman's mediation proposals.

"Onee," Dr Davis declared, "Vanderbilt said 'The government be damned'. Now"—the commentator again leaned forward in his chair and spoke earnestly—"Pan Steel is telling us the very same thing."

Year After Year Students Wrote About De-Compulsing Compulsory Convocation

KAY VAN DEURS

The compulsory convocation has long been the cause of student complaints, according to the record left in the files of old Flambeau issues.

The children were being scolded for their conduct in chapel, according to the issue for Friday, November 13, 1931. One of the excuses offered by the students was that "they were not interested in the picture that was being shown."

The angry writer questioned whether that was an excuse "worthy of a college group" since the chapel program in question "brought each student face to face with the facts on a subject of life that concerns every girl and boy, every man and woman"—scientific investigations into the relation of nutrition to dental health.

The issue for November 9, 1934, tells about a group of seniors that "recommended to the Senate of CGA that that body name a committee to assist Dr Edward Conradi in a project aiming to reorganize convocation programs. The recommendation followed an announcement made by Dean Olivia Dorman that Dr Conradi had extended this privilege to the student body."

As early as April 30, 1937, these two paragraphs appeared at the beginning of a much longer editorial:

"In the last two NSFA (National Student Federation of America) forums the issue of compulsory convocation was the subject of heated discussions. The first forum's recommendation that compulsory attendance at convocation be lifted gradually was apparently interpreted literally by Senate which reached a decision that compulsory convocation be maintained next year with three cuts a semester permitted each student. Evidently the Senate considered the matter closed, although NSFA had voted to continue the discussion at its next meeting.

"The second NSFA forum, following the Senate session, by a majority vote of fourteen to four suggested that compulsory convocation be abolished on this campus; that student announcements be made by means of weekly or bi-monthly bulletins, with special announcements to be made in the college dining room; that the eleven-thirty hour on Tuesdays be left open for student body meetings, the subject of which to be publicized in advance. Beginning this week CCA has authorized the use of bulletins for announcements during the remainder of this term as an experiment. The convocation question, however, was not raised in the Senate meeting held Wednesday."

AAUW Contest Plan Will Get Underway

Two New Divisions Added to Annual Arts Competition

Plans for the annual Creative Arts Contest, which is sponsored on this campus by the American Association of University Women, will be discussed at the Creative Arts committe meeting Monday night. The contest is planned for the early part of May, according to Miss Cynthia Reeves, chairman.

The contest this year has been expanded to include departments for dramtic arts and household arts, Miss Reeves said.

Heads of the different divisions of the creative contest are: arts and crafts, Miss Helen Haughton, assistant professor of art; creative writing, Miss Mildred Henry, assistant professor of English; dance, Miss Louise Gehan, alumnae secretary; dramatic art, Miss Mary Tom Colones, instructor in speech; household arts, Miss Anne Pelltas and Miss Ellen Wright, instructors in clothing and textiles; and music, Miss Gladys Koch, assistant professor of voice, and Miss Helen Rogers, instructor in public school music.

Other members of the Creative Arts committee are: Miss Bertha Bloodworth, publicity secretary; Dean Olivia Dorman, state chairman of Creative Arts for AAUW, who will act as advisor; and Dr Carmen Rogers, ex-offiico, Miss Reeves announced.

Similarity Causes Name of Sidewalk

There is a recently completed sidewalk running in front of the dining hall across the green to Magnolia Hall and The Village. All during first quarter eager individuals watched the work progresing and speculated the length of time it would take to finish the project. Now it is completed with bow legs on each end.

The shape is so similar to another frequent campus sight that some bright child must have quickly noticed the resemblance. Her name for the new sidewalk will payer for the Patriarch, the BOULEVARD.

Outing Club Plans For Bowling Tri

Tentative plans for weekly to the bowling alley are made by Outing Club, Ama Thompson, club president, following a meeting of the or ization Monday afternoon. Kelley, newly elected st manager of the freshman was also installed as vice-p dent of Outing club at this

If plans for these trips are ried through, approximately girls will be able to go to bowling alley weekly and the tablishment will be reserved clusively for their use. Since students will be eligible to ticipate in these and any Outing club activities, all fu plans will be announced in vocations.

Annual Youth Meeting Ends Sunday Noon

Thomas Warns Us "Learn To Live on Earth as Human Beings"

Students Get Varied Views From Guest Speakers

Concluding a week-end of speeches, panel discussions, and seminars, the annual youth conference, sponsored by the Florida Chain of Missions, ended here Sunday. The discussion Sunday morning preceding the worship program was to analyze the knowledge and concepts of "Problems in Christian World Citizenship" gained from the entire program.

"We've learned to fly as birds, to swim as fish; now all that remains is for us to learn to live on the earth as humans," stated Dr Winburn T Thomas, general secretary, in response to the welcome extended by Martha Jane Brown Friday night. "These meetings are to bring before us some of the problems we must face and lead us to the Christian solutions."

The problems of Christian World Citizenship brought out at the round table discussion Friday night included the need for stripping one's mind from all prejudices and biases, turning activities into action, living for the ideals rather than continually choosing between the lesser of two evils, and ridding the church of its inefficiencies and misconceptions. The faculty members who spoke were: Miss Martha Jane Leath, who is now working with migrants in Florida; Reverend Leonard Woodward,

Negro Students May Study Out of State

State Boards Give Approval Of Scholarship System

The State Board of Education and the State Board of Control recently approved a system whereby Negro college students, who are unable to secure courses at Florida A & M that are offered at the two state colleges, will be given scholarships to out-of-state institutions where those courses are offered, Dr Milton W Carothers, registrar, announced.

For example, he stated, a Negro student desiring training in pharmacy, which is impracticable to open at A & M, will be given, upon application, a scholarship to the institution of his choice in the amount of the difference between the tuition of the State college and the college he chooses.

Dr Carothers also announced that he and Mr R S Johnson, registrar for the University of Florida, are working at present to prepare a statement of areas in which Negro students are expected to apply for the scholarships. The first scholarships are to be awarded this spring.

Story of Pandora Opens Radio Series

The new series of children's plays to be given weekly by the Florida State College Radio Workshop was opened last night. The first of this series, "Pandora's Box" a radio adaptation of Nathaniel Hawthorne's story, "The Paradise of Children," was broadcast from the college studio over station WTAL Thursday evening at 9:15

With Sara Norman as announcer, and Carmen Peeples serving as narrator, the cast included Betty Shirley as Pandora, Kay Moore as Epimetheus, Mildred Williams as the Face, and Maxine Mears as the Fairy.

Music and sound effects were under the supervision of Sarah Doghtery, Sadie Campbell, and Bettye Usher. The control board engineers were Florence Bartleson, and Jane Woten. Anne Hunter was student director, and Miss Mary Tom Colonnes, instructor in speech, directed the production.

Council Meeting

Dr Doak S Campbell, president of Florida State College, announced that a meeting of College Faculty Executive Council has been called for today, for the purpose of consideration and possible action on the pending light flash bill.

The meeting of Executive Council has been delayed because of the absence of Miss Olivia Dorman, Dean of Students, who was recently called to Jacksonville due to the illness of her mother.

New Organization Takes Socialistic Slogan for Motto

Once upon a time a man went out to the chicken yard to feed the chickens, and the chickens came running up to him cackling as if they expected him to say something. So he grabbed a soap box and crowed to them, "Chickens of the world, unite!" This was the humble beginning of the "Chickens United Club" on the campus of the Florida State College.

After much deliberation it was felt by some of the students that there was a definite need for such an organization on this campus or at least a need for a new organization. Four deserving hens got together and decided to lay four eggs, equally deserving. These four hens and their one-third of a dozen eggs are too well known

AAUW Backs Florida Music

Compositions by Faculty Introduced Tuesday

A Florida program of music composed by faculty members of Florida State College and residents of the state of Florida will be presented by the Tallahassee Branch of the American Association of University Women in the Westcott auditorium on Tuesday evening, February 12, at 6:15.

Mr Owen Sellers, associate professor of cello and other orchestral instruments, will present an original composition, "Sonata in A major." Miss Lucille Wagner, associate professor of piano, will accompany him.

Dr Walter Ruel Cowles, professor of theory and director of the orchestra, will have his "The Shepherd to His Love" sung by Miss Patricia Millett, dramatic soprano. His "For All Saints" will be played by Mrs Ramona Cruikshank Beard, associate professor of organ, piano and theory, on the organ.

Mrs Beard will play her composition "Sortie" on the organ, and her composition, "Gale" will be sung by Miss Millett.

"It Is Enough," by Miss Margaret A Dunn, "Holy Song" (Winnebago Indian Folk Lore), and "Before Rain" (Navajo Indian Folk Lore) will be sung by Miss Millett. Miss Dunn will accompany Miss Millett on the piano for all of her numbers. Miss Millett will also sing "Curfew Song" and "Autumnal" by Miss Lucille Wagner, assistant professor of piano.

Miss Mary Esther Winslow, assistant professor of piano, will play "Romance in B minor" by Miss Gladys Koch, assistant professor of voice and solfeggio, "Epigrams" by Mr Karl Ahrendt, professor of the violin and theory now on leave of absence at the Eastman School of Music, and "Sonata for Violin and Piano" by Miss Olga Eitner, associate professor of violin and theory. Miss Eitner will play her composition on the violin. Another composition of Miss Eitner's, "String Quartet," will be presented by her on the first violin; Joy Little, sec-

Recent Poll Is Tabulated

Quarter System Favored By Upperclassmen

In the recent Flambeau poll conducted to determine campus opinion on semester and quarter systems, a slight majority in favor of the quarter system was evidenced among the voting upperclassmen while tabulation of the faculty votes showed a slight preference for the semester plan. A total number of 1296 persons voted in the poll, of which number 1230 were students and 66 were faculty members.

Many freshmen did not feel qualified to state an opinion since they had not attended college on a semester basis, but of the 391 voting, the quarter system was given a majority vote of 230.

Of the total upperclassmen vote of 839, 500 were in favor of a quarter system with the remaining 339 voting for the semester system thus giving the quarter plan a lead of 161 in student preference.

Students to Start Reserving Rooms

Girls Register by Classes February 26-March 7

Room reservations for the academic year 1946-47 can be made from February 26 to March 7 according to an announcement from Miss Edith McCollum, director of residence halls.

"If a girl is not certain of returning to Florida State College, it is wise to make the ten dollar deposit necessary to reserve a room now, for she can notify the director of residence before August 1 and receive a refund," Miss McCollum said.

Seniors will register on February 26 and 27; Juniors, from February 28 to March 2; and Sophomores, March 4 to 7.

The residence hall office will be open to receive registrations during the week from 9 to 12:30 in the morning and 2 to 5 o'clock in the afternoon. On Saturday, only the morning hours will be observed. "It is only during these hours that reservations can be made," the director emphasized.

In filling out the request for room reservation, preference will be given a girl if she desires the same room she now occupies, and if she registers at the correct time for her classification.

Senior Hall students are to indicate that preference on their applications during the Senior preference period, Miss McCollum said, as are those Juniors who desire to be freshman counselors, during the preference period.

Students wishing to live in sorority houses must file their re-

Tarpon Club History Gathered On Request of Grantland Rice

By WINNIE LANE

National attention has more than once been focused upon the Tarpon Club at Florida State College since its founding in 1936.

Recently a story of the development of the club was gathered together by Betty Jane Singleton, Tarpon president, upon the request of Grantland Rice, who has filmed their performances on several occasions.

A total of five movie "shorts" have been made, starting with a Grantland Rice Sportlight "Aqua Rhythms" made in 1939. Next came a Paramount news film of the girls when they swam at a University of Florida homecoming. A Tarpon performance at Wakulla in 1941 was incorporated into Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer "News of the Day," and again at Wakulla in 1942 Fox Movietone put the swimmers "on celluloid." The last movie spotlight featuring Tarpon performers was Grantland Rice's "Campus Mermaids" made just last summer. A great many students probably still retain vivid memories of that movie being shown here last fall.

"The primary aims of the club were to demonstrate techniques and promote interest in swimming, but these aims have evolved to the furthering of interest and the development of new techniques in formation swimming," said B J.

For the first four years of its "life" the Tarpon Club put on only one performance a year at FSC (on Thanksgiving homecoming weekend), but in 1940 they began staging one on May Day weekend also. The programs started as demonstrations of swimming strokes and techniques and have gradually advanced to performance of more difficult patterns and unique "aquabatics" done to music. Due to the fact that the seating capacity above the swimming pool in the FSC gymnasium is only 300, many repeat performances have been necessitated, and all who desired to attend have not always been able to do so.

The history of Tarpon presentations begins with the "Tournament of Carsail" in 1936, which included novelty races, a demonstration of the butterfly breast stroke by Kathryn Rawls, water clowns and special diving. In

Dealing With Postal Oddities Included in Postmaster's Task

By Paulette Blank

Among postal oddities perhaps some of the oddest occur in the Florida State College post office. Daily the contents flowing into nearly 978 boxes offer the post office staff with everlasting humor and surprises. When the mail rolls in, so rolls the panorama of human nature.

Never let us underrate the postmaster's task, for indeed, he has to be a great man. It is for him to decide to whom the letters belong which are addressed to "The most beautiful girl at FSCW," or to "The most dignified senior." One can, therefore, see that the postmaster is required to be a judge of beauty and character in connection with his many other duties. Adding to the postoffice perplexities are the march of names such as Pinky, Stinky, Flea, or Dusty replacing the more dignified tities with which the owners are endowed. The fact that the public seems to show a decided preference for such names as Frances Williams, there being three here at the present time, Jaunita Smith, Mariann Jones, and many others which are universal favorites offer additional stumbling blocks for the persistent postal servants. Each of these problems are intensified when the authors fail to put the box number in view or when they refrain from putting FSCW on the letter consequently making its destiny any one of three local postoffices.

Ah, but the weary postoffice crew have their compensations too. Not many people have the privilege of seeing an envelope decorated elaborately with a bathing

Soph Hop to Reveal Theme

Group Works on Event For Saturday Night

Theme of this year's Sophomore Hop will at last be revealed as the highlight of special entertainment at the annual event tomorrow evening from 8:30 until 12 o'clock in the gymnasium. Amid a background of valentine decorations, details of which are being kept secret, sophomores will dance to the music of the Harbor Crafters, a ten-piece band from Camp Gordon Johnston.

FSC's record of girl break dances may at last be broken at Sophomore Hop, according to Georgia Jaeckel, chairman of the bop. She reports that more than 200 boys from Gainesville and from nearby army camps have been invited to the dance as special guests of the sophomore class.

Tickets for the occasion will be on sale for the last time today from nine until five o'clock at a price of 50 cents, stag or drag. When a girl buys her ticket she may also obtain as many present cards as she wants to give to stag boys.

Faculty chaperons for Sophomore Hop include Dean and Mrs Karl G Kuersteiner, Dr and Mrs Ralph E Eyman, Mr and Mrs Owen F Sellers and Mr and Mrs Henry F Becker. Other special guests who will also be present at this occasion are Dr and Mrs Doak S Campbell, Dr and Mrs Harold F Richards and Miss Edith Lynn, who are the class sponsors, and other faculty members.

Expressional Masks Are Now on Display

An exhibit of original papier-mache masks made by the modeling class under the direction of Miss Cynthia Reeves, instructor in industrial arts, is now on display in the Longmire auditorium. "The exhibit is principally for the Spanish teachers who are meeting on campus this weekend," said Miss Reeves. However, the students are invited to visit the display.

The instructor was especially pleased with the mask made by Dorothy Dekle. It is original in that only convex and concave planes are used to form the facial features. To emphasize the simplicity, Dorothy has used only two colors in painting it.

All of the girls tried to express a mood in their work. Some of the noticeable ones include: "Death" by Sue McCurdy done in blue and lavender; "Murder" by Margaret Chewning shown by the use of many lines and colors; "Happiness in Horror" by Rose Baisden, who used bright colors over exaggerated facial features to express her mood; "Despair" by Jackie Jones done in off colors with a sad facial expression, and the "Two-Faced Man" by Catherine Ficcio, who made her theme obvious by using different colors on the two sides of the face.

Other students having masks in the exhibit are: Betty Shores, Jacqueline E Daughtry, Mary Lopresti, Marion Najarion, La Vera Roop, and Catherine Campbell.

Five Initiated

Five new members have recently been initiated into Gamma Sigma Epsilon, national chemistry honorary, according to Theo Brown, president of the organization. Original songs and poems provided entertainment for the new initiates at a party given in their honor following initiation ceremonies.

The new initiates include Josephine Dawkins, Martha Powers, Mercedes Hernandez, Anne McDonald, and Juanita Nord. In charge of refreshments for this occasion were Joyce Funke, "Teeny" Langston and Trigg Thompson.

Marion C Phillips Scholarship Given

Dr Walters Creates Fund in Memory of FSC Graduate

The creation of the Marion C Phillips memorial scholarship to Florida State College was made public through all Florida papers on February 2, the first anniversary of the death of Lt Phillips in the line of duty during World War II. Lt Phillips who was in the Army Nurses' Corps, is the only one of more than 400 FSC alumnae in the armed services who lost her life in the war.

Dr Hilda Jane Walters of Frostburg, Maryland, who is also an alumna of FSC, created the memorial fund, which consists of a gift scholarship of $250 annually. It is the first gift scholarship to be administered by the Alumnae Association and is to be available to sophomores, juniors or seniors, preferably those majoring in physical education or sciences, the subjects in which Marion was interested. Students interested in obtaining benefits of the fund should make application to Miss Louise G Gehan, Alumnae Secretary.

Lt Phillips received her B S degree in education from FSC in 1932. She majored in physical education and was president of the Woman's Athletic association during her senior year. She was one

Stories Published In Newspaper News

Two feature articles by students of Florida State College were published in the January issue of the Florida Newspaper News. The stories were: "The Women Take Over," by Janet Rogers; and "A Preacher Looks at Sports," by Peggy Kay.

Janet wrote about the Sunday issue of the Tallahassee Daily Democrat which the journalism students of Florida State College for Women have published annually for the past sixteen years. Her story also appeared in the Sunday News-Democrat, in Tallahassee, February 3, 1946.

"From the editor down to the lowliest green reporter, all regular positions on the Democrat staff are filled by the corresponding staff members of the Flambeau," the story says. "All advertising and its management as well as the wire of the Associated Press come under the supervision of the Flambean staff for a day."

The Revernd E C Jackson, according to Peggy's article, "is an all-round athlete, sports writer and preacher, who preaches as much—if not more—Gospel in the boxing arena, on the baseball diamond or football field than he does from th pulpit. In consequence, he gets better results and does from the pulpit. In consequence Lord than would otherwise be possible."

Vance Heads PTA

Mr Earl L Vance, associate professor of English and journalism at Florida State College, was elected on the recommendation of a nominating committee to the presidency of Tallahassee's newly-formed Parent-Teachers' Association.

The recommendation was made on Tuesday night at a meeting of the PTA in the Leon High School building.

Trial Light Privileges Will Begin

College Council Approves Experiment to Last Year Period

Housemeetings Will Present Plan to Students

Senate's recommendation for extended light privileges was approved by College Council as a trial experiment for upperclassmen with the understanding that CGA Executive Council was to formulate a plan for the one-year period to begin next quarter. The Executive Council plan for operation was passed at the Senate meeting Wednesday afternoon in the Longmire auditorium, and has been returned to the College Executive Council for final action.

The proposal is to present the plan to students through house meetings. Under the proposed plan extended light privileges will go into effect in the third quarter of 1946 and, if successful during the succeeding year, status will be changed to permanent in May, 1947. Success or failure is to be judged upon checks for abuse in the dormitories and monthly infirmary checks to determine any change in patient-hours as compared to a year without the privilege.

Reasons given for the exclusion of freshmen were that a consistent period of orientation must be maintained in this respect as well as in others, and that there is a greater need in the freshman year

Brotherhood Week Is February 15-22

Director of Christian, Jewish Conference to Speak

National Brotherhood Week, an observance for the purpose of creating better understanding between the various religious groups, will be held on the Florida State College campus the week of February 15 through 22. Rabbi Alex J Goldman is to be the chairman of the week's program.

the whistle is "Chickery Chick."

Dr William A Ryan, Armed Services director of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, will spend three days during the week lecturing and speaking to various classes and brotherhood meetings. Dr Ryan, a native of Virginia, was educated at Johns Hopkins university and the Union Theological Seminary. Before his association with the NCCJ, he served parishes in Baltimore, Pittsburgh, Richmond, and Greenville.

Committees representative of the various denominations on the Religious Workers Council will make arrangements and plan the program in cooperation with the Interfaith committee of the B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation. Representatives from the various church groups and their duties are as follows: Presbyterian, Margaret Cockrell, in charge of arranging

First Lost and Found Auction Nets Profit for Building Fund

By ALICIA ARMSTRONG

"Five, fifteen, twenty-five!" Numerical cries from over fifty eager bidders zoomed high last Monday night as buyers at the auction in the auditorium of the Longmire building vied for dozens of unclaimed lost articles. The auctioneer, red-haired Catherine Gallager, held each article high and called for opening bids at the first auction of this school year which netted $56.65.

Calls of "umbrellas," "fountain pens" and "more jewelry" were hurled at the auctioneer as she stood hesitantly under the bright light of a huge lamp on the long article laden table.

"Do you have any gold wings?" asked a pretty little sweater girl in the fourth row back. The auctioneer raised an eyebrow, then turned her back to the crowd showing shoulder without any kind of sprouts.

One blonde on the back row upped the bid on a plastic cigarette case from 10 to 35 cents. "Come and get it!" cried the happy auctioneer. The blonde with a puzzled expression turned to the girl sitting next to her and inquired, "What is it that I've bought?" Her informer smilingly replied "Why a cigarette case."

"Gh," exclaimed the surprised blonde, "I thought I was bidding for a lighter!"

But the girl who won first place at the auction was freshman Margaret Schneider, the busiest buyer present. Margaret walked away with a splash print scarf, a rain hat, mittens, a little navy blue cap, a flash light, and two fountain pens. "And all I wanted," said she sighing unhappily, "were the fountain pens. You see, I write backwards. Then, too, I wanted to stock up on pens, for I'm forever losing them." Then why did she buy five unwanted articles? Well, now, that's a question for a psychological expert.

At one time during the excitement a feeling of resentment swept the bidders as the auctioneer continued to up bids without higher calls from the buyers. "$1.25," called a girl who was bidding on a lovely aquamarine coat. "$1.30, $1.30," cried the auctioneer, "who will make it $1.40."

"But who has hid $1.30?" inquired the original exasperated bidder. "Our silent bidder," answered the auctioneer pointing to a lady on the front row who was

Conference Begins Today

Discussions Will Concern Teaching of Spanish

Florida State College and the State Department of Education are joint hosts for the conference on teaching Spanish which is being held today and tomorrow on campus. The meeting includes representatives from the American Association of the Teachers of Spanish and the Inter-American Center of Florida.

The first meeting is scheduled for this afternoon at 2 o'clock with Thomas Morgan from the State Department of Education acting as chairman. Welcoming speeches will be made by President Doak S Campbell, and a representative from the State Department of Education.

The program will deal with the discussion of the need of coordinating efforts in teaching Spanish in Florida. Dr Arthur R Seymour, professor emeritus of modern languages, will give a summary of the progress in this field to date.

Mrs Angela Paloma Campbell of Rollins College will lead a group

Student Elections Schedule Revealed

At the regular monthly house meeting last Tuesday night, a representative from the Executive Council announced that the student elections will be held in two parts this year with the petitions and qualifications turned in this quarter. Elections will be held third quarter and installation of the newly elected officers will take place in May. Training classes for students who wish to enter the race will begin February 16, and all petitions and qualifications will be due March 5.

Another announcement which concerned the entire student body was the plea from the World Student Service Fund for persons who did not pay their pledges in December to give now. The need for money for this cause is even more critical today and the pledges should be met.

Concert to Be Next Thursday In Westcott

Sellers Will Conduct Band, Cooper Will Assist In Directing

Program in Three Sections Is to Be Presented

The band of the Florida State College will present its annual winter concert on Thursday, February 14, in Westcott auditorium a' 8:15 p m.

This will be the first concert given under the direction of Mr Owen F Sellers, associate professor of cello and other orchestral instruments, at FSC since the spring of 1942. It will also be the first appearance of Miss Charlotte Cooper, instructor in instrumental public school music and assistant to the band master, as assistant conductor. She will conduct all of the numbers in the third section of the program.

The first section of the program will be: Overture "Daphnis" by C E Holmes; "Komm, Susser Tod" by Bach, arranged by W G Leidzen, and "Semper Fidelis" by J P Sousa. These numbers will be conducted by Mr Sellers. The second section will have "Atlantic Zephyrs" by Cardell-Simons played by Beryl Taylor on the trombone and Margaret Dunn on the piano. "Rustic Beauty" by J Ord Hume will be played by a brass quartet composed of Betty Jean Allen, first cornet, Mercedes Futch, second cornet, Annetti Vitsky, French horn, and Frances Clopton, trombone. Sidney Conner on the alto saxophone and Virginia Sewell at the piano will play the "Song of India".

The entire third section, conducted by Charlotte Cooper, will be composed of the "American Patrol" by F M Meadram, the "Triumphal March" from Peter and the Wolf by S Prokofieff and "Black Eyes" by Harry Horlick and Gregory Stone. The "Triumphal March" will be narrated by Beryl Taylor. The introduction is adapted and condensed from the original score by Beryl and the members of the FSC band. It tells the story of little Peter's adventures on a summer's day.

The fourth section which will be conducted by Mr Sellers, includes the "Washington Post March" by J P Sousa, "Escapada" by Sid Phillips, "Little Red Caboose" by Deke Moffitt, featuring a vocal trio composed of Laura Simpson, Ruth Kennedy, and Hazel Clarkson, and "King Cotton" by J P Sousa. Ann Richardson, drum major, Betty La Bree, Shirley Bates, Kitty Chaires, and Patricia Ellis, majorettes, will be featured in the "King Cotton" number.

Second WSSF Drive Collects Only $61

Sixty-one dollars and forty-six cents of the original seven hundred dollars pledged by students to the World Student Service Drive was contributed this week, according to Lola Miller, acting chairman of the WSSF, as the drive closed yesterday at five.

The original pledge of thirteen hundred dollars fell short by seven hundred dollars when the drive began last November. Students were offered a chance to make up their pledge this week and contribute money to be used for hospitalization, clothing, food and materials for study for students in the war-ravaged countries.

Students Send Art Work to State Fair

Twenty-one students from the art department of Florida State College will have examples of their work on display at the State Fair to be held at Tampa next week, according to Mrs Beatrice B Williams, professor of art.

Those students sending pieces to the exhibit are: Mary L Fowler, Jackie Magee, Jean Sharer, Jane Ingalls, Louise Carr, Ina Jo Wrench, Sara Boswell, Nell Hawkins, Marjorie Wadley, Marjorie Brown Mart Bene, Arlie Frink, Artemis Skevakis, Cora Lea Wells, Jane Lyles, Dorothy Mayhew, Elizabeth Troop, Jean Leslie, Mary Elizabeth Knight, Frances Traxler and Marion Cross.

Appropriations Are Granted

College Heads Meet With Budget Commission

Dr Doak S Campbell, president of Florida State College, stated that at a meeting of the presidents of the three state colleges with the State Budget Commission, several appropriations were granted for new and reconditioned construction on campus.

Dr Campbell, Dr John S Tigert, president of the University of Florida, and Dr R S Gray, president of the Florida A & M college, participated in the conference.

Tuesday Dr Campbell reported that, "the Budget Commission and the Florida Improvement Commission today set aside funds for the following: the construction of the north wing of the physical education building, the rehabilitation of Bryan hall, and the construction of a new music building. Funds have already been appropriated for the construction of the new dormitory, for which plans have already been drawn up. It is expected that contracts for this construction will be let within a few weeks."

The new wing of the physical education building is to resemble the wing which now houses the swimming pool, and will include facilities for eight bowling alleys which have recently been purchased. The main purpose of the new wing will be to increase the existing facilities of the gymnasium, since the present facilities are no longer sufficient for the use of the increased enrollment.

The construction of the music building represents one section of the building that is to be devoted to the department of music and the auditorium. Work on the buildings will begin with tha classrooms. The commission also released funds for buildnigs at the University of Florida nad at the Florida A & M college. One of the buildings planned for the University of Florida is a combination gymnasium, armory, and auditorium.

for home to school health adjustment.

A dual system of weekly room inspection between the hours of 12 and 2:30 a m in both off-campus houses and campus dormitories is planned. In the former all responsibility for the check is in the hands of the house chairman, and in the latter case the house president, floor chairman and proctors will be responsible for determining whether or not privileges are being abused in specific rooms.

During the discussion on this question it was mentioned that a cross-check between individual abuses and infirmary records would have to be made in order to have a valid basis for judgment.

Patty Lou Hill was nominated for off-campus committee chairman. Vote will be taken next Wednesday at senate meeting.

A recommendation from the Interns Committee that students interning out of Tallahassee be disqualified from holding certain offices was accepted by Senate after discussion. Officers under jurisdiction of such organizations as WAA are to remain so, and the problem resulting from interns' holding office would be handled by that organization. Major offices are affected by the change which was made.

The suggestions of the Organizations Committee which were approved by Senate incinded a revision in its organization, membership and the body to which it is responsible, changed from College Council to Student Senate. A second point was a revision in point loads in certain activities. Among the changes, the office of house president was increased to five points, and Tarpon Club membership was increased from one to two points in the first and third quarters. Senior hall and Village Vamps were removed from the point list. Those offices which were made three-point offices are chairman of Legislative and Codifying Com-

A discussion was carried over from Wednesday to Thursday pertaining to an Organizations Committee revision which made necessary a three weeks' advance notice from campus organizations to that committee when any program or project was to be held. After much discussion and an amendment concerning special cases, the regulation was approved by Senate on Thursday.

Also on Thursday at 5 o'clock, the report of the Codifying Committee was given, suggesting improvemants in the order of arrangement of rules and regulations. Senate accepted this report in its "general" sense. Discussion of the Legislative Committee's report was scheduled, but it was necessary to postpone that report until Senate meeting next Wednesday.

minister from Troy, Alabama; Dr Francis W Brush, missionary from the Philippines; and Mr Raymond Reese, Young Men's Christian Association secretary from Miami.

In speaking of the problems of Christian World Citizenship, Dr Thomas said that a missionary is sent to the foreign fields to preach Christ's way, yet when he attempts to practice his preachings in the United States, he is fired for being "a radical, a nigger-lover, and a communist".

Miss Leath, in discussing tha racial question in the South, stated that the prejudices peculiar to this section of the world have grown up due to lack of contact with various races. "We are responsible for what we let others decide for us as well as for what we decide for ourselves," she said.

The faculty forum Saturday morning on "Christian Solutions", was designed to show what the students can do to alleviate the problems of Christian World Citizenship. Work open to students in Florida and full or part-time work people in professions can do to foster the furtherance of social justice in the world was suggested by the faculty. The suggestions included working as church assistants and in the Bible schools, summer work in migrant camps, through clubs and organizations in the community, and foreign mission work.

At a business meeting immediately following the forum, leaders for next year were elected. Co-chairmen from FSC, succeeding Martha Jane Brown and Peggy Lou Thomas, will be Dahlia Santos and Joyce Carlton. Co-chairmen from the university, succeeding Pat Cleveland and Len Jones, will be Herbert Costen and Bob Carter.

Two rounds of seminars were presented Saturday on the subjects which students indicated last year that they would like to have included. These mainly concerned the part the student could play in Christian World Citizenship.

The first round on Saturday morning consisted of "Foundations for World Citizenship" led by Reverend Woodward. "We are part of a whole," he said. "We must remember that whatever happens to any other part effects us."

"Facing World Problems in Florida" was the topic discussed by Mr Reese and his group. In close connection was "Making World Citizens of Migrants", led by Miss Leath.

On the foreign field were "Christianity's Prospects in the Far East", with Dr Brush as its leader, and "Can We Live With Japan?" directed by Dr Thomas.

Subjects of the afternoon round of faculty-student seminars were: "Bases for Interracial Understanding" led by Miss Leath; "Opportunities for Fulltime Christian Service" by Dr Thomas; "Personal Religious Living" by Dr Brush; "Practical Approaches in Florida" by Mr Reese; and "How to Choose a Vocation; Work for Laypeople" by Reverend Woodward.

The Sunday morning worship program was highlighted with a talk by Dr Brush giving his experiences as a missionary in the Philippines and of his years in Japanese prison camp in which he was interned for refusing to sign a document the Japanese considered important. He remarked that there is a need for Christianity on the other side of the world, but that other side may be across the street.

Anauta's speeches Saturday afternoon and evening presented her first impressions of the North American way of life. Saying that she had never heard of the United States until she landed here quite by accident, she told of her vastly different life in Baffin Island.

"There," she said, "we have not heard the story of Christ but I do not consider that we are heathens because, though we do not pray or have worship programs, we practice the doctrines of Christian living."

After the Eskimo's talk, a play, entitled "Ba Thane" was presented by Sara Lewis and her dramatic group. The presentation was based on an experience of a missionary in India and emphasized the part that home churches need to play in furnishing money and supplies for those missionaries in the foreign fields.

Those who registered for the conference attended a banquet Saturday night which was held in the East dining hall. All ministers from town were invited to attend the banquet as well as other guests.

In concluding the discussions with the student panel "Where Do We Go From Here?" Dr Thomas recommended that all students read Lincoln Steffens' Autobiagraphy

Louis Adamic Book Is Display Theme

The display in the reception room of the library this week is centered around Louis Adamic's latest book, A Notion of Nations. Miss Alma Lester put up the display with a lending hand from several students.

In the display case there are objects from different foreign countries. There are some pieces of Italian and Armenian jewelry, Armenian and Greek linens, an Armenian coffee pot and comb, and some handmade gloves and a handkerchief from Syria.

On the right hand side of the case is the book, A Notion of Nations, which deals with the many groups of different nationalities in this country and what they've contributed to the country's civilization and culture.

Meeting to Be Held For Day Students

All day students are urged to attend the meeting this afternoon at 5 o'clock in the lounge of the Student Alumnae building. Daphne Rowe, president of the day students, announces that plans for going to camp on the weekend of March 2 and 3 will be discussed at this time.

Since only 20 girls can go to camp, all those interested must sign up at the meeting. Frances Wheeler, social chairman, will appoint the committees for camp.

Also to be discussed are the Day Students' picture and page for the Flastacowo. The picture is to be taken Tuesday, February 12, at 5 o'clock.

discussion on "Why Teach Spanish in Florida" and the "Aims in High Schools and Colleges."

At 4:30 Friday afternoon the members of the Sigma Delta Pi, Spanish honorary, will serve as hostesses to the conference at a reception in the main lounge of the Longmire building.

A visit to the Inca Museum for all those who are interested, will be conducted at 5:30 p m.

Dr R L Eyman, dean of the School of Education and professor of education, will be the toastmaster for the dinner at 7 p m at te Cherokee Hotel. At this time there will be brief reports on the progress of Inter-American education by Mrs Leone S Eccles, from Jacksonville; Father S J Cook, from Miami; Dr O N Hauptman, from Gainesville; Miss Thelma Barrow, from Tampa; Mrs Angela Campbell, from Winter Park; Thomas M Morgan, representative from the Inter-American Center of Florida; and Miss Ruth Campbell, from Tallahassee.

Following the dinner there will be a meeting on audio-visual aids which will be led by Dr Myra L Yancey, associate professor of education. Dr Yancey will show various aids used in teaching Spanish. These will include color slides on Latin America, Spanish sound-track films, film on teaching Spanish, and victrola records used for teaching purposes in ear-training. Father Cook will lead the group discussions.

Saturday morning Mrs Eccles will be chairman of the conference. Miss Carmen L Rivera, assistant instructor in Spanish, will speak on the teaching of English in Puerto Rico. There will also be a discussion on the possible activities of the American Association of Teachers of Spanish. These activities will include: the formation of a joint committee of high school and college teachers to work on the coordination of work in the high schools and colleges, scholarships for Spanish-speaking students, creation of a language service center, teacher training, and a new textbook for high schools.

Those who were in charge of preparations for the conference were: Miss Marjorie S Judy, instructor in modern languages, chairman for housing; Dr Dorothy S Hoffman, associate professor of Spanish and French, chairman of entertainment; Dr Margie Burks, professor of Spanish, chairman of resolutions and recommendations; and Thomas M Morgan, general chairman, assisted by Dr Yancey.

Squirrel Prefers To Live in Palm

Broward has a new inhabitant with a scurrying about and a rustle of leaves, she announced her arrival a few days ago and at the same time flaunted her eccentric ways before amazed Browardites who collected to observe her preparations for homemsking.

Passers-by about this time may have thought that the astronomy class had discovered some new sky phenomena. But those who lingered to watch soon learned that the girls were merely craning their necks to see Broward's little mascot, who prefers palm trees to pines and has chosen to live in a tall one in front of that dormitory.

As one Browardite boasted to another, "We have a squirrel with a mind of her own."

Summer School

Announcement concerning registration for summer school has also been released from Miss McCollum's office. "In order to make a room reservation for either or both sessions of the 1946 summer school, one must file the request for room reservation form, with a deposit of three dollars, in the Residence Halls office," Miss McCollum said.

Registration for summer school can be done between February 7 and 25, and after March 7. Assignments will not be made until after May 15. Refunds can be made, in case of cancellations only if the cancellation reaches Miss McCollum by May 15.

In making a request it is necessary to note that Landis will be used for mature students entirely. The building in which undergraduate students will be housed will be determined by the repairs necessary.

"During summer school you may occupy a double room as a single room by paying an additional fee. For the first session it is six dollars, and for the second session, five," Miss McCollum explained.

"If you do not wish to occupy a double room as a single room you will be responsible for securing a roommate at the end of the first week of the session. We will be happy to help anyone do this," she added.

Deadline Set for Faculty Art Show

February 15 is to be the deadline for handing in articles for use in the faculty art exhibit to be held in the Longmire auditorium from February 22 to 28. Sydney T Snow, museum director, said that both original pieces and collections of objects of art value would be used in the display.

Each faculty member may enter one to three pieces of original work in each or any of the fields of painting, graphic arts, modeling, carving, sculpture, crafts, and photography.

According to Mr Snow, the collections of art will be displayed in the museum on the top floor of the Longmire building, and since it will be necessary to make special arrangements for exhibiting these articles, he asks that the faculty members turn them in to him as soon as possible.

Miller Tells Club Of War Experiences

The monthly meeting of the Home Economics Club was held Thursday evening, February 7, in the Rowena Longmire auditorium. Barbara Irving, junior representative, was in charge of the program which featured Miss Mary M Miller, instructor in foods and nutrition, as guest speaker.

Miss Miller spoke upon her experiences in Italy while serving as a medical dietitian during the war. She is a graduate of Florida State College and was president of her class of 1937. From Hopper Hospital in Detroit she went overseas with a medical unit and spent two and one-half years in Africa and Italy.

Refreshments and a social hour followed the meeting. Barbara McKinney was in charge of refreshments.

Tarpon Club History

1937 there was a pageant exhibition of strokes and diving. Pattern formations were used for the first time in 1938, and the next year Tarpon Club presented a pageant called "Zulder Zee Zig Zag," a water skit depicting the life of the Dutch.

"Water We? Americans!" a patriotic pageant, was given in the fall of 1940. The use of body lights was introduced the next spring in a water circus called "Under the Big Top." The fall performance in 1941 was "Rhythmic Ramblings," an imaginative tour of Miami, Havana, Panama and Hawaii, using music typical of these places. The girls swam to the theme of "Poetry in Motion" in 1943 with such numbers as "Dancing in the Dark" for music.

"We nearly drowned in mermaids' tails," said B J of the spring performance in 1944. For "Mermaid Fantasy" they concealed a throne under the water and hauled it up when the Queen of Mermaidland was crowned. In direct contrast to that theme was the "Winter Wonderland" program given the tnext fall. The girls then used a five pointed star pattern to denote the Christmas star, and introduced ballet kips and reverse ballet kips. The rhumba stroke and the Miami crawl were used for the first time in Tarpon performances.

The most recent occasion on which Tarpon Club exhibited their unique skills was the "Garnet and Gold" presentation last fall, depicting phases of life on campus with formations honoring the different organizations using their theme songs.

These highly interesting and novel themes for such varied performances come from suggestions submitted by all club members from time to time. The suggestions are discussed as to singular effectiveness, music, decorations, and general suitability, and final touches are put on when they begin the "water test" of a contemplated program. Recordings are chosen by club members for musical accompaniment to fit a chosen theme.

Blue for the water which is their "native habitat" and white for its foam are the colors of Tarpon Club. They chose that name because of the skill and grace for which the namesake fish is noted.

Workshop Tryouts Held Each Monday

Those students interested in having auditions for the radio workshop, or who have script ideas they would like to see produced, will be welcome to come for tryouts every Monday at 5 p m, in room 407, History building, announced Miss Mary Tom Colones, speech instructor and director of the radio workshop at Florida State College.

Students who wish to work with sound effects or music will have an opportunity to take part in a show by reporting at the same time, said Miss Colones. Those students unable to come at the specified tryout hour may contact Miss Colones in her office, 108 History building, from 11 until 12 on Monday, or from 12 until 1 on Tuesday.

beauty or an airmail stamp which has been elaborated on very artistically until the wings extend down into the letter proper. Some correspondents' tastes run in the funny-paper line, and, therefore, "Mutt and Jeff" and their fellow comics are not deprived the privilege of appearing in this postal parade. While some writers' talents run to art, there are others who are latent writers, and they do not hesitate to display evidences of this on their letters. "If this letter is not delivered within five days, try like h--- to deliver it on the sixth," "Don't drop or you'll break the news," and "If this letter is not delivered please don't return it to me, for I've already read it," are included on these epistles. Certainly it must be things like this that impress the postmaster with the true wit of humanity.

After hearing these anecdotes one can easily understand that there is no limit to the possibilities which will soon be ushered in with the Valentine tide. In all these types and descriptions of correspondence, the whimsical and fantastic allusions will be numerous and varied. Valentine Day heralds the approach of extra problems, labor, and laughs, but that is the life of the FSC post-office.

Catherine Gallager answered the girl in whispers, then finally called to her "Why in the world don't you talk out loud?" She has laringitis explained the roommate who from then on acted as proxy for Miss Speechless.

The most popular item at the auction was kerchiefs or head scarfs. Many umbrellas, some intact, some with tiny holes were sold. Jewelry, including many bracelets with names like "Ruth" on one side and "Johnny" on the other were sold. When the auctioneer held up a shiny little silver bracelet and called out the engraved inscription, a girl suddenly jumped up and shouted, "Gay? Did you say Gay? Why that's me!" She bought her namesake for a nickel.

From 7 to 10 o'clock last Monday these numerous lost articles found new owners. The $56 65 sale total will be turned in to the business office to be deposited in the Longmire building fund.

members of the faculty directly concerned with academic instruction resulted in only 75 of these being returned. Tabulation of these 75 indicated a two-vote preference for a semester system, with 34 in favor of the semester plan and 32 preferring a quarterly division. Nine members of the faculty returned the ballots with a statement to the effect that they did not wish to show a preference at this time.

Student ballots were further tabulated according to classification, indicating in each class a slight preference for a quarter system. In this division senior votes numbered 137, 76 of which were checked for a quarter system and 61 for a semester system. Juniors chose a quarter system, casting 132 votes in its favor against 99 for a smester plan, totaling 231. Sophomores voting gave a quarter plan preference of 10 votes, 178 to 168.

In spite of precautions, 142 ballots were submitted unmarked as to classification and could not thus be tabulated in any class total. This group, however, showed a semester preference by a vote of 76 to 66 and two graduate students indicated that they preferred a quarter system.

At the lower part of the ballot where provisions were made for comments and suggestions, the comment most often made in the cases of those favoring a quarter plan was that the quarter system under which FSC is now being operated needs many revisions. The revision suggested the most frequent number of times was the discontinuation of classes during the period in which examinations are given. The main reasor given by students for preferring a quarter system is thet examinations are completed before the Christmas holidays begin.

Other comments made by persons favoring a semester system were that under the quarter system in effect here, a feeling of pressure and the time element not advantageous to learning were present, and that they did not prefer to have the school year divided into three parts rather than two for the same reason.

Interested in weekends at camp, bamburger fries, trips Wakulle. picnics and life in the great outdoors? If the swer is yes, all of these things are in store for those who gn up on the bulletin board in lower Westcott for Outing ub excursions. Only slight interest has been shown in the gs planned this year by Outing Cluh which is headed by marene Thompson and Mary Caley. Outinga in tho past ve had to be cancelled because too few aigned up to make trip a success.

The number one purpose of the club la to arrange outings everyone on campua who is interested. It is not a group ich requirea membership to go on trips. Simply aigning up appearing on the day the trip is planned will get a student in for an afternoon of fun and healtby recreation. In the st Halloween afternoon suppers on the hill, truck trips to tural Bridge, jaunts to the ligbthouse near St Marks, hayides, early morning breakfasts, picnics, fish fries and loads other things have been planned for your enjoyment.

But after all, they do need some people to enjoy the ps after the girla in the Outing Club bave spent time and fort planning them. If you're interested, cooperate by gning up!

EN VOLLEYBALL PERSONALITIES . . .

Each week from now till time for the Odd-Even games March 2, this column will carry sketches of some of the rls out for tho various aports. Today it's the Even volleyball team and these are just a FEW of the many outstanding players that I saw while watcbing the EVENS practice s week.

First comes SARAH BENNETT . . . Even leader . . . would seem funny to apeak of the volleyball team without ving Sarah B.'a name connected . . . this is her second year leader. She is called Mother Bennett by her players wbo themselves as ber children . . . A tall blonde senior with e eyes. Sarah worries often about her children and in that ocess ahe successfully ruffles ber bair . . . a good bargain der. MARION FLOYD . . . tall, hrunette sopbomore . . . sy going . . . dependable player . . . a demon on the front ne for spikes provided ahe gets off the ground . . . CANDY NES . . . English and Southern accent . . . excellent set-up an good serve with a spin on it . . . blonde sophomore volleyball her favorite sport. JEAN KOESY . . . Jean's senior . . . thia is her third year out . . . has made team ce sophomore year . . . very easy going . . . coal black bair. YCE GARMAN . . . One of the most outstanding players spikes well . . . dependable . . . excellent server . . . able . . . ELAINE GAVIGAN . . . Dynamite comes in all packages . . . leaps bigh . . . good apiker . . . she'a a wicked serve . . . DINK ASHTON . . . tall, thin . . . kes ball with great ease and poise as if dancing . . . aports amond on third finger left hand . . . a senior who has made am since fresbman year.

VIRGINIA BUDD, GEORGIE JAECKEL, DOT MIMS. EP STANALIN, JEAN "BONES" BENNETT, are more od sophomores who are doing well. But the surprise of the ear is So Sissy Sad Sack Martha Jane Brown wbo is out for olleyball. Martha Jane, or PB as she is called, is one of the arter members of that bonored organization whicb is ather inactive this year. Trying to recover the ball from the t the other day, Martha Jane practically did a dive right to the net. Ob well, these Sad Sacks will do anything to ow their talent.

All in all the Even team is ahaping up well but there is enty cf room for improvement by all players out.

Next week we'll take the Odd volleyball team and tell bout them . . . so wa'll see you then.

Flowers Are Only Product of Garden, New Cut Flower Being Trie dThis Year

By FRANCES TRAXLER

Early last Tuesday morning Mr P Herndon, nurseryman at orida State College, was approached in his sanctuary, the llege garden, by a Flambeau reporter. It was the beginning of a autiful day, just eool enough r Mr Herndon to be comfortable his leather jacket. He was anding beneath trees from which ed deafening birdsongs, overing the work of three helpers. Mr Herndon,' the reporter said, came down here late yesterday ernoon to look for you, and the rden was just as lovely as it is s mornin I wonder if you ways have as good a time as you em to be having now."

Mr Herndon laughed, and one uld see he did enjoy his work, though he made the five-year d complaint, "It keeps me busy l day watching this inexperienced help you get now."

When asked when flowers would art blooming, Mr Herndon said at larkspur begins tha spring ason the middle of this month, d efter that there will be flowers in profusion. Mr Herndon is ying out for the first time a new ant, to be used as a cut flower, lled scabiousa, or "pincushion." t ranges in color from white to most black, he said. "We're also ying to go pretty heavy on asters is year,' Mr Herndon said, "and u'll never get rid of marigolds d zinnias. They're so dependable," be laughed.

"I remember when there used be lots of carrots over there," e reporter said, pointing to here "the Lodge" now stands. "Yes," said Mr Herndon. "That as before I came here two years o We've decided that the ding hall can buy vegetables a whole heap cheaper than we can raise them."

Standine beside a delicate "baby bridal wreath," and beneath a white-blossomine pear tree, Mr Herndon said that it was not unusual for them to bloom this early, although he still looks forward to some of the winter's coldest weather.

Mr Herndon is tryine to raise enough calla and Easter lilies to be used as cut flowers, but he has planted them outside the hothouse this year and is uncertain of their future. "They burnt up when we planted them inside last year," he said. "The hothouse should be air-conditioned. In the summer the tempereture in there is 110 degrees every day, and some days it geis up to 120 degrees," he said. Mr Herndon, who has done nursery work in Texas, Mississippi, in Jacksonville, St Augustine, and Green Cove Springs, said he had never seen calla lilies grow as well as they did in a nursery near Jacksonville, where a natural spring spread over a large area, watering the lilies abundantly.

When the president's mansion is built across the street from the college garden, the garden will be moved to a site behind the heating plant, thus enlargine the college grounds, Mr Herndon said.

Senior Hall Meets

At the Senior Hall meeting held last Tuesday evening, an announcement was made of the party which Miss Elizabeth Lynn, director of Senior Hall, is giving for all members.

It is to be held this Tuesday evening, February 12, at first light flash. Senior hall girls are all cordially invited, Miss Lynn said.

Loyal Odds, Evens Keep Courts Going Full Swing as Class Games Draw Nigh

Amid blue jeans and shouts of loyal Odds and Evens, the volley ball courts are kept in full swing at five o'clock every afternoon with the constant practice of the two teams on alternate days.

Although the basketball court is like waxed floor the Odd and Even basketball teams continue practice daily, for the class games are drawing nigh.

These class games for volley ball and basketball will start the week of February 18, and the week before that will be a practice week of the classes. According to the leaders of the teams a player must bave twelve practice points and be in "A" health to take part in the clas games or the final games.

Sarah Bennett, Even leader, is a little worried about the shortage in the senior team, but after cooperation has been shown by Senior hall she thinks they will have a team even if not any substitutes. This shortage is due to the fact that a lot of the seniors are interning.

The Odd and Even swimming practices are still under way, and it won't be long now until March 1 when the Odd-Even meet will take place. A girl must meet the same qualifications as that of a basketball or volley ball participant. There are only about nine practices left. The National Telegraphic Swimming Meet will be held March 4 The swimmers who will participate in this meet will be chosen from the Odd and Even teams.

It's time once more to dust off and air those Even feathere and Odd caps, for the first of March is just around the corner.

Outing Club Plans Hamburger Fry Soon

Tentative plans for a hamburger fry and the welcome of five new members took place at the last meeting of the Outing Club on Monday afternoon in the Longmire building.

New members of the elub are Martha Hart, Kathleen Clark, Edith Goodman, Emily Chancey, and Katherine Condurelis.

Next Monday at 7:30 o'clock in room 402 of the Longmire building, Outing elub members will maka further plans for the fry at Lafayette park and will set a definite date. Announcements of the exact date of the hamburger fry will be made in Convocation and in the next issue of the Flambeau.

The Outing club also discussed plans for a week-end at camp which will be open to all interested students. The Outing elub plans outings for students about once every month.

Members of the elub in charge of preparation for the fry are: Amerene Thompson, president; Mary Caily, vice president; Evelyn Breedlove, chairman of the food committee; Rose Marie Ferro, chairman of publicity, and Charlotte Bourand, ehairman of the finance committee.

Tarpon Club Orders New Pin and Suits

Tarpon Club members are looking hopefully forward to getting new suits sometime in the near future, according to Betty Jane Singleton, president of Tarpon. The new swim suits, the first in several years, are to be navy blue with the traditional Tarpon emblem. They may or may not be received in time for the May performance, says B J.

Another "new" for Tarpon members is the sketch of their new pin which should be forthcoming soon. The sketch has been on order since last quarter.

Carothers Attends Meeting in Atlanta

Dr Milton W Carothers, registrar, acted as Florida's representative to a conference which was called by the Resources-Use Education committee for the purpose of setting up an ageney for the production of educational films. The conference took place yesterday in Atlanta, Georgia, with representatives from the southeastern states taking part in the conference

The fields covered in the planning, stated Dr Carothere, are "forestry, State Department of Education, conservation, and the like, in other words, those films to be used for educational purposes which will need special planning."

Dr Carothere returned to campus Thursday night, immediately after attending the conference.

New Course Given

A three-hour course in "Christian Culture" will be offered next quarter to all students who have the required prerequisite of two quarters of humanities. The class will be taught by Miss Anna Weber, instructor in philosopby and religion.

In previous yeare this course was offered by the departments of philosophy and religion. It was not given last year nor the first two quarters of this year.

Top Tunes Named In Playnight Contest

The top tunes of the week are "Symphony," "Boogie Woogie" (Tommy Dorsey), "Beulah's Boogie," "Tampico," "It Might As Well Be Spring,' and "Begin the Beguine," according to Shirley Duggan, chairman of the Playnight committee. These songs won top place this week in the contest Playnight is sponsoring to choose the students' favorite dance records. Each week the three winning records are to be bought for use at Playnight. Voting will take place during every Playnight and the votes will be allowed to accumulate so that anyone's choice may win at some time.

There will be no Playnight this Saturday night due to the Sophomore Hop, but everyone will have a ehance to nominate their favorites for the "Hit Parade" on February 16.

Magnolia Hall Wins Intramural Bridge

Nina Kinsey and Mary Elizabeth Hallen of Magnolia Hall defeated June McCurdy and Helen Gaines of Alpha Gamma Delta in the intramural bridge tournament played last week, reported Thresa Munroe, senior intramurals manager.

The tournament was played by the elimination system. Theresa said that this system does not accurately find the best bridge players on campus. "In the future," she said, "Culbertson's Rules of Duplicate Bridga will be used invariably for tha intramural tournament."

Of the numerous groups on campus, only seventeen turned out for the bridge games. "This is certainly not a very good showing," Theresa said.

The senior manager plans to hold a compulsory meeting Tuesday night after second convocation of all dormitory and sorority intramural managers in 405 Longmire building. Theresa asked that all juniors wishing to run for senior intramurals manager please attend. Before this meeting each dormitory and sorority manager will have chosen two girls to play in the golf intramurals, which will begin February 18.

Bellamy to Lecture

Dr Raymond Bellamy, professor of sociology, will be guest speaker at the Daytona Beach alumnae club meeting to be held on February 18 in Daytona Beach. While there Dr Bellamy will also address the girls of Mainland and Seabreeze senior high schools.

The arrangements for the club meeting program have been made by Miss Margaret Lingo, Florida State College alumna of the class of 1940, who is president of the Daytona Beach alumnae club.

Alpha Epsilon Delta Plans Get Underway

Pre-Med Honorary Decides on Key, Initiation Program

The Florida Beta chapter of the Alpha Epsilon Delta, pre-med honorary held a meeting Tuesday night at 8 p m in the Longmire building.

At the meeting the key for the club was decided upon, the program for initiation was prepared, and tha application forms for membership in the pre-medical club were discussed.

Jo Anne Whitaker was elected vice-president of the elub. She replaced Joyce Funke who was elected president when Sue Searcy left school. Sue was recently married and will continue her studies in Connecticut.

Pre-technicians are eligible for honorary membership said Joyce.

The purpose of the pre-medical honorary on campus is to promote interest in the medical progress of the day and to act as a link between the pre-medical and pre-technician students on campus. The membere will also endeavor to help students in the choice of courses which will be beneficial to them in their future studies.

After initiation the club hopes to plan programs which will follow the progress made in the medical world today and which will be of interest to the members.

As the Rains Come So Enter Brightly Colored Raincoats

The Rains Came may be the title of a book, but on this campus it's practically our theme song. The rainy season is definitely on the way, which rather naturally turns our thoughts to raincoats.

Do you remember when raincoats were more or less somber and definitely ugly things? Times have certainly ehanged for now girls actually look forward to a rainy day so they can wear their rain paraphernalia. It's no wonder for the raincoats today are really beautiful and an asset to any wardrobe.

There was a time when raincoats didn't have much shape at all. They just hung straight, and, well, they simply didn't have any character. But now, they're fitted with feminine sloping shoulders, tight waists and a soft fullness.

Gorgeous bright colors and lovely pastels have replaced the former drab hues and have done a lot to make them as attractive as they are. Fuchsias, yellows, limes and white certainly do a lot to lift one's spirit on a depressing day.

In addition to style and the riot of colors, materials are important now. Perhaps the most popular at present are the satin-finished ones. They gleam, look pretty and yet are quite capable of shedding the showers. Water-repellent processes make cottons, rayons, gabardines, and plaid ginghams shed water even in downpours. Nylon coats with a plastic finish are beginning to come out now and will undoubtedly be a big success as the fabric becomes more plentiful.

Play to Be Given

Noel Coward's Blithe Spirit, a play only recently released for amateur production, is to be presented by the speech department February 27, 28 and March 1. The play will be directed by Captain W L Dingwell, assistant professor of speech.

Blithe Spirit has been acclaimed a hit by critics in England and America, Captain Dingwell said. It played in New York for three years and is still running in London.

Recital and Faculty Trio To Highlight Music Events

The School of Music of Florida State College will present a certificate recital and a faculty trio program for students and faculty members this coming week.

Anne Daniel, mezzo-soprano, will give a certificate recital in the college auditorium tonight at 8:15. Miss Mary Esther Winslow, assistant professor of piano, will be the accompanist, and Edith Smith will assist on the organ.

In the first portion of the program, Anna will sing "O Rest in the Lord (Elijah)" by Mendelssohr and "Che faro senza Euridice (Orfeo)" by Gluck.

Edith will play "Fanfare" by Lemmons, "Song of the Basket Weaver" by Russell, and "Toccata" from "Suit Gohtique oy Boellman in the second portion of the program.

Anne will conclude tha program with "Grey Skies" by Harvey Gaul, "Where Corals Lie" by Edward Elgar, "I Know a Hill" by Benjamin Whelpley, "Prelude in March" by Oscar Rasbach, and "May-Day Carol" (English Folk Song, Essex) arranged by Deems Taylor.

The faculty trio will present its program Sunday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in the college auditorium. The trio is composed of Miss Mary Esther Winslow, piano, Miss Olga Eitner, violin, and Owen Sellers, cello.

Tha first portion of the program will contain "Pastorale" by Vivaldi and "Variations from Trio Opus 9" by Rachmaninoff.

The second portion will hava the "Sea Nocturne" by Kvalva, and "Valse Russe" and "Hornpipe" by Bridge.

"Trio opus 32" by Arensky will conclude the program.

Last Thursday the music department presented a student recital in Westcott auditorium. A brief program honoring the seventieth birthday of John Alden Carpenter was also presented.

Edith Smith played the "Song of the Basket Weaver" by Russell on the organ; Jane Gaertner played "Bells Through the Trees" by Garth Edmundson, also on the organ; Betty Joyce Owen sang "Autumn Leaves" by Jennie Prince Black, accompanied by Miss Lucile Wagner, assistant professo of piano; Sarah Ann Brameister sang "Do Not Go, My Love" by Richard Hageman, also accompanied by Miss Wagner; Eleanor Bragg played "Concert Etude" by MacDowell on the piano; and Ann Lindsey sang "In the Luxembourg Gardens" and "The Lamplighter" by Kathleen Lockhart Manning, accompanied by Eleanor Bragg.

In the John Alden Carpenter program, Emily Bridges sang "The Sleep That Flits on Baby's Eyes" accompanied by Eleanor Bragg; Daphne Rowe gave a talk on "The Life and Works of John Alden Carpenter"; and the audience sang "The Home Road", words and music by John Carpenter.

Last Friday the School of Music presented another certificate recital. Alice Wheeler, soprano, studio of Mrs Ramona Beard, presented the program. Ruby Dunstan, instructor in piano, was the accompanist.

Anonymous Interview Presents Views of Average FSC Student

Complications, in the form of coats and scarves for protection against the cold weather, beset your anonymous interview reporter this week in the search for the fifth girl wearing a red sweater to walk through the portals into the dressing room of the physical education building.

After patient waiting, weighing, and counting . . . one . . . what color sweater are you wearing today? . . . two, three . . . do you happen to have on a red sweater? No? . . . four . . . please, aren't you concealing a red sweater under that purple coat and white scarf? Oh, FIVE! Isn't that a sliver of red wool peaking out at your neck? It is? Then, you're it!

The victim turned out to be a typical freshman with typical answers, which is what this column is trying to present. She had long brown hair and equally long red finger nails. Red Sweater had crinkly, blue eyes which she crinkled along with her mouth as she said, "This is so embarrassing."

Her progress to her locker was strewn with clothes and questions. "I like Florida State College," she gushed. "I like everything about it!" I like the way it's organized and tha student government association. I was particularly impressed at the first of the year when Esteren and Spirogira members dressed up their green and white and black and white costumes and went through the dining halls tapping."

Miss Freshman does think that some of the rules at FSC overlap and some ara even unnecessary. She particularly objected to the rules concerning dating as being antiquated.

By this time, the FSC student had exchanged her bright red sweater for a dark brown gymsuit, and we were on her way to the tennis courts. She likes sports such as tennis, swimming, and dancing, with her favorite dance step being the waltz, which she "just loves." Her major is modern languages.

"I spend most of my spare time on campus at the soda shop or the Sweet Shop," she confided. Other spots which attract much of her time are the picture shows, Ruge Hall, and (her favorite spot on campus) the post office.

Artist Series in general and Marjorie Lawrance in particular have interested this student. This freshman liked the idea of having CGA forums and regretted that she could not attend the one last week. She did suggest that there should be more publicity about them and the topics should be of more direct concern to the young woman's place in the world.

One of her favorite hobbies is reading. She likes romances and Hallbauton's travel books. Also, she reads Reader's Digest and thinks Collier's magazine is especially good as an all around magazine.

Just as she was about to divulge her views on academic freedom—she had only time to say that she thought there was no lack of it at FSC—the tennis instructor came up and insited that our typical freshmen must stop her talking and begin playing the sport she loves to play.

Leathy in Buffalo

Dr Dorothy M Leahy, professor of home economics education, is attending a meeting of the American Vocational Association in Buffalo, New York. The meeting is a conference on planning research projects in home economics education which will be carried on cooperatively by various institutions.

Two Concerts To Be Given

Tickets for Both Series To Be Distributed

The Baltimore Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Reginald Stewart, will be an Artist Series presentation of the afternoon and evening of February 27. Students holding red series tickets may come to the 4:30 p m concert, and students holdine blue series tickets may come to the 8:15 p m concert. Distribution of tickets for both concerts will be from February 14 to 16, from 4 to 6 p m in the basement of the Longmire building.

The Baltimore Symphony Orchestra, which is said to be one of the most famous major symphony organizations in the western hemisphere, is 29 years old. In the personnel of the present orchestra nearly all of the first chair members are also members of the faculty of the Peabody Conservatory of Music in Baltimore, and each member has a following in that city in his particular field.

This year is the orchestra's fourth season under the direction of Reginald Stewart, who is also director of the Peabody Conservatory in Baltimore. Mr Stewart is a concert pianist, and has performed with major symphony orchestras in Europe, the United States, and Canada. He founded and was formerly leader of the Toronto Philharmonic Orchestra in Canada.

The orchestra's concert master and assistant condoctor is Ilya Schkolnik, concert violinist teacher, and head of the violin department at the Conservatory. Before coming to Baltimore two years ago he was concert master of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra for twenty-five years.

In its concerts at Florida State College, the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra will play "The Star-Spangled Banner" as it was originally written by Francis Scott Key. The music has been reproduced from the original score, published soon after the bombardment of Ft McHenry on September 14, 1814, which is in a collection belonging to the Maryland Historical Society.

Sociology Students Survey Tallahassee

The Urban Sociology elass is making a community study of Tallahassee by interviewing and by investigating fields of social work in the city. The class is investigating economic organizations, the political structure, education facilities, and religious organizations.

Another phase of the class project is the running of a public opinion poll of people in Tallahassee to get the residents' attitude as to class and caste set-up in the community.

Miss Bernice Moskowitz, instructor in sociology, who is supervising the project, stated that the purpose of the project was to relate the theoretical to a real life situation in a community.

A group of junior high school teachers and deans, meeting in Dade County in January, formed a permanent organization which will launch an offensive against racial and social intolerance in their county, according to a news story in the Miami Herald.

At the first meeting of the group, they heard Dr Marion Edman, of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, declare that the public school system is the means to the goal, which is to help children understand the bases of intolerance and learn to appreciate the good qualities of all groups.

It is, perhaps, significant that in at least one other recent instance, the words "education" and "racial intolerance" have been linked together in the news.

"New York City students, especially Jews, Catholics, and Negroes, are discriminated against by colleges and universities both in this city and elsewhere, it is charged in a report now being considered by the Mayor's Committee on Unity."

Thus runs the leading paragraph in a front page story in the New York Times of Wednesday, January 23, 1946. The report, as is explained in the Times, was prepared by fifteen prominent New Yorkers who make up a committee established by Fiorella LaGuardia two years ago for the purpose of ferreting out discrimination in institutions of higher learning.

This discrimination, the report says, is denied publicly by all the New York City schools, but "deans and prominent faculty members of many of these schools have admitted, privately and off the record, that discriminatory quotas do exist."

Several days following the January 23 item, the Times, in another front page story, declared that "indications . . . were that the Republican-controlled Legislature would yield to Democratic demands for public hearings on the bill to set up a $50,000,000 State university, introduced by Senator Francis A Mahoney, Manhattan Democrat, and Irwin Steingut of Brooklyn, minority leader of the Assembly." The introduction of the bill, the story continued, followed the disclosures of race discrimination in existing universities and colleges in New York City.

Editorializing on the significance of the report, Max Lerner, writer for the daily, PM, declared that a sense of outrage at the discrimination will not suffice, for although "the decent Americans will have gone through an emotional purge . . . the men in the seats of education power will sit tight . . . Their faces will be red and their consciences uneasy; but they will sit out the storm . . .

"It comes down to the question of action. In the end, as any successful teacher will tell you, you can only teach the things that you are. If we practice racism then it is racism that we teach—between every line of every book, in every intonation of every lecture. We have our choice: to act so that we teach racism; or to act so that we teach a heroic grappling with the tragic discrepancy between our professions and behavior in a democracy."

● FOR YOUR INFORMATION

In recent editions of the Flambeau the House Councils have been a topic of much discussion. Because I constantly work with the House Councils I feel the thinking of the student body needs to be clarified in regard to the thinking of House Council.

House Councils are for the purpose of preventing rule violation and for counseling with girls who have for various reasons committed a violation. Sometimes this counseling consists of talking the problem over with the girl and helping her to understand the rule and why it exists. Other times the counseling may result in restricting the girl in some way in order to make her think. In each case the Council seeks to discover why she committed the violation? What were the factors surrounding the violation? What in the girl's background may have been a contributing factor? How can we best help her as an individual? What is her responsibility to herself? What is her responsibility to her school? Sometimes a girl who may not see how she fits into group living may be asked to come to House Council to talk over her attitude. The Council then seeks to help her see how in living in a group certain individual wants and desires must be fitted into what is best for the larger group. Here the Council is seeking to improve the attitude of the girl before she does commit a violation.

Naturally when each case is considered individually there can be no "set" practice as to what the Council feels best for the girl and the group. You would not want, nor do we, a set practice for each rule violation. But seeing the girl as an individual the Council decides what it feels would best help the girl.

Rumors circulate about House Council, as they do about everything else, and they are believed by persons who fail to go to the people who could give them the facts. For instance, only this week a House Council was criticized when the rumor went about that the girls on one whole floor in a certain dormitory were "sent" to House Council for being out of their rooms after light flash. The rumor went further by saying that House Council after "hearing the case" of each girl decided to give the whole floor dance restrictions so the girls couldn't go to the Sophomore Hop. This story was growing and people without thinking were believing it and passing it on. The facts in the case were that four girls were asked to come to House Council because they were out of their rooms after third light flash and were disturbing others. House Council dismissed the case after discussing the situation with them and helping them to realize why we must have quiet when we live in a group. So in the future when you hear a rumor about House Council, stop and think; then go to the people who can give you the facts and set you straight.

In saying all of this I do not mean that I think House Councils are perfect. I'd be the last to admit that, but I do know that they are better than they have been in the past. I know also that they are constantly seeking to improve and as they receive your cooperation and backing they will improve even more.

● CONVOCATION IS OUT OF ORDER

It is evident, judging from all the vacant seats in the auditorium Tuesday nights, that something is wrong somewhere, either with convocation, the students, or the time element. Conversation as a whole indicates that students consider the hour session a waste of time, as it now stands.

Convocation, it is related to us, is supposed to have a two-fold purpose: (1) to make announcements, present speakers, and stage skits, (2) to create school spirit—a big, happy family feeling. Then there are those who say humorously, but honestly, convo serves as a time to write letters, knit, and to translate Spanish.

The first point is probably carried out successfully, but to a meager audience. Many students must rely on other students' reports of the session or read the CGA minutes (which incidentally are not changed weekly). This in itself indicates that convo is not as effective as it should be. The second point is a failure in regard to the entire student body. The school is far too large for a big, happy family feeling. Having two convocations takes away from such a feeling. Human nature being what it is, we don't like to sit in convo by ourselves even though it may appear a bit childish. We want our friends to at least be in the auditorium at the same time. Trivial as it sounds, this minor point holds a great deal of weight in influencing people to and from convo, mostly from.

So called school spirit is not going to be stimulated by compulsory meetings. If a person has spirit, it is because she has successfully been propagandized.

The time element, whether or not convo is worthy of student's time, invariably is mentioned. We have found it indeed easy to use "time" as an excuse for most anything we want. And with convo as it is run now, this excuse is justified as long as so many students refuse to attend and those who go concentrate on letter writing. But if these weekly sessions could somehow stimulate interest in the student body, we are sure convo would have a large audience.

Granted something is wrong, what should be done about the situation? A much higher fine and an accurate check would undoubtedly compel many college girls to report to the "checkers." But if this were done, the most important object would be lost, that of instilling a "good spirit." Or should we abolish convocation altogether? This, too, is not the solution because there are times when we should gather in a body for student discussion and opinion—in fact, much more than we do.

Three changes are suggested as alternatives: (1) have just one convo per month, (2) make necessary announcements in the dining hall at supper time, (3) or have a "campus gathering" in front of the dining hall after supper for a short time once a week. In all three alternatives the students would be held responsible for reading the bulletin boards for important announcements. Some say students wouldn't read the boards, but those are the students who do not listen in convocation also. If students realize they are responsible and will have to take the consequences if they do not keep up with college news-bits they will soon learn to glance at the bulletin.

If we were to employ the first suggestion, the monthly convo could be devoted to a good program, well planned out by those who participate, or to a speaker with something worthy to tell us. This ought to please those who have to be present at both convocations to make various kinds of announcements, for they would have an extra hour to devote to some other interest. Also the audience, such as seat K-6, could busy herself elsewhere.

As in the past students would listen attentively to any vital announcements when delivered to them during the evening meal. As one person said, they are contented while eating and will listen to anything. If the duty of touring around spreading the news proved too much for one person, a plan of rotation could easily be devised, such as five students in respective dining halls each week.

The third suggestion, which could be successful if advertised and propagandized properly, is the historic idea of a Quaker meeting. Picture a group of girls in front of the dining hall, maybe a soap box or two. The idea would be for important announcements to be made, after which students could bring up unlimited topics for discussion. Spirit, if ever to be had, could be derived in this way, we believe. The time element could be optional, if by 7:30 some wished to leave, fine. But if a group wished to continue some discussion, better still.

Whether or not these three ideas are sound, it is conceded we are sure, that in order for convo to have any value whatever that some type of change is necessary. Griping about the convocation situation is not helping the matter, constructive criticism and then action are the following steps.

● CHRISTIAN PRINCIPLES

"In so much as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it also unto me." Matthew 25:40.

This verse from the Bible was forcibly brought to the minds of almost all who attended either of Anauta's speeches, the panel discussions, or the seminar "Bases for Interracial Understanding," conducted by Miss Martha Jane Leath.

The problem of race relationships is one that is much discussed today. One of the speakers at the youth conference last week-end stated that when he was in college, the race question was never mentioned. Now, whenever he goes back to visit his alma mater, the first request is for a forum on this subject, he said. His theory of the sudden change is that it is probably due to a guilty conscience at the treatment we have been giving Negroes.

We at Florida State College tend to hide behind the segregation mores which have become a rule of the college, permitting no contact—academic, social—with the other state college in Tallahassee because of the difference in race. Miss Leath reminded us that we are responsible not only for what we decide for ourselves but also for what we let others decide for us. She also stated that this question is not one to be settled by revolution. Only slowly, with knowldge and understanding on both sides accompanied by an application of Christian principles, can we hope to overcome our instilled prejudices.

Still another of the speakers at the conference said that we send missionaries to the foreign fields to teach Christ's way, yet when the same missionary attempts to practice in the United States—yes, even in Florida—what he preaches in the Philippines, he is fired as being a radical, a "nigger-lover," and a communist.

Anauta told of her bewilderment on her first trip into the South at seeing a young colored girl sitting on the steps of the bus although there was a seat vacant and the girl had payed full fare. The woman sitting beside Anauta explained that white people just don't sit by colored people in the South. Anauta, questioning her, discovered that the woman went to church and taught Sunday School. To this Southern lady, she advised, "I wouldn't, if I were you. Not if you let the color of skin cloud over the teachings of Jesus."

These experiences would certainly seem to say that we of the United States—even of FSC—have allowed our expressions of Christianity to become, at best, lip service. If we are to send out missionaries, should not we, wherever we are, apply the ideals stated by Christ and in our own Constitution?

A special class for the winter term at Rollins College will be started to study the control of the atomic bomb. Eleven students selected by the faculty of the division of human relations, science and the humanities will form the class. The students will write a joint report at the completion of the course. The new course was formed after two recent assemblies where the various implications of the atomic bomb were explained.

"I tell you, class," said a journalism professor emphatically, "when you write a headline, you must tell the reader something. For instance, you've got to describe a man beating his wife in detail." "Where else?" quoth the class.

Students of the University of New Hampshire have been asked by President Harold W Stoke to share their university rather than force the institution to tell hundreds of other men and women that they cannot come to college. President Stoke pointed out that the institution would not disregard the standards of health and comfort of the students. Admissions of out-of-state students have been "temporarily almost eliminated."

New curriculum in agricultural journalism, home economics journalism and electrical engineering with business administration training will be offered by the Kansas State College beginning next fall. Other new courses that will be given include ceramic engineering, television and illuminating engineering.

Fast Thinking

The "math" instructor was trying to drive some truths home. "Figures can't lie," he declared. "For instance, if one man can build a house in twelve days, twelve men can build a house in one day." A puzzled student interrupted: "Then 288 will build it in one hour, 17,280 in a minute, and 1,036,809 in one second. I don't believe that they could even lay one brick in that time."

An experiment in world peace organization, the "International Security Assembly" is the chief extra-curricular activity of the students at the Kansas State College. Nearly 1,000 representatives of organized campus groups taking part in the assembly will schedule meetings for the spring semester to consider questions of international importance which are brought before world court. The various organizations chose countries which they wished to represent and have studied their history, geography, government and economy.

Labor

On the domestic scene this last week, labor still held a prominent position. The strike situation was eased somewhat when the Ford Motor Company, leading the way, agreed to sign up with its 100,000 United Auto Workers at an 18¢-per-hour wage increase and Chrysler, following suit, put its name to a contract calling for an 18½¢-per-hour wage increase for the 48,000 production employees.

The nation's railroads and 18 railroad unions agreed to submit their wage dispute to arbitration, the findings to be binding on both parties.

The CIO Packinghouse Workers went back into the Government-seized plants.

The Ford Motor Company decision to agree to the wage increase came as a surprise to many observers since it was already paying the highest wage in the industry ($1.21 an hour) and the increase would cost the company $39 million more. Yet, according to the company's figures, it was already losing $300 on every car it made. Unless the steel strike ends shortly, the company will have to shut down, and closing down, says Ford, cost $400,000 daily. On the other hand, the company has plenty of cash reserve, 21 major manufacturing and assembly plants, 15 ships, 400,000 acres of timber and mining property and because of the war, is geared into one of the world's greatest production machines. Chrysler, who along with General Motors had taken over a large proportion of Ford's market between 1930 and 1941, not wanting Ford to get a competitive jump, signed with the union not three hours after Ford's action.

Meanwhile GM President Charles Wilson still contends the UAW is out to destroy free enterprise. As long as the steel strike continues, he is without fear of being outstripped by Ford and Chrysler. But once the steel strike is settled, GM will have to get ba to work or watch Ford and Chry ler take over the market.

From Me To Y'all

When we opened the mail bag three sailors jumped out. We didn't ask them where they came from or why they were in the mail bag. We're not nosy and we hope our readers aren't either.

Our first letter is from a girl who suggests a motto for the regurgitated Spic and Span. She thinks an appropriate motto would be, "To Hell With the Consumer." This letter was evidently meant for the name contest. But it's a name—not a motto, that's wanted. Why do things like that keep popping up in our mail anyway?

A soldier who is enrolled here for special classes went to the library with a girl who was going to check some books out for him on her card. A librarian accosted the couple and informed them that "the library is not a dating area. Visitors may only go through on tours." The young man was unaccustomed to Florida State College customs so he left the library where he had every right to be. However, he didn't ask us for advice so what can we do?

We even found a manuscript in the mail today. Yes, a girl has submitted a sketch which she calls "Senate Scene". She wants to know if we consider it realistic. Here it is:

Chief: We got our light flash bill back from College Council with a provision tacked on that we must have a trial period. During this period a check will be made to see that no one abuses the privilege.

Initiation was held for eleven Alpha Gam pledges last Friday night following which the traditional Rose Banquet was given in their honor. Two awards were given at the banquet—Violet Walters received the diamond in her pin for having the most activities and Katherine Cooper was presented with the scholarship plaque for having the highest average among the group.

Betty Jo McAteer, president, gave a toast to the new initiates which was followed by a reply from Alice Miller, past president of the pledges.

Mary Cooney, social chairman, was in charge of all preparations for the banquet and assisting her were: Jans Lyles and Aileen Sayers, programs; Ruth Bishop, place cards; Lila Lee Barrington, transportation; and Joy Knipe, decorations.

Alumnae who were present for the initiation and banquet were Mrs O C Collins, Mrs Ann Arrington, Mrs Sue Boynton, Miss Betty Lou Boynton, Betty Jean Neel, Gloria Shuman and Helen Miller.

Class to Discuss Contemporary Poets

The Contemporary Poetry class is making plans for a symposium which is to begin within the next two weeks, announced Miss Mildred Henry, instructor in English. This symposium will be carried out through an informal discussion of several contemporary poets after extensive research has been done on the selected poets.

The class has been divided into six groups, and Bobby Bell, Martha Jane Brown, Mary Lou Norwood, Etta Fraser, Jane Chancey, and Betty Hunter have been selected to be chairmen of the groups. The poets on which the class has chosen to do research are: Edna St Vincent Millay, Robert Frost, Edwin Arlington Robinson, Vachel Lindsay, T S Eliot, and Negro poets. Each group will work on one writer.

Miss Henry says that this type of project has been carried on before but was previously called a panel discussion, but this year the class has chosen to call it a symposium and will perhaps use more vivid means of presenting the material.

Fashion Flashes

By FRANCES TRAXLER

Spring is coming on, unbelievable as it seemed the other night when we come out of the show with Gary Coopers' words ringing in our ears: "He made tracks in here, now he's got to make them back out again." Gary was speaking of a Spanish Loyalist's horse whose tracks in the snow might have been the guerrillas' position away to the enemy, but we applied his words as we made what we felt should have been tracks in the snow to the bus stop and stood looking, blue with cold, at the two-piece bathing suits in the College Shop's window. In a little while we'll be wanting those bathing suits!

Among the beach clothes we like in a recent Vogue were many linens: a sleeveless blue dress, a circular skirted pink one, a white dinner dress margined with saw tooth scallops, some gray pedal-pushers, and a Cuban yellow jacket with bra and shorts underneath. Next to the beach clothes, we're crazy about ski togs, but we guess we'l have to wait for them.

Pale blue, according to Vogue, has a new importance, as have darker shades for beach jerseys: gray, wine, navy blue. Play clothes have become seductive, less boyish, have less midriff and more shoulders exposed.

Vogue shows some pink-and-red prints, and red tweed coat with pink accessories, which may be a little too different. There are some gorgeous new long-sleeved dresses—slender and striped, with deep armholes, snug wrists, and high necks.

Finally, the Regency "dandy" look is fashion news. There are many ways to achieve it. It can be done in a crisp cutaway suit with checked vest, cravat, white gloves, or with stickpins, watchfobs, or a crook - handled umbrella.

Sociology Students Making Class Study

The Borden Scholarship Award, which is given annually for outstanding scholarship in the School of Home Economics, was awarded this year to Mrs Eloise Goulding Levy. The Borden Company presented this award of three hundred dollars to Mrs Levy for having the highest scholarship average of all seniors who are majoring in home economics.

Eligibility depends on the student's having completed two or more courses in foods and nutrition and having registered in her senior courses. Dr Doak S Campbell made the presentation of the engraved certificate which is signed by the president of the Borden Company and by Dr Campbell.

The award is given in an effort to recognize and encourage scholarship and is not based on any financial need of the student. This year is the first time that the Borden Company has offered the award to a student at Florida State College, but Dean Margaret R Sandels of the home economics department expects the awards to be continued for at least another five years. FSC is one of twenty-one colleges at which the award has been established.

Bond Drive Directed Toward New Schools

Leon County Teachers Back Improvement Campaign

A bond drive for new schools in Tallahassee is being promoted by the Leon County School Teachers. The Demonstration School, Leon High, Caroline Brevard and Sealy Memorial are supporting the city campaign.

Miss Ruth Burbank Smith, representative from the Dem school, and member of the executive committee, has formed committees to organize the project.

Miss Eleanor Wilkson will head the committee which will assist in getting participants to sign the bonds, and which will urge the people to vote on election day. A list of the precincts and names of the voters will be given to the committee and some person will contact each of the persons listed.

Miss Martha Willson head of the Public Relations Committee will hold a rally at Leon High, with the various schools taking part. The committee will be in charge of the publicity, and will make hand bills and posters.

The Finance committee, headed by Miss Mable Houser, will study the effects of the bond election upon teachers salaries and other effects of financing in the public schools.

According to R L Goulding, principal of the Dem school, the city is in need of new school buildings and so plans to build two elementary colored schools, one elementary white school, and make improvements on another. Leon High is to be enlarged.

Mr Goulding has been working with the various principals and assistants of the other schools. Mr Goulding said, "This is surely an excellent illustration of how college and school personnel can and do participate in the affairs of the community."

Freshmen Create an "I Ate a Pie" Club

Some clubs stress scholarship, while others are based on athletic ability: but leave it to a group of energetic freshmen to organize a club based upon eating! Such is the very latest brain child of FSC's organizing genius, sort of a hybrid F Club and Greek letter sorority, composed of freshmen "majors" and appropriately dubbed the I Ate a Pie Club.

Clad in brown and white sweaters and skirts, wearing brown caps decorated with mysterious Greek letters, a number of members appeared on campus Monday morning, for Monday is I Ate a Pie Day.

Reminiscent of another well-known campus organization, the I Ate a Pies hold a weekly rendezvous at the Sweet Shop every Monday night. At 10:15 on the dot, the members, clad in their traditional garb, congregate there in order to enjoy their specialty, pecan pie a is mode.

In keeping with the general theme new members are tapped with a fork, and at initiation they're "cut in" with a knife. Initiation, however, is a highly secret affair and absolutely all that members will reveal is that they dress for the occasion as pies.

Being entirely spontaneous and democratic, the club has no officers. But the well known whistle with which one I Ate a Pie calls another is "Let's have another cup of coffee; I'll take another piece of pie."

New Entries Appear In Ceramic Display

A new set of articles has been put in the display cases on the first and second floors of the Longmire building from the modeling and pottery classes in the industrial arts department.

Miss Cynthia M Reeves, instructor in industrial arts, is in charge of the display and she explained that both these classes do work in ceramics but the modeling class is concerned with form whereas the pottery class would be concerned with shape.

She pointed out a yellow teapot in the upstairs display case which had been patterned from a camel. The spout makes the neck of the animal and the lid made the hump. Also, she said that some of the articles on display were the first which had been tried here with a mixed glaze. She especially commented on the good glaze of a sugar and cream pitcher set in brown.

Dormitory Teas

Guest speakers were featured in the entertainment at teas in three dormitories this week, while musical selections, both vocal and instrumental, held the center of attention in the other residence halls.

Dr Coyle Moore of the sociology department was the guest speaker at the Bryan tea held Thursday at five.

The Gilchrist tea was highlighted by accordion and vocal solos. Betty Long played "Who", "Because", and "Ida", and Jimmie Rogers sang "The Star" and "Piper of Love."

Miss Henrietta Greenberg of the physical education department spoke on "Recreation" at the Jennie Murphree tea yesterday afternoon.

Highlighting the Broward tea yesterday was a series of informal lectures by Mrs Beatrice B Williams, professor of art, on the new pictures recently added to the furnishings of the dormitory lounge. All the pictures are modernistic and the lectures were for the purpose of giving the girls knowledge of the aims of the pictures.

Recordings of popular songs which were bought by the members of Senior hall were played yesterday at the weekly tea held in Landis parlor. Miss Lynn, sponsor of Senior hall, presented Landis with an album of Bach. Special music was provided by Virginia DeGarry.

Literary Honorary Plans to Enlarge

Chi Delta Phi, national literary honorary, hopes to enlarge its membership within a month, said Winifred Meldrim, member of the honorary.

In order to be eligible for the Chi Delta Phi, a student must be voted on unanimously by all of the members and must have a few articles published in one of the college publications, said Winifred. Winifred said that it is to be regretted that good journalistic writing has not been given much consideration by the honorary, but she feels that this will be corrected.

The members of the honorary and their offices are: Winifred Meldrim, past president; Ellen Whiteman, secretary; Peggy Lu Thompson, president; and Ann Gaither, treasurer. Dr Hazel A Stevenson, professor of English, is the sponsor.

The Chi Delta Phi is collaborating with the Distaff on a short story contest. The deadline was set by Winifred at February 28. Any student may enter this contest, and the story may be of any construction, form, plot or length that may be desired by the writer.

Six Books to Be Added to Library

Bright jackets of six new books will greet students browsing in the stacks in the library, which will be placed on the shelves sometime next week.

There are four non-fiction books: Up Front, by Bill Mauldin; Chiang Kai-Shek, by H H Chang; The Pattern of Soviet Power, by Edgar Snow and Big Three, by David Dallin.

The new novel, Wind on the Pampas, by De Sherbenin has been added to the fiction section and a collection of short stories entitled, Masters of the Modern Short Story, by Walter Hairghurst has been placed among the short story books.

Gasoline credit cards for aviators that will be honored all over the world are being planned.

Total Enrollment For FSC Is 2,537

An increase of 310 students has raised the total enrollment of Florida State College to 2,535 for the second quarter, according to figures recently released from the office of the Registrar.

Approximately 308 new freshmen entered FSC this quarter. The number of students in the various classes this quarter are divided as follows: 1,218 freshmen, 551 sophomores, 390 juniors, and 309 seniors. There are 54 special students and 18 graduate students.

One thousand five-hundred and forty-seven students are enrolled in the school of Arts and Sciences, 599 in the School of Education, 275 in the school of Home Economics, and 102 in the School of Music.

Distaff to Release Winter Issue Soon

The Winter issue of the Distaff is expected to be ready by the second week of February, said Winifred Meldrim, editor of the magazine.

This issue will feature a guest short story by Mrs Mary B Alfriend, instructor in English. Mrs Alfriend has had several novels published in the past which are being sold at the college book store, said Winifred.

There will also be an article written around a poll of students' religious beliefs from a survey which was conducted on campus The other stories will feature campus issues.

There will be more poems by the girl who writes under the pseudonym "M A S." Her poems have a very distinctive style and are very good," said Winifred when questioned in regard to the author.

The cover of the new issue of the Distaff as compared with the "mob scene" cover of the last issue will be "real scholarly-looking," explained Winifred.

Kay Van Deurs and Frances Traxler have been added to the Distaff staff. They are replacing Mabel Rust and Marianne Snyder who left school at the end of the first quarter.

Wire Catches Flag As Wind Downs Pole

Exclamations of girls coming into Bryan Hall late Wednesday morning told the counselor at the desk that the flag pole had fallen down noiselessly in the high wind and that the flag was wrapped around the electric wires.

Now in three sections, two of which are lying on the grass and one of which is still standing upright, the flag pole will be repaired, but at the time the paper goes to press it is not known how soon the pole will be standing in front of Bryan again. Plans are being made to remedy the situation as soon as possible by Mr R K Shaw, business manager.

The girls were more worried about the newly purchased flag than the pole, said Mrs Ray M Warner, counselor of Broward, and did not want anything to happen to it because it had taken so long to get a new one.

Contest Date Set

Creative Arts Week will begin April 29, according to Miss Cynthia Reeves, chairman of the Creative Arts Committee of the American Association of University Women. At that time, the prize-winning objects in each field will be exhibited.

Individual deadlines will be set prior to the April date by the heads of the different divisions, Miss Reeves said. The contest this year includes departments for arts and crafts, creative writing, dance, dramatic arts, household arts, and music.

Creative Arts Week will parallel the state AAUW meeting which will be held at Florida State College the week-end of May 4

Jennie Murphree "Queen" to Reign Over Traditional Valentine Ball Tomorrow

The "Queen of Hearts" will reign at a formal dance being given tomorrow evening at Jennie Murphree dormitory from 8:30 to 11:30. The dance is to have the traditional Valentine theme.

The identity of the "Queen" will remain secret until the time when she is presented, according to Margery Holm, social chairman of Jennie Murphree. She is to be selected from a group of seven girls who have been elected by freshmen on the various floors of Jennie Murphree, and the six remaining girls will serve in her court of honor. The seven girls who have been elected are Betty Banks, Mary Margaret Davis, Pat Dillard, Jean Dupree, Nancy Lefholz, Nancy Streater, and Betty Sweet.

During intermission a program will be presented honoring the queen, consisting of vocal solos by Patsy Crosby and Dallas Stever, a piano solo by Bettye Jean Lang, and ballroom dancing by Bertie Leftus and a partner yet to be chosen. Mildred Robson will serve as mistress of ceremonies.

"Refreshments will consist of punch to be served throughout the evening," said Margery.

Chaperones at the formal dance will be Dr and Mrs Doak S Campbell, Mr and Mrs Karl O Kuersteiner, Mr and Mrs Kenneth B Gulick, Dr Olivia N Dorman, Miss Katherine Warren, Miss Edith McCollum, Miss Marjorie S Judy, Miss Vela T Cleveland, Miss Louise Creamer and Miss Delores DeWitt.

Those in charge of plans for the affair, working under direction of the social chairman of the dormitory, are Patsy Crosby, dance chairman; Margaret Cogswell, chairman of decorations committee; Marie Moe, chairman of refreshments committee, and Cynthia Merrin, chairman of invitations committee.

Also on the social calendar at Jennie Murphree is a trip to Wakulla Springs this Sunday afternoon. The trip is being planned for any girls in that dormitory who would like to come, and for their friends, according to Margery.

The Students Speak...

We dug down deep into the "Complaints and Criticism" file this week, and came up with what appears to be a long-awaited question—to wit: What do you think of the present system of convocation, and what suggestions can you offer in the interests of expediting the underlying purpose of convocation?

The following replies are representative of all those interviewed, who answered, with all the courage of their convictions, very readily upon our first approach, which may or may not be a sign that something is in the offing.

"Convo takes up valuable studying time, and they're very tedious to sit through. I believe that holding convo once a month would be sufficient, and I believe they should have more entertaining programs." . . . Jeanne Biffi, freshman.

"I think they could have a more interesting convocation each week so that students would go more voluntarily." . . . Jean Thomas, freshman.

"It should be left to the student as to whether she attends convo or not because college should be the place where students learn to exercise their ability to make their own decisions." . . . Pat Small, freshman.

"I don't like 8:30 convo. It cuts into the evening too much. One convo in the afternoon plus the regular 7:30 convo would be better than having them both in the evening.' . . . Gloria Basila, junior.

"Personally, I would rather go to convo at 2:00 because I do my best studying right after dinner, and the break at 8:30 disturbs my whole evening." . . . Lorilla Sayre, sophomore.

"I think the lectures could either be eliminated or made more brief. Also they should rotate the 7.30 and 8:30 groups, since the 7:30 time is the more desirable." . . . Rosalind Riegle, junior.

"Convocation should be made voluntary, that is, the attendance should, since some of the students don't attend even though it's compulsory now." . . . Evelyn Diamond, sophomore.

"The presentation of skits by the various campus organizations and sororities might revive the student's interest. I also think they should combine 7:30 and 8:30 convoe." . . . Ann Spooner, junior.

"It definitely needs something! Maybe if they had skits to get their ideas across, convo would be more interesting, and they should have more interesting speakers if they're going to have 'talks' at all." . . . Ann Mac Innes, sophomore.

'Why don't they post announcements on the bulletin boards and eliminate convo altogether?" . . . Lydia Lipshultz, Post-Graduate student.

"Convo on the whole is pretty good, although I'd like to hear more outside speakers who have something to say that is of interest to college students. The 8:30 convo could be held at 2:00 in the afternoon for those students who have no 2:00 class, since 8:30 convo breaks up the evening for those who want to study." . . . Emma Mae Murray, senior.

"Change the 8:30 convo to the afternoon, by all means, and add an attraction to the program each week to act as an inducement for voluntary attendance." . . . Shirley Spillers, freshman.

Ink Bottle Hider Crawls in Bushes

Once upon a time, last Tuesday as a matter of fact, a girl was seen crawling into the bushes near the library. Crawling into the bushes? Yes, there she was, looking for something. Pretty soon she backed out, put an ink bottle on the side walk, and filled her fountain pen.

"If I take the ink with me I leave it in sisas," said the girl, and she tunneled under to sacha the bottle, again.

It seems that she keeps another bottle of ink somewhere near Westcott and uses a new bush whenever she gets tired of the old ones.

Plastic Work Is on Display

Three-Quarter Course Will Be Offered Next Year

An exhibit of plastics from industrial art class 272 is now on display in the lower hall of the Education building. Mr Ralph L Donaldson, associate professor of industrial arts, said that this year was the first time work had been done with plastics in the industrial arts department and that the work would be broadened next year with a three-quarter course designed for working with plastics only.

Articles in the exhibit include book ends, picture frames, key chains, letter holders, bowls, cigarette boxes, letter openers, and perfume trays.

Since they had little equipment for working with this new material, Mr Donaldson said that the class had to improvise many of their tools. As an oven for heating the plastic to bending temperature (250°), they used a trash can with two infra-red bulbs in it. Each girl had to plan her own "jig" over which to shape her article. A pint jar was used to bend the top of one of the cigarette boxes and a board with pegs driven in it was made for modeling the scalloped bowl on display.

The plastic material used in making the articles of the exhibit is acrylic or methyl methocrylate, "but," the professor said, "the trade names of lucite and plexiglas are probably better known."

He commented that plastic was unique in that it combined the characteristics of both wood and metal. It can be sawed, drilled, sanded, buffed, as well as drawn and formed.

The purpose of the new course in plastics, according to Mr Donaldson, is to prepare the student for the industrial world in plastics through a knowledge and understanding of its characteristics and potentialities. Individuality will be stressed in three-dimensional design for each article.

"Interest in plastics does not have to be professional, continued the professor, "for this material is taking its place in occupational therapy, summer camp crafts, recreational activities, hobbies, and educational systems."

Mr Donaldson received his certificate in plastics from the Plastics Industry Technical Institute of Chicago, Illinois, and has for two years been doing individual study and research in this field.

Donaldson Speaks To Club in Havana

Ralph L Donaldson, associate professor of industrial arts, spoke to the Woman's Club of Havana, Florida Tuesday afternoon.

His topic dealt with the fact that art is not for the sole enjoyment of the artists but for the lay people as well.

To illustrate his point, Mr Donaldson displayed some of the textile work done by his students and some of the other art work that the average person could enjoy doing.

Auditor Returns

Mr Walter G West has resumed his position as an auditor in the college bank after an absence of four years service in the Army Air Corps. Returning to Florida State College the first of February to the position he had held for five years prior to entering the service, Mr West has seen duty in the China-India-Burma Theater for one year as a technical sergeant aerial engineer.

While overseas he flew supplies to Indian and British troops. Three years of his time in the Air Corps were spent in the United States serving as an aerial engineer on bombers before he transferred to cargo planes.

From Cherokee Grill to Three Torches Is 24-Year Growth of Campus Tea Room

By LAURA LEE BUTLER

Yellow raincoat, chicken and French fries: blue hair ribbon, shrimp and apple pie: the same for purple sweater. By such identifying orders as these the 10 girls who work at FSC's neighborhood tea room, the Three T's, identify their collegiate customers.

Once back in 1922 it was a newly constructed little tea room called the Cherokee Grill operated by Mrs W G Dodd, wife of the then dean of the School of Arts and Sciences. Now, symbolically entitled the Three Torches, it's owned by Mrs Martha Adams, known to the girls simply as Madame, and serves from 85 to 90 girls simultaneously.

Then a negro shack stood at the site and FSC's only such establishment was a tiny YWCA tea room near the present location of the Longmire building. Mrs Dodd supplied the Y room with food, but during that winter 24 years ago she bought the land and started construction of the Cherokee Grill. Six weeks later the new tea room was crowded with girls, for Mrs Dodd opened the grill with a special turkey dinner.

Some years later the Three T's was damaged by fire. Following this it was completely remodeled and the present serving room placed where Mrs Dodd once had her screened porch.

Today the tea room specializes in fried chicken and pies made according to a recipe formulated by Evelyn the cook. Apparently FSC girls like their food just a little bit on the Italian style too, however, for the most orders of all come in for the spaghetti special. Parties and banquets for up to 50 persons and the Thursday night smorgasbord dinner are other specialties at the Three T's.

Madame, the distinguished-looking, gray-haired owner, is a former member of the college faculty. She taught recreation and swimming at FSC in 1941 and '42. Her assistant, Miss Peggy Barker, is a 1943 graduate of FSC and a former chairman of judiciary.

The yearly duck party is a high spot in Christmas activities at the Three T's for the college girls who work there. This Three T's variety of Christmas party includes the traditional tree and exchange of gifts and also a whole duck for each girl.

Citizens' Committee Studies Education

Launching its study of co-education, a medical college for Florida, and improvement of the general education system, the Citizens' Committee on Education met with Governor Caldwell Wednesday, in Tallahassee.

During the last legislature, two bills advocating co-education for the University of Florida and Florida State College for Women were introduced. Both were defeated and Caldwell said the question must be settled.

Religion and Post-War World

To help students understand the place of religion in the post-war world, Colgate University's Christian Association is sponsoring a series of four bi-weekly meetings under the leadership of four outside speakers—a professor of religion, a Jewish rabbi, a Catholic priest and a Protestant pastor. The association is also sponsoring Sunday night vespers with faculty members and outside speakers as leaders.

Campus Trees Cut To Provide Light In Darkened Rooms

New light comes shining through the windows to brighten the heretofore dark rooms in Reynolds, for the big tree which was sifting the sunlight has been cut down. Although the Reynolds girls are happy that they no longer have to burn their lights in the daytime, the Jennie Murphree girls are quite unhappy because three of their precious trees were felled last week.

As the gardener and his cohorts were chopping at the trees in the back of Jennie, a group of girls stood around and wistfully awaited the cry of "Timber!" which would mean no more shady rooms in the late afternoons, but hot sunlight.

Now that the trees are gone the only source of entertainment has been taken away from the Jennie inmates who liked to watch the birds and to observe the fat little squirrels as they sat on their haunches eating nuts outside their windows. As one freshman put it, "It's a dull place with no men and squirrels." The girls also recall the glistening leaves as the spotlight played on them at night after a rain, and the sound of the wind through their friendly branches, which now lay cut up into little sections in the courtyard.

Because the tree roots were breaking into walls of Jennie Murphree and were making the rooms of Reynolds dark, the cry of "Woodman, spare that tree!" was not heeded, it was stated by Miss Lelia M Allen, counselor of Reynolds, who also remarked that now the girls will have to watch their window shades.

Some of the cynical girls wonder if this is not a part of a sinister "skinning" policy being carried out on the campus. First Gilchrist, then the cedars in front of Jennie, then the gate, and now the courtyard. But the reason is not sinister, but helpful and protective.

Work in Japan Being Offered

War Department Will Give Temporary Contracts

The War Department is recruiting both male and female workers for a temporary contract assignment in the Japan-Korea area. This War Department contract will be for nine months, according to a bulletin received by the Personnel Office.

Typists, stenographers, clerks who know the Dewey Decimal Filing System, and telephone operators are in the most immediate demand. The following is a partial list of positions open: Stenographers, Typists, Clerks, Lawyers, Librarians, Public Health Nurses, Legal stenographers, Radio Operators, Telephone Operators, and Mechanics.

It is expected that a total of 500 to 600 persons will be recruited from this area. The same pay scales as in effect in Hawaii will prevail. These include the 25 per cent differential.

Employees of the War Department must be declared surplus, which means they will not have to be replaced, before they will be accepted.

The bulletin also states that the living conditions in the Japan-Korea area are comparable to "Army Life" and totally devoid of any luxury. The food is traditional army chow; it is good, plentiful, and costs 25 cents a meal. At present there is no charge for quarters.

According to the bulletin, the weather in Tokyo is similar to that in Washington, D C. The winters are very cold, with definite seasonal variations. Workers must buy all their clothing here, since none is available in that area.

The working week is 48 hours with time and half for the last eight hours. Transportation will be provided to and from the point of hire. Bus transportation is very good.

Those who are interested may obtain further information from the United States Employment Service, Iolani Barracks. Miss Eva Davies who has recently flown here from Japan is heading the recruitment. Applicants can save time by bringing their Civil Service Applications Form 57 with them when they apply.

Rollins to Confer Degree on Truman

President Doak S Campbell today announced plans for the coming trip to Rollins College of three members of the college, the occasion being the presentation of an honorary degree on United States President Harry S Truman

As guests of the college, Dean Guy L Diffenbaugh of the College of Arts and Sciences, and Ann Carolyn Allison, president of the student body, will accompany Dr and Mrs Campbell to Winter Park, where the ceremony will take place.

Dr Campbell stated that the order of the program will probably be as follows: President Truman will arrive at noon to attend a special convocation at 1:30 p m. An academic procession will be held, followed by a citation of the accomplishments and outstanding services of the president. Mr Truman will then receive the degree of Doctor of Humanities.

Life of FSC Student in 1926 Is Same; Rules Remain Unchanged for 20 Years

Buildings may come and students may go, but the traditions and rules of Florida State College remain. And remain much the same.

Students of the FSC of 1946 may take pleasure in the feeling of sistership with those who were here in 1926. They may be proud to know that the Agreement Between Faculty and Students, as printed in the front of the '26 handbook is very similar to the one in the '46 one. Only today, the faculty members who approve or improve student legislation, are known as the faculty committee on student affairs. Then, they were the advisory board.

According to this agreement, "the president and faculty entrust the management of all matters concerning the conduct of students in their college life that are not academic in nature except . . . in cases serious enough to involve the possibility of expulsion . . . all matters pertaining to public health and public safety of students; all matters pertaining to household management of the college residence halls, and to the housing of students off-campus as well as in the college buildings; and all matters pertaining to the use of college property and equipment — the grounds, the gymnasium, and apparatus of every kind."

This document gives the College Government Association the right "to formally relinquish" all or any part of the powers granted, while "it shall be within the power of the authorities of the college to withdraw the same, 30 days' notice being given in either case."

We thought men today were wolves until we came across this note in the '26 handbook, "For riding with escorts, see 'Provisions for Safety.'"

Officers in the various student branches of the 1926 campus government would have no trouble stepping back into their duties as performed by senate and judiciary, unless they have forgotten some of its provisions. All they have to do is to find out what lies within their jurisdiction and what action has been taken on a similar question by faculty and students of the past.

Oh, yes, and they will learn that somewhere in the 20-year shuffle, student referendum powers have been lost. Then, if a group of students objected to a rule, they could ask for reconsideration through a petition signed by 25 per cent of the students or by a majority senate vote. But it shouldn't be too hard to adjust to this misplacement.

Stating that "A man's freedom consists in binding himself," and that "the privileges of the individual must be subordinated to the rights of the community," students were strictly forbidden to smoke while they were members of the 1926 CGA.

"Any student who drinks or possesses intoxicating beverages, including beer, while under the jurisdiction of the college lays herself liable to immediate suspension," according to the handbook. Now, how did that get in here? It certainly wasn't mentioned in 1926!

Odd-Even rivalry was well established by 1926, as was "F" Club. Demonstrations were an important part of the Thanksgiving activities. Color rush was of vital importance to the students of those days and were looked forward to as eagerly as those of today. The Odd-Even games highlighted the Thanksgiving homecoming then, too.

Here is another regulation that we have in common with our FSC ancestresses: "Students shall hold no entertainments open to the public without the permission of the Dean. Full plans for these entertainments must be submitted to the Dean. Fire regulations strictly forbid the use of any open flame in dramatic entertainments."

Students need not feel so confined in matters of dress, when they know that those before them had to wear either a skirt or long coat over gym clothes when going to and from the building, too.

"As the point system is very intricate, the new system is still under consideration and will be presented to the student body as soon as possible in the fall." Now, this statement did come from the '26 book of campus knowledge.

So, whereas the surface of the college has changed greatly, with the addition if many new buildings and the subtraction of many old ones, and the students of today are the daughters of those who attended FSC in 1926, we, the students of 1946, can still fe a close kinship to that class b observing the same traditions and restrictions they did.

Freshmen Hit Restrictions

Senate Votes New Changes In Handbook

Legislation To Reform Riding, Date Rules For Sophomores

Patty Lou Hill Elected New Off-Campus Chairman

Certain recommendations from the Legislative Committee were passed upon by Senate members Wednesday afternoon in the auditorium of the Longmire building. Among the changes was a proposal that the regulation requiring one other student to accompany sophomores and juniors on riding engagements with men in this vicinity be eliminated. Senate also voted affirmatively on other suggestions that the frequency of dates and over-night absences for sophomores be unlimited.

Patty Lou Hill, the only standing nominee for the office, was elected chairman of the Off-Campus Committee.

Two oominations were made in Senate for the office of junior representative to Judiciary, Margery Potter and "Bo Peep" Shell, and before light flash Wednesday night Harriet Kirk was also nominated. The vote will be taken at the next Senate meeting.

Further discussion was held concerning parts of the report of the Legislative Committee. Senate passed upon a suggestion that a change be made in the social procedures regulations, which change would dispense with the necessity for a residence counselor's approval of public dining rooms for first and second quarter freshmen.

On the question of changes in rules governing sophomores, the point was made that all minor changes were only parts of the major question as to whether or not a student in the sophomore year is to be considered adequately integrated. It was thought to be desirable that restrictions in that case, as in others, be consistent with a general policy.

In addition to the previous proposals concerning sophomores and juniors, a motion was made that the number of dates for second and third quarter freshmen be increased from two to three. A number of codification corrections were suggested.

At 6:15 on Wednesday Senate recessed until the following day at five o'clock.

Booklet Contains Pictures of Tarpon

Two full-page pictures of the Florida State College Tarpon Club are to be found in the February issue of the Scenic South, a booklet published by the Standard Oil Company which is designed to point out various points of interest in the South.

One of the pictures of the Tarpon Club shows the club studying a formation drawn by the instructor in the sand at Wakulla Springs about 20 miles south of Tallahassee.

Another picture shows the formation executed in tho crystal-clear waters of Wakulla Springs. The captions says "Not speed or endurance, but rhythmic stroke and group technique are stressed by these amateur Aquacade performers."

The cover of the booklet depicts the Key West City Hall. Other pictures include "Sunrise over Tampa Bay and the St Petersburg Yacht Basin," "Front of Cyclorama Building, Grant Park, Atlanta, Georgia," "Potato Field in Baldwin County, Alabama," "Campus of the Delta State Teachers' College, Cleveland, Mississippi," "Templed Hills along Indian Creek, Virginia," and others.

"March of Dimes" Ends on FSC Campus

The drive for funds to benefit the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, the March of Dimes, came to its conclusion on campus this week netting a total of $38.60. The drive is a continuation of the appeal for financial assistance for the fight against the disease which was founded by Franklin D Roosevelt.

Jane Lyles, chairman of the committee sponsoring the FSC effort to help the drive, announced that the money received in the national drive will be spent to secure technicians and special treatment for over 13,000 infantile paralysis cases which occurred in 1945.

Secret Theme Is Revealed

"Lovers of All Time" Is Portrayed at Dance

Cupid's choice of Betty LaBree and Jack McMillian as his favorites for the night, highlighted the Sophomore Hop held Saturday night in the gymnasium, as the hitherto secret theme "Lovers of All Time" was revealed.

The theme was carried out by four large portraits showing Adam and Eve, Romeo and Juliet, Scarlett and Rhett, and Dr Harold Richards and his wife, Hazel. Work on the portraits was done by Jackie Magee.

Couples entering the dance stepped through the large red and white heart which framed the doorway into a room decorated with similar red and white hearts and cupids. Over the front door to the gymnasium was suspended a large illuminated red heart with a white silohuetted cupid and a heart with a question mark through it proclaiming the "we'll never tell" idea.

Opposite the heart which framed the doorway to the dance was another heart banked with shrub-

Sellers Leads Winter Band Performance

"Triumphal March" Score Is Adapted, Condensed By Members

Cooper Is Assistant Conductor In Band Concert

The Florida State College band, under tho direction of Mr Owen F Sellers, presented its annual winter concert last night in the Westcott auditorium. Mr Sellers, associate professor of cello and other orchestral instruments, had as assistant conductor Miss Charlotte Cooper, instructor in instrumental public school music at FSC.

The first section of the concert, which was conducted by Mr Sellers, featured: Overture "Daphnis" by C E Holmes; "Komm, Susser Tod" by Bach, and "Semper Fidelis" by J P Sousa.

In the second section were played Cardell - Simon's "Atlantic Zephyrs," with Beryl Taylor on the trombone and Margaret Dunn at the piano. "Rustic Beauty" by J Ord Hume was played by a brass quartet composed of Betty Jean Allen, Merecdes Putch, Annetti Vitsky, and Frances Clopton. Sidney Conner on the alto saxophone and Virginia Sewell at the piano played the "Song of India."

The third section, conducted by Charlotte Cooper, was composed of the "American Patrol" by F M Meadram, the "Triumphal March" from Peter and the Wolf by S Prokofieff and "Black Eyes" by Harry Horlick and Gregory Stone. The "Triumphal March" was narrated by Beryl Taylor. The introduction was adapted and condensed from an original score by Beryl and the members of

Glee Club to Sing In Gainesville

Thirty-seven members of the Florida State College glee club will journey to the University of Florida on Saturday, March 2, to present a concert of varied selections. Sixteen University fraternities will be patrons of this concert, according to Miss Etta Robertson, director of the glee club.

The program will be divided into three parts, consisting of religious numbers, folk, and semi-classical pieces. Accompanist for the glee club at this time will be Eleanor Bragg, piano; Fawn Trawick, organ; and Rachel Crotwell, violin.

A chartered bus will take the girls to Gainesville Saturday afternoon and return on Sunday.

Those fraternities which are sponsoring the glee club concert include: Pi Kappa Alpha, Tau Epsilon Phi, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Sigma Chi, Sigma Nu, Sigma Phi Epsilon, Alpha Gamma Phi, Alpha Tau Omega, Beta Theta Pi, Chi Phi, Deta Tau Delta, Kappa Alpha, Phi Delta Theta, Phi Kappa Tau, Pi Kappa Phi.

New York and Washington Trip Planned for Spring Holidays

A sight-seeing tour of New York City and Washington, D C, the first of its kind to be offered Florida State College girls, will be conducted during the spring vacation by Dr Carmen Rogers, associate professor of English.

Dr Rogers is planning this plane trip in order that interested students and their friends may see for themselves the historic places in these cities and may attend spring theatre and opera performances.

The cost per person will be approximately $225. Dr Rogers requests that all interested girls communicate with her at once to guarantee theatre tickets and plane reservations. Her address is P O Box 1077 or telephone 872-R.

The week-long trip (March 20-27) will include a motor tour of New York from the Battery to historic Fort Tryon Park upon the Hodson, the Metropolitan Museum, the Cloisters, Museums of Modern Art and Natural History, famous churches and cathedrals. Girls will have the opportunity to shop in New York's stores. They will attend one opera performance and from six to eigh of the following theatre performances: Maurice Evans in Hamlet, Katherine Cornell in Antigone, Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne in O Mistress Mine, Frank Fay in Harvey, Julie Haydon and Laurette Taylor in The Glass Menagerie, Mady Christians in I Rember Mama, Elmer Rice's Dream Girl, Anna Locasta, Sonja Henie's Ice Revue, the musical, On the Town, and the operetta, Song of Norway, featuring Edward Grieg's music.

Girls who participate in this tour will also have the opportunity to visit the Capitol, see Congress in session, and perhaps visit the White House. Included in the program for Washington is a scheduled motor tour of the city, Mt Vernon, Arlington, and Alexandria. The entourage will also visit the Library of Congress and see the original drafts of the U S Constitution and the Declaration of Independence. During the one and one-half day stay in Washington, the group will also tour the Folger Library, the Supreme Court Building, the National Archives, the Pan-American Union, and the Smithsonian Institute.

Before the war, Dr Rogers conducted several tours to Europe and Africa and during the war, she has conducted national tours for college girls during their spring and summer vacations.

Dr Rogers is now giving FSC girls the opportunity to participate in a tour of the largest city of the world and the capitol of their country.

She strongly believes that travel is the "fifth degree of education."

Lost and Found Department Functions Improve System of Returning Articles

The efficiency of the Lost and Found Department has been demonstrated by the fact that of the 1500 articles turned in during the past year over 1000 articles were returned to their rightful owners before the Lost and Found Auction Sale took place. Of this number more than $300 in bill folds was claimed. Several reports of the findings of Mrs Edith Gulick, acting director of the Rowena Longmire building, were given to the Florida Flambeau, which indicated that many articles had been turned in and urged students to inquire at Mrs Gulick's office in the Longmire building for lost belongings.

Instead of the usual thirty day wait for students to claim missing articles Mrs Gulick has extended the period to sixty days so that all might have a chance to learn where lost and found articles were turned in, and would have ample opportunity to claim them. Even articles of no value were held so that the unfortunate losers might retrieve them.

The auction included articles brought in to the Lost and Found Department over a period of more than a year, from January 1, 1945 to February 4, 1946. At the end of that time it was necessary to auction off only 480 unclaimed items, 48 of which were of negligible value.

Among the things sold to participants at the auction were watches, bracelets, bill folds, rain coats, hats, gloves, scarves, coats, sweaters, skirts, slacks, rings, earrings and other costume jewelry, books, music, cigarette cases, compacts, evening wraps, evening bags and umbrellas. This list composes items which were found on all parts of the FSC campus. It should serve as a lesson to all who misplace articles of sentimental or real value, and fail to try to find them, as an encourager to all likely consumers who would purchase slightly used articles at a reduction in price which are relatively difficult to find on the market at the present time.

"Pin-Up Boy" To Be Chosen

Day Students to Sponsor Annual Competition

The Day Students Organization of the Florida State College is making plans for their annual "Pin-Up Boy" contest and for their week-end at Camp Flastacowo.

The "Pin-Up Boy" contest will be held this coming Wednesday and Thursday, February 20 and 21, in lower Westcott, for the purpose of selling Victory bonds and stamps.

Any student is eligible to enter the picture of her man, said Daphne Rowe, president of the Day Students Organization. Votes for the favorite "Pin-Up Boy" are made by the buying of stamps or bonds. If a ten-cent stamp is bought the "Pin-Up Boy" will receive ten points. The picture that receives the most points will win first place as "Number One Pin-Up Boy." There will also be a second and third place.

The pictures must be framed or mounted so that they may be propped up on the table in Lower Westcott for everyone to see. The contest will begin at 9 o'clock Monday morning and end at 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon. Girls should claim their pictures after 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon in Lower Westcott or in the Day Students lounge in the Longmire building, said Daphne.

Last year the contest was won by Ensign Joe Smith, six-foot-tall,

AGO Holds Annual Dinner for Clergy

The American Guild of Organists will hold its annual dinner for the clergy tonight at 6:15.

This dinner is given each year by organists who invite as their guests the ministers of the churches at which they play, said Mrs Ramona C Beard, associate professor of organ, piano and theory.

The topics of informal discussion at the dinner will be "What does Tallahassee need in the way of a thorough church music program?"

The meeting at this time will be concerned with the discussion of a choral vesper program in which student choirs of the Florida State College campus and the Junior and Senior choirs of these churches will take part. The program this year will be held on Palm Sunday, April 14

A Sunday vesper series will begin on March 31 with an organ concert by Mrs Beard. Claude Murphree of Gainesville will play on April 7. The series will close with choral vespers.

This year the American Guild of Organists is celebrating its 50th anniversary.

So Sorry, Please

The figures in the results of the Flambeau poll conducted to determine the campus opinion on the quarter and semester systems in last week's story contained a mathematical error.

The error in addition gave the total vote cast as 1296. The correct number is 1315.

The total upperclass vote is 858 instead of 839 as was reported. Of this total 454 were in favor of a quarter system and 404 preferred a semester system, giving the quarter system a lead of 50 votes in student preference rather than a lead of 161 votes as was reported.

We regret that this misleading error occurred. We are now investing in an adding machine.

Cast Selected for Speech Production

Blithe Spirit to Be Given February 27-March 1

The cast has been selected and rehearsals have already begun for the production of Noel Coward's Blithe Spirit, February 27 and 28, and March 1, according to Captain Dingwell, speech department director of the play.

This is the cast that was selected last week: Ruth, Sara Norman; Edith, Joy Fleming; Madame Arcati, Mary Ann Cannon; Mrs Bradman, Eugenia Avant; and Elvira, Bonnie Hunt.

There are also two men characters. Captain Dingwell, who is new on this campus, observed that there is a serious man shortage here, and that he is having a hard time finding actors.

"I strongly suspect that I will have to play Charles myself," he said. "I do not approve of a director's acting in a play. I cannot act. Please understand that this is not to establish a precedent," he worried.

Other people connected with the coming play are: Barbara Holt, assistant director; Clair St John, stage manager; Mary Elizabeth Knight, scene designer; Frances Traxler, costume designer; and

Results of Tests Given to Juniors

Results of the junior culture tests, which were given last fall, have been sent out this week to students who participated in them. These tests are designed to give juniors a fair picture of their academic progress and thereby aid them to select courses in the fields in which they are deficient.

The ratings scored by Florida State College students are approximately equal to the average of grades in other colleges throughout the country, according to Dr Mark DeGraff, professor of education, who had charge of administering the tests. However, he added that no detailed comparison of results on each subject has been made.

"The results of these tests may be used by committees studying curriculum changes," Dr DeGraff said. "Copies will also be distributed to the Personnel office and the academic deans to aid them in guidance work."

Subjects included in this general culture test are current social problems, history and social studies, literature, fine arts, science and mathematics.

K D Pi Initiates

Three new members of Kappa Delta Pi, education honorary, were initiated yesterday afternoon in the club room of the Longmire building. They are Catherine Barrs, Anne Tate and Evelyn Tsam[illegible]ris.

Miss Edna Parker, assistant professor of education and president of the honorary, officiated at the service.

Maurine Ashton was in charge of refreshments served after the initiation exercises.

Dr William A Ryan, Armed Service director of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, will be an campus next week in connection with Brotherhood Week.

Artist Series Is Scheduled

Baltimore Symphony Will Appear on Campus

The Baltimore Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Reginald Stewart, will give two performances at Florida State College in the afternoon and evening of February 27.

This Artist Series presentation will be open to students holding either a Red or a Blue Series ticket. Admission to the afternoon concert scheduled for 4:30 will be on the Red Series. The evening

Petty Is Elected President of YWCA

Reverend Stell to Speak To Discussion Group

Joyce Petty was elected president of the YWCA at elections held Wednesday and Thursday in lower Westcott. Other officers also elected at this time include Dixie Kennedy, vice president; Betty McCluer Lee, secretary, and Anne Ranson, treasurer.

Rovena Van Hutchins for vice president and Dorothea McRee and Mary Alice Blasingame for secretary were also nominated at a meeting of the YWCA Monday evening.

The Reverend Lawrence I Stell, minister of the First Presbyterian of Tallahassee will lead a YWCA discussion on "The Future of Christianity" at 7:30 Monday evening in 402 Longmire building. This will be the second in a series of forums sponsored by the worship group of the YWCA. Dr Robert D Miller, professor of religion, who led a discussion on various Protestant beliefs, presented the first in this series at a meeting of the YWCA Monday evening.

Plans were also made at this time for a trip to camp February 23 and 24. The end of this week is the deadline for those who are going to pay for their food for this outing. Money for this purpose should he taken to Robin Lawson in 302 Reynolds.

National Brotherhood Week To Open at FSC on Sunday With Student Day of Prayer

Activities Sponsored by Religious Workers Group; Dr Ryan of Conference of Christians And Jews Will Speak Here

National Brotherhood Week, an observance for the purpose of creating better understanding between the various religious groups, will be held on the Florida State College campus during the week of February 17 through 24.

The official beginning of the observance will come Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock in the Little Theater with the World Student Day of Prayer. A service of music, directed mediation, and responsive readings will be held.

Each year the World Student Christian Federation sets aside the World Student Day of Prayer. All students who are members of the YWCA or any Protestant church student group are members of WSCF and will participate in this ceremony.

Brotherhood Week is sponsored by the Religious Workers Council which comprises representatives from every religious denomination on campus. Rabbi Alex J Goldman, director of the B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation, will be chairman of the week's program.

Dr William A Ryan, Armed Service director of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, will spend three days during the week lecturing and speaking to various classes and brotherhood meetings. Dr Ryan, a native of Virginia, was educated at Johns Hopkins university and the Union Theological Seminary. Before his association with the NCCJ, he served parishes in Baltimore, Pittsburgh, Richmond, and Greenville.

On Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock Dr Ryan will conduct a religion class in room 103 of the library. At 7:30 Monday evening Dr Ryan will speak to the Religious Workers Council in Ruge Hall.

Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock Dr Ryan will hold a character and personality class in room 103 of the library and he will speak again at convocation that night. Ann Carolyn Allison will preside at convocation, which will be held at 7:30 Tuesday evening in Westcott auditorium. The devotional will be given by Betty Ruth Goode and there will be a vocal solo by Alice Wheeler. Dr Doak S Campbell will pronounce the benediction at the close of the program.

On Wednesday morning Dr Ryan will hold his last class in religion at 9 o'clock in 103 of the history building. Wednesday evening will be Brotherhood Evening with the Baptist and Methodist students meeting at the Baptist Student House. The Brotherhood College Radio Program will be presented at 7:15 p m and the group will meet to listen to the program. The program, which will be announced by Miss Bertha Bloodworth, college publicity director, will feature a round table discussion on the topic "The Good World of the Future" and will be broadcast from the campus studio. Participants in the discussion will be: Phyllis De Kalb, Audrey Perry, and Sarah Bramiester. Rachel Crotwell violinist, will play two selections on the program. Following the program, Dr Ryan will speak to those gathered at the student house.

Thursday evening Brotherhood Evening will be held at 8 o'clock in the clubroom of the Longmire building for the Episcopal, Presby-

One Less Mongrel As Pup Is Adopted By Sorority Girls

By Jackie Nevers

A broken leg is no little thing, especially to a dog of "Pledge"'s size, but he managed to turn his injury into an asset. About two weeks ago you could have seen him lying in front of a house on College street with a doleful expression and a splintered leg as a result of someone's automobile. But before he could lose faith in humanity, he found himself established in the Alpha Xi Delta house.

Peldge's metamorphosis from a lean black and grey mongrel to a chubby brown and white puppy was accomplished by a bath, a dash of "Evening in Paris," and three square meals a day. Well, not exactly square, for Pledge is unusually fickle for a homeless dog. Hamburger meat he treats with the utmost scorn, and ordinary dogfood fares no better. He demands the personal touch in all meals and requires spoon feeding for his delicate digestion. Spaghetti and certain kinds of cheese are his favorite dishes.

The name, "Pledge", was attached to him when the usual canine "Rover, Spot, Jim, Buddy, etc" failed to bring any answer. Likewise, he doesn't answer to "Pledge." But

Librarian Rejoins Revision Committee

Miss Frances Haynes, reference librarian, has been asked to serve again on the committee of the Southern Association of Colleges for revising the Classified List of Reference Books for College Libraries. No definite date or place has been set for the meeting yet.

Miss Haynes is now working on the revision of the reference list for the final copy in preparation for the meeting later in the spring. She is preparing the division of Humanities.

Miss Haynes served on the committee which made the original list in 1939. This list is used as a measuring tool in evaluating the contents of libraries in institutions applying for accrediting by the Southern Association and by other libraries as buying guide.

Four other reference librarians of the Southeastern states are members of this committee.

Soph Hop Decorating Crew Has Difficult Time With Material

By LAURA LEE BUTLER

The vicissitudes of preparing for their big dance of the year crammed the lives of sophomores with a multitude of paints, paper strips and weird cardboard figures during the past weekend. Preparations for Sophomore Hop began many weeks ago and ended only when clean-up volunteers took down the last pink cupid Sunday morning to leave the gym once more bare of its valentine finery.

Saturday afternoon found dungaree-clad girls accompanied by a good sprinkling of their "dates" scurrying about the gym amid a vast confusion of crepe paper, artificial clouds and enormous red hearts. Apparently, however, the male members of the decorating crew had not included work clothes in the weekend wardrobe. With the innovation of manly "helping hands," however, many a girl overlooked the fact that she was forced to come in borrowed garb so that her date could don her time-honored dungarees.

As the girls—and boys—began to untangle the decorations scattered in miscellaneous piles about the gym, the varied crew remembered the laborious hours—and many tense moments—that had gone into the preparations of the tangled mass.

The more artistic sophomores had endless difficulties in preparing their four Great Portraits which decorated the corners of the gym. The portrayal of the Great Lovers of History, Adam and Eve, Romeo and Juliet, Rhett and Scarlet, and Dr Richards and Hazel, in decorations for the Hop was a secret known only to a chosen few. As they discussed these amorous paintings, the artists were faced with an important decision. "Exactly how," they asked one another, "were they to dress Adam and Eve?"

After cutting almost endless strips of crepe paper, the decorating crew learned that their demands for paper had exhausted Tallahassee's supply. A frantic order, therefore, went out to Jacksonville for more immediately with which to decorate the ticket booth in lower Westcott. Finally, after days of maddening waiting the order arrived—three days after the booth had been completed.

A huge red heart for the ceiling of the gym was finished many days ahead of time and lodged securely — so the decorators thought—in the barn. Imagine their astonishment, therefore, to find the night before the dance that their decoration piece was strangely missing. Imagine too their frantic bustling to construct

Garnet and Gold Features FSC Band

The Florida State College symphonic band, directed by Mr Owen F Sellars, was featured on last evening's edition of "Garnet and Gold" radio program broadcast directly from Westcott auditorium.

The program was presented as a preview of the scheduled band concert which took place immediately afterward, at 8:15.

Selections played on the program were as follows: "Come, Sweet Death, by Johann Sebastian Bach; Washington Post March, by John Philip Sousa; and King Cotton, by John Philip Sousa. The thema song of the program, "Garnet and Gold", was also played by tha band. The theme is usually presented by transcription from station WTAL in Tallahassee.

Ann Hunter acted as news editor, and the program was announced by Miss Bertha Bloodworth of the college publicity department.

Next week's program will also be broadcast directly from the stage of Westcott auditorium, and will feature the organ concert of Edith Smith. Harriet Ruth Dewa will act as news editor for this program.

● LEST WE FORGET

Today the world is at peace. A rather bitter-sweet peace, for it has been tempered with defeat. Brothrhood Week seems rather anti-climatic. Do we need speeches and lectures to make us remember what those endlss rows of graves stand for? Aren't they enough to make us remember that unless Protestant, Catholic and Jew, yellow, white and black men work together for peace and understanding we may be left without a world to work for?

Brotherhood Week is really only a reminder that Brotherhood, the vision, is like a full grown tree. We can not hope to start there with the accomplished fact, for our duty, no matter how insignificant it may seem, is to plant the seed. We would do well to look to the ancients for our example. When they wished for a well organized empire, they realized that they must have well organized states within it. However, to do this they found they must have well regulated families which in turn depended on how they cultivated their person. Their person was contingent on the adjustment of their hearts which was in a large part due to the sincerity of their thoughts which were segment of their knowledge. Consequently they concluded that knowledge was the first step and so knowledge is the seed of Brotherhood.

The knowledge that is the seed from which the tree of Brotherhood grows is the knowledge of the Ten Commandments and the Golden Rule. Only through their application can the world reach a true conception of the Brotherhood of Man. Our trouble is that we are so often afraid to do right. We make ourselves forget, uproot the seed. We dare not do what others do not. We are children following leaders; if they persecute we persecute. And if we are not afraid, we are lazy. It is much easier to forget to apply the Commandments. Why go out of our way to be tolerant? Because of the lost cries of babies who will never see their fathers; because of the moanings of mothers whose arms will never be full again; because there are women who have lived their whole married life in the course of a ten day furlough; because there are cities that will never stand again, men who will never see again, and women who will never laugh again. We should all pray with Rudyard Kipling: "Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet Lest we forget—lest we forget."

—LAUREL ROSENBAUM

● 'LET BROTHERLY LOVE CONTINUE'

For all who claim to be individuals, may I hope that God is allowed to play some part in your daily lives. And in including God, I mean also the inclusion of your fellow men. Though all human efforts seem so strongly guided and prompted by 'self,' a happy and peaceful plan of world living must of necessity include consideration for your neighbor—your brother. Now, at this time, particularly, when all endeavors are directed toward creating a peace which will be eternal, and a world in which all peoples can live and enjoy that living together, we must personally strive to at least tolerate if not understand the principles by which other people live. Though doctrines and ideals may vary; though there are a million kinds of churches and many ways to pray, though to some there is no church at all; and though Christ is not known to all men, we should all love the Supreme Being who made us, and from this love should spring forth a brotherly attitude toward all the rest of our Creator's children. Eradicate that bitter force from which eminates bigotry, narrowness, and intolerance. Be proud of and firm in your faith, but be kind, and try to understand that many hearts and many minds are sincerely trying to live the way they think is right and good, even though you find that they may oppose or conflict with your religion and its teachings. If you practice virtue at all, don't leave out tolerance—a virtue which needs kindness of heart, humility, patience, and understanding to back it up.

For Brotherhood Week, then, may we strive to achieve, by means of this special national emphasis, a broader and more God-like attitude toward our fellow man. For by it, we can form a relationship in dealing with all peoples and even nations, based on tolerance and understanding, which comes from the heart; by it we can find the hope of creating a peace which will last forever. For that good-will and brotherly love shall bring forth cooperation and friendly relations, not selfishness and misunderstanding!

—AUDREY PERRY

● WHO IS YOUR NEIGHBOR

Brotherhood is another one of those words that we use glibly without knowing the real meaning. At least, if we know the real meaning, few practice it.

Each year, Brotherhood Week is observed on this campus. Everybody talks Brotherhood and then forgets it a short while after the week of observance passes. Brotherhood is something that can't be put on for a week and then discarded like a winter coat. To be true, it is worn all the time, like a bright smile—it is practical for all seasons and for all peoples.

And by "all peoples" is meant just that. Blacks, whites, yellows, Jews, Protestants, and Catholics; social dogs and slum victims. We all are God's children, according to the Bible and all are created equal, according to the Constitution.

In addition to the emotional whooping up of Brotherhood Week, we need some concrete thought and action. Thought that pierces deeper than merely learning to say "Love thy neighbor as thyself." Action that actually takes place, where, and when needed.

We can profit by some concrete thought, if not action, here on campus on the subject of Brotherhood of nations. We all—Germans, Russians, and what have you—are essentially the same. The Germans have been taught that Naziism is right just as we have been taught that democracy is right. On careful thinking, we see that we are all human and often roused by strong leaders.

True brotherhood includes even the Russians, despite Dorothy Thompson's speech. Those of us who look at them skeptically do not admit that the United States is no different from Russia. She looks out for herself, but so do we. She does not trust us, but have we given her any reason to trust us?

From the various countries, we come back to our own campus where Brotherhood can be practiced both in thought and action. We have Jews, Protestants, and Catholics. Too often we lose sight of God in looking at the denomination. It is necessary for all churches to get together on their ideas of religion.

To be effective, the motto of Brotherhood Week, "Love thy neighbor as thyself" must be defined. The key word "neighbor" means everybody— to the far reaching corners of the world—and not just the girl next door.

SPIRIT OF THE WEEK

Two moths
"Will you be my Valentine?"

● BE OUR VALENTINE

We are glad to hear that the Citizen's Committee on Education has organized a program to make a comprehensive study of the educational system in Florida. At its first meeting last week, the committee made plans for the investigation of co-education, a medical school in Florida, and other educational improvements.

A similar study costing $75,000 was made in 1929—similar because then, too, out-of-state experts were brought in and because it too was considered comprehensive since it filled a volume of 743 pages. We know that the new report will be even better.

The old report suggested that all qualified women be admitted to "any division of the university as a junior, senior or graduate student, regardless of age, academic or professional interest."

We are confident that the present committee will initiate action to make both the University of Florida and Florida State College co-educational. We feel that co-education in any form is better than the separate men's and women's colleges we now have. And since co-education is better for one, it follows that it is better for both.
that it is better for both.

We like you, Committee, we like you fine,
Won't you be our valentine?

● ARS LONGA VITA BREVIS

Many students have claimed for a long time the lack of a scholarly atmosphere on this campus. And perhaps their claim is well justified. But last Tuesday night a group of faculty members made a successful effort to create a little of the needed atmosphere in an original recital in the auditorium.

Although the program theme of the concert was Florida music in reality most of the Florida music turned out to be FSCW music. For the 12 music faculty participants not only played all of the selections but composed most of them as well. Some of the original presentations were written by Walter R Cowles, Olga Eitner, Ramona C Beard, and Margaret Dunn. One member, Patricia Millett who is a dramatic soprano, sang eight different selections. Other members contributed by playing the organ, piano, and cello.

The result was a well rounded recital that reflected definite scholarly inclinations among faculty members on this campus. But most of all it was a formal proof to all of the students who sat in the auditorium that night that teachers can practice what they preach.

It is our only hope now that these students will show their appreciation enough to stimulate exactly this kind of faculty demonstration on the campus in the future. For at the present time there is apparently a great deal of wasted ability on the part of the faculty as far as sharing their contributions with interested students. And this ability can be a valuable stimulant not only to all members of the school, faculty or student body; but to a much needed scholarly atmosphere on the campus as well.

In This Our Time . . .

In Congress

In Congress this last week, the House by overwhelming votes, bypassed President Truman's labor fact-finding bill and over rode his opposition to a bill returning the United States Employment Service to the states.

Edward Pauley, President Truman's appointment for the post of Under Secretary of the Navy and former treasurer of the Democratic National Committee, was cross-examined at hearings of the Senate Naval Affairs Committee. Pauley numbers among his many interests a substantial holding in California's tideland oil. "Petroleum deposits lying between the ocean's low-tide mark and the three-mile limit. For several years control of tidelands oil has been a hot federal-state controversy. A federal suit to obtain title is pending in the Supreme Court; a bill to give title to the states is pending in the Senate."

Senator Tobey asked Pauley if he had ever told Secretary of the Interior Ickes that the filing of the Government test suit would be a political mistake and that if Pauley could assure California oilmen that the suit would be filed, Pauley could raise several hundred thousand dollars from them in campaign contributions. Pauley said he had done no such thing. However, when Secretary Ickes was asked if Pauley had brought such a proposition to him, Mr Ickes answered that though the inquiry was highly embarrassing to him, Mr Pauley had and that Pauley's statement was inaccurate when he said that he had never sought to stop the test suit.

Norman Little, a former assistant to Biddle, came before the Senate Committee with notes, going back to 1940 and 1941, which he had kept because he "knew there was going to be trouble." He read from conferences between Pauley, Biddle and himself.

At one conference, said Little, Pauley "wanted either a bill passed or the suit called off definitely, or both."

At the end of the week Senator Tobey looked over the transcript and said that it would show how six instances in which Oilman Pauley's testimony had been disputed by other witnesses. Said the Senator, "I hope that all those testifying . . . realize that they are doing it under oath."

President Truman, meanwhile, says that Pauley "is an honest man" and he will hold out for his appointment to the end.

Veterans' Affairs

American Legion National Commander John Stelle accused the Veterans' Administration under jurisdiction of General Omar Nelson Bradley of being "inefficient and far behind in its work." Stelle continued, "What we need in charge of the VA is a seasoned businessman, not a soldier, however good a soldier he may be."

General Bradley promptly stated that the VA was more behind in its work than Stelle had charged. He said that awaiting admission to hospitals were 12,220 veterans (not 7,000 as Stelle claimed). Unprocessed claims for disability payments totaled 458,757. But there were reasons. Bradley's efforts to put veterans in 40,000 Army hospital beds had been stymied by the Army. "The great majority of disability cases could not be acted on until the armed forces supplied data."

In the six months of Bradley's regime, the number of veterans had jumped from 6,688,000 to 13,490,000.

On the other hand, Chief of Staff Ike Eisenhower immediately pledged Bradley his support "anywhere . . . anytime." "Other veteran's organizations and Commander in Chief (and Legionnaire) Harry Truman rushed to General Bradley's defense."

Secret Theme

bery which enclosed the seats of honor upon which cupid's chosen two reigned as King and Queen. Cupid, portrayed by Georgia Jaeckel, appeared towards the middle of the evening and sent his arrow to pierce the hearts of his favorite lovers.

The Camp Gordon Johnston band, the Harbor Crafters, played from a raised platform in the shape of a heart to the left of the entrance.

The program presented later in the evening continued in carrying out the theme, "Lovers of All Times." Laura Simpson's somewhat revised rendition of "I Ain't Got Nobody" was followed by a modern Romeo and Juliet dance to the tune of "Intermezzo". Patsy Gilliam took the part of Romeo, while Anne Shull acted as Juliet. Afterwards, the Booth sister's trio harmonized on a popular song.

This was followed by a sailor dance, entitled "Gobs have Sweethearts on the Wharf", composed of four couples. The sailors were garbed in regular naval uniforms, while the girls wore short black skirts, peasant blouses, and spiked black heels. The dance was a combination of ballroom and boogie. Rosa Lee Davis, Polly Gage, Catherine Sullivan and Franklin Smith portrayed the sailors with Doris Snow, Anne Shull, Marguerite Ross and Betty Shirley as their partners.

After the sailor dance, Elaine Gavigan posing as Henry the Eighth came forth with a roll call of his six wives, and finding one missing, screamed to Catherine Barrs for a Judiciary search.

An imitation of Dr Jekell and Mr Hyde was given by Betty McColpin. Mr Hyde's plea to Dr Jekell to allow him to write "Sharpie's" column was gruffly rejected, to which rebuff Mr Hyde replied in a small, sad voice, "but you never let me write it anymore".

A Raggedy Ann and Andy dance, with Pat Small as Ann and Peggy Welch as Andy, was presented next. The couple dressed as rag dolls, with bright red yarn for hair, danced to the tune of "Goofus".

Dr Richards appeared at the close of the program with his wife, Hazel, and introduced her to the audience.

Laura Simpson presided over the program as master-of-ceremonies.

"The dance appeared to be very successful", said Georgie Jaeckel, chairman of the hop. She continued by saying that for the first time in many years, the boys outnumbered the girls by a large majority. Two hundred sixty tickets were sold and approximately 500 people attended the dance.

The committee heads were as follows: Anne Fielding and Catherine Sullivan, skit committee; Franklin Smith, costume committee; Jean Bennett and Judy Rhodes, refreshments; Anne Shull, dance chairman; Jean Sharer, programs; and Jane Bryson, construction.

Judges for "Cupid's favorites" included: Miss Daisy Parker, as faculty advisor, Georgie Jaeckel, Martha Peacock, Connis Savage, Louise Lake, Anne Fielding, Juanita Krentzman and Catherine Sullivan.

Faculty chaperones for the hop were: Dean and Mrs Karl O Kuersteiner, Dr and Mrs Ralph E Eyeman, Mr and Mrs Owen F Sellers, Mr and Mrs Henry F Becker and Dr and Mrs Finner. Other special guests present were: Dr and Mrs Doak F Campbell, Dr and Mrs Harold F Richards and Miss Elizabeth Lynn.

terian, and Christian students. The speaker at that time will be the Hon James T Vocelle State Beverage Director.

Friday evening at 8 o'clock Brotherhood Sabbath will be held by B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation at Temple Israel. The speaker at that program, to be conducted by Hillel students, will be Dr Claude M Haynes, President of the Tallahassee Ministerial Association and pastor of the Trinity Methodist Church. Dr Haynes will have as his subject "An Adventure in Brotherhood."

Starting Monday, February 18, and continuing through February 24, there will be in lower Westcott a display of many types of leaflets, reprints of articles, and pamphlets. Sixty different forms of literature of a brotherhood nature and theme will be displayed and will be made available for distribution to college students.

Throughout Brotherhood Week, Rabbi Goldman will be assisted by the following committee representatives from the various church groups: Dorothy Binger, Methodist; Margaret Cochrell, Presbyterian; Margaret Winton, Baptist; Betty Dowd, Episcopal; and Annie Ruth Welch, Christian. Also assisting will be the Interfaith Committee of the B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation which has as its chairman Betty Fay Moses. She is assisted by Joyce Aronovitz, Laurel Rosenbaum, and Sarah Bramlester.

During Dr Ryan's stay in Tallahassee he will be guest of the Tallahassee Ministerial Association, the Kiwanis Club, and the Rotary Club. He will also be the dinner guest of the Baptist, the Presbyterian, and the Methodist students.

From Me To Y'all

Strange as it may seem, problems are abundant in the small secluded shut-off part of the world which we affectionately or otherwise refer to as "campus." But no one need worry for you always have Sharpie who fixes things up in one way or another. So, without further ado let us get on to our mail.

This letter signed, "Distressed," is marked "Urgent" so we will handle it first. Since it is extremely well written and the author has injected so much of her distress into the letter, we will quote it verbatum without our usual pungent editorial witticisms:

"I have a problem. The laundry has lost four vital pieces of my clothing in the past three weeks, not counting handkerchiefs, socks, etc. When I told my tale of woe to the manager he informed me that it was just my tough luck. My only source of income is the 30c an hour I make on my campus job. Please give me some good advice quickly as this problem is urgent. I am barely clothed now and getting barer all the time. P. S. Tain't funny!"

You do have a problem. Since we can think of no practical advice to give you we can only suggest several solutions which are worth thinking about.

1. Revolutionize campus clothing. Find other unfortunates who are losing their clothes and make it the style. Or can you bear it? (Get it?)

2. It is true that you will never be the best dressed woman on thirty cents an hour. Perhaps other students feel the same way. Had you considered organizing and striking for higher wages? After all, most of the boys (who else?) at the University of Florida make more money per hour than we do.

3. Wash your own clothes. This is highly undesirable, though.

4. Curse and take to drink.

We do appreciate your distress. It is nice to be loyal to the laundry but it is absurd to carry it to extremes—such as giving them the shirts off your back.

We have a letter from a freshman. She says, "I want to know if I, too, may organize a club—I, a lowly freshman, spelled f-r-e-s-h-m-a-n? I really must know my future happiness at FSCW, spelled Florida State Cell—uh, College, for Women depends on it. I appeal to you, oh all knowing one." After due consideration to your dilemma, we would say uh huh meaning yes. Anyone can organize a club. Have you picked your colors? Have you picked your day? Hurry, hurry, hurrry, there are only a few days left in the week on which something doesn't parade. Most of the primary colors are used up but according to the last check made, pastels are still available. (Due to the rapid pace with which these clubs spring up, this report is subject to change before publication.)

We got a letter via the grapefruit vine from a girl who feels that she is the BWOC mentioned in last week's column. She says that she has never been called a BWOC before. Since she signed her real name to the letter, we checked up and are willing to withdraw that title. She is not a BWOC.

This delicate problem in etiquette was easy. A sophomore informs us that she is going to Spring Frolics down at G'ville. She wants to know, "Will it be indiscreet for me to offer to pay my hotel bill?" No, in fact there will be hell to pay if you don't. It seems the fellows have decided that's the thing to do. Seems to us that's a real good idea. Now the girls who don't get invited will have a small consolation—it won't cost anything to stay behind in our steam heated rooms. Well, they are heated sometimes.

Sharpie is shocked! On a classroom blackboard was a big bold sign, "The Professor may be wrong — Think for yourselves." Our lives have been arranged so well for us since we arrived at FSC, we haven't had much practice in thinking for ourselves. However, we will try. It seems that the sign is required to be posted in British classrooms. If they can think, so can we. If anyone has any trouble along this line, just write to us.

Is it true that Tarpon Clubbers have trouble doing their homework underwater? We have the solution, a new miracle pen, which writes even when the writer is all wet. (Sweet Shop)

It took Sophomore Hop to immortalize us. Thank you, thank you. A just reward for our simple services rendered. Now we go to press and speaking of press, don't forget to put our column in your scrapbook with old dead flowers and other old dead things.

Soph Hop

another only to learn sometime later that their heart had found its way to Jennie's parlor.

When at last on Saturday the decorations were laboriously assembled and the process of stringing crepe paper strips began, two of the most agile members of the decorating crew began their monkey-like climb to the middle rafter of the gym. At last the two, a sailor and a girl, found themselves lodged in comparative safety and the hoisting up process began.

Finally after seemingly hours of tugging, the paper streamers hung downward from the middle rafter. The resulting maze of crepe paper strips may be compared only to the knotty tangle of a ball of twine after someone's favorite kitten has playfully tossed it about for an hour or two.

Meanwhile the girl on the rafter was puzzling over her own peculiar difficulty. She needed a sailor blouse for intermission performance during the hop that night and, search as she would, FSC's dormitories yielded no such apparel.

When the stringing of papers and her sojourn amid the rafters was ended, however, so was her major problem. The sailor's blouse proved to be a perfect fit.

Perhaps the dancers at Sophomore Hop wondered why the lights shone so brightly throughout the evening. The secret of this, as every light committee member knows, lay in the time-honored paper shortage. After other decorations were completed there simply wasn't enough crepe paper left to cover the light bulbs. And so, the gym on Saturday night like FSC's campus every evening remained amazingly bright.

At last when every blue and white cloud was in place and every crepe paper strip neatly twisted, the grimy-faced crew began their weary trek back to the dormitories. But as they trudged out of the gym, the last few girls discovered some decorations that were destined never to enliven Sophomore Hop. And so if you didn't find your man sized cupid at the dance, they can tell you why. Lodged in a dusty corner behind the door were the decorators' prize possessions, two six foot red cupids.

Marli Richardson of Odd volleyball says that practices have been held as planned with no interferences. She added, "Nothing can stop us now."

Sarah Bennett, completely recovered from the blow that interning delt the Even volleyball team, reports that the players are improving remarkably.

Concentrating , on team play Clarice Trueblood is whipping the Odd basketball team into shape. "The girls are all hard workers and good players," she said. "That spells disaster for the Evens."

On the other hand, Mart Wilson, Even basketball leader, is convinced that no other team can surpass hers in teamwork and techniques. "The girls are improving so with each practice that they should be practically perfect by March 2 when we have to beat the Odds," she said.

Life Saving Corps To Sponsor Speaker

Longfellow Founder of Safety Division of Red Cross

Commodore Longfellow, founder of the life saving and water safety division of the American Red Cross, will give a swimming exhibition in the pool at 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, February 20, to be followed by a lecture at 8 o'clock in the Augusta Conradi Little Theater.

The Commodore is widely known as one of the outstanding swimmers in the country. The grey haired "grandfather of life saving" has recently completed a tour of Europe and is now making his last tour of the United States before retirement. He plans to visit two cities in each state.

Commodore Longfellow's visit to the Florida State College campus is being sponosored by the Life Saving Corps and Anna Horne, president, invites all students who are interested to attend the exhibition and lecture.

A banquet will be held in the dining hall following the exhibition. Those attending will be the Tarpon club and Life Saving Corps officers and sponsors, Odd-Even swimming leaders and sponsors, Dr and Mrs Doak S Campbell, Mrs Kurtz, head of the Tallahassee Red Cross, and Dr Katherine Montgomery, head of the physical education department.

After the lecture that evening a reception will be held in the Longmire building. All students are invited to meet Commodore Longfellow and to participate in a period of informal conversation.

Playnight Program To Feature Poetry

"Falstaff's poetry corner" will be the featured attraction at Playnight in the gymnasium tomorrow night at 9 o'clock. According to Shirley Duggan, chairman of playnight committee, this attraction will be a regular one at the playnight programs in the future. Its purpose "is to discover what talent is lurking on the campus, and we want every type of poetry" said Shirley. The committee especially wants any "humorous" work. Contributions should be placed in the box marked "Falstaff contributions" which will be hung on a bulletin board in lower Westcott.

"Since we know that some of the most talented persons will be self-conscious about their work," she continued, "we will accept anonymous contributions as well as those with assumed names."

The regular dance period will be both before and after the program at 9. It will begin at 8 and last until 10.

Those appearing on the entertainment tomorrow night are: Martha McCormick, Nell Duncan, Rose Marie Ferro, Catherine Sullivan, Joyce Cayce and Falstaff, who prefers to remain anonymous until her appearance. Shirley says she is well-known to all the students.

Shirley said she wanted to urge students to continue voting for their favorite record each Saturday night so that they would be sure to get the favorite ones. She announced that she had been able to buy only two of the six that have been the favorites in the voting thus far, but she was still trying to get them. In the meantime she announced that she would buy some dance records by some of the more popular orchestras so that there would be plenty of variety in the records.

tion was made and passed that third quarter freshmen have unlimited dates. Discussion took place concerning a proposal that third quarter freshmen also be allowed to ride with men at night. In reply to a statement that investigation would be in all likelihood discover reasons which made necessary the establishment of the particular restriction in question, one Senate member member said that "establishment of a thing did not mean its necessity. . . many unnecessary regulations are 'established' and many necessary regulations are never made." An investigating committee was appointed to report at the Senate meeting to be called Monday.

Plans for Outing at Camp Completed

Hamburger Fry Open to Any Student Who Signs Up

Hamburgers fried in an outdoor oven, games, folk and square dancing—all these await any student who wishes to journey to camp in a chartered bus next Friday evening for a picnic sponsored by Outing Club.

Students may sign-up for this outing Wednesday afternoon and Thursday morning at a booth in lower Westcott. A fee to cover expenses for food will be charged each girl at this time, but transportation costs will be met by the Women's Association. Approximately 50 girls may participate in this activity, according to Amarene Thompson, president of Outing Club.

"This trip and all other Outing Club activities," Amarene stressed, "are for the entire school. Changing the name of the organization to the Outing Committee in order to emphasize that idea was discussed at a meeting of the club Monday evening," she added.

A weekend at camp enabling more students to attend these outings will be on the agenda for early in the third quarter, according to plans also made at that time. Tot Carter has charge of arrangements for this event. A committee which is now workinging on for arrangements for future outings, includes Martha Hart, Mary Calley, Georgene Pihos, Joyce Cayce, Edith Goodwin and Tot Carter.

French Honorary

Pi Delta Phi, French honorary, is having its annual initiation this afternoon at 5 o'clock in room 403 of the Longmire building. The five students to be honored for their outstanding work in French are Patricia Keller Frances Lyon, Juanita Nord, Bette Parker, and Ellen Whitman. Also, Dr Elizabeth Conrad, instructor in modern languages, has been asked to become an honorary member.

There will be a brief social period following the initiation.

Monthly PEA Meet Held Monday Night

The regular monthly meeting of the Physical Education association was held in the Longmire auditorium last Monday evening with Evelyn Stuckey, president, in charge of the meeting.

All physical education majors were urged to take the Women's National Official Rating Committee test as soon as possible. The need for officials at basketball games was especially stressed by Evelyn.

Miss Grace Fox, faculty advisor for PEA, said that a newsletter is to be sent to all physical education alumnae in the future. It will contain news of interest for alumnae concerning Florida State College and will also serve to keep alumnae in touch with each other. Before the war, Miss Fox said, letters of this type circulated often.

Miss Ernestine Troemel, associate professor in physical education, was in charge of the program for the evening, which was entitled, "Who's Who in Our Profession". There were biographical sketches of professional women athletes posted around the wall of the auditorium and each team had to take the clues given them, which were in the form of questions, and find the person asked about. The winning team was dubbed "Who's Who in Our Profession here on Campus". After completion of this part of the program, pictures were shown of honored people in various physical education fields.

the FSC band. It told the story of little Peter's adventures on a summer's day.

The fourth section, conducted by Mr Sellers, included the "Washington Post March" by J P Sousa, "Escapada" by Sic Phillips, "Little Red Caboose" by Moffitt, who was Mr Sellers' roommate at the Cincinnati Conesrvatory, and "King Cotton" by J P Sousa. "Little Red Caboose" featured a vocal trio composed of Laura Simpson, Ruth Kennedy, and Hazel Clarkson. "King Cotton" featured drum major Anne Richardson, and majorettes Betty La Bree, Shirley Bates, Kitty Chaires, and Patricia Ellise.

Officers of the band are: Anne Richardson, president; Peggy Elliot, vice-president; Frances Duckworth, secretary; Evelyn Hare, treasurer; Beryl Taylor, publicity manager; Elizabeth Harper, chief librarian; Emily Harper, assistant librarian; Evelyn Breedlove, property manager; and Betty Redd, social chairman.

Twelve Groups Enter Golf Intramurals

Tournament Begins Monday With Finals on Friday

Golf intramurals will begin next Monday with a total of twelve entrants from all those on campus, according to Theresa Munroe, senior intramurals manager.

A meeting of all managers of intramural sports was held Tuesday night, with the purpose of arousing the interest of prospective candidates for senior intramurals manager next quarter. It was decided that Sherlee Barish is to manage the golf intramural competition next week. The twelve groups entering are to play a foursome tournament before Monday, and these individual scores are to be turned in by Monday night. Out of the twelve scores, six will be, eliminated. The remaining six groups will play another foursome before Wednesday in order to eliminate three more scores. The final games will be played between next Wednesday and Friday, at which time the winning score will be announced.

These groups entering golf intramural competition this year are Pi Beta Phi, Alpha Delta Pi, Zeta Tau Alpha, Alpha Chi Omega, Phi Mu, Chi Delta Theta, Chi Omega, Bryan Hall, Delta Phi Epsilon, Alpha Xi Delta, Kappa Delta, and Delta Zeta.

"Anyone interested in the office of senior intramurals manager for next quarter may contact me for information at the Pi Beta Phi house," announced Theresa.

'Pin-Up" Boy

blue-eyed, brown-haired, nineteen-year-old boy from Tampa. His picture was entered by Barbara Fennell, Tampa freshman, who said that "his personality was tops, and he's just swell to know." His hobby is architecture, and his favorite drink is a chocolate malted. The contest netted the sponsoring Day Students' Organization a total sale of $1,668.60 worth of stamps and bonds.

Captain Lloyd Wheeler, Army Air Corps husband of Mrs Frances Wheeler, a Tallahassee day student, won second place.

Private First Class Sam David of the United States Marine Corps, then on duty in the South Pacific, came in third. His photograph was entered by Betty La Bree, sophomore from Dania.

18 Physical Education Majors Clean Up Camp Amid Moans, Groans and Blisters

By JACKIE NEVERS

Camp Flastacowo had its face washed last weekend. A group of eighteen physical education majors took the occasion to rid it of the grime of many years and quite a few dusty memories. The big cabin was scrubbed, swept and cleaned from top to bottom, including the removal of several beds responsible for countless bruises on dark nights. The boathouse, too, did not escape. It was not only stripped of its historic cobwebs, but also received a new roof.

"The freshmen majors were our most enthusiastic and willing workers," said Katherine Beazell, who headed the group.

Additional labor in the form of junior counselors and freshmen who were staying in the little cabin, was shanghaied for the occasion. The girls worked as hard as they could, but eventually took time out for canoeing and square dances. Saturday night, a group decided that they were too tired to sleep so they adjourned to the nearby council ring, now practically spotless. They must have been more tired than they thought, however, because an inquisitive dog with a thumping tail almost started a panic. Another disaster befell the girls who paddled to the other side of the lake, sprung a leak in their canoe, and had to carry same back to camp. Between burning leaves and scrubbing floors, quite a bit of fun seems to have been sandwiched in. But as one freshman remarked as she was leaving the clean and unnatural camp.

Soprano Star Appears Soon

TCMA Will Present Steber February 21 at 8:15

The Tallahassee Civic Music Association will present, for its second concert of the season, Eleanor Steber, soprano, of the Metropolitan Opera Association, according to Miss Isabel McKinnell. The concert will be held Thursday evening, February 21 at 8:15 in the Leon High School Auditorium.

Miss Steber won the Metropolitan Opera Auditions of the Air in 1940, making her debut at the Metropolitan Opera as Sophie in Der Rosenkavalier. Since then she has appeared there in numerous roles and she has made concert tours through the United States, Canada, and Havana. She has appeared on such radio programs as "The Voice of Firestone," the "Ford Hour," and "The Pause That Refreshes" with Andre Kostalanetz.

The Washington Times-Herald, in January of last year, wrote, "Eleanor Steber is the perfect vocal artist. Her voice is distinguished by a tonal quality of rare beauty . . . a charming personality and a pretty wit."

Other TCMA concerts of the season will be: the LeRoy-Foster-Scholz Trio, composed of Rene LeRoy, flutist, Sidney Foster, pianist, and Jenos Scholz, 'cellist, on March 11; and Jose Echaniz, pianist, on April 26.

Only those holding season memberships are admitted to the concerts of the TCMA; however, all new residents of Tallahassee who were not in the city at the time of the membership drive last spring will be given an opportunity to join the association now.

Anyone desiring membership mey get their season ticket from Miss Fae Thompson at the college book store.

Eyman Attends

Dr R L Eyman, dean of the School of Education, attended a conference of superintendents and teachers of Volusia county in Crestview last Wednesday.

Under discussion was a program of workshop activities for the county schools. According to Dr Eyman, the elementary public school teachers are eager to have a workshop in the language-arts division of the lower grades established.

FSC Music Faculty Presents Program

AAUW Sponsors Presentation Of Florida Compositione

Florida music played by the School of Music faculty of Florida State College was featured by the Tallahassee branch of the American Association of University Women Tuesday night in Westcott auditorium. This program followed the AAUW theme of the year, "Florida Resources, Human and Natural."

Mr Walter Ruel Cowles, professor of music, is the composer of two numbers on this program. "For All Saints' was played by Mrs Ramona Beard on the organ. Mrs Patricia Millett, dramatic soprano, accompanied on the piano by Miss Margaret Dunn, sang Mr Cowles' composition "The Shepherd to his Love."

"Come Ye Sinners, Poor and Needy" was written by Claude Murphree and played by Mrs Beard on the organ. Mrs Beard also played another number thet Mr Murphree collaborated with Manna-Zucca in composing. It was "My Musical Calendar, 'A Hazy Moon, February 15'."

Two selections by Mrs Beard were played; "Sortie," which Mrs Beard played, and "Gale" which was sung by Mrs Millet.

Mr Owen Sellers, assistant professor of orchestral instruments, played on his cello his "Sonata in A major." Miss Lucille Wagner accompanied him on the piano.

Two of Miss Wagner's songs were sung by Mrs Millet who was accompanied by Miss Dunn. The songs were the "Curfew Song" and "Autmnal."

Miss Dunn also accompanied Mrs Millet when she sang three of Miss Dunn's songs; "It is Enough;" "Holy Song," from Winnebago Indian folk lore; and "Before Rain," from Navajo Indian folk lore.

"Beautiful Dark Head" by Mrs Bonjta Crowe was sung by Mrs Millet as well as Nocture from "Seige of Corinth" which Miss Olga Eitner composed.

"Sonata for Violin and Piano" was written and played by Miss Eitner. Miss Mary Esther Winslow accompanied on the piano Miss Eitner's violin. "Rondo-Allegretto Scherzando" from String Quartet was also one of Miss Eitner's compositions. It was played by Miss Eitner, first violin; Joyce Funke, second violin; Rachel Crotwell, viola; and Mr Sellers, cello.

Mr Karl Ahrendt, a member of this faculty on military leave, was the composer of "Epigrams" which was played on this program by Miss Winslow on the piano.

"Romance in B Minor" by Miss Gladys Koch was also played by Miss Winslow.

Council to Leave For Camp Tomorrow

Members of Sophomore Council will leave tomorrow to spend their annual weekend at camp. At a campfire service on Saturday night, Jo Long, chairman and Martha Jane Brown, last year's sponsor, will speak on the general theme, "What Sophomore Council Means to Me."

Georgie Jaeckel is in charge of a worship service to be held Sunday morning. All old members of Sophomore Council have been invited to come to Sunday dinner at camp which will be followed by a short skit for their especial enjoyment.

Miss Callope Papatsos, Sophomore Council faculty sponsor, will act as chaperone during the weekend. Jean Bennett is in charge of the food committee, Elaine Gavigan and Carol Claus are in charge of transportation, and Franklin Smith is in charge of the invitations.

Artist Series

program is for holders of the Blue Series and will begin at 8:15.

Tickets will be distributed for both performances each afternoon from 4 to 6 p m in the basement of the Longmire building between the dates February 14 to 20, excepting Saturday and Sunday.

A rendition of "The Star Spangled Banner" from the original score as composed by Francis Scott Key will be the featured piece of music on the programs which will take place in Westcott Auditorium.

"The present conductor of the Orchestra, Mr Reginald Stewart, has been with the Symphony for the last four seasons, adding striking ability to a great combination of musicians", said Dean Karl O Kuersteiner, head of the School of Music at FSC.

This year marks the 29th anniversary of the Baltimore Symphony's first performance, and is the second year of concert tours for the ensemble. The city of Baltimore began the orchestra and supported it with municipal funds until recent years when civic-minded citizens began to contribute to its support. Lately its scope of activities has been widened to include performances on the radio and the concert tours.

"Today the orchestra is composed of 90 players, 84 of whom will appear on this campus," stated Mr A Trap, advance agent for the orchestra, when interviewed in Dean Kuersteiner's office.

"Most of these musicians also belong to the faculty of the Peabody Conservatory of Music which is located in Baltimore.

"Their dual positions were assured them by Reginald Stewart, who reasoned that a faculty position plus a seat with the orchestra would attract better muscians and be a means of keeping a permanent personnel of accomplished artists." Mr Trap explained.

Dean Kuersteiner said that the idea worked and the Symphony is better because it does not have to depend on transients for talent. Since Mr Stewart became conductor, the Orchestra is a coordinated, well-planned integration of individuals who are masters of music in their own field as well as in concert.

When women were first employed by the federal government, in the middle of the 19th century, they appeared on the payroll in the name of some male relative.

Sorority Chit-Chat . . . .

Initations held the spotlight in sorority activities for the past weekend. The Tri Delta, Kappa Alpha Theta, Kappa Delta, Alpha Xi Delta, Delta Zeta, and Alpha Delta Pi were found holding the last initations on campus.

A banquet was held Saturday night after initiation in honor of the new Tri Delt initates at the "Three T's". At the banquet Jean Furman was given an engraved bracelet for best pledge of the year, and Margie Norris will have her name engraved on the chapter cup for having the highest scholastic average in the pledge group.

The table was decorated with a centerpiece of flowers carrying out a silver, gold and blue color theme. White candles placed in blue and gold candle holders in the shape of deltas were used . . . Place cards were stars with a small candle on each. A corsage of silver, gold and blue was given to each initiate. Bopeep Shell and Joyce Benton were in charge of decorations. Pat Allen was chairman of the place card committee.

Out-of-town alumnae were Mrs Frank Bisbee, financial advisor, and Mrs Charles V Mercer from Jacksonville; Miss Virginia Helie from Pensacola.

Initation was held for fifteen Kappa Alpha Theta pledges last Friday night beginning at five o'clock. Sunday morning the new initiates were honored with an informal breakfast given by the actives. B J Singleton, Dusty Rhodes, and Bobbie Reese were in charge of the breakfast. Jean Ann Daly was awarded a plain pin for highest scolastic average among the pledges, and Rickie Ewing a cup for having the most activity points.

The new initiates are Vonnie Black, Juanell Bailey, Betty Banks, Bets Brown, Bets Cargill, Jean Ann Daly, Rickie Ewing, Kay Harrison, Phyllis Hooker, Candy Jones, Barbara King, Ann Leach, Helen McCann, Joyce Stroberg, and Pauline Tuttle.

An alumna who was present for the initiation was Mrs M H Austin.

Last night the Theta's honored their district president, Mrs J H Hoffstead, with a coffee at eight o'clock.

The Kappa Delta's initiated seventeen girls last Friday night at 6:30. Last night the new initiates were honored with a Valentine banquet at the Floridan hotel.

Those initiated were: Ann Bendict, Mary Elizabeth Conant, Rosemary Fleming, Rose Ann Hartwell, Charlotte Healy, Betty Jane Herring, Dorothy Martin, Betty Lou Maddox, Em Turner Nichinson, Ruth Ellen Olsen, Iris Parsons, Emmala Pate, Sarah Jane Talkington, Dorothy Taylor, and Jean Thomas.

Alumnae who were present for initiation were Mrs Julia Mae Conant, Miss Angel Fain, Mrs John Anderson, and Miss Mary Shelly Carr.

Initiation knocked at the door of the Alpha Xi Delta's also Friday night at eight o'clock. Sunday morning a breakfast in honor of the new members was given at the Cherokee hotel. Mary Mims, president, addressed the new initiates and Verna Rogers, president of the pledges gave a response.

Those newly initiated include Sally Joyce, Emily Dawkins, Verna Rogers, Maude Mims, Bettye Lovett, and Mary Ann Hopson. Emily Dawkins was given a cup for being the most outstanding pledge and having the highest scholastic average of the pledges.

Virginia Page and Virginia Aljo were visiting alumnae for the initiation.

During initiation ceremonies Saturday afternoon, thirteen girls became recipients of Delta Zeta lamps. The girls who were initiated were Carol Avery, Sally Briles, Dot Boring, Alice Datson, Shirley Huggins, Joanne Kirkland, Ann Oetjen, Bettye Jean Phillips, Elizabeth Ann Read, Paula Jeanne Teagarden, Mildred Turner, Ruth Wilkie, and Louise Wilson.

On Sunday morning a breakfast honoring the new initiates was held at the Cherokee hotel. After the breakfast the thirteen new members were welcomed into the chapter by Kathleen Johnson, president. Betty Johnston presented the scolarship charm to Mildred Turner for having the highest scholastic average among the pledges. Bettye Jean Phillips received the Alpha Sigma bracelet for being the best all-round pledge from Ann Brady. For loyalty and devotion to Delta Zeta Dot Boring was presented a loving cup. The names of these three outstanding girls will be engraved on the pledge plaque. Anne Singleton received an award from the Jacksonville alumnae chapter for having the highest scolastic average among Alpha Sigma actives for the past year.

Alumnae attending iniation and the breakfast were Mrs Harry Owens, Tallahassee, Lou Taylor, Graceville, and Lorenn Nicholson, Wildwood.

The Alpha Delta Pi's honored their new initiates Sunday morning with a breakfast at the "Three T's". At the breakfast Ann Stinson was awarded for having the highest scholarship average of the pledges. Sarah Routon was awarded for being the best pledge, and Sara Corry was presented a plaque for having the most activity points.

The new initiates honored the Phi Mu actives with an informal breakfast Sunday morning at the chapter house. Hazel Clarkson, Jane Lee Stanley, and Laura Simpson were in charge of the breakfast.

The spirit of elections has just left the Delta Phi Epsilon house this week. The latest "election returns" show that their new president is their old president, Ester Argintar. The other officers are: first vice president, Rita Gendzier; second vice president, Ester Barash; recording secretary, Jean Liebeman; corresponding secretary, Eileen Murinson; treasurer, Phyllis Singer; pledge mother, Shirley Barish; Panhellenic representive, Polly Marks; and ritualist and historian, Joyce Rosenthal.

At a party last week Shirley Agress was selected as the most outstanding pledge and Annette Bitsky the pedge having the highest scolastic average.

Rushing is in order tonight for the Alpha Chi Omega's, who they are having a party at eight o'clock. Jean Ann Groham, Margaret Johnson, and Virginia DeGarry are in charge of the entire function.

At the banquet honoring the new initiates last Thursday night at the Cherokee hotel, Dorothy Aberle was awarded a cup for having the highest scholastic average and Mary Hart a cup for having the most activity points.

Mrs Marianne Mabie from Lakeland and Miss Doris Wells from West Palm Beach were alumnae guests in the house this past weekend.

At the Pi Beta Phi house last Friday night Ann Daniel gave her voice recital. Mrs R J Daniel and Mrs J D Curtis were guests at the house last weekend.

Gainesville boys invited up for Sophomore Hop who arrived on Friday were in for a treat at the Alpha Gam house when hot roasted nuts, coffee, chocolate and cookies were served at an informal party. Dancing, games and bridge kept everyone happy in the best of spirits during the evening.

Tomorrow night the Alpha Gams are bringing back the spirit of Cupid with his many valentines at a Valentine's party. It will be for actives, pledges, friends and their dates. Barbara McKinney is in charge of the refreshments and Katherine Cooper in charge of the entertainment. The house will be decorated by the pledges.

Miss Mary Mooty's stage craft class.

Captain Dingwell explained the plot as follows: "Charles Condominie, an English novelist, invites an eccentric medium into his home in order to learn the lineup of the occult. Strangely enough the medium is singularly successful and manages to materialize Charles' first wife, dead or "past over" seven years.

"Only Charles can see or hear this wraith who delights in reminding him of their former days together. Ruth, the present wife, who is quite sure her husband must be suffering from an attack of nerves, becomes jealous nevertheless. Most of Charles' answers to the invisible Elvira sound like brutal insults directed at Ruth.

"The medium, now that she has actually conjured up a spirit, finds herself utterly unable to get rid of it. The remainder of the play is concerned with Charles' attempts to extricate himself from this bewildering astral bigamy."

Dormitory Teas

With red and white decorations and seasonal music lending a festive air, the campus dormitories yesterday observed Valentine's day with their weekly teas.

Faculty members and girls from other dormitories were guests of honor at a special valentine coffee in Landis hall. a musical program was presented at this time by Katherine Gremli. Accompanied by Miss Margaret Dunn at the piano, she sang "I Love Thee" by Grieg, Sigmond-Romburg's "One Kiss," "I'll See You Again" by Noel Cowart, and "My Hero" by Oscar Strauss. Margaret Winton was general chairman for this occasion. Katherine Gremli had charge of programs and Mary Elizabeth Knight, of decorations.

A valentine reading by Kitty Carey and piano selections by Jackie Story provided entertainment at Campuside's weekly tea. The girls living at Sally house had charge of the program at this time.

Against a background of valentine decorations, Patricia Yates presented a reading at Cockerell's tea yesterday. Arlene Love had charge of arrangements for this occasion.

Dr Sarah Herndon spoke on teaching at the Jennie Murphree tea yesterday. This event was in charge of Ann Grant.

At Gilchrist's tea Elizabeth and Emile Harper presented a musical selected on their tonettes. Yvonne Boatright planned this event.

the optimistic Alpha Xi's hope that he will some day respond to their whistle, so for the present he sports a pledge pin on his collar.

Pledge is definitely not an athletic animal. His exercise ability is further hampered by the leg brace, but even without that, he would never be the vivacious type. Since he keeps the girls awake by clumping and thumping around the house, most of his time is spent ont in the backyard. Here he sleeps peacefully in the sun all day, only bothering to stir occasionally to be carried in for food, or quivering gently if someone shouts his name. Inside he clunks up the stairs to a certain bed of which he is genuinely fond and attempts to dislodge the owner. So far, Pledge has only succeeded in securing her blanket for his nest in the kitchen.

No doubt, Pledge will be revealed as a well-known campus character. When he was seen by a group of freshmen, one of the remarked, "That's the same dog that we were sent to house council for having in our room."

Valentine Theme To Be Carried Out At Phi Mu Formal

Phi Mu sorority will hold its annual dance tomorrow night at 8:30 in the Longmire auditorium. The Valentine theme of the decorations is to be carried out in the sorority colors of rose and white, and will include cupids bordering the room and door, and a large satin heart hanging at one end of the room.

Punch will be served throughout the evening from a punch table set under an ivy covered trellis, and music for dancing will be furnished by Osco Hughes' orchestra from Thomasville.

During the evening the old and new officers of Phi Mu, and other sorority representatives and escorts, will be presented by Barbara Lanford, mistress of ceremonies.

Invited faculty members include Dr and Mrs Coyle E Moore, Mr and Mrs Earl L Vance, Miss Alice Henderson, Miss Mary H Claybrooke, Dr Enda Deviney, Dr Claude R Florry, Miss Callope Papatsos, Dr Olivia N Dorm and Miss Katherine Warner.

FSC May Have Campus Unit

College and Red Cross Officials Meet

The possibility that Florida State College will be the first school in the state to have an American Red Cross college unit, is being presented. H O Hill, chairman of the Tallahassee Red Cross chapter, announces that chapter and college officials are considering establishing a unit on this campus.

Mrs Mary S Pegram, director of college units of the Southeastern area, will be at the Tallahassee chapter Monday through Wednesday to explain the college unit program to chapter and school officials and students, with a view toward establishing a unit at FSC.

College units were organized to allow students to carry out their own Red Cross programs, though each unit is an extension of its local chapter. "The idea is catching on so fast," Mr Hill said, "that 171 colleges and universities have already established units on their campuses. The plan has the adde advantage of coordinating all Red Cross services rendered by the students and of making it easier for students to devote their spare time to Red Cross activities. Mr Hill further stated, that while some war-created services will still need the generous help of co-eds, emphasis will gradually shift to local programs which will help to build better communities.

The director of college units, who will be here next week, is a native of Charlotte, N C. Mrs Pegram has been a member of the Red Cross professional staff since 1942, before which work she had wide experience both in the teaching profession and in the social work field. While on this campus she will meet with various student leaders and faculty members concerning the founding of a college unit. Any student desiring a conference with Mrs Pegram should contact Robin Hill, Box 1019, or phone 671.

Twenty-five Attend Presbyterian Meet

Twenty-five students from Florida State College will attend the Presbyterian Student Conference at the University of Florida this week-end, according to Miss Miriam Wilson, Presbyterian student secretary on this campus.

Two FSC students are state officers in the organization: Jocelyn Zeigler is president and Lola Mill, secretary.

Leaders for the conference include: Rev A J Kissling of Jacksonville, Rev D P McGeachy of Clearwater, Rev Hugh Powell of Orlando, Rev Fred Widmer, student pastor at the University, and Miss Wilson.

Local students attending the conference are: Betty McRae, Betty Mowat, Coline Gunn, Marjorie Holm, Jane Northern, Lillian Kennedy, Irene Coleman, Dalia Santos, Beth Fuhrer, Marjorie Potter, Barbara Reeves, Ruthmary Bliss, Lois Watkins, Marjorie Lant, Eddie Faye Stokes, Ann MacInnes, Peggy Lou Thomas, Lois Narovec, Lydis Moore, Etta Fraser, Mary Monaco, Marian Hill, Lola Miller, and Elizabeth Hudson.

They will be accompanied on the trip by Miss Wilson and Rev Lawrence I Stell, minister of the First Presbyterian church of Tallahassee.

CGA Forum Topic To Be Education

"Education for Florida Women," will be the topic discussed at a forum, sponsored by CGA to be held March 6, at 8 o'clock in the Longmire building auditorium.

Three brief talks on this subject will be given by Frances Traxler, Rosetta Carver, and Winifred Lane, after which an informal discussion will be held.

"Both students and faculty members are invited to attend the discussion and it is hoped that a large number will be present," said Peggy Lou Thomas, head of the publicity department.

Other members of the publicity department include Robin Hill, Dalia Santos, and Barbara Wickham.

Senate Makes Changes In Social Rules

Three Required for Third Quarter Freshmen Night Riding

Recommendations Wait For Faculty Sanction

Senate voted, 30 to 13, to allow third quarter freshmen to ride at night and later added by a vote of 20-23 the condition that each of them with a night-riding date must take a second stunent with her. Harriet Kirk was elected a junior representative to Judiciary, and the social chairmen of dormitories were named members of house councils at the Monday Senate meeting in Westcott.

The night-riding decision with other recent recommendations of Student Senate was presented yesterday to College Council. The bills were not considered individually, but were turned over to the legislative committee for investigation and recommendations, according to Olivia N Dorman, Dean of Students. (College Council is composed of the executive council of College Government association and the faculty committee on student affairs.)

Lt Windy Sellers Is Official Pin-up Boy

Sidney Conner's Man Is Winner Of College Contest

Lt (jg) Windy Sellers, entered by Sidney Conner, was elected the official pin-up boy of Florida State College in the contest ending yesterday at 5 o'clock. Daphne Rowe, president of the Day Students Organization, who eponsored the contest, announced that he received $293.95 out of the $725.00 worth of votes cast in the contest.

Runners up in the contest, according to Daphne, were David Michelson, Jr, age 2, who was entered by his mother, Mrs Mary Michelson. The votes cast for David amounted to $133.10. Third place was won by Hank Hammond, entered by Fay Bass, and his total votes amounted to $56.25.

Eighty-five pictures were entered in the race which lasted two days. The Day Students started this event last year and were so successful in the undertaking that they decided to make it an annual event.

Daphne said that all who entered pictures could get them back at the information booth in the Longmire building between 5 and 6 this afternoon and all of Saturday morning.

The three pictures that won honorable mention in the contest were: Lamar King of Dunellon entered by Marjorie King, Bobbie Ramsing, of Nuevo, California, entered by LaFerne Quinn, and Jack Barbidge of New York City entered by Dorothy Barbidge.

The three top winners' pictures will be on display for the next two weeks in the bulletin case on the main floor of the Longmire building, Daphne has announced.

The winner this year was number 66, and Sidney said that she "nearly fell over" when the girl told her because six is her lucky number. According to Sidney,

Semi-Precious Florida Stones Displayed in Geological Survey

By JO DUNAGAN

The state of Florida is not only rich with oranges and oil, grapefruit and cattle, but it has recently been found to be a source of semi-precious stones. There are two cases displaying these stones here on campus in the State Geological Survey located under the old dining hall.

One of the cases contains stones which were discovered near Tampa Bay, Florida. Mr James G Manchester, geologist, has given much attention to Ballast Point, a piece of land jutting into the bay about three miles from the business center of Tampa. The stones on display were cut and polished by Mr Manchester himself.

There are also several "Chalcedony Pseudomorphs after Coral" on display. Pseudomorph is the term applied to a mineral which has been changed into another mineral without losing its original form. When coral animals die they leave skeletons of lime. When a new mineral replaces the primitive one in these fossils (a process known as metasomatism), they become items of interest for the mineralogist.

The semi-precious stones in the State Geological survey are all cut from such chalcedony pseudomorphs. Among the varieties of chalcedony shown are carnelian, sard, sardonyx, black onyx, and agate.

The stones in the second case were not all found in Florida. They come from various parts of the world. William B Pitts, a native Georgian, donated this collection to the survey. Mr Pitts has given similar collections to museums all over the country. Money can't buy them, but it is his pleasure to give them away. Included in this collection are samples of agate, rose quartz, az-

Rogers Plans Tour For College Girls

The opportunity for enrollment is still open for college students and their friends who wish to tour New York and Washington during spring vacation, states Dr Carmen Rogers, associate professor of English.

The trip which lasts March 20-27, will provide an opportunity to see historical landmarks in the capitol city, attend famous dramas and operas, and visit two of the largest shopping centers in the world.

The initial cost per person will be $225. All persons interested can contact Dr Rogers by writing to P O box 1077 or by telephoning 872-R.

Last of Play Series Presented Thursday

"End of the Rainbow-Right" Given by Work Shop

The last of the series of children's plays presented weekly by the Florida State College Radio Workshop was presented last night. This week their story was "End of the Rainbow-Right." The play was broadcast from the college studio over station WTAL at 9:15 p m.

The "End of the Rainbow-Right" is a fantasy with a cast of fairies, ghosts, children—and a cat. The story concerns a little colored fairy, who lived at the end of the rainbow—left and went in search of her stolen bag of gold. Telling of how she discovered that it had been stolen by a wicked ghost who was protected by the power of his magic halo, the story ends when the little fairy at last overcomes the ghost and recovers her bag of gold.

Directed by Harriet Dews and Bonnie Hunt, the cast included: Ruth Kennedy, announcer; Pat Conlin, narrator; Carolyn Abrams, Lilybelle; Phyllis Cole and Sara Daughterty, fairies; Jane Wooten, queen; Bet Cargill, Foolish; and Pat Pattishall, Ghost. Sound effects were in charge of Betty Tait and Flo Bartleson was control board engineer.

The Workshop has been presenting children's plays for the past three weeks. The first week's play was "Pandora's Box," a radio adaptation of Nathaniel Hawthorne's story, and the second play in the series was "The Paradise of Children."

Next week the Radio Workshop will present a new series with scripts that have been adapted in class. "Reprisal" by Arthur

Brotherhood Sabbath Ends Observances

Dr C M Haynes to Speak At Temple Israel 8:00 Tonight

Discussion Series Conducted By Dr William Ryan

National Brotherhood Week will culminate tonight at 8 o'clock when Brotherhood Sabbath will be held at B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation at Temple Israel. The speaker at this program, to be conducted by Hillel students, will be Dr Claude M Haynes, president of the Tallahassee Ministerial Association and pastor of the Trinity Methodist church. Dr Haynes will speak on "An Adventure in Brotherhood."

National Brotherhood Week, a time set aside for the purpose of uniting in better understanding the various religious groups, had its official beginning on campus with the observance of World Student Day of Prayer last Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock in the Little Theater. A service of music, directed meditation and responsive readings was conducted.

Dr William A Ryan, Armed Service director of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, conducted a religious class Monday afternoon in the library. At 7:30 Monday night, Dr Ryan spoke to the Religious Workers Council in Ruge Hall.

Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock a character and personnel class was held by Dr Ryan, after which he spoke at convocation that night.

On Wednesday Dr Ryan held his last class in religion at 9 o'clock in the history building.

Wednesday evening, the Baptist and Methodist students met at the Baptist Student house where they listened to the Brotherhood College Radio program, presented at 7:15.

The program, announced by

Telephone Company Makes Survey Here

Private Switchboard For FSC Might Be Outcome

A private switchboard on Florida State College campus may be the result of the survey being made of college phones by the Southeastern Telephone Company, according to R K Shaw, business manager.

The telephone company has asked the college to keep a record of the number of incoming and outgoing campus and town calls each hour. In this way they hope to discover when the peak load comes and which phones carry the greatest number of calls, Mr Shaw stated.

"We do not know yet exactly what the outcome will be," the business manager said. The availability of men and materials will affect the completion of the project. However, he said that this was the telephone company's idea and that they are interested in giving the college the best service possible.

If the college should get the private exchange, Mr Shaw said that all town calls, as well as inter-departmental calls, would be handled here.

Spectators See Remnants of an Ancient Indian Civilization When the Peruvian Museum of FSC Is Opened to the Public

By Betty Jo McLeod

The Peruvian museum at Florida State College for Women has been opened many times during the past two years by Dr Raymond Bellamy, professor of sociology, to show the collection of Incan and pre-Incan relics donated to the school by Mr and Mrs John Victor Carter of the Canal Zone in 1944.

The collection, valued at many thousands of dollars, is said to be one of the largest of its kind in existence on the North American continent. It contains gold and silver coins, beaten gold and silver ornaments, textiles, tapestries, pottery, toys, weapons, idols, and implements used by the Peruvian Indians from about 5000 BC until the Spanish invasion.

Dr Bellamy took groups around the museum explaining the uses and significance of the pieces. He pointed out objects indicative of the high type of civilization the Incas possessed.

Among these were textiles and tapestries woven almost a thousand years ago. Although the collection contains some materials made of Vicuna (wild lama) wool, most of the pieces are made of cotton. Dr Bellamy compared the woven-in designs with some of the surrealistic art of today. He pointed out that the Incas made beautiful materials, but that their sewing methods were crude, proving his point by exhibiting a piece of Incan needlecraft.

Passing from the fabrics to some lengths of knotted string he explained that they were the "keepers". On these strings the Incan business man kept an account of his taxes, crops, and any other transactions requiring book-keeping. The different knots had different meanings, and they were able to have a very accurate record of their finances by this method.

The pottery attracted much interest among the spectators. It includes bottles, jugs, pitchers, pots, and whistling jugs. The whistling jugs seemed to be the most fascinating of all. By an intricate arrangement of water pressure, the jugs whistle when any liquid is poured from them. Dr Bellamy suggested that they were servicable when one of the slaves tried to sample his master's wine.

All of the pottery is made of a black clay which dries into a metal like finish. A favorite design for pottery was the bust of the rulers who had intermarried until they all looked alike. The pieces were polished to their present soft sheen by many applications of human ear wax through the years.

For taking the wax from their ears, the Incas used small gold or silver earspoons. One complete section of the museum cases is taken for displaying the different types of these spoons dating far into the pre-Inca days.

The oldest idol in the museum is carved from a tree and has a removable face. The estimated date of this idol is from 2000 to 3000 BC. Although the age has been estimated, there has been no suitable explanation given as to why the idol should have a removable face. Among the other carved idols are three monkeys reminiscent of the "hear no evil, see no evil, speak no evil" trinity.

Another interesting figure which may be an idol is that of a drawn up old woman without any feet. She is believed to represent a syphilitic because the disease was common to the race.

The only idols of precious metal on display are two small silver figures, male on one side and female on the other. They are symbolic of the Indian dieties of fertility.

Many small gold and silver figures cast two thousand years ago were shown. According to Dr Bellamy their process of casting was similar to our modern one. They made an object of wax, around molten metal. When the metal had cooled, they broke the clay away and the casting remained.

Some of the smaller castings resemble the pins worn by our modern women. Indeed the jewelry of the collection might well have come from some modern novelty counter. There are gold bracelets, beads of monkey'e teeth, jadite, and even of copper. When asked if one string of beads were jade, D Bellamy replied that it was of copper and that through the ages oxidation had caused it to turn green.

Another piece from the collection which would fit well in our modern life is a hat worn by some

CGA Candidate Petitions Due

Qualification, Statement, Snapshot Required

Petitions for candidacy to CGA offices may be submitted from Wednesday, February 27, until third light flash the following Sunday, March 3, to Ann Carolyn Allison, chairman of the nominations committee. Candidates must accompany their petition with a snapshot and statement of their qualifications for offices, according to Ann Carolyn.

All petitions for candidacy to major offices must bear the signatures of 50 students, and 25 for minor offices. Training classes for these offices, which have continued throughout the week, will end this evening with the following schedule: secretary and second vice-president of CGA at 5 p m; business manager of the Flambeau and first vice-president of CGA at 5:30 p m; and treasurer of CGA at 7:30 p m. These training sessions will be held in the CGA room with the exception of those of publication positions, which will be held in the respective offices in the Longmire building.

Any student who has, however, failed to attend these classes may still be a candidate for CGA offices. In this case she should see Ann Carolyn or the person who now holds the office she is seeking.

Although no student may endorse more than one petition for the same office, a girl may submit a petition for a major and a minor office, both of which

'Mecca' New Name For Spic n' Span

"The Mecca," entry of Lucy Fieden, is the winning name in the contest for re-naming the old "Spic and Span," announced Mr L G Blunt, new owner, yesterday afternoon.

Those who judged the contest included six students, Martha Wright, Virginia Allen, Shirley Agress, Ruth McCallister, Helen Terrapian, Theresa Munroe, and two residence counselors, Mrs Meline S Turner and Mrs. Esther Ferguson, and Miss Alice Henderson, secretary and assistant to the business manager.

Prizes will be, as announced before, ten dollars in merchandise at "The Mecca" to the winner, and two dollars in merchandise to each of the judges. Collections may be made at any time after the opening of "The Mecca" in approximately fifteen days, if possible, according to Mr Blunt. Delay is due to the postponing of a court decision as to when and how the building is to be cleared by former owners.

Distaff Deadline To Be February 28

February 28 is the deadline for all articles and stories to be submitted for the third issue of the Distaff as well as the final deadline for the short story contest which the Distaff is sponsoring, according to Winifred Meldrim editor.

There is a great need for all types of writing, especially poetry and articles on any aspect of education in compliance with the theme of the third issue, Winifred stated.

Winifred also requests that contributors keep the literary touch in mind in regard to their writing, since the articles which have been received lately are good, but in her opinion do not possess the literary style.

Orchestra Makes Initial Performance

Stewart Will Direct Two Concerts on Campus Next Wednesday

Sykora Will Be Honored by FSC Band Members

The Baltimore Symphony Orchestra will make its initial appearance on the Florida State College campus on February 27 with two performances under the baton of Reginald Stewart.

Red series matinee tickets admit students to the 4:30 p m concert, while Blue series evening tickets are the admittance to the formal 8:30 appearance.

Mr Frank Vincent Sykora, formerly connected with FSC during 1943, '44, and '45 as bandleader, conductor, and instructor, holds the position of second cellist with the Symphony and will appear with the group, announced Dr Karl O Kuersteiner, dean of the School of Music.

Mr Sykora became a member of the Symphony last fall after spending the summer as first cellist in the New Orleans Symphony Orchestra.

The FSC band officers and membere are giving a dinner in Mr Sykora's honor before the evening concert.

On the afternoon concert will be the March from "Carmen" by Bizet, and Mendelssohn's Symphony No 4 in A Major. Also the matinee will include "Anitra's Dance" from Peer Gynt Suite No 1 by Grieg.

The evening performance schedules Symphony No 6 (Pathetique) Op 74 by Tschaikowsky, and the Suite fom Strauss' "Der Rosenkavalier."

"Mr Reginald Stewart, who leads the Symphony, practices his belief in the value of radio as a medium for increasing better appreciation of music in this country," said Dean Kuersteiner when interviewed. "He has been guest conductor of the Ford Symphony Hour and soloist on the Andre Kostelanetz radio program." Dean Kuersteiner also mentioned that Mr Sykora has appeared on the Kostelanetz broadcasts.

Mr Stewart wrote that he is looking forward to the concert at FSC because he feels the orchestra will play before an audience of people who know what they are trying to do.

Mr Stewart continues his British Broadcasting Company and National Broadcasting Company work between concert recitals and regular engagements.

Mr C C Cappel, manager for the orchestra, told that Mr Stewart is a native of Edinburgh Scotland, and was born of musical parents. He joined the St Mary's Cathedral Choir in Edinburgh when he was nine years old. There he was taught by Dr J H Collinsin, Arthur Friedham, Isador Phillipp, Nadine Boulanger, and Mark Hambourg, who are celebrated as being among Europe's most brilliant teachers. He became director of the Canadian Operatic Society at the age of nineteen and from that time, he has become known as a pianist and baton wielder.

Mr Stewart organized the Toronto Philharmonic Orchestra in Canada, and made his English debut with the London Symphony Orchestra. Since then he has conducted the New York Philhar-

Junior Examination Is Senior "Must"

The College Executive Council has passed a regulation that a student will not be classified as a senior until the junior English requirement has been met, according to Dr Milton W Carothers, registrar and secretary of the executive Council. Students who do not meet all qualifications for senior standing will not be admitted to senior privileges. This regulation becomes effective September, 1946.

At the beginning of the junior year, each student is required to take an examination in English composition. For those who need it, special remedial work is provided. The passing of this examination or the satisfactory completion of the remedial work required is a orerequisite for graduation. Because a number of students have been quite careless about this requirement, and a few have delayed the meeting of it until their last quarter in college, the above regulation was thought by Executive Council to be necessary.

Regulations Are Released

Creative Arts Contest Is Sponsored by AAUW

Regulations for the creative writing, music composition, field of dance, and arts and crafts divisions of the Creative Arts Contest sponsored by the Tallahassee branch of the American Association of University Women have been released by the committee heads. Specifications applying to household arts and dramatic arts will be announced within the next week, according to Miss Cynthia Reeves, chairman of the creative arts committee.

This year the creative writing division will include short stories, informal essays, poetry, and journalistic writing, Miss Mildred Henry, chairman, stated. Contestants may feel complete freedom in the selection of subject and style since the work will be judged wholly on the excellence with which the writers achieve their purpose, Miss Henry said. Also, contributors may enter as many fields as they wish and as many contributions in any one field as they desire.

Short stories, essays and poetry will be published in the Distaff. Miss Henry urges the contestants to make use of the facilities in the library to inform themselves of the requisites of each of these types of writing.

The names of consultants and judges, the rules and regulations governing the manuscripts, and the deadline will be announced later, Miss Henry said.

Miss Gladys Koch, chairman of the music composition committee, announced the specifications for music manuscripts. Original compositions may be submitted in the field of vocal works, including solo with words which may or may not be original, and ensemble compositions with or without accompaniment. Piano, organ, other instrumental solos, and ensemble arrangements may be contributed to the instrumental division. Manuscripts are to be submitted in ink with the contestant's name and address attached on a separate slip to Miss Koch, box 956, by April 1.

The music contest, which is open to all Florida State College students, is to serve as an incentive toward composing, Miss Koch stated. All entries will be judged as to the degree of craftsmanship, music content and originality. Other members of the committee are Miss Mary Esther Winslow and Professor W R Cowles.

Students wishing to enter the creative arts field of dance may do so either in tap or contemporary (modern) dance. Although the two fields will be judged separately, all compositions will be selected according to the effectiveness of floor and space patterns, the co-ordination of movement with the idea of the dance as well as the music, the skill with which the dance is performed, and the effectiveness of the dance as a whole, Miss Louise Gehan, chairman of the committee announced.

Compositions must be original and no professional assistance can be used, Miss Gehan said. Individual or group dances may be entered and these, too, will be judged separately. The time and place of the presentation of the dances for judging will be announced later but it will be approximately April 15.

Other members of the dance committee are Miss Ernestine Troemal, Miss Callope Papatsos, and Miss Henrietta Greenberg.

Areas of composition in the arts and crafts division include design—general, applied, and three dimensional and composition; painting, drawing, media—photography, and graphic and commercial art, according to Miss Helen K Haughton, chairman.

Suggested subjects for general design, that is, on paper and not executed, include: textiles, wall paper, rugs, ceramics, book plates, jewelry, furniture, costume design and fashion illustration. Weaving, needlepoint, embroidery and printed textiles are hints for the applied design area. The committee suggests for the three dimensional design kiln-fired pieces such as ceramics and ceramic sculpture; relief, paper and wire sculpture in the round, and work in wood or plastics. Materials advised are stone, wood, plaster or metal.

Etchings, wood blocks, lithographs, and silk screen are phases of the graphic art area. In commercial art, book illustration, poster design and advertising are suggested. Photographic enlargements, mounted and at least 8 x 10 may be contributed.

Working with Miss Haughton on the arts and crafts committee are Miss Mary Mooty and Mrs Beatrice Williams.

Mr J Clarence Simpson, field museum assistant at the State Survey, said that as yet Florida stones had not been used commercially. He said, however, that it seemed to him that some of the stones, light on top with color showing through from underneath, would make exquisite cameos.

The Baltimore Symphony Orchestra, which will appear here next Wednesday, will give two performances, one at 4:30 in the afternoon and another at 8:15 in the evening. Red Series tickets will be honored for the afternoon performance while the Blue Series will be accepted at the night concert.

Enrollment Figures Given in Booklet

Increase of Women Students Reported in Bulletin

In a memorandum to the faculty this week, Dr Milton W Carothers, registrar, quoted enrollment statistics for the 1944-45 academic year. Among these facts was the statement that among colleges and universities whose enrollment is restricted to women, Florida State College ranks second only to Hunter College and Texas State College for Women in the number of college grade students on roll.

This quoted material was from the 16th annual report of the committee on special projects of the American Association of Collegiate Registrars. It stated that there had been an increase of women students in all of the curricula.

The male enrollment, according to the report decreased 3.5 per cent. The largest decreases were said to be in teaching and professional courses. Notable decreases were found in mining and engineering, and there was a small decrease in enrollment for medicine and veterinarian training.

However, there were 55.6 per cent more degrees given in medicine because, the report ventured, of the accelerated program.

The largest percentage increases for specific courses were in art, journalism, law, business administration, architecture, and forestry.

There was a small decrease in summer school enrollment and a great increase in correspondence courses, probably due to the number of service men taking correspondence courses, said the report. A decrease was shown in the number of degrees awarded.

should be accompanied by a snapshot and a statement of her qualifications. If defeated for the major office, she then automatically becomes a candidate for the minor one.

Potential candidates except second-quarter transfers must have a one point average for each of the two quarters immediately preceding their candidacy for office. Second-qaurter transfers, according to the CGA constitution, must have a 1.5 average for the preceding quarter.

CGA elections will be held April 16 for major offices and April 18 for minor offices. Installations will then be held May 7.

Windy is a five feet eleven inch brunette with brown eyes and wavy hair. Though he is a native of New York, she says "he has caught the Southern drawl". He smokes a pipe, and his hobby for the present is flying. He hasn't decided whether he will remain in the armed service or return to college.

Sidney met him about a year ago in Lake City where he was instructing at the Naval Air Station. He has not seen overseas duty, but has been a "stateside" instructor since his cadet training.

Second place winner "likes planes, trains, and ice cream, but girls scare him a little" says his mother, who is a day student here this year. His father, David Michelson, Sr, was killed in a bombing mission over France in July, 1944 Junior has blue eyes and blonde curls. He has become a familiar figure to the friends of his mother, as she brings him to the campus quite often.

Third place winner is a 20-year-old brownette from Tampa. Fay Bass, who entered his picture, says that his most engaging characteristic is his "darling dimple." He's a graduate of Hillsborough High School where he was a football player and an officer in the Reserve Officer's Training Corps. He was in the air cadets for 22 months but was discharged five weeks before time for him to receive his commission. He is now a mathematics major at Tampa University. He has played professional tennis, and Fay says, "Everything is against us because I can't even play tennis. Also, we went to rival high schools and our fathers work for different railroads."

Anonymous Interview Presents Views of Average FSC Sturent

By JOYCE PETTY

The frantic girl rushed into the phone booth at about 1:15 and after putting in her long-distance call prepared to rest from her long journey to Bryan phone booth. Little did she know that she was the unlucky third person who entered the booth after 1 p m and that she was being closely watched by my eagle eyes. When she opened the door and restfully dropped into a chair, I clutched her feverish neck and broke it (not her neck) to her gently that she was the lucky soul whom Fate and I had chosen to give air to her grievances in an anonymous interview this week. Needless to say, she was so happy that she was rendered practically speechless for the next five minutes.

The little Orlando deb said her favorite color was blue, but she was wearing a red plaid suit, and if I may venture a little unethical editorial comment, it set off her brown eyes and "smokey" black hair to a flattering advantage.

She has a double major in art and speech, but her favorite teacher is Miss Mildred Finnegan, who teaches her French. Miss Orlando says she has not been disappointed in college, and that it was very much as she had expected it to be. "I think they have a very good speech department here, but the art department doesn't have what I want." When asked what she thought was the matter with it, she said it was not specialized enough. She plans to stay at Florida State College for two years, and then go to France to study dress designing at the University of Paris.

After a lull in the conversation while we listened to a particularly "spicy" conversation on the phone, I ventured, "And what do you think of our College Government Association?" She thought, quite deeply I judged from looking at the strained expression on her face, then began—"I like it very much. . . but I don't think it should be so secretive and handled by such a small group." She plans to run for a CGA office, but has not decided which one. However, she seemed to think that the training classes would help her to decide which one she would like best.

"Some of the rules are silly," she volunteered. As examples she mentioned the one that if a student talks to a boy for over ten minutes, she must sign out for a date and the one that requires the girls to get in their rooms at 11:10 even though their lights don't have to be out until 11:30. It was her belief that they should be allowed out of their rooms until the lights were supposed to be out. (She's a freshman, as yon can tell by the time she thought the lights had to be out.)

"Proctors are a necessity for keeping order in the halls so that the girls can sleep," said she, and she was in favor of the recent "proctor in house council" suggestion. "I do think they could ask that proctors be allowed to vote and discuss the cases just as any other member of the council. If they were allowed a voice in these affairs, it would spread the responsibility of government to more people."

She mentioned that there was a need for more dances on campus, and suggested that men from Gainesville be invited up to them so that the girls would have a chance to meet them. This suggestion came as a solution to her protest that there was a definite shortage of men around the campus. "Also," . . . but at that moment the telephone rang and both interviewer and interviewee bounded to the door. It was Orlando calling, and I turned the receiver over to her, gathered my scattered notes, and settled back to contemplate her sagacious reflections.

recommendation for extended light privileges back to the Executive Council of CGA. It came back to College Council from the Executive Council of the college, to which it was submitted for approval. Dean Dorman explained that the Executive Council could not understand why students needed more time with their lights on after twelve o'clock. The faculty wishes to have reasons presented for this recommendation.

At Senate, Mary Louise White said that third quarter freshmen should be allowed to ride at night. Kay van Deurs moved that these freshmen be included among those upperclassmen who might be allowed to ride unchaperoned. The motion was defeated, and chaperones were ruled necessary.

A report from the committee to investigate reasons for the rule against freshmen's riding at night preceded the final action. Peggy Lou Thomas reported that six years ago freshmen had been allowed to ride to and from a definite destination, but had abused the privilege by riding without a definite destination. She said that there had been "a lot of cases" in the courts. She further said that there were no statistics to show the actual number of violations. The committee had consulted Dean Olivia Dorman, Miss Anne F Pope, and Miss Ruth A Pyche.

Secret ballot was used to elect the junior representative to Judiciary, according to the decision of the majority of the senators.

Making social chairmen members of house councils resulted from a recommendation from the Residence Halls committee.

ancient Inca woman. With its wide brim, and bright colors it could have been designed by one of our present day milliners.

The most grotesque thing exhibited is the shrunken human head which the students last year named "Suzy-Q" It is the head of an Indian woman preserved by removing the bones and flesh, and then filling the remaining skin with hot sand. During the drying and shrinking period, such a head was constantly massaged and worked to keep its original shape. Even the hair and eyelashes were kept intact.

The less striking and less colorful pieces of the collection include spindles, needles, tweezers, buttons, and various implements needed to carry on the process of life.

Dr Bellamy stated that the more valuable pieces of the collection were not on display. He described these as gold and silver plate, and a large golden condor, the ruling symbol of the Inca nation.

The museum on the fourth floor of the Student-Alumnae building was designed and arranged by Sidney Snow, a well known American artist. In his own words he wished to make the museum "a different type of museum — one that is alive and interesting, one in which you can relax and enjoy yourself." This arranging of museum pieces in regards to their artistic aspect is a new trend in the field.

By-Laws Revised

Yesterday afternoon the Phi Kappa Phi honorary fraternity held a meeting in the History building for the purpose of revising the by-laws of the chapter, according to Miss Daisy Parker, instructor in political science.

The chapter of Phi Kappa Phi on campus is doing the routine revision of its by-laws necessitated by the change from the semester to the quarter system.

FSC Girls Invited To Enter Contest

A letter inviting Florida State College girls to enter the Miss Florida contest for 1946 was received by the Personnel Office this week. Addressing her message especially to senior girls, the chairman of the Miss Florida Contest urged all interested girls to contact their Junior Chamber of Commerce for full information.

The winner of the Miss Florida contest will be eligible to compete for the title of Miss America and the accompanying scholarship of $5,000. A total of $20,000 in scholarships will be divided among the 15 runners-up and probable offers of $10,000 to $15,000 will be made for personal appearances to the winner.

In order to enter the Miss Florida contest a girl must be between the ages of 18 and 28 as of September, 1946, unmarried, and a resident of Florida for one year. Miss America is chosen on the basis of beauty, health, charm, personality, speaking voice, stage presence and talent. The idea of the scholarship award is to help the winner further her career in her chosen field.

Miss Bertha Bloodworth, college publicity director, featured a round table discussion on the topic "The Good World of the Future." Participants in the discussion were Phyllis De Kalb, Audrey Perry, and Sarah Bramiester. Rachel Crotwell played two violin selections. Following the discussion, Dr Ryan spoke to those gathered at the student house.

The Episcopalians, Presbyterians and members of the Church of Christ met Thursday evening at 8 o'clock in the Longmire building, at which time they were addressed by the Hon James T Vocelle, State Beverage Director.

Throughout the week, there has been a display of many types of leaflets, reprints of articles, and pamphlets in lower Westcott. Sixty different forms of literature of a brotherhood nature and theme are being displayed and are available for distribution to college students.

Rabbi Goldman has been assisted by the following committee representatives from the various churches: Dorothy Binger, Methodist; Margaret Cochrell, Presbyterian; Margaret Winton, Baptist; Betty Dowd, Episcopal; and Annie Ruth Welch, Christian. Also assisting is the Interfaith Committee of the B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation which has as its chairman Betty Fay Moses. She is assisted by Joyce Aronovitz, Laurel Rosenbaum, and Sarah Bramiester

During his stay in Tallahassee, Dr Ryan is the guest of the Tallahassee Ministerial Association, the Kiwanis Club, and the Rotary club. He will also be the dinner guest of the Baptist, Presbyterian, and Methodist students.

Interesting Life Comes From Living Next to Telephone

Living next door to the two campus long distance phone booths is quite an experience, according to the three girls in suite 107 Bryan. Carolyn Flint, Dorothy Welker, and Meda Morris, by virtue of their location, have been loan companies, confidantes, or shoulders to cry on for at least half of FSC's population at one time or another.

"People often mistake our room for the phone booth," said Meda. They come walking in when we are studying, getting ready to go out, or sleeping, and want to know where the phones are."

And when there are more than fifteen or twenty girls waiting for calls, the waiting room often extends into 107. "A girl will come in just to borrow a deck of cards and then remain several hours until her call comes through," Dorothy said.

The girls waiting to talk to their families or their men need many things with which to pass the time They come in 107 to borrow cards Bibles, Spanish books, pencils, etc "We lose more pencils that way " Carolyn laughed.

Of course it is impossible for the suitemates to keep from hearing one side of the conversations carried on in the booths next door The phrases they hear most frequently are "When are you coming up?" "I miss you so much," and "May I go?"

At the beginning of the year particularly, many of the girls were homesick. Carolyn, Dot, and Meda, having to listen to them cry while they tried to talk to their mothers, spent many homesick evenings themselves. "It's contageous," one said.

But whether it brings laughter or tears, life next door to the long distance phone booths is never colorless. One never knows what one might hear next.

monic, the Detroit Symphony, and the National Symphony.

Among his other varied engagements have been those of conducting a series of concerts in Mexico and South America and making numerous recordings for Victor.

"His greatest success, nevertheless, has been his tutalage of the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra," said Mr Cappel.

Among the member-musicians of the Symphony are Ilya Schkolnik, the concert master, who was for more than twenty-five years concert master for the Detroit Symphony and famous as a violinist and teacher through the country. Other first positions in the orchestra are held by Cecil Figelske, former first violinist with the Toronto Symphony and member of the faculty of the Toronto Conservatory; Mme Marie Romaet Rosanoff, 'cellist of the Musical Art Quarter; Ralph Gomberg, oboe; Britton Johnson, flute; Gilbert Stange, clarinet; Walter Stein, bassoon; James Burke, trumpet; George Garstick, trombone; and Joseph Pizzo, harp.

Mrs Mary Norwood, Artist Series secretary, explained that the Symphony orchestra itself has a novel history. It was the first symphony orchestra in the United States to gain support from direct municipal grants. Today, part of the financing still comes from the Baltimore city budget, but its support is augmented by funds from the citizens of this entire country now.

"For 29 years, the Symphony has been growing," said Dean Kuersteiner. "It has risen to national prominence from coast to coast during its last two years of concert tours and through national radio hook-ups."

Honorary to Be Installed

Carmichael Will Officiate At Tomorrow's Ceremony

A new national honorary organization will be established at the Florida State College on Saturday when Alpha Epsilon Delta, national honorary premedical fraternity, installs the Florida Beta chapter here. Dr Emmett B Carmichael, national councilor and formerly national president, will officiate at the installation.

Approval of the petition of the Pre-Medical Society for a chapter of Alpha Epsilon Delta was made by the fraternity several weeks ago.

Installation ceremonies will be held at 3 o'clock p m in the club room of the Rowena Longmire building according to Joyce Funke, president of the local group, when eleven premedical students will be initiated in the fraternity as charter members, and one faculty member will also become a member of the charter group.

The installation reception will follow at 5 o'clock p m at the clubroom in honor of Dr Carmichael of Birmingham, Ala.

Officers of the new chapter will be: Joyce Funke, president; Jo Anne Whitaker, vice-president; Ella Mae Baer, secretary; and Peggy Limroth, treasurer. Dr Viola Graham, professor of physiology, will be initiated as an honorary charter member of the chapter. Other students to be initiated are: Marian Ferraro, Betty Jean Gibarson, Carmen Gomez, Mary (Teeny) Langston, Jacqueline Partin, Sarah Stewart, and Marylin Sumner.

The members of the faculty, who teach pre-medical subjects, and other pre-medical students have been invited.

Games may come and games may go but they'll have to a long way to surpass the Senior-Junior game which we Tuesday in the gymnasium. Truly, this was one of the exciting games your correspondent has had the pleasure watching. Out of this game emerged such standouts as ARICE TRUEBLOOD, BETTY GARDINER AND HER-E WHITE, Junior guards, BETTY SCHWARTZ, and ANCY WARD Junior forwards. For the Seniors ANNA ESE and MART WILSON stood out in the forward posi-n. MARY LOIS CONN, sophomore who played with the nor team turned in a good game in both the guard and rward positions. CATHERINE BARRS, Senior guard ved one of the best games of her "basketball career." VA RAY AND GRACE SIMS exhibited dependable team y throughout the game.

As we go to press tonight, the Evens have won three the class games with one left to play. Today the Senior eyball team will clash with the Juniors in a game which believe can be won by either side. We think this game is a e-up.

In the Sophomore-Freshman class game freshmen SIS LLER AND ELAINE BROWN displayed "upperclassman le" in leading a game but outpointed Freshman six. BET-KENNEDY, BOPIE WHITAKER, AMARENE THOMP-N, CATHERINE SULLIVAN, JUANITA KRENTZMAN re the standouts on the Sophomore cage team.

NT TO GET MARRIED????

Seventy-five per cent of Miss Fox's coaching class is her engaged or married. This all happened after taking s course. The moral of the story is to take coaching and n how to "coatch" your man. Get it?

E WONDER....

Why the Odd and Even cheerleaders have not led cheers the class games so far. The freshmen cheerleaders could er at the freshmen games and so forth. Let's see these erleaders out in the gym this afternoon cheering the iors and seniors in their volleyball encounter. It would ice to have them at Playnight tomorrow for the class mpionship games.

METHING TO BE PROUD OF....

It would make no difference who won the class games any other game, it would make no difference whether the ms showed good form and team playing if these games been marred by unsportsmanlike conduct. We point with e to the class games as an example of hard fought com-tion minus hard feelings. Bouquets to these girls for ng up to good sportsmanship... and that's thirty for now.

ub Holds Outing t Camp Flastacowo

here will be canoeing, games folkdancing at the hamburg-y tonight at Camp Flasta-o for those fifty students who ed up last Wednesday and rsday with the Outing Club sors. The bus provided by WAA will leave from in front the gymnasium immediately lowing the volleyball game this ernoon and will return at 10 ock tonight, according to arene Thompson, president of Outing Club.

The chaperone will be Miss Lois Hoever, assistant instructor physical education and faculty sor of the Outing Club. Those o will only have to sign out their engagement cards as ial permission has already n obtained by a committee of Outing Club.

On the menu for the picnic sup-for each person are two ham-gers, two glasses of milk, two ughnuts, lettuce and tomato d, and relish and pickles. The rge of fifty cents for the out-is for food coverage, while sportation and incidentals be covered by the WAA.

Miss Metilda Willibrand, camp ector and part-time instruc-in physical education, will re-at camp tonight in order those students who wish to so may wait until Saturday ning to return.

structors Attend Athletic Meeting

Katherine Montgomery, di-tor of physical education, and Grace Fox, instructor in ical education, will attend a ing of the Advisory Commit-for Women's Athletics of the ida High School Athletic As-ation tomorrow. The meet-will be held at the Orlando School, Orlando.

The Advisory committee is com-d of representatives from the n districts in Florida. Dr tgomery and Miss Fox have n asked to attend the meeting guests.

The meeting is for the purpose discussing the standards of National Section of Women's etics. Some of these stand-include that girl's athletics coached and officiated by en, that the number of prac-for teams be limited, that number of games per week limited, that the distance that m should travel be limited, that state tournaments be proved.

Evens Concentrate Spirited Activity With Tags, Rallies

"Hello Evens Day" last Wednesday started with a bang the ten days of spirited activities sponsored by Esteren members and goats, including class games, pep rallies, and a big "Green and Gold" theme for next Thursday. In addition to promoting sisterhood within the sisterhood of Evens in order to fall in with the idea of Brotherhood Week, Esteren members and goats are planning a Hobo Party for Spiroayra to be given March 7, when they will all "ride the rails to Hobo Heeven".

Last Wednesday at a booth in Lower Westcott tags were sold on which loyal Evens wrote their first names or titles of intimacy in an effort to let all Evens get to know Evens, according to Sarah Bennett, Esteren president. After dinner Wednesday evening a pep rally was held around a bonfire on the street in front of the dining hall, and the songs of the Evens could be heard re-echoing over the campus.

A victorious week in class games is being celebrated at present by the Evens, since they have won all three of the games played so far this week. This afternoon and tomorrow further contests will take place to decide the score for the full week.

Next Monday at 7:15 p m in front of the new dining hall a pep rally will be held, followed on Tuesday by a rally in Westcott auditorium from 7:15 to 7:30 p m. Another pep rally is scheduled for the big "Green and Gold Day" Thursday.

This concentrated period of Even activity will be climaxed at 3 o'clock next Saturday with the final Even-Odd class games.

Square Dance Class Has Party in Gym

Members of Miss Grace Fox's class in folk dance entertained themselves and their guests at a square dance party given last Thursday night from 7:20 to 7:50 in the gymnasium.

One hundred thirty people composed fifteen sets in the early American square dances. Music was provided by records of square dance music, with calls included in the records.

Another dance for students and their guests is being planned for next week, but no definite date has been set as yet. Plans are also being made for a dance for students and their faculty guests, to be given sometime this quarter.

Miss Fox also announced tentative plans for dances in the street in front of the new dining hall later in the spring quarter.

Speaker Gives Water Lecture

History of Red Cross Life Saving Is Given

Punctuating his informal lectures with costumed portrayals and humor, Commodore Wilbert Longfellow, founder of Red Cross Life Saving, presented demonstrated talks on life saving and first aid methods Wednesday afternoon and evening.

Talking as he floated in the pool, the Commodore demonstrated elementary skills for the non-swimmer and traced briefly the history of modern swimming strokes during his afternoon "wet lecture." As his voice echoed across the water the "grandfather of life saving" presented the evolution of the crawl from the Australian double arm stroke to the present American crawl. These strokes were demonstrated by Mr Emil Lewis, assistant director of life saving and water safety of the Red Cross for the Southeastern District.

Dressed in the ancient garb of the Good Samaritan, Mr Longfellow related the biblical story to the present ideals of the Red Cross during his evening lecture in the Augusta Conradi Theater. The gray-haired Commodore demonstrated various ways to prevent and treat accidents, emphasizing that "first aid is what you do with what you have."

Donning various head gear from "Grandmother's bonnet" to the Army surgeon's cap to represent all types of Red Cross workers, Mr Longfellow also demonstrated bandage techniques and rescue methods used with foreign refugees.

Mr Longfellow was the first lay instructor in first aid in America and has been working with the Red Cross for more than 30 years. He has recently completed a tour of Europe and is now making his last tour of the United States before retirement.

A banquet held in the dining hall following the afternoon exhibition feted Commodore Longfellow during his visit on campus. He was also honored with a reception given by FSC Life Saving Corps in the Longmire building Wednesday evening after his lecture.

Snow Adds Teaching To Regular Duties

Mr Sydney Snow, curator of the Incan museum, has taken on the additional duty of teaching to his regular one of keeper and guide in the museum. He has been teaching a class in figure drawing since the beginning of this quarter. The clas is scheduled to last only throughout this quarter, and eleven advanced art students are now enrolled.

The course includes figure drawing and head studies, sketching from still and active models, charcoal, oil and water paints, and pencil sketches. The class has also done sketches from life in the street, and from student models in the classroom. Those in the class have had as a prerequisite, one year of figure and head drawing, and other groundwork in coloring, sketching and other artistic fields.

Mr Snow has taught previously in the Panama Canal Zone, where he conducted classes similar to that which he is now teaching. He was graduated from the Minneapolis School of Fine Art, and has since done some commercial drawing and "production illustration" for the government, which he explained as "teaching people who don't know how to do things".

Mr Snow has some work in art to his own credit, having done several paintings and some sculpture work. They are, however, in his own personal collection and not for exhibition.

Sophomores Beat Freshmen In First Class Game, 27-23

The sophomore volleyball team captained by Joyce Garman nosed out a 27-23 victory over Peggy Becknell's freshman players in the first class volleyball game of the season Monday afternoon. This win put the sophomores in line to meet the winners of the junior-senior tilt to be played today at 5 in the gymnasium.

The juniors and seniors have three former Odd-Even players each in their starting line-up for this afternoon, and both leaders are confident of victory. Sarah Bennett will captain the seniors and last night Mae Manning was chosen to lead the juniors.

The tentative line-ups for today's game are:

Juniors

Virginia Palmer, Mae Manning, Joyce Benton, Lois Meriwether, Nita Nord, sobel Dupree, Mary Nell Goldman and Agia Marino.

Seniors

Sarah Bennett, Dink Ashton, Jean Koesy, Martha Jane Brown, Loise Sykes, Theo Brown, Madelyn King and Audrey Perry.

In Monday's game the freshmen obtained the lead during the first few minutes and led 9 to 8, but before the half whistle sounded the sophomore eight had gained an advantage of a 13 to 9 lead.

During the final period the teams piled up 14 points each which made the final score 27-23 in favor of the sophomores.

Jean Bennett served the most scoring serves for the sophomores with a total of 11 points, and Inez Augustine was top man for the freshmen with eight counting serves.

Captain Becknell of the freshmen said she was pleased with the playing of all of the team. "Especially good," she remarked, "were Sarah Lou Wells and Joan Peters."

Captain Garman said she could not name any special player from her team, being pleased with the teamwork of the entire group. She attributed the victory to the teamwork of the sophomores.

The starting line-ups were:

Freshmen

Peggy Becknell, Sarah Lou Wells, Inez Augustine, Ellen Koenitzer, Virginia Goodell, Ann Seaward, Pat Small and Joan Peters.

Sophomores

Joyce Garman, Dorothy Mims, Marian Floyd, Ethel Newburn, Elaine Gavigan, Candy Jones, Pep Stanalin and Virginia Budd.

Substitutions for the sophomores were: Jo Story, Mary Louise van Netta, and Georgia Jaeckel. Those of the freshmen were: Marjorie Booth, Joanne Schwartz, Bette Stokes, Martha L Waltz, Doris Grimsley, Charlotte Snyder, Dorothy Aberle, Esther Brinkman, Betty Harris, Lei Marshall and Betty Clark.

Another New Club Is Established Here, New Members Tapped With Baseball Bat

"Is my bow tie straight?" "Yes, my bow tie's straight." And so another club with its whistle has found its place among the numerous clubs already on campus. This is the "Bow Tie Club."

On Wednesday all of the members wear yellow sweaters, red skirts, and bow ties. They are all "gonna catch a beau someday."

The club will eventually have thirteen members. It is restricted to this number because all of the members are supposed to be "unlucky in all their love affairs."

They tap new members on the htirteenth of each month, and they really tap—they hit the new initiates with a baseball bat, but it's a special one—only a foot long. They tap in the morning when everyone is asleep. Sound sleepers can never be tapped because they have to wake up at the first slap of the bat. All of the members get a whack at the new initiate. New members have to be in pairs when they are tapped, and the club members walk in pairs when they are tapping and when they are on their way to breakfast on Wednesday. The new members may not wear bow ties. They have to wear a string with a knot because they can't tie a bow yet. However, before the initiation of the new members they must be able to tie a perfect bow tie—none of this hook-on stuff for the "Bow Tie Club" members.

The purpose of the club is to try "to make a beau." "Something worthwhile in life they say" said one of the presidents who rather than steal another president's glory desires to remain anonymous. Each member is president because they all get along so well together.

At the present the club has only five members; Rosemary Marcoux, Elaine Gavigan, Bopie Whitaker, Rose Marie Ferreo, and Catherine Sullivan. The club is exclusively for sophomores. The new tappees are: Carol Claus, Betty La Bree, Ginger Hatton and Marshall Lee Vernon.

Their sponsor is a graduate student, Sarah Stewart, who is called "Dr Stew Pid." She wears a long tie on Wednesday. She always walks ahead of the members when they go to breakfast together, since it is beneath her dignity to walk with them. She advises all of the members in their problems. However, their sponsor, as yet, has not been able to solve their biggest problem. This problem concerns their tapping. They can't decide how to tap the thirteenth member because they must be in pairs in order to be tapped.

The members of the club are hoping to entertain the Crooks' Club, which is exclusively for seniors, in the near future.

Playnight Plans

The winners of this week's class games will clash at Playnight tomorrow night beginning at eight o'clock. The Evens made a clean sweep of basketball by defeating the Juniors and Freshmen 22-21 and 50-31 respectively.

Even therefore meets Even, or Sophomores oppose Seniors, in the game Saturday night. Volleyball scores are not yet complete, but the Sophomore team will play the winner of the Junior-Senior game today.

Bowling Alleys Are Opened to Students

Admission Will Be Allowed Thursdays From 2-6

Bowling alleys downtown in Tallahassee were opened to Florida State College students yesterday afternoon from 2 o'clock until 6, under sponsorship of the Women's Athletic Association and supervised by the Outing Club. The faculty chaperon was Miss Anne Holbrook, assistant instructor in modern languages.

This new arrangement makes it considerably less difficult to go bowling than has been the case heretofore, according to Amarene Thompson, president of the Outing Club. A student need sign out only on her engagement with no special approval, and she may go out to the alleys at any time during the hours stipulated. During the hours scheduled weekly, from 2 to 6 o'clock on each Thursday afternoon, only students will be admitted to the alleys, and dates may not accompany them.

Charges are to be fifteen cents each game if players set up their own pins, and twenty cents if pinboys must be provided. Up to the present time the former arrangement has been satisfactory, according to Amarene, but either plan may be used provided all those attending at any one time agree. Later, if enough interest is shown, leagues may be formed.

Directions for getting to the bowling alleys downtown, as given by Amarene, are to go east down College Avenue to Monroe Street, turn right and go two blocks past the Capitol Building. The bowling alleys are on the right, just beyond the railroad overpass.

Up to the present time the practice has been to wear regular street attire when bowling, since students must go through the downtown section of Tallahassee.

Long Tells of Job

The Personnel Office recently received a letter from Merrill Cross Long, '45, telling of her position as a food demonstrator in Atlanta, Georgia.

Merrill, who graduated from FSC with a BS degree in Home Economics, told of her work with the Modern Ice Center, an educational organization sponsored by the seven ice manufacturers in the Atlanta area. The demonstrator's job is to show the very newest discoveries of ways of using food, tying in nutrition whenever possible. Their classes are made up of church groups, sororities, business groups, PTA groups, and even school children.

Even Class Teams Score Over Odd Basketballers

The final whistle blew as the ball left the freshman forward's hand to fall into the basket and end the basketball class game with a final score of 31 to 50 in favor of the sophomores. This win put the sophomores in line to play the seniors in the final class tilt tomorrow night at Playnight.

The freshmen team captained by Sis Miller kept pace with the sophomores during the first two quarters, but never obtained a comfortable lead. The half score was 13 to 16 in favor of the sophomores, and a third quarter began with the upperclassmen protecting a 6 point lead.

Tommy Thompson, captain of the sophomores, was high scorer with a total of 30 points made. Elaine Brown of the freshmen rank up 22 before the final whistle made her last one void.

Starting line-ups for the teams in yesterday's game were: Sophomores—Juanita Krentzman, Tommy Thompson, Catherine Sullivan, Bopie Whitaker, Evelyn Shea, and Betty Kennedy, and Freshmen—Sis Miller, Elaine Brown, Ethel Clann, Jane Nightingale, Faye Smith, and Lucy Harding.

Substitutes for the sophomores were: Johanne Walker, Jean Fliess, Charlotte McGeachy, Babs McCarthy, Grace Hays, Charlotte Bouland. Freshmen substitutes were: Shirley Hargraves, Audrey Hunt, Ida Schmidt, Mary Lee, Helen Looby, Mary Calley, Dorothy Borbidge, Julia Beckman, Jean Gavigan, Kathleen Barker, and Joy Harper.

The senior-junior game Tuesday afternoon ended with the seniors leading with a 22-21 score. Anna Geise broke the tie in the last three minutes of the game with a free shot, and the juniors failed to score when the received the ball twenty-two seconds before the game's end.

Anna Geise was high scorer with a total of 17 points and Betty Schwartz hit the high mark for the juniors totaling 11 scoring baskets.

The juniors were trailing the seniors at the beginning of the second half, but managed to finish the third quarter with a 19-19 tie. The seniors were forced to play the third quarter with only two forwards, but the juniors managed only one more basket, and a successful free shot which won the game for the upperclassmen.

Recreation Leaders Journey to Pensacola

FSC Instructors Carry on Series of Activities

Last Friday and Saturday Miss Henrietta Greenberg, instructor in physical education, Miss Caliope Papatsos, instructor in physical education, and Catherine Barrs went to Pensacola high school in Pensacola, Florida to help the girls with their recreational activities.

Friday morning at 9 o'clock Miss Greenberg addressed the high school group assembly on recreation and recreation as a profession.

Friday afternoon a group of high school girls were entertained at an outing in honor of Miss Greenberg. The girls were given an opportunity to discuss recreation, the future in recreation as a profession, and better uses of their leisure time.

Miss Greenberg, Miss Papatsos, and Catherine conducted a basketball clinic for basketball players and enthusiasts in Pensacola and adjacent communities on Saturday afternoon from 2 o'clock until 6 o'clock.

The program for the clinic included discussions on offensive and defensive play, individual technics, officiating, and the purposes of the National Section of Women's Athletics which is a branch of the American Association of Physical Education, an organization instituted to foster wholesome, well-balanced athletics for women.

Officials rating examinations were given to seven of the students. Two of the students received the national official rating.

When the original draft of the U S Constitution was displayed at its sesquecentennial celebration in Philadelphia in 1937, it was insured for $500,000.

● THE ARGUMENT AGAINST SEVERITY

In the November 27, 1943 issue of the Flambeau appeared a long and deliberative editorial contrasting the student control of government of Gainesville with that of Tallahassee. It was asked "how has the control of power by students come to be there and yet failed to a great extent here."

Now, three years after, there is apparent a decided trend in the direction of the greater alloting of responsibility and opportunities for judgment on the part of the students. An examining of fundamentals and principles involved will disclose that this mode of operation is the only means to permanent change in direction of individual strength and discretion in human conduct. Only when finer actions follow from finer motives can we be said to be living truly harmoniously. To be sure, there is another way—a mechanical way wherein specific modes of behaving are impressed upon the individual from without. However, to those loyal adherents to the ideals of our idealistic honor code, are not these more compatible with the first mode? The more true and sane individual responsibility and the less centralization of the dictates of group behavior, the more democratic is that group. Perhaps now there is a trend in this direction, as shown by the recent movements in Student Senate.

With all this, however, a problem sadly neglected is that one which concerns some aspects of the operating of Judiciary.

There follows a quotation from the above-mentioned editorial of three years ago:

> "At G'ville the Court is more lenient, giving a student a second chance before suspending. Compare the following [from the two respective constitutions].
> 'Not more than fifteen penalty hours and a severe reprimand for a freshman if it is his first offense. Expulsion for any student if it is his second offense.'
> And at FSC
> 'Any student guilty of lying, cheating, attending unapproved places, drinking . . . is liable for immediate suspension.'

The merit of G'ville's system is naturally open to debate. Our argument for severity is prevention by example. The humanitarian aspect of the effect on the individual student is overlooked."

No one lives who does not make mistakes and errors. That's the kind of proposition that life is. Another proposition is that we help each other and learn together. Isn't that the Christian Ideal? Individual human worth is something that we all take for granted. Doesn't civilization itself rest upon such an optimistic surmise? What kind of help is punishment, if you are attempting to aid someone to realize her human worth? What kind of help is severity, if you are trying to enable someone to see a desirable way of living with others? People do not learn gentility from severity. The hand guides best if it is gentle; the hand best fitted to guide is the one that understands to help. One who engages the anti-social conduct needs information and motivation, not punishment and rejection.

We cannot deny the opportunity to find oneself; we cannot deny that "second chance" which Gainesville so leniently gives. Our unwillingness to take the more difficult mode of reorienting a student—keeping her here and helping her to evolve spiritually some manner of social consciousness and inner motives—, our taking the outworn surmise of prevention for example (of punishment), time-honored and "easy way" though it be, results in the needless thwarting of development of our innate potentialities and the useless wrecking of lives.

—WINIFRED MELDRIM

● THE LAST LICK

The Flambeau confectioners have at their disposal this week luscious lolly pops which are being distributed free of charge to the deserving.

First lolly pop goes to Student Senate. Even though the usual wrangling about where to put semicolons and periods has ensued throughout the year, some concrete and progressive recommendations concerning social regulations are placed on the finished docket for consideration by higher deliberating bodies. The general break-down of the established feeling that there must exist a differnce in regulations which govern students' social activities because of their academic status is commendable. We sometimes feel that orientation programs and "rat cap identification" are carried beyond the point of value. We also approve the fact that if these recommendations— for unlimited weekends and dates for sopnomores and the privilege of riding alone with a young man after darkness falls, and for unlimited dates for third quarter freshmen who may also ride at night if the party consists of three people—become an established practice like dancing with men and going to movies, students will be able to continue the pattern of social behavior to which they have been accustomed during previous years in high school.

To Senate goes a second lolly pop from our generous supply. Perhaps it should be shared with Executive Council of CGA for their efforts and labors in working out an extensive plan complete in detail for a check to accompany Senate's recommendation that students be allowed to use their lights at their own discretion which will perhaps go into a trial period in the next year if approved by the Executive Council of the College. It seems unfortunate that such a checking system should have to be stipulated, but the great lengths to which the council has gone to partially insure the recommendation's being favorably received deserves much credit, for it will indeed entail a great deal of work for those in charge during the trial period.

In this same vicinity, we give more lolly pops to the legislative and codifying committees of Senate who have delved into the recesses of the involved Handbook and come forth with a comprehensible and clarified arrangement of the rules and regulations. Their task has been an exceptionally difficult one, but now that the groundwork has been laid, perhaps they will be able to give consideration to the larger regulations and possibly even to our constitution in their future meetings. Whether or not our constitution is the most adequate and satisfactory frame for our college government is highly debatable, but the fact it could bear study and ammending is a certainty.

The biggest and most delectable lolly pop goes to the freshmen. So early in their college life they have shown their active interest in pressing reforms in rules affecting them. We noted with pleasure that behind the freshman representatives there was a substantial backing of their classmates who made their voices heard in the gallery, evidently giving at least a little thought to the business before Senate which unfortunately is more than can be said for many of the upperclassmen. We hope that this is only the beginning of continued interest and concrete action that will originate in these students who were concerned with the future of their social engagements.

The last lolly pop is reserved for the faculty, pending their approval of the recommendations under consideration. All of the final power is in their hands, but we are confident that the constructive work and expressed desires of the students will not pass unnoticed, since a feeling of futility is not a desirable one under which future student officers should be asked to spend numerous hours of hard work to no avail. Representing no wanton desire for undue freedom, the recommendations deserve serious consideration which should not be influenced by any preconceived notions of instability of student thought and blindness to reason.

Our lolly pops are good "to the last lick."

● BABES IN THE WOOD

We have passed the halfway mark of another school year, and our old friend, elections, will soon be here again. This year has not been uneventful with Senate passing many new recommendations on rule changes, but still we must think of the year that is approaching. Now is the time to look forward to and build toward a still more active interest of the student body in governing their community.

Every year the problem is presented on about the same scale. The candidates who are elected all "promise to do the work or fill the position to the best of my ability," and there is no doubt that they do the best that they can. Yet if the student body knew where their candidates stood on various issues they would be able to choose people whose ideas conformed with theirs.

Senate seems to be an active testing ground of the future candidates for the major officers of CGA. Most of our candidates have been on Senate and have taken an active part in the discussions there. The students who have taken advantage of the opportunities offered by Senate to have a hand in college governing all know better than others how certain candidates will stand.

There are important issues in our college community just as there are in any group of people living under communal laws. As an example, there is the recommendation concerning light flash that came up in Senate this year. There were several prominent views of the issue that were raised and discussed on the floor of Senate. The debates on this alone would be indicative of the thinking and ideas of our Senate members. All the debates of this year in Senate can serve as a political barometer of what the students can expect from the candidate she helps to elect.

Since there is still a large group of students who for various reasons were unable to or just did not attend any of the Senate meetings, we must consider them in the future elections. It is not too much to ask of college women to exert a little mentality and an hour or so of their time to dig into the facts and go to the polls somewhat informed about the people who will be running, nor is it too much to ask that the candidates draw up a short statement of the stand they will take on the current issues facing us.

We have heard over and over that as college women we will be expected to assume added responsibilities when we leave our ivory tower and go forth, sheepskin in hand, to take positions in the outside world. And in the past we have proved that we are not interested in the things that go around us by the small percentage of votes in our school elections, and our making them little better, if anything, than personality polls.

We cry for responsibility, we beg for less rules, we plead for added indications of our maturity, and still we shirk a great part of our duties when we go blithely along neglecting the immediate responsibilities that face us here on campus. As long as we continue to act like babes in the woods, quietly sleeping our four years away, we will continue to be treated like babes in the wood. We cannot expect to be treated like college women until we begin to think and act as college women.

● LOUISIANA HAYRIDE

A week or so ago many of the nation's newspapers carried a brief story concerning one Dr James Munroe Smith, who may be remembered as a former president of Louisiana State University. According to an AP dispatch in The Florida Times Union, Smith recently walked out of the Federal Penitentiary in Atlanta—a free man after almost seven years in prison, six of them spent in Louisiana State Penitentiary for the alleged embezzling of university funds. His term in the federal prison was imposed upon his conviction for mail fraud and income tax irregularities, the Times Union story declared.

Some readers of the news story might have recalled another time when Smith was "news." According to a news item in the issue of School and Society for November 28, 1934, Dr Smith—then President Smith— suspended 26 journalism students and placed the college newspaper, The Reveille, under censorship. The item quotes him as saying, when protest was made: "I'm in this thing as a matter of principle, and I'm going to see it through. If the board of supervisors does not see fit to back me up they can get a new president. I'm going to stick with it, and I don't give a hang what any board member thinks."

Details behind the School and Society story on censorship of the student newspaper make interesting reading, and the case—which is, it is to be hoped, a unique one—is worth reviewing briefly.

Time Magazine of December 10, 1934 quoted the notorious Huey Long, then senator, as saying, "This (LSU) is my university—I can fire a thousand of these students and get ten thousand in place of them anytime I feel like it." Of the university as it was then, Time declared it military in tradition. (William Tecumseh Sherman was its first head, Time said, and the Reserve Officers Training Corps was solidly entrenched in school affairs.) Also "like most coeducational universities in the deep South, where a large proportion of the female students are farmers' daughters, LSU keeps a firm hand on its students," Time continued. "Forbidden are drinking, hazing, cardplaying, visiting 'objectionable places of resort.' "

In a college with such attitudes indicated, it is not strange perhaps, that political pressure should be omnipresent in the administrative setup of the college—and so Time intimated. It seems that Huey Long, as part of his campaign to make Tulane University (which had refused to give him an honorary doctor of laws degree) look like a "cross-roads country school," appointed a star halfback of the LSU football team, a state senator. The youth, Time said, failed to appear for the ceremony of his seating since "his sense of humor did not encompass such stunts."

Later The Reveille, published by journalism students, received a letter from a sophomore who praised the halfback and criticized what Time called "Long's governmental burlesque." From then on events occurred rapidly according to the Time story. An advance proof of the letter was rushed to the state capitol by a junior editor, and then it fell into Long's hands. Long called his henchman, President Smith, who, five years later, was to flee to Canada when the New Orleans papers began investigating the activities of the Long regime. Smith ordered the letter killed and made no objection when Long sent a squad of highway police to stand guard over the office of the student publication.

Faculty supervision and censorship, Smith declared several days later, would be permanent thereafter. In protest against the censorship and the subsequent resignation of the editorial staff, 26 journalism students signed a petition threatening to cease writing for the paper unless the Reveille staff should be reinstated. Time said that President Smith promptly suspended the 26, pending apologies. Twenty-two retracted their statements and were reinstated. Four refused, were suspended indefinitly.

It is inded fortunate that such an occurrence can happen only in such places as Huey Long's Louisiana.

Lindsay Discussed In Class Program

Vachel Lindsay was the poet under discussion this week as the Contemporary Poetry Class, instructed by Mildred Henry, began their first in a series of symposia.

Organized in groups of five, the girls report each week to the class the results obtained from their extensive study of a contemporary poet concerning his life, works and style of writing.

A biography of the author, the playing of several recordings by Vachel Lindsay, and choral readings of "The Congo" and "Sea Serpent Chanty," two of the poet's noted works, comprised this week's program.

The students participating were Bobbie Bell, chairman; Helen Tarapani, Norma Chaulker, Evelyn Elderidge and Mary Lena Watford.

Norwood Searches Campus for Voice

Mary Lou Norwood, chairman of Junior Minstrels, is looking for a voice. She can be seen in the Sweet Shop, Westcott halls, Soda Shop, or any other general gathering place of students eagerly listening to every tone that is being uttered.

"I'm not looking for a good voice and I'm not looking for a bad voice," she said when questioned. "I'm looking for a voice to fit the character, and to say what kind of voice would practically divulge the entire theme of Junior Minstrels."

She went on to explain, "The success of the whole thing hinges on this one voice. I really don't mean to be rude when I eavesdrop on conversations. I'm just listening to inflections."

Just when we were beginning to think that no one appreciates us (foolish thought), in came a flood of letters. Yes, the water cooler on Landis' fifth floor overflowed again and people just threw their letters in and so they continued up and down hills and ended up just outside the Flambeau office.

Our first letter this week is the kind we like to get. A girl who never goes to Senate because she is a freshman and feels defeated before it starts, asks, "Did anything funny happen in Senate this week?" That's a very good question. So many funny things happen there that we have difficulty in sifting our information. However, there was one outstanding remark made this week and we dare say it is our all time favorite.

A senior senator rose to her feet and shaking with agitation and punctuating her oratory with her hands, proclaimed, "We are getting so progressive!!! . . . We are makingso many changes!!! . . . Why, comes the the revolution, we won't have any rules at all!"

Does that cause a tear to roll down your cheek? Wouldn't it be terrible to have no rules at all? The senator seemed to think so. If you don't think so, tell your senators.

"Perturbed" says, "Right in the midst of Brotherhood Week, what do we find? Evens unfairly discriminating against Odds. One whole day loyal Evens wore little tags with the greeting, 'Hello Evens.' There was no friendly greeting for the Odds. I'm perturbed." No wonder you're perturbed. You have a complaint. Let us hope that in the future, our sisterhood refrains from such displays and that we can all live together as one big happy family. It is expected that this suggestion will cause many complexions to turn sickly shades of gree yellow, while other ge and purple.

The strike of 300,000 steel workers was called to halt when workers were granted an 18c-an-hour wage increase and United States Steel was allowed a higher price ceiling of five dollars a ton.

The raises in both wages and prices came only after a long and heated battle between President Truman who strongly indorsed the 18c-an-hour wage increase for workers and OPA Director, Chester Bowles who, trying to hold down inflation, for several weeks would give up his consent to only a dollar a ton increase, bringing the price of steel up to four dollars a ton. B F Fairless, President of United States Steel, held that the company could not afford the wage raise unless a ceiling of six dollars a ton were granted. However, last week's compromise of five dollars a ton ended a serious deadlock in one of the nation's key industries.

Since the steel settlement Chester Bowles, newly designated economic stabilizer, told Congress that President Truman's new wage-price policy will work, will prevent inflation and is not a retreat to a new and higher price line. Bowles' statement came after several arguments with President Truman over wage and price increases which resulted in an attempt by Bowles to resign as OPA Director.

New Students Show Baptist Plurality

The Baptist denomination is the religious group best represented among new students entering Florida State College this quarter according to figures compiled in the Registrar's Office. A list has been completed giving the names, religious preferences and home counties of all the new students registered this quarter, announced Miss Eva Mae Atwood, assistant registrar.

Last term there were 667 girls claiming the Methodist denomination and 607 in the Baptist. There are twenty-seven additions to the list of Baptists this quarter, and seventeen new Methodists. Eight students who registered this quarter have Catholic affiliations, and eleven have been added to the list of Presbyterians. The Episcopalians claim nine, the Greek Orthodox, three, Christian Sciene, three, Disciple of Christ, one, and Congregational, one.

Dade county is best represented this quarter with thirteen of its 'citizens' newly registered, from a total of thirty-three counties represented in the newcomers this quarter. Next comes Duval County with a total of twelve, Leon County, eleven, Orange, six, Bay, four, and several from Volusia, Hillsborough, St Johns, Taylor, Holmes, Hendry, Gulf, Escambia, Broward and Charlotte Counties.

Three new students came from out of the state this quarter, making a grand total of eighty-nine newly registered students.

Spring Is Theme of Gilchrist Dance

The annual Gilchrist formal dance will be held tomorrow night in Gilchrist parlor, according to Anne Fielding, social chairman. The theme will be "spring."

Residents of this hall may bring dates and a number of stags are expected. A charge of 50c stag or drag will be made to help pay the expenses of the dance, Anne stated.

Students heading the committees planning the dance include: Judy Rhodes, refreshments; Jean Sharer, program; Bruce Flanders, invitations; and Barbara Chaffee, decorations.

Faculty sponsors invited to chaperone the dance are Miss Lucy Lester, Miss Margaret Stanton, and Dr and Mrs T L Wade, Dr and Mrs Doak Campbell, Dr Olivia Dorman, Miss Katherine Warren, Mrs Esther Ferguson, and Mrs Melanie Turner who also attended the dance, Anne announced.

Carothers Speaks to Members On Military Training

Initiation service for the four new pledges of the Alpha Delta chapter of Kappa Delta Pi, education honorary, was held Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock in club room of the Longmire building. Dr M W Carothers, registrar, spoke on "Compulsory Military Training" at this meeting which was held to honor Catherine Barrs, Geraldine Hansen, Evelyn Tsangaris, and Anne Tate who was absent because of illness.

In presenting his topic Dr Carothers said that the question is of particular importance to educators because it impinges not only on educational opportunities but also on other issues and values which are quite important to those interested in education.

The speaker pointed out certain principles and assumptions upon which we should base our opinions. These include the ideas that not each of us has an inescapable obligation to the public welfare, or to state it another way, to the nation; war is criminal and futile; we are not for peace at any price; our defense has never been adequate; we have been lucky; we must adjust to drastically - changed world conditions; and that we are no longer isolated behind our oceans.

Giving what he thought might be a possible solution, Dr Carothers stated that the United States should provide for compulsory military training and should provide several options by which this could be accomplished.

"One option," he said, "should be an uninterrupted year of military training between the ages of 18 and 21. Another option should be the enrollment in and completion of a prescribed reserve officers training course in college or in a university, supplemented by summer camps. And the third option should be participation in national guard activities including two weeks summer training periods for a period of six weeks."

Daverty Will Open Pre-Linton Talks

Tonight at 8 o'clock Dr James Shackleford Daverty will open the pre-Lenten and Lenten programs to be held at Ruge Hall. His subject will be "Jesus Christ: God and Man." According to Dorothy Sperry, publicity chairman of the Episcopal group, it will fit in with the general theme of the series of programs on the doctrine of the incarnation to be held each Friday night at Ruge Hall.

"Both these Friday night and Sunday night programs based on The Prayer Book will be sponsored by the Canterbury Club," said Dorothy.

Also, Mrs Frances Luce, Episcopal student secretary, has announced that there will be confirmation classes every Tuesday afternoon at 5 o'clock until March 31 when the Rt Rev Frank A Juhan, Bishop of the Diocese of Florida, will be in Tallahassee for confirmation. Anyone interested in these classes or being confirmed is asked to see Mrs Luce.

Dormitory Teas

Motion pictures, taken during the moving of the capitol buildings, now called Cockrell, Lang and Van Brunt, from their downtown location to their present campus site, were shown at the tea in Cockrell parlor this week.

Due to the darkness required for the showing of the pictures, the time of the tea was changed from an afternoon hour to the hour directly after dinner. Those invited were the girls from the Lodge, Cockrell, Lang and Van Brunt. Miss Elizabeth Lynn was in charge of showing the pictures, and Jean Clark was chairman of the tea.

Student talent was featured at the tea given in the Campuside parlor this week for the girls living in Hillside, Sally House, and Campuside. Mary Ellen Kerce was in charge of the puppet show: Annette McClellan played several selections on the piano, and chairman of this week's tea was Annette McClellan.

June Williams played semi-classical and popular pieces on the piano during the Landis tea Thursday afternoon. Marie Beverly and Dorothy Luke were in charge. Assisting in the kitchen and as servers and pourers at the tea were sixteen Landis girls.

"Attendance at Landis teas recently has been 'super-duper', with a total of 200 at times," said Miss Marie Williams, Landis counselor.

Brotherhood Week Observed on Radio

A special program in observance of National Brotherhood Week and a program of organ music were features of the radio programs of Florida State College this week.

The program observing National Brotherhood Week was heard at 7:15 p m on Wednesday night from the college studio. The round-table discussion on "The Good World of Tomorrow" was held by Phyllis DeKalb, Sarah Ann Brameister and Audrey Perry. Music for the program, including hymns of several faiths, was played by Rachel Crotwell, violinist, accompanied by Frances Duckworth at the piano. Miss Bertha Bloodworth, publicity director and coordinator of radio, announced the program.

"The "Garnet and Gold" program featured news headlines of the college week presented by Harriet Ruth Dews and music on the Skinner organ played by Edith Smith. Edith's organ music included Russell's "Song of the Basket Weaver" and Lemmens' "Fanfare." She also played the program theme song, "Garnet and Gold."

The program, regularly prepared by the publicity office of the office of the college, was broadcast directly from the Westcott auditorium.

Alumna of '41 Tells Of War Experience

Lucile M Dale, an alumnae of the class of 1941, has written back to Miss Louise Gehan, Alumnae secretary, telling of some of her experiences as a lieutenant in the armed forces, in which she serves as an army dietitian.

"We work very hard but love doing it, as practically all our patients, all six thousand of them, are returnees or repatriated prisoners from both theaters. I am the responsible distitian in this Annex, with a total of five hundred and sixty patients today. Whenever a train pulls up to the siding alongside of the annex we just know we will have an additional one-to-three hundred more people to feed at the next meal. This particular annex is solely for medical cases," Lt Dale wrote.

Activities Vary For Reynolds Girls

A lecture, a picnic, and planning for a dance occupied Reynolds Hall girls this week, Louise Illingworth, social chairman, announced.

Miss Mary Tom Colones, speech instructor, gave a lecture on radio as a career for women at the regular Thursday afternoon tea yesterday. The tea, with Bernice Rizk and Mary Anne McIrvin in charge, was attended by Reynolds faculty sponsors: Miss Helen Cate, Miss Grace Fox, and Mr and Mrs Henry F Becker.

The third floor of Reynolds had a picnic in Lafayette Park Sunday. Sponsors were the junior counselors on that floor, Gloria Basila and Zilda Hastings.

Louise said that plans for the dance to be held Saturday March 2 are underway. The dance, which will follow a spring garden theme, will be in the Longmire auditorium.

Soprano Will Give Recital on Friday

Doris O'Neill, coloratura soprano, will present a certificate recital at 8:15 on Friday evening, February 22, in Westcott auditorium. She will be assisted by Eleanor Bragg, pianist, and accompanied by Miss Lucille Wagner, assistant professor of piano.

Doris will sing two groups of four songs each, and Eleanor will play three selections as intermission music.

The first group to be sung by Doris will include "I've Been Roaming" by Horn, "I'll Sing Thee Songs of Araby" by Clay, "Polly Willis" by Arne, and "Allelujah" by Mozart. This will be followed by three piano selections: "Rondo des Lutins" by Nerini, "Cradle Song" by Schubert-Godowsky, and "Ritual Fire Dance" by Manuel de Falla. The program will be concluded by Doris with four selections: "Charmant Oiseau (La Perle du Brisil)" by David, "To a Violet" and "To a Messenger" by Frank La Forge, and "Sounds" by Gustave Klemm.

Summer Camp Work

Any students who are interested in doing summer camp work in Girl Scout camps in Gastonia, North Carolina, and Duval County, Florida, are asked to come to the Personnel office at once.

Fashion Flashes

From rags to riches, from blue jeans to ultra-formality, such opposites met the observer's eye on this campus last weekend. A dozen or so Tally lassies in huge mannish shirts, jeans rolled to their knees, scampered barefoot around the gymnasium Saturday afternoon doing a big decorating job for their Sophomore Hop to be given in the evening. But a few short hours later, less than that for some of them, they came forth in pomp and glory to equal any showing in Vogue or Harper's Bazaar.

For similar events in the future some of us might like suggestions from the earliest spring issues of fashion forecasts. In the latest copy of Harper's Bazaar we find perfection plus in an "over your shoulder" creation, with bodice in liquid satin and a spreading black taffeta skirt. A large soft satin bow adorns one shoulder, a contrast to the daring exposure of skin on the other side. The costume is completed by long black gloves and a note of sparkle in costume jewelry earrings.

Those who prefer a bit more frilly naivete in their evening attire will like the romantic pink gingham plaid shown in the February Vogue. It displays a tiny corset waist, full-hipped skirt, and a ribbon tie which holds a ruffled bodice snug to the shoulders.

One-shoulder-out styles seem to dominate the picture. A particularly interesting dress to choose from those on display is one fashioned of white pique with very wide bands of navy blue edged in pale pink running diagonally from a bow on the shoulder across the front in two bold splashes of color.

From evening shoes on up the ballerina keynote is at the stage front. Waists are small, hips rounded, and the keynote neckline can be keyed up by tying it together. Sleeves are capped, sometimes by cuffs turned back to the shoulder. Lines are off-shoulder, and the armhole deepens. Fullness is back . . . with bustle bows; fullness is front . . . with peplums.

Even in summer styles, more and more gossamer weight wools are being shown, worn Arab-fashion, giving a wrapped look when lightweight wool jersey is used. Rayons are bursting forth in new weaves, new colors, new prints. The newest looking cottons are dark, some window-pane plaids in red on bottle-green or pastels cris-crossing on back.

New Students Come From All Counties

Thirteen new students arrived this quarter from Dade County, the home of Florida's second largest metropolis, Miami. From the district of "The City" situated at the mouth of the St John's river came 12 new arrivees, and the State capital's county or Leon contributed 11 girls this quarter to the campus of Florida State College.

The remaining number of new students are divided fairly equally between the smaller counties of Florida.

Six new members of FSC reside in Orange county; four in Bay county; three in Volusia county; two each in Taylor, Escambia, Charlotte, Broward, Gulf, Hendry, and Holmes counties.

Eighteen other counties contributed one girl apiece to this State's educational institution situated in the back woods of north Florida.

FSC Girls Journey to G'ville For Weekend of Fun and Frolic

By LAURA LEE BUTLER

Gainesville apparently provided the focal point for FSC's celebration of Valentine's day last weekend. As Tally lassies observed the holiday with a weekend trek to the University, Gainesville took on all the aspects of a coeducational college—for two fun-packed days at least.

The sprinkling of new "frat" pins and sleepy eyed girls which appeared on campus Monday morning testified to this weekend jaunt to FSC's "brother school." Dream girl weekend and an annual Valentine formal kept the Tally lasses in a gay social whirl from Friday evening until the last bus load of girls began the weary trek back Sunday afternoon.

Dinners and informal dances at the fraternity houses provided a welcome beginning for the weekend activities. Comic capers entertained girls at the ATO house Friday evening at which time Skippy Shirley was awarded the prize for the best costume of the evening. Camp style was the vogue for Saturday afternoon, however, when a series of picnics entertained the visiting Tally girls.

At last came the "big night," which found the Pi Kappa Alpha's and their FSC dates celebrating Dream Girl weekend with a banquet and formal at the Hotel Thomas. The highlight of the evening was the presentation of the frat Dream Girl, who was the bride of one of the Pikes and herself a student at the University.

Following an early morning breakfast, the Tally girls presented a comedy entertainment for the weary dancers. At last the evening culminated in an announcement of the engagements of two FSC girls and their Pikes dates.

Other Tally girls danced meanwhile at the Alpha Tau Omega's formal held at the "frat" house. A valentine formal provided the background for the music of Perry Watkin's orchestra, after which the ATO's also enjoyed an early breakfast.

Early dinners at the houses Sunday were the last of weekend events before a lost of Tally girls once more boarded special buses bound again for another and distant college campus. Still echoing through FSC's dormitories, however, are memories of that weekend in the form of well-known fraternity songs.

Landis Plans Well-Rounded Program Of Both Serious and Social Activities

There seems to have been a sudden burst of activity recently around Landis Hall. A birthday dinner, light-flash parties, dancing classes, and discussion groups crowd the social calendar which is planned by Landis counselors, Miss Marie Williams and Miss Ruth Pyche, with student help.

Last Monday night from 7:30 to 8:15 in the Recreation Room in the basement of Landis, Ruth Brokaw supervised one of a series of dancing classes. All types of dancing from ballroom to ardent jitterbugging are tried, and so far the attendance has been quite good, according to Miss Williams.

The next hall activity was the novel birthday dinner given Tuesday evening in the dining hall, with candles, azalea centerpieces, and all the fancy trimmings. The idea for these monthly birthday dinners originated not long ago with the plan that all girls whose birthdays fall in a particular month, together with their "adopted" sisters, should be honored at a dinner and flash-light party in the recreation room. These honorees are to reciprocate by giving as many pennies as they are years old, for the worthy purpose of buying books and records for the hall.

Tomorrow night a "Merry Mix-up" party is planned to be held in the basement recreation room, and this is to become a weekly scheduled event.

A more serious turn is also seen in the programs beginning next week with a discussion by a qualified person concerning the Baltimore Symphony orchestra which will be on campus. A series of these programs including forums, book-reviews, vocations, grooming, and artistic discussions, are to be given in the future each Wednesday night at 7:30, but because of the Artist Series performance next Wednesday evening, the discussion this week will be held on Tuesday night at 7:30 in one of the smaller parlors in Landis. Anyone interested is cordially invited, Miss Williams announced.

31 to Graduate

Informal commencement exercies will be held for 31 graduates on March 20, Wednesday, at 4 p m, according to M W Carothers, registrar.

Executive council made the decision last week to afford seniors who will be graduated this quarter the opportunity of an informal commencement.

Stell Speaks To "Y" Group

Minister Gives Views on Christianity's Future

The degree of cooperation that can be obtained between Catholic and Protestants, between varied Protestant denominations, and between inter-denominational agencies, as well as the attitude of the churches toward race, labor, and political relations will determine the future of Christianity, opined Reverend Lawrence 1 Stell of the First Presbyterian church of Tallahassee, in a forum sponsored by the worship group of the Young Women's Christian Association last Monday night.

This forum was the second in a series of discussions on the comparisons and explanations of the various sects of the Christian religion. The third and final forum will be led by Dr Robert 1. Miller, professor of religion, next Monday night in the room 402 of the Longmire building, and his subjeet according to Betty Ruth Goode, chairman of the group, will be "The relationship of Christianity to other religious beliefs."

Reverend Stell said he thought it foolish for the differences between the Catholic and Protestant groups to be ignored. There is a difference and it should be recognized," he commented. "For instance, the Protestant churches recognize the Bible as the supreme authority whereas, the Catholics, though they recognize the Bible, put supreme authority in Church tradition."

The speaker believed the power of the Catholic church was growing more noticeable in political issues, and he gave as examples "President Roosevelt's underhanded method" of choosing Myron C Taylor as the United States ambassador to the papal states and the report that Roosevelt consulted Archbishop Spellman before making his choice of a running mate for the 1944 elections.

He contended that the Catholics had become the most evangelistic church in the group and that despite their own activities, they were discouraging the sending of Protestant missionaries to South America because their own church was already established there. Their reason has been that the South Americans do not want the Protestant missionaries. But Reverend Stell referred to a book by George Howard entitled "Religious Liberty in Latin America" in which he recounts interviews that he had with a cross section of the South American populace. The contents of Howard's book point out that the South American people would welcome Protestant missions to their countries.

The second problem that Reverend Stell saw threatening the future of Christianity was the lack of cooperation between the Protestant sects. He said he saw hope for this phase of the difficulty in the numerous meetings of the various inter-denominational groups over the world. Among these groups he named the International Council of Missions, which has included its mission churches in its voting membership for the last several years, and the World Student Christian Federation.

The third problem lies in uniting these various agencies, according to the speaker. He related some of the steps recently taken in that direction, the constitution for all church cooperation, for example. "This unity would not mean that each church would throw out what doctrine or belief of theirs which could not be agreed to by the other groups, but rather that they would recognize the divergences of doctrine and cooperate at the points where this divergence did not make it impossible.

In addition to these basic influences, the speaker commented that one of the most important factors involved in the future of Christianity and the churches would be the stand taken by the churches, both Catholic and Protestant, on the controversial subjects of race relations, labor relations, and other socio-political questions.

Students Attend

Four students from the Methodist group of Florida State College attended a recreation conference at the University of Florida last weekend in preparation for their recreation leadership in the churches they will visit on church deputations.

Claire Hill, Lillian Blackwelder, Pug McLean, and Joyce Carlton were the FSC delegates. They spent their time from Friday night until Saturday afternoon attending lectures and demonstrations on folk games, party-planning, singing, problems and new techniques of recreation.

Eight FSC Alumnae Teaching Aviation In Portuguese to Brazilian Students

By June Grindstaff

It is interesting to note that of the thirty-two Florida State College graduates living outside of the United States, eight are living in Sao Paulo, Brazil. These young women, many of them in cooperation with their husbands, are affiliated with the J P Riddle School of Aviation, which operates the Escola Tecnica de Aviacao at E Rua Drive, Almeida Lima, in Sao Paulo, Brazil. The Riddle school, which conducted the largest pilot training school in the United States during the war, has branch schools all over the country, with its headquarters based in Sao Paulo.

Many of the girls who were interested in the field of aviation enrolled for the Civilian Pilot Training program and hence received the opportunity to give aeronautical instruction at the Riddle school in Brazil. This program was sponsored by the government during the war, and those under it studied the nomenclature of the airplane, as well as the theory of flight from the ground up.

The CPT program in Tallahassee, which was directed by Mr Ivan Monroe, manager of the Municipal Airport and flight instructor, was one of the four programs of its kind for women students to be conducted throughout the United States. From this initial training the girls who were interested in the specialized job of aviation instruction went to the J P Riddle school in Miami to learn Portugese, the native language of Brazilians, and some of the fine points of aviation before beginning work at the school. They were then obliged to sign contracts to instruct in the school at Sao Paulo for the period of one year.

Of this select group teaching Brazilian Army students the theory of flight, in Portugese, eight were graduates of FSC. In addition to doing very interesting work the girls are receiving relatively high salaries. Their teaching duties include instruction in mechanics, maintainence, and link trainer operation.

Of those FSC alumnae working or living with their husbands in Sao Paulo many have written back to Miss Louise G Gehan, Alumnae secretary, telling of their interesting experiences and urging that others interested in the field of aviation make application for similar work.

Of those girls who took the CPT training Miss Helen Irene Fremb, of Canal Point, Florida, who earned her B S degree in education, 1942, a member of the WASPS during the war and after its de-activization a civilian instructor for the Armed Forces, is presently employed in similar work at the Riddle school in Sao Paulo. Another CPT graduate instructing at the school is Miss Frances R Rogers of Jacksonville, who was formerly a civilian link trainer for the Navy in Atlanta, Georgia. Miss Rogers obtained her A B degree in education.

Mrs Albert M Williams, the former Miss Marie Certain of Jacksonville, who received her A B in education in 1935, is now teaching with her husband at the school of aviation.

Mrs Robert Warland, formerly Miss Frances McGarry of Miami, who earned her A B degree in 1945, states in a recent letter to Miss Gehan that her husband is presently working at the Riddle school in Sao Paulo and that it is her plan to join him as soon as possible.

Another FSC graduate who worked in the branch aviation school in Miami prior to the war and now serves as an instructor at the school is Miss Rosemary Carleton. Miss Carleton, who was graduated in 1940 with a B S degree, is formerly of Zolpbo Springs, Florida.

Mrs Elbert Featherstone, the former Miss Eloise Gardner, of Miami, is instructing in Portugese the theory of flight with her husband in Sao Paulo. In 1929 she received her A B degree in education.

Another former civilian flight instructor for the Navy in Atlanta, Georgia, is Miss Palicia West who is presently teaching at the Riddle school. Coming from Fort Myers, Miss West received her B S degree in education in 1938, and at that time was given an opportunity to instruct students in aviation.

Last but not least of those who hold enviable positions in the exciting field of aviation at the Escola Tecnica de Aviacao are Mrs Phillip Moure, the former Miss Sarah Gunn of Miami, who was graduated in 1927 with a B S degree in Home Economics, and Miss Louise Prine, of Mt Olive, Miss. who prior to her instructing job at Sao Paulo served with the WASPS. Miss Prine graduated from FSC in 1940 with an A B degree.

Lt Marion C Phillips, class of 1932, who was killed in the line of duty, has been honored by the creation of the Marion C Phillips memorial scholarship to Florida State College and the establishment of a memorial library in the Merchant Marines.

FSC Graduate Is Honored

Two Memorials Created For Marion Phillips

Marion C Phillips, class of '32, who was honored by the creation of the Marion C Phillips memorial scholarship to Florida State College, was again honored with the establishment of a memorial library in the Merchant Marines. The library was established by the Alpha Theta Sorority, of which she was a member.

Miss Phillips was a second lieutenant in the Army Nurses' Corps and the only alumnae killed in the line of duty of the more than 400 FSC alumnae in the armed services.

A letter received Monday from Miss Phillips' mother, Mrs Louis R Phillips of Little Lake Fairview, Orlando, told of her many activities after her graduation from FSC. After her graduation she taught physical education in the Junior and Senior High school at DeLand, Florida.

In September, 1933, she entered the Presbyterian Hospital Training School for Nurses in Philadelphia. She graduated from there in September, 1936, and was on general duty at the Presbyterian hospital for one year after graduation. From there she went to the John Sealy hospital, Galveston, Texas as head nurse in the Men's Medical Ward where she served for two years. Then she went to Atlanta where she was assistant director of Nurses at Emory University hospital until she enlisted in the Army Nurses' Corps.

She entered the service in June, 1942, at Fort Benning, Georgia. She went overseas in October, 1942, to England. Her training there lasted for one month; then she went to North Africa with the invasion forces. She was in Algeria for a year and was then sent to Naples, Italy. From there she went to Rome and then to Leghorn.

She was with the 21st General Hospital in Africa when it went to Africa, transferred to 45th General Hospital, and finally to the 114th Station Hospital where she served up to the time of her death. She was on her way home for a 30-day furlough flying from Florence to Rome. Her plane ran into a heavy fog and crashed into a moutntain, killing 23 army personnel. This happened on February 2, 1945 at Montieri, Italy. The victims of the crash were buried with full military honors on February 5, 1945 in the United States cemetery at Follonica, Italy in Tuscany. She was about to be promoted to first lieutenant effective on February 6, 1945.

While at FSC Miss Phillips majored in physical education and was president of the Woman's Athletic Association during her senior year. She wore the coveted "Emblem", was one of the organizers of Esteren, Even honorary, and was a member of Kappa Alpha Theta social sorority.

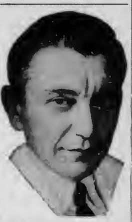
Site of New Dancing Classes Is Landis

Dancing lessons are now being conducted in Landis for those students who would like to learn or to improve their dancing ability. Monday night from 7:30 to 8:15 has been set aside for individual instruction.

Ballroom, jitterbugging, conga, rumba and samba will be taken up in turn. The lessons will continue through third quarter. Ruth Brokaw is in charge of the instructing with Evelyn Howell and Evelyn Stuckey assisting. June Williams plays the piano when the juke cannot be used.

More than 30 students have attended classes during these first two weeks and an even better crowd is being expected for next Monday night's turn-out. All students and faculty members are invited to attend.

Former Member of FSC Faculty To Appear Here With Symphony



Frank Sykora, former member of the Florida State College faculty, will return to the campus with the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra with which he is now appearing as cellist.

When Frank Vincent Sykora appears here with the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra next week, he will be among old friends. Florida State College students remember the diminutive cellist with pride and friendship from his period with the FSC faculty.

Mr Sykora, who left the faculty of FSC to join the Baltimore Symphony orchestra, did an unprecedented thing in 1939 when he wangled a piece of the "New Russian Music" out of that country and helped perform it before 2500 Kansans here in the United States. Time Magazine wrote an enthusiastic account of the feat in its November 27 issue of that year. In this story, Time told how Josef Stalin in 1936 cracked down on Russia's noisy modernist composers, who were imitating Soviet steel mills and concrete mixers. He created the New Russian Musical Policy which called for "lark and nightingale singable music."

Few examples of this music had been heard anywhere outside of Russia due to the fact that her musical czar was slightly rusty at the joints, Time said. But when Frank Sykora resolves to do a thing, he does it, and the Kansans who heard the overture to the opera "Gulsara" by Reinhold Moritsovitch Gliere said that Joe Stalin had done his stuff and Mr Sykora, too.

This small-statured, straight little man was born in Prague-Ziskov, Czechoslovakia. From the time he was three months old he lived in Russia until he first came to America in 1920. Joseph Sykora, his father, was bandmaster and inspector of the Imperial Russian Army. During young Sykora's childhood, he saw his father decorated by the Czars of Russia, the Empress of Austria, the kings of Serbia, Rumania, and Greece, and the last Czar of the Bulgars. For fifty years, the name of Sykora has been famous in Russia.

Frank Sykora himself was appointed assistant to his father and given the rank of sergeant. When his father was called away on inspection tours, Mr Sykora took the leadership of the band. This way he was a soldier during three Russian revolutions.

Later in the first World War he served for eighteen months in the Siberian Sharpshooters regiment on the Austrian front. There he received the rank of second lieutenant and was twice decorated for bravery with the Orders of St Anna and St Vladimir "with crossed swords." Once to cover a retreat of the Sharpshooters, he stayed behind and systematically set off thousands of rounds of ammunition which had been sent to his regiment and belatedly discovered to be of the wrong calibre.

Then Mr Sykora was given leave of absence to continue his education which he had begun with five years spent at the Gimnasia (high school) in Ostrog, Russia, and two years at the Conservatory of Prague in Czechoslovakia. He finished his six years at the Imperial Conservatory of Kiev in Russia, and received the highest European degree it is possible to receive, that of "Free Artist." There is no American degree similar to this.

While Mr Sykora was at Kiev for his graduation in 1918, the famous siege of that city by the Germans took place. When the Reds gave up, Sykora fled to Siberia, taking his famous old Rugiari cello on the longest and hardest trip of its career, all of the way across Russia to Vladivostok. This is a very well-traveled cello, since it has gone with him to performances in Europe, Russia, the Malay States, Indo-China, China, Japan, the Philippines, Hawaii, and the Western hemisphere, including such dreamed-about places as Hong Kong, Singapore, Tokyo, Moscow, and Vienna.

Once in Mr Sykora's career, during a performance of "Kordjan," which is a musical dramatization of the Polish Revolution, an actual Russian revolution was surging outside the theater. As the sound effects crew simulated cannon and shelling inside, the fighting became overwhelming outside. Abruptly two real shells collapsed the theater foyer, killing the ushers stationed there. Mr Sykora appeared on the stage announcing that music to calm the nerves would be played. Inside, with the flow of measured, immortal music, the people grew tranquil, and as the battle moved beyond and past the town, filed out in slow procession with a lack of panic.

Mr Sykora began teaching music when he joined the faculty of the Imperial Conservatory of Kiev, Russia. Throughout his career he has taught at many universities and colleges. In America he has been cello instructor at the Chicago Conservatory of Music, Artist-teacher at Sherwood Music school, member of the faculty at the Kansas City Conservatory of Music, Director of the Junior and Adult Orchestras at the Miami Conservatory of Music, and bandleader and cellist at Florida State College, his last position before joining the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra.

Among the musical arrangements he has written, two of his most renowned are "Shumka—Ukrainian Dance," and the Polka from "Golden Age" by Shastokovitch.

The one of his printed quotes which has the most meaning for us who have just weathered a great crisis is "Music has had a vital part in building the morale of soldiers and civilians in the wars I have seen."

Glee Club Members To Visit Gainesville

Fraternities to Sponsor Musical Program

Thirty-eight members of the Florida State College glee club will visit the University of Florida on Saturday, March 2, to present a concert of varied selections. Sixteen University fraternities will be patrons of this concert, according to Miss Etta Robertson, director of the glee club.

The program is divided into five parts: three of them composed of glee club vocal numbers and the othar two intervening numbers of piano and violin solo selections.

Numbers composing the program are as follows: "Holy Lord God" (a-cappella) by Noble Cain, "Agnus Dei" by Georges Bizet, and "Sea Moods" and "Space" by Mildred Tyson. "Agnus Dei" is to be sung by Ann Lindsey, soprano, assisted by the Glee Club, the violin obbligato supplied by Rachel Crotwell.

Several folk songs will be featured in the third portion of the program: "American Lullaby" by Gladys Rich, "The Handsome Soldier," an English folksong, arranged by Row; "Lauterbach," a German folksong, arranged by Reutter, which will be sung by Mary Hart, soprano; and "Kom Kjyra," a Norwegian folksong, arranged by Trame, sung by Paula Teagarden, coloratura soprano, assisted by the glee club.

As the fourth section of the program, Eleanor Bragg, pianist, will play "Ritual Fire Dance" by Manuel de Falla.

Closing the program, the glee club will sing "Oh, What a Beautiful Mornin'" from Oklahoma by Richard Rogers, "Siboney" by Lecuona, and "Italian Street Song" from Naughty Marietta by Victor Herbert, which will be sung by Paula Teagarden, soprano.

A chartered bus will take the glee club to Gainesville Saturday afternoon and will return on Sunday.

Ryan Speaks To Students

Brotherhood Is Defined At Convo Tuesday

"True Brotherhood is mut respect — cooperative goodwil with people of all faiths or faith," said Dr William A Rya Armed Service Director of the N tional Conferenee of Christia and Jews, when he spoke at co vocation Tuesday night.

Music for the program was u der the direction of Lucille Woo at the piano and Alice Whee who sang "Our Father Which A in Heaven."

As well as leading devotional convocation, Betty Ruth Goo introduced the speaker.

Dr Ryan told that Nation Brotherhood Week, inaugurat four years ago, was designed bring, with concerted emphasis people of America; the message Brotherhood.

Explaining how Man has tr to settle his differences by mutu extermination, mutual tolerati and lately, mutual cooperation. Ryan exclaimed, "We all kn that mutual extermination hol no hope, and I don't like toleran because it carries a sense of co descension. We tolerate what put up with. I hope we are co ing to a period of mutual coope tion in which we will live, lear and grow with the great tru from God which each of the three faiths hold."

He then stated that he does n believe America is a melting po because a melting pot combin raw materials and turns out mass of new and similar thin whereas America assimilates pe ple but encourages them to reta their own individuality and di tinguishing characteristics.

"America's genius is adaptability," said Dr Ryan. "Today w are guilty of flarebacks to earl periods of brotherhood, and t war is not over because we ha not consolidated our gains. W have won the military war but w must consolidate our gains in t new kind of brotherhood."

"This brotherhood of the NC does not cover all fields," Dr Ry reminded the audience. "When organization was set up, the ou lines of cultural relationships w definite — between Catholic, Pr testant, and Jew in the Unit States.

It is Dr Ryan's belief that sm complancency is our worst enem and will get us nowhere. He expressed this by saying, "If we d not learn to live by our social an political principles now as we d not learn to live by them in 191 the day will come when your so will fight for the dignity of huma personality and the decency and rights of mankind."

David Rubinoff Will Perform At Leon High

Proceeds of Program to Go For Baptist Memorial Hospital

Violinist May Give Matinee At FSC If Time Permits

David Rubinoff, world famous violinist, will give a concert next Wednesday night, March 6 at 8 o'clock in the auditorium of Leon high school, and if time permits, he may appear at Florida State College for an afternoon performance.

The Russian-born artist is to be sponsored here hy B'nai B'rith and the proceeds of the program will aid in the construction of a Baptist Memorial hospital in Tallahassee. Tickets priced at $2.00 plus tax are now on sale at Brown Clothing Co, Pain Drug Store, Martin and Dalton's, and the Book Corner.

A free performance especially for the benefit of Leon high school students will be given during the afternoon of March 6.

David Rubinoff has played before audiences in European capitals and has won the acclaim of critics for his exceptional musical abilities. Radio listeners in this country tuned in to Eddie Cantor's program have listened to the music of his violin, for Mr Rubinoff formerly appeared regularly on the program.

The noted musician visited Tallahassee two years ago, under the sponsorship of the Kiwanis club for the Under-privileged Children's Fund.

David Rubinoff, noted violinist, will perform next Wednesday evening at 8 a'clock in the Leoo High School Auditoriam, under the sponsorship of the B'nai B'rith organization.

Physics Professor Will Return to FSC

Barrows Will Again Be Curator Of Physics Laboratory

Major William M Barrows, Jr, who served on the Florida State College faculty five and a half years ago has just returned on terminal leave from the Army and is expected to resume duty here this spring quarter as professor of physics and curator of the physics laboratory

Two days after he returned to Tallahassee he and his wife were called to Columbus, Ohio on account of the iliness of his father, who died last Sunday night. Mr W M Barrows, Sr, is known in Tallahassee and on the campus, having spent his vacations here. He had been connected with the zoology department of the Ohio State university.

Major Barrows, a reserve officer expert in ballistics and ordnance, accepted a call to active service a year and a half before Pearl Harbor, and has a long history of varied military service. In 1940-42 he served as professor of advanced military science at Lehigh University in Bethlehem, Pennsylvania, following which he served a year as commander of a Mobile Artillery Unit operating out of Rock Island Arsenal, Illinois in which service he was promoted from Captain to Major. Later he was sent to Iceland, and then to England and France.

In command of an Ordnance Battalion which went with General Patton in his lightning dash through France, Major Barrows was later detached from the Gen-

Psychology Class Takes Field Trip

The class in abnormal psychology composed of nearly 45 students attended a clinic Tuesday afternoon at the state hospital in Chattahoochee.

Dr W G Miles, clinical director of the hospital, had charge of the group in conducting the visit, and had designated different doctors to introduce patients in their fields to the visitors. Dr Klein introduced several schizophrenic patients; Dr Clark dealt with the manic-depressives; and Dr O'Connor presented the peretics. On the whole about fifteen patients were introduced to the class.

Dr Miles then gave the class some insight into life at the hospital by taking the students through oen of the wards in which there were different types of patients who are separated into wards according to how much individual attention they need.

"The students are enthusiastic about the visit to the hospital," said Dr Paul F Finner, professor of psychology, and they speak highly of the services rendered to them by the hospital staff."

Group to Give Dance Concert

Weidman Troupe Includes Tallahassee Alumna

Charles Weidman, exponent of American concert dance, will appear at Florida State College March 9 with his company of professional modern dancers who are touring with a program which is said to be entirely new although characteristic of his previous hilarious and serious dances.

Among the dance group of both men and women will come Barbara Thomas, a graduate of FSC who has studied under Mr Weidman for three years and is now not only a member of his company but also a teacher in his school.

Berenece Kazounoff, personal representative of the company, says that Mr Weidman has created more than 100 compositions. Many of these, though serious in theme, are humorous in treatment, since Mr Weidman believes that the dance should "amuse, entertain,

Councilor Installs National Honorary

With the conclusion of installation ceremonies Saturday afternoon, Florida State College became the first woman's college to establish a chapter of Alpha Epsilon Delta, national pre-medical honorary.

Dr Emmett B Carmichael, national councilor and former president of the fraternity, officiated at the ceremony. A reception in his honor was held in the club room following the installation.

This Florida Beta chapter of Alpha Epsilon Delta is now composed of Dr Viola Graham, honorary faculty member, and 11 premedical students. Plans of the organization include the sponsoring of medical films concernina surgery and public health, according to Joyce Funke, club president.

This pre-medical fraternity is a twenty year old honorary, which ranks nationally with all other pre-medical fraternities.

Joyous Welcome Greets Sykora On Return Visit to FSC Campus

By WINNIE LANE

Our own Frankie S (not Sinatra, Sykora!) faced a joyous welcome from two Florida State College students and two members of the faculty, when he arrived in Tallahassee's railway station at 3:15 Wednesday afternoon with other members of the Baltimore Symphony orchestra.

When the students gave such spontaneous demonstrations of their affection, Mr Sykora's fellow musicians taunted him jokingly with cries of "Oh, Frankie!" One violinist was heard remarking that even in the wild wastes of Canada such greetings from the feminine sex were nothing unusual for the popular Mr Sykora. Evidently his experience here at FSC stands him in good stead, or bad, depending on the viewpoint. In New York City, too, girls rush up after concerts and shout to him, "Don't you remember me, Mr Sykora? I went to Florida State!" His comment is that he usually didn't but always said "yes" anyway.

Coming directly here from a concert in Jacksonville on Tuesday evening, the orchestra members were not feeling quite like the breath of spring. Mutterings of "terrible trip — tired — awful train" were heard, but Mr Sykora among his old friends was saying something similar to "It feels like coming home."

"Well, let's go 'round to the Sweet Shop for our usual coffee!" came an old familiar suggestion from the former bandmaster here. He didn't seem to think the "Sweet" had changed much, and went on to tell of the recent tour of principal Florida cities by the Baltimore Symphony. In Daytona the unfortunate musicians were forced to take refuge in the hospital, since sleeping quarters could not be found elsewhere. Perhaps because of travel strain, a first clarinet player had just been sent home for illness, and just before the concert here their piccolo player was sent to the infirmary. Our infirmary staff no doubt felt a man patient to be a little out of place, considering their usual clientele.

When Mr Sykora and his circle of friends reached Westcott more

Catterson Is IRC Speaker

Speech Gives 3 Policies For Italy, Germany

"Education can make a democracy out of the chaos that is now Italy," Mr Lorace Catterson, instructor in political science, told members of the International Relations club last Friday.

In developing his subject, "Italy —A Democracy or Chaos," Mr Catterson presented three policies which The United States may use in dealing with Italy and Germany. This country may aid them and thereby possibly restore them to warring status; refuse to help them and, by so doing, allow the country to return to dictatorship; or re-educate them.

In elaborating on this policy of re-education, Mr Catterson said that this program must be directed in two main paths. The people should be educated to control the birth rate in their already overpopulated countries; and, even more important, they should be educated in the ways of democracy.

In setting up a democracy in Italy, government officials face the worse possible situation because the country is now in economic chaos, Mr Catterson pointed out. He said that in order to maintain political democracy in such a country, one of two conditions are essential. There must be either a long history of political democracy in the country itself, or there must be help from an outside democracy.

Germany had outside help after the last war and it still fell under Hitler's dictatorship, Mr Catterson stated. He said, however, that this was due to the depression and to the economic policies of Smoot-Hawley protective tariff

"The String" Given [illegible]kshop

"The String," seventh in a series of weekly radio programs presented by the Radio Workshop was broadcast at 9:15 o'clock Thursday night over station WTAL.

The radio adaptation of Guy de Maupassant's story was written by Anne Hunter. Directors of the play were Phyllis Cole and Jean G'Steen, with Bet Cargill acting as narrator and Pat Pattishall as announcer.

"The String" is the story of an unfortunate Freshman accused by his fellow peasants of stealing another man's wallet, when in reality, this unhappy fellow had picked up only a piece of string in the middle of a country road. His friends' ridicule leads to the fellow's insanity and final death.

Members of the cast of "The String" include: Elizabeth Mays, Ann Carter, Patricia Yates, Lilli Alexander, and Lois Watkins. Florence Bartleson was in charge of the control board and Ruth Kennedy was in charge of the sound effects.

Next Thursday night, the Radio Workshop will present "The Monkey's Paw."

FSC Girls Meet Greer Garson At "Rollins Players" Program

By La Ferne Quinn

Gather 'round, children, while I tell you the tale of a girl who shook the hand of the famous Greer Garson. Last weekend during her trip to her Winter Park home, Pat Patishall, a sophomore student at Florida State College, and her guest Miss Mary Tom Colones, instructor in speech, met Miss Garson after a stage performance of the "Rollins Players" which the movie star attended.

Before the Rollins College presentation of "You Can't Take It With You," Pat and Miss Colones were outside the theater waiting for Mr Pattishall to park the car before going in, when a car drove up to the door and out stepped the dazzling Greer Garson smiling as she walked past them into the theater. Pat said nearly everyone had gone in and the curtain was being held for Miss Garson's arrival.

Seated in the box with Dr Hamilton Holt, president of Rollins, she was not more than seven or eight rows from Pat and Miss Colones, who could hardly watch the play for fear of missing a movement or gesture made hy the scintillating Miss Garson. "She was very attentive to the play and seemed to enjoy the performance," Pat said. "Sometimes she sat with her hands clasped before her just the way she does in the movies."

She was wearing a simple black evening dress with a high round neck relieved by a pearl necklace and set off by long black gloves.

Mr Howard Bailey, dramatics professor at Rollins, had invited Pat and Miss Colones backstage after the performance to meet the old stage trouper Fred Stone, who had directed the performance. Upon arrivina backstage they found Miss Garson there also, chatting in her almost husky voice. Hamilton Holt made the introductions and Pat remembers the warm, firm handshake and Miss Garson's perfect diction as she said "something like 'Hello, so glad to know you'." "Gracious is the word to describe her," said Pat. "She seemed pleased to meet me, while I was just ga-ga." Pat said. "She has pretty eyes that light up and twinkle when she smiles."

Miss Garson then smiled, "Pat, be sure to give all the girls at Florida State my best wishes." To which Pat said she replied, "I certainly will." Pat was one of the very few to obtain an autograph, because Mr Holt did not want the distinguished visitor to be inconvienced by a crowd.

Sunday afternoon Miss Garson appeared on the "Animated Magazine," an annual program conducted in the open air, wearing a tailored pearl gray suit, white blouse and accessories, and a white flower in her hair. Pat described her make-up as beautiful and just right, contrasted with the heavy make-up of many stars on appearances. Her high cheek bones definitely shuwed up without movie make-up and Pat said

Director Speaks

"Readjustment of War Torn Civilians" was the title of a speech by Dr W G Miles, clinical director for the state hospital at Chattahoochee, when he spoke last night in the auditorium of the Longmire building under the auspices of the Tallahassee Branch, Florida Academy of Sciences. The war torn civilians in his speech referred to the veterans group who are now civilians.

Dr Miles recently returned from three and half years of service in the Pacific, where he served in the Navy as a psychiatrist in the medical corps.

'Blithe Spirit' To Have Final Show Tonight

Noel Coward's Three-Act Comedy Is Directed By Dingwell

Spiritualistic Seance Is Feature Of Comedy

Tonight marks the third and final performance of the comedy Blithe Spirit, which will be presented in the Augusta Conradi Little Theatre at 8:15.

Noel Coward's play, "an improbable farce in three acts," starts off with a spiritualistic seance in the home of an English novelist who is in search of local color for a book. Mr W L Dingwell, speech instructor at Florida State College, plays the part of Charles Condomine, the novelist. Mary Ann Cannon plays Madame Arcati, the medium engaged by Charles, who inadvertently succeeds in conjuring up the ghost of beautiful, mischievous Elvira, Charles' dead first wife.

Elvira, played by Bonnie Hunt, greatly harasses Charles' unhappy second wife, Ruth, played by Sara Norman. Dr and Mrs Bradman, also in on the seance, are played by Warren Green and Eugenia Avant, and the Condomine's Cockney maid is played by Joy Fleming.

The play's "constant verbal fireworks" maintain such a light touch with the suhject of Death that, as one reviewer of the New York production of Blithe Spirit said, "Far from being morbid, it seems as carefree as a debutante."

Mr W L Dingwell, male lead and director for Blithe Spirit, has had little more than two weeks to produce the play, and as a result he would like to be quoted as say-

Group Acts on Recommendations

College Council to Consider Decisions of Senate

Recommendations presented to the College Council of Florida State College by the Student Senate and residence hall counselors have been referred to the legislative committee of the Council for consideration, according to Ann Carolyn Allison, president of College Government Association.

The first meeting of this committee will be held this afternoon at 3 o'clock. The recommendations usually require a number of meetings so that all phases of each one may be carefully considered, Ann Carolyn said. After investigating each recommendation, the committee then makes a report on its findings to the whole of College Council.

This committee was set up because College Council was so large that proper consideration could not be given to the recommendations, Ann Carolyn stated. This legislative body is composed of Ann Carolyn, as president of CGA; Catherine Barrs, chairman of Judiciary; Miss Anne F Pope and Miss Ruth A Pyche, counselors; Miss Katherine Warren, assistant dean of students; Miss Elizabeth Lynn, counselor to Senior Hall; Miss Florence Bethea, assistant librarian; Dr Mary Noka Hood, assistant professor of bacteriology; Sarah Lewis, chairman of Student Senate; Jean Cole, Peggy Lou Thomas, and Dalia Santos.

The decisions of College Council will be reported to Senate and through them to the students of the college campus.

Sopranos Heard On 'Garnet and Gold'

Two FSC sopranos were heard on this week's "Garnet and Gold" radio program, which was broadcast by remote control over statioo WTAL on Thursday night at 7 p m.

Betty Joyce Gwens sang "Autumn Leaves" by Jennie Pierce Black and Sarah Ann Braneister sang "Carissina" by William A Penn and "Lazy Song" by Lawson. These two girls, music editors of this week's program, were accompanied hy Mi[illegible] Lucile Wagner assistant [illegible]ssor o[illegible] no.

The regular weekly summary of college news was given by Jane Wooten, news editor of the "Garnet and Gold" program.

Miss Bertha E Bloodworth, publicity secretary and coordinator of radio, acted as announcer.

The Baltimore Symphany, with a total af ninety members in the major symphonic unit, presented matinee and evening concerts last Wednesday at Florida State College.

Flambeau Tryouts Place Extra Load On Busy Reporters

Reporters trying out for staff positions on the paper lent zest to this week's publication of the Flambeau.

The new staff members for the week felt much as though the weight of the world had been placed upon their shoulders as they bravely attempted to justify these tentative positions.

The reporters undergo a four weeks training period during which time they publish the Flambeau, under the supervision of the regular staff members. This training period which will continue through the next three weeks, is much the same as the one exereised by CGA, except for the fact that the reporters gain actual experience during their training.

Jr Minstrel Dance Chorus Announced

Novel Tryouts for Speaking Parts Is Inaugurated

The dancing chorus for Junior Minstrels has been announced by Mary Lou Norwood, chairman of the prodnction. Tryouts for speaking parts are novel this year as Mary Lou said there will be no formal trial period. She reports that she is picking and eliminating quietly by listening and observing informally, in the halls, the Soda Shop, and other places where girls gather to chat.

"I wish everyone who tried out for the dancing parts could have been used, but that proved impossible. We even enlarged upon the number of people in the various acts; however, some had to be turned down because of the type and the talent," Mary Lou said.

Petitions Due Sunday Night

CGA Candidates Can Have Double Petitions

Petitions of candidacy to College Government Association offices must be submitted by third light flash Sunday night, March 3, to Ann Carolyn Allison, chairman of the nominations committee. Ann Carolyn stressed that petitions to both a major and a minor office may be submitted by any person desiring to run for both.

A statement of qualifications, which must accompany each petition, may be obtained from Ann Carolyn in 229 Landis. A snapshot must also accompany each petition. Each petition must also be accompanied by a snapshot. All petitions for candidacy to major offices must bear the signatures of 50 students, and 25 signatures will be required for petitions to minor offices.

Although training classes for these offices have been completed, any student who has failed to attend them may still be a candidate for CGA offices by contacting Ann Carolyn Allison or the person who now holds the office she is seeking.

Potential candidates except second-quarter transfers must have a one point average for each of the two quarters immediately preceding their candidacy for office. Second quarter transfers, according to the CGA constitution, must have a 1.5 average for the preceding quarter.

Major offices are as follows: President of CGA, 1st, 2nd and 3rd vice presidents of CGA, secretary and treasurer of CGA, chairman of Judiciary, freshman advisor, off-campus committee, chairman of residence halls committee, president of WAA, and editors of Flambeau, Flastacowo, and the Disaff.

Tickets Available

Reserve seat tickets for the performance of Charles Weidman's modern dance group will be distributed to all holders of Blue series tickets this afternoon, Monday and Tuesday from 4 until 6 p m in the basement of the Longmire building. Students holding Red series tickets may obtain their reserve seat tickets at the usual half-price at the Book Store March 6 through 9. This performance will be given Saturday, March 9 in Westcott auditorium.

Spam Saves Starving Students As Sustenance Suddenly Stops

LA FERNE QUINN

After sitting at the dinner tables Wednesday night for some time before the food was brought out, the girls in Broward dining hall began to wonder if they had been forgotten. The longer they sat the more they wondered and the hungrier they became. Dining hall girls then came to their tables to tell that what had been feared was true—the food had run out and more would have to be procured from the other dining halls.

Cries of "sob, sob, sob" and "they're letting us starve to death" arose from the six or eight tables which had been left out, while girls at tables all around them chortled gleefully at their starving friends. Soon, however, they realized they should be friends in need and began rushing bread baskets to the stricken tables in order to sustain the lives of their comrades until help could arrive from the dining hall girls.

As they sat eagerly anticipating platters of tasty noodles several girls were seen to salt the arms of their roommates. 'That's one way of getting rid of them.' But before any perceptible damage was done Spam was served

Miss Anna M Tracy, head dietician, attributed the situation to the unpredictable attendance of the students. She said the Spam was obtained from the ice box downstairs which is filled with "emergency rations" just as there are shelves of stored food at home to be used when an extra guest shows up for dinner. She said that there are more apt to be extra servings than too little as was the case Wednesday night.

Meals are figured on the basis of a three day count and figures are kept on file of the number attending every meal. An average is taken in planning the meals ahead of time. Planning of Sunday dinner is based on the Sunday before and according to what is going on. For instance many girls are anticipated to be absent during the weekend of Spring Frolics at Gainesville.

The dining hall staff of necessity has to keep close tabs on the social calendar and must know what is playing at the movie theaters in town. For when Van Johnson is in a picture 300 girls at least are anticipated to miss the evening meal "That," said Miss Tracy, "is a fact."

"During exams nearly everyone comes to breakfast and lunch," she went on to say "But the evening meal is anybody's guess." She attributed Wednesday night's "disaster" to the probability that more students were on campus because of the Artist Series.

Concert Given By Symphonic Group at FSC

Stewart Directs Programs Featuring Number by Richard Strauss

Tschaikowsky's Symphony Presented Wednesday

An important musical event took place in Westcott auditorium when the full ensemble of 90 members of the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra under the baton of Mr Reginald Stewart presented matinee and evening concerts last Wednesday. This major symphonic group brought classic music literature to the large audience of Florida State College students, faculty and townspeople.

The evening performance, starting at 8:30, included the symphonic poem Death and Transfiguration by Richard Strauss, Tschaikowsky's Pathetique Symphony No 6, and Suite from Der Rosenkavalier, also by Richard Strauss. Brahms' Academic Festival Overture was presented in place of one previously scheduled number, and the encore after heavy applause at the end of the concert was a repeat of The Russian Sailor's Dance hy Gliere, which had been played on the afternoon program.

The four movements of the Tschaikowsky symphony have been described as music of intense pathos. It was the very last of the works of that great composer and his dual picture of life was fully carried out from the first adagio, allegro non troppo movement to the slow and mournful finale.

Richard Strauss's Death and Transfiguration as presented by the Baltimore Symphony was an excellent example of a picture or narrative in music. During the last 50 years Strauss has gained an enviable reputation as a genuinely first rate composed of modern serious music.

The matinee performance was of a lighter theme, beginning with the substitution of Gliere's Russian Sailor's Dance for the March from Carmen as planned. Other numbers were Mendelssohn's Symphony No 4 in A major, Thunder and Lightning Polka by Johann Straus, Anitra's Dance from Peer Gynt Suite No 1 and Norwegian Dance No 2 by Grieg, and Dance of the Sugar Plam Fairy from The Nutcracker Suite by Tschaikowsky.

The final number at the afternoon concert was Berlioz's Rakoczy March, and a Strauss waltz was played as an encore.

Millay Is Subject Of Poetry Symposium

A symposium on Edna St Vincent Millary was held by members of the Contemporary Poetry class with Elizabeth Hunter as chairman. The committee who participated on the program were: May Alenander, Doris Koon, Martha Jane Brown, Tommy Felton, and Ondina Lombadero.

Each member of the committee discussed one of the poet's outstanding characteristics found in her writing. The characteristics were illustrated by citing quotations from Miss Millay's poems. A few of the illustrations which were given by members of the committee are: her personification of nature, passionate love, aversion to death, feminine point of view, and identification of herself with all life and beauty of all time.

"Renascence" was the poem which was used as the basis for the discussions. Miss Mally wrote this poem at the age of 19, and the committee found that many characteristics of her later works were evident in her early poem. A discussion springing from a quote from "Renascence" often continued and branched into examples from her other poems.

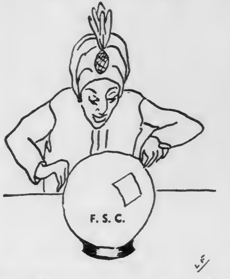
May Alexander concluded the program by reading "Renascence," and for backaround music the first movement of Greig's Concerto in A Minor and the first movement of Sibelius' Symphony No 1 in E Minor were played.

Material Needed

Winifred Meldrim, editor of the Distaff, announces that contributions for the third and last issue of the Distaff may be turned in as soon as possible. "We are still accepting short stories for our short story contest," Winnie said, "but the deadline is March 10."

Entries must be original, but may be of any length. Especially needed for the next Distaff are poetry and short stories of all kinds.

SPIRIT OF THE WEEK



WHAT ARE THESE CHANGES I SEE?

● "I PROMISE"

With annual election time coming soon on this campus, the students can be well assured that they will find this year as in former years buzzing voting booths, lines in the hall waiting for the machines, pictures in the paper and violent wordy platform speeches. Like all human campaigns they will be filled with lobbyists, petitions, and confused voters. Although the booths may be filled with different people, the machines may be of a different make, and the lines might be smaller, the campaign speeches are almost guaranteed to be the same and practically copies of those printed last year and the year before.

These written platforms seem always to be only essays on loyalty, duty, and devotion to the job. Clothed in perfect rhetoric they are merely words that say nothing and cannote everything. The writers would get an A on their theme if it were turned in to a writing class, but as a campaign speech they could not even be considered "conditional."

That loyalty and devotion to the job are favorable attributes for every candidate cannot be argued, for, as a rule, those running for office would not even have been nominated if these things had not been considered. But that the obvious should be the subject of a platform speech is an unwise consideration.

What the people want to hear is the campaigner's ideas of the position itself. They want to know what she will do with it. Will she make any changes, reconversions, additions, or leave it as it is? They want real words, compact words, and words that can have only one meaning. They want to know which office she would like to see added, what rule she would like to see revised, and why she will sponsor a particular project. If the campaigner wants to keep the position and its duties as it stands, they want to know that too.

These are not unusual or unjust wants of any voter. For it is his duty to know these things, as it is the duty of the candidate to tell, before any rational election can take place. It's the vote that puts the candidate in her coveted job and it's a vote that should know what it's putting in.

● THINK FOR YOURSELF

"The teacher may be wrong. Think for yourself."

Perhaps Florida State College students and faculty have noticed this slogan chalked up on campus blackboards during the last week or so. Some students, at least, were so interested in finding the source and context of the quotation that they made an intensive search for it.

In the Sunday News-Democrat for February 10, 1946, was an editorial which ended the search. The editorial, entitled "Socialized Individuals," quoted Mr Herbert Morrison, a leader in the British Labor Party, as saying, "I have notices put up in every classroom saying, 'The teacher may be wrong. Think for yourself.' "

"The more we socialize industry—and we are going to socialize a lot," the editorial quoted Morrison further, "the more determined we must be to produce individuals . . . Britain, however far her industry may go on a collective basis . . . shall nevertheless be a nation of individuals, of pioneers who are showing that British character is as strong, powerful and individual as ever it was in the past."

The editorial writer in the Democrat sees Morrison's remarks as an "admission of the evident fact that collectivism is and has been the foe of individualism elsewhere. In Italy and Germany and Russia, government control of industry has been accompnied by government control of thought and speech and action."

A "strong, powerful and individual" character, such as that which Morrison feels the British people must show more than ever before, is no discredit to any man whether he is a citizen of some country other than the United States, or whether he is a student in one of this nation's colleges. For it is well to remember that the adversaries of freedom, the propagandists of the "let us do your thinking for you" sort, are not all found in foreign countries, nor even in the remotest corners of the United States.

● FLOWERS FOR THE SPIRITS

Because our budget will not allow us to present actual bouquets to the deserving, we have devised this verbal means of giving recognition to all those who work "backstage."

This week we think special recognition should go to the backstage crew of Blithe Spirit, the speech department's current play which will be played tonight for the last time. It is feared that often we are inclined to look only at the "play," the obvious action in any circumstance, and disregard the work and thought that may have gone before to make possible our pleasure.

For Blithe Spirit, as for all other plays given by the speech department, the students made all the costumes, painted all the scenery, and secured all the stage properties necessary. This preparation for a play usually takes thirty girls from three to four weeks.

Other departments and extra curricular activities on campus that demand "backstage" work (and most of them do) may take a shorter time or less concentrated work over a longer period. All, however, are to be commended for the time and effort they put into seemingly thankless tasks.

Though the dozen roses goes, this week, to speech students, we'd like to pin a rose on all those who have done the "backstage" work throughout the office-holding year. The members of the budget committee, organizations committee, honor committee, usher committee, auditing committee and others have all given hours to the necessary jobs on campus which do not often reach the public eye. It is their "backstage" work that helps make possible the effects that are visible.

A trip "backstage" in other departments and organizations besides the speech department might be worth any student's while to see what makes the college extra curricular life tick and thus gain a better perspective of the organizations. Only with such a perspective can a fair evaluation be made of an organization. We feel that only after a student has this knowledge of the workings of an organization has she a basis for constructive criticism.

From Me To Y'all

By Sharpie

Due to popular demand (3 letters dribbled in signed Sharpie) we're back again. Just when everybody was happy too, watching the team cheer for the team. But let's get on to the mail.

Here's a letter from someone who apparently doesn't read this column very often. It says, "Why don't you say something nice about the new clubs that are springing up? There's another new one. They must be good for something." This reader is correct and though it isn't our policy to throw bouquets, Sharpie feels that the new clubs will do good in that they will show older uniformed campus groups the ridiculousness of it all.

A friend writes, "Why don't you run for president of CGA?" What, and give up a responsible job like this? Never.

"Curious" writes, "Is every college just alike?" As an answer to her question, we submit the following tales, all true, and our only comment is, "It can't happen here".

From the University of Texas comes this story: "I had a date to go to a party quite a ways out of town. On the way home, my date's convertible got stuck in the mud. We had to get out and walk back to town. I didn't get in until 2:30 and the house director felt so sorry for me that she put me to bed."

Another story comes from the University of North Carolina. A co-ed writes that she was walking on campus one night with her favorite man when the president of the college passed and stopped the couple saying, "Tonight is much too nice for walking. Why don't you two sit under that tree?"

Reminds us of the "don't sit on the grass" law, huh?

When the occupants of neighboring houses around Smith college wrote a letter asking the girls to pull down their shades at night, the president of the college retorted, "Let the neighbors pull down their own shades." Land sakes!

At the University of Florida (yes, I said Florida) the boys are asked, "Will you have Budweiser or Blat ?"

But enough of these tear jerking items. Our next letter is from "Unlucky" who wants to know why she can't find a four leaf clover. We just don't know the answer to this question, but maybe there's a rule that clovers have to have three leaves at FSC. Don't ask us things like this!

Here's a letter signed "Mrs Worried." It says that she made an announcement at house meeting that students could make suggestions to teh curriculum committee. No one has suggested anything thus far. She asks, do the students care? Our answer to this is, it seems not.

Don't be afraid to ask us for advice, fellas, ask us anything. If we can't solve your problem, who can? Well, gives you something to think about anyway, doesn't it?

The Students Speak...

By Kay van Deurs

"Would you like to have political parties on campus? (Political parties would state certain definite policies, planks, and objectives with which candidates could affiliate themselves. There might be any number of parties)."

This is the question a reporter asked various students who happened to be sitting in the Sweet Shop Tuesday morning. The answers follow in the order in which they were spoken.

Sally Watson, freshman: "If it were run right it might work out for the students' advantage. However, political parties might discourage thinking and encourage emotional decisions."

Dotti Bloodworth, freshman: "I quite disagree with Sally. Now we do emotional voting for people we know, well-known people, though we have no idea what they would do if they were in office. If we had some definite idea about what candidates stood for we could be putting ideas into office instead of just people."

Evelyn Shea, sophomore: "I've got to go take a test. I don't believe that we should have political parties because it would accomplish more if each girl running for office would simply state her platform or the things she will try to achieve while she is in office. Political parties would be many segregated groups."

Vivian Bloodworth, freshman: "As it is now, people do not take much interest in elections. Political parties might excite more interest because candidates' personal opinions would be emphasized rather than personalities."

Anne Sbull, sophomore: "I think political parties would be a good idea. I have voted for different people on the campus. I thought that they would fulfill their offices, but I never knew exactly what their platforms were. I think it would also give people more interest in voting if there were more talk about platforms and if you had time to think about what candidates stood for."

Eleanor Fugate, sophomore: "I think the same way Ann does. Going by the table in Westcott, we get a sheet of paper with names on it, but there is no way of knowing what the girls stand for, what their policies are."

Ann Westmoreland, sophomore: "I think it is more or less popularity that wins votes. If you did know more about candidates' objectives, your votes could be based upon them. That would be better than the present system."

Peggy Lu Thomson, senior: "I'm against political parties here. The party system is potentially dangerous in that it can become as much a machine as the state and national ones. I've seen it work at the University where a small group of boys seems to be able to control the party and decide upon the candidates. There is almost no opportunity for an individual to run independently and have a chance for election."

Nancy Wright, junior: "I don't think we ought to have political parties because I read it in a book somewhere. If any one wants to change my mind, just give me another book."

Nell Clark, junior: "If there were political parties, sooner or later the sororities would form a bloc. One thing I like about Tallahassee is that there is so little pressure politics between sorority and non-sorority people.

Lucille Luce, junior: "I think a political party system would be desirable because it would arouse student interest. If ever any changes are made they must be the result of student pressure. I wish the political parties would come about next year so that I can see them."

Harriet Timmons "I would think that the candidates would have to know what they stand for and the students would become more interested in seeing that the issues were acted upon if we had political parties."

Faith Adams, freshman: "I think political parties are a good idea. I am in favor of a radical party, a group that would get something done. Most of the present officers seem to be conservative; I might not have voted for them if I had known it ahead of time."

Or Forever Hold Your Peace . . .

OR FOREVER HOLD YOUR E

To the Editor of the Flambeau and the person or persons responsible for the "Spirit of the Week" in last week's Flambeau:

I should like to voice the opinions of myself and numerous other freshmen by telling you of our reaction to the above-mentioned cartoon.

It has become increasingly obvious to us that the life on campus here is chiefly dominated by a small clique primarily interested in personal glory and fearful that others will receive honors or privileges. This was especially noticeable when Senate was debating the various bills which would give freshmen more privileges.

Why, may I ask, was the cartoon in question published? Was it justified? We freshmen think not. We see no reason that there should be a wide distinction between freshmen and upperclassmen. We do not think that we have been asking for any privileges which do not rightfully belong to us.

We would like to see this or any other letters of protest published, for after all the Flambeau is the organ of the entire student body, including the freshmen. We would like for the campus to hear of our views for a change.

Very sincerely yours,
Marie Simmons.

Dear Editor:

I am just one of the many freshmen that would appreciate being told what is "supposed" to be funny about the cartoon in last week's Flambeau.

I can hardly see that an intelligent person would find such a cartoon funny. How do you expect to gain the respect of the freshman class when you print such a thing? We freshmen are told that there is no class distinction on this campus, yet all about us we see positive evidence of it.

Yours truly,
Gladys M Hughes.

After being taken aback by the sudden burst of outrage from freshmen concerning the aforementioned cartoon, we gathered our wits and realized that perhaps two views could be taken: one, biting satire directed at the freshmen who voiced their opinion in Senate, making light of their efforts; two, an expression of the obvious atmosphere that permeated Senate, but surely not a criticism of any effort for progressiveness by freshmen. The cartoon undoubtedly was viewed in the first light and certainly this was not our intention. Farbeit from us to discourage freshmen, or consider them as underdogs.—Editor.

no small amount of confusion and worry to the newly dubbed editors as they found themselves faced with the problem of "digging up" all available news on campus and making weekly assignments. Whereas before they had been given specific directions as to their method of procedure, they now found themselves placed in head positions.

Copy reading, the writing of headlines, and the general plan and make up of the paper, combined to keep the reporters in a constant whirl of work and activity, as each strove to make their page the best.

The following staff members and reporters held new positions for this week's publication of the Flambeau: May Alexander, editor; Lola Rose, associate editor; B J McLeod, managing editor; Jean Douglas and Laura Lee Butler, news editors; Frances Traxler and Joyce Petty, copy editors; Barbara Beckman, feature editor; Jackie Nevers, sociaty editor; Evelyn Shea, assistant managing editor; Tami Thomas and Alicia Armstrong, columnists; Eleanor Bayer, assistant society editor; Virginia Budd, sports editor; Paulatte Blank, outside news editor; Winifred Lane, literary editor; Kay Van Deurs, opinion editor; and Joyce Petty, picture editor.

At the end of this training period, the future staff will be chosen by the present staff members. The new editors will take their new positions after the election of the editor-in-chief which is a part of the CGA elections held in April.

friendly jeers went up from groups of other orchestra members standing outside. "Sinatra in person! Two-thirds of this college has been asking for you! Wonder why no one speaks to us when that cello player is around?" (Non-professional jealousy!) Mr Sykora's fellow musicians had many complimentary remarks to make concerning his musicianship.

After the matinee performance, "Frankie" was besieged by a procession of "hellos," and was finally pigeon-holed by a group of his friends. The great demand for his society made him late for the formal dinner being given in his honor in the East dining hall, but at last he walked triumphantly in with an Odd cap on his head. He also still wears the little skull-and-crossbones Spirogira emblem. Such demonstrations of fidelity to the Odds made a great hit in the freshman dining hall, and according to statements from all sides the dinner was tremendously successful. Mr Sykora entertained with tales of life in the orchestra, and such spicy comments as, "We lost one cellist. He died."

The return of this particular native was an event long anticipated and greatly enjoyed, according to Mr Sykora and his innumerable friends here, and it was with regret on both sides that he said his farewells immediately after the evening performance.

and astonish" audiences as well as arouse them.

John Martin, New York Times dance critic, after speaking of Weidman's contribution in the training of male dancers, criticizes him by saying: "His outstanding contribution to the dance, however, lies outside his technique for men, important though it is. It is in another field entirely that he achieves his greatest distinction: namely, in the drawing together of pantomime and pure movement, two elements which are basically irreconcilable yet which he fused into a single medium, capable of uniting the functions of both in the creation of genuinely theatre-dance material."

As a result of Mr Weidman's training of male dancers comes Peter Hamilton, who will appear here with the company. Before he began his dancing career Mr Hamilton was a mathematics teacher who, on being favorably impressed by Mr Weidman, gave up his profession for one with more physical activity, the modern dance. Since that time his rise in the dance has been meteoric.

June Graham, another member of the company, will also appear in the concert. She began dancing at the age of ten, under the guidance of Katherine Littlefield. Since then she has been with the Ballet Theater for two years and has also been a featured solo dancer in the Broadway shows "By Jupiter," "The Merry Widow," and "Oklahoma!" Two years ago she became interested in the modern dance and has been a student at the Humphrey-Weidman studio during that time, studying under Mr Weidman and Peter Hamilton.

Miss Garson read the Vicar's speech from "Mrs Miniver" and a selection from "Madame Curie," showing no signs of being conscious of the mild commotion she was causing, and being "the charming English lady she always is," said Pat.

The "Animated Magazine" program was also attended by Mr Meicklejohn, former president of Amherst College, General Rommulo, MacArthur's Philippine Aide, and Bob Feller, to include a few of the famous personages.

While visiting Rollins Miss Garson was honored with the degree of Doctor of Humanities, becoming the first movie star to ever receive an honorary degree.

Talent Show Convo Feature

Pegram Makes Appeal for Campus ARC Unit

Convocation this week was the occasion for the first Freshmen Talent Show of the year as well as for the announcement by Mrs Mary Pegram that all students of FSC interested in doing work to aid their community by giving their services to Red Cross activities may organize now for the state of Florida's first college unit of the American Red Cross.

Convocation was opened with the devotional reading by Margaret Clayton, "Color Blind," which told of how people of different colors practice ethnocentricism but as they all come to know each other and appreciate the qualities which really count in one another, realizing the beauty of kindred souls, their color conflicts are resolved in a spirit of tolerance and true brotherhood.

Robin Hill, third vice president of CGA, presented the audience with various news items from foreign countries and at home, which were relevant to the brotherhood of races theme prevalent this week and last.

Dr Ruth O Schornherst, associate professor of botany, and an alumnae of FSC, told the convocation group of the many gift and loan scholarships in surplus of $6000 which are available for some needy students. Among others, she mentioned the Rowena Longmire scholarship which is a half gift-half loan scholarship of $200 annually, and the Marion C Phillips scholarship which was donated by Dr Hilda Jane Walters in memory of Lt Phillips, who was the only one of more than 400 FSC alumnae in war service to lose her life. It is an outright gift scholarship of $250 annually for which there have as yet been no applicants. It is especially designed to help those students who major in physical education or the sciences, fields in which Lt Phillips was greatly interested, stated Dr Schornherst. She urged that any students who might be able to make profitable use of the gift make application to do so through the Alumnae Office.

Miss Mary Pegram, director of college units of the southeastern area, appealed to the girls of FSC to organize their own college unit of the American Red Cross. She stated that only fifteen girls would be required for such an organization to be chartered. Advising that the local chapter of the ARC would honor a petition by the girls for a college unit and help them to plan their activities, Miss Pegram added that duties the girls might perform such as first aid, water safety, accident prevention, home nursing, nutrition, sewing and knitting programs would be of invaluable aid to needy people, and hospitalized veterans as well. She suggested such vital activities as disaster organizations, and public information programs, which would train the girls in many important fields, and be beneficial to the community as a whole. Miss Pegram concluded with a statement that a college unit of the ARC at FSC would provide a channel through which the ARC might send valuable information to college girls, and requested that all who were interested in doing voluntary Red Cross work meet in Westcott with Mrs Herman Kurz, the executive secretary of the local chapter of ARC, who would answer their questions and advise them as to procedure for petitioning for a college unit of ARC of their own after convocation.

Following the customary convocation announcements, which included the announcement that there will be a convocation meeting next week instead of the regular house meeting, with a special talk by Dr Doak S Campbell, president of FSC, on a very important issue not yet disclosed, Shirley Palmer introduced the Freshman Talent program. The program was a preliminary sample of freshman talent to promote interest in the Freshman Carnival to be held April 12. The program was opened with a short take-off on freshmen-senior relationships, enacted by Lu Shorner and Laura Simpson. Betty Jean Allen followed with a rendition of "Blue Skies" on her cornet, accompanied at the piano by Pearl Sapero.

A dance by Pat Small impersonating a raggedly-Ann doll was next in the way of entertainment. Then the freshmen class' own "Frances Sinatra," Dallas Stever brought sighs and screams from the convocation audience by singing "I'm In The Mood For Love." Joyce Hanson followed with an accordion arrangement of "The Easter Parade." The next entertainer was songstress Joyce Stroberg who sang "All The Things You Are." The story of "Jonah And The Whale" was offered as food for thought by Margie Mallard. Next on the program was Bertie Loftus' imitation of a Russian tap dance. The talent show ended with the freshmen trio, Laura Simpson, Ruth Kennedy, and Hazel Clarkson singing the "Hawaiian War Chant."

eral and served through the closing days of the war against Germany with both General Simpson and General Hodges. He fought in the Ardennes break-through, the famous Battle of the Bulge, and crossed the Rhine into Germany with General Simpson.

He was on special assignment as Assistant to the Judge Advocate General of the Ninth Army investigating German war crimes from May to June of last year. In July, 1945, he took up duties as professor of physics and physical science at the United States Army University in Biarritz, France. Major Barrows was in Hurtgen Forest at the time when the proximity fuse developed at the University of Florida received one of its first battle tests, and on his return voyage he was in charge of a shipload of American military prisoners.

It is believed that Major Barrows will return from Ohio in a short time to begin his work here on campus prior to teaching next quarter. Because of Major Barrows' interest and experience in radio-electronics the college had a licensed short wave transmitter before he accepted the call to active duty. He is slated to teach a course in radio-electronics at FSC.

In 1945, the Red Cross spent $22,000 in Leon county. Of this $7,000 was used for relief after the Tallahassee tornado (October 22), $2,000 for the Dale Mabry canteen, $10,000 for the financial assistance of service and ex-service families.

The official beginning of the drive on March 1 was celebrated by members of the committee at a breakfast in the Cherokee Grill at 8.30 on the morning of the first.

Platforms and Policies Given By Candidates for CGA Offices

(Editor's Note: These are the first in a series of interviews with condidates for major College Government Association offices. Each week, the Flambeau will present the platforms and policies of two students running for offices in order to help the citizens of the campur decide upon the one best qualified for the position.)

C G A PRESIDENT
SARAH LEWIS

To create a more unified spirit on the campus will be the main project of Sarah Lewis, present first vice-president of College Government Association, if she is elected as president of CGA in the coming elections.

When interviewed this week, the candidate said she did not know exactly how she could unify the campus, but she thought that a single convocation would help somewhat

She saw a possibility of a decompulsory convocation, and thought that in view of the discussion on that subject this year, a decision on the question would probably be reached by next year

Sarah said that she thought the freshmen lost interest after the first of the year and that she felt their interest could be held if something vital would make them feel like a part of the school activities.

"Another thing," said Sarah, "I would like to see the students get away from the idea of getting rid of rules just to get rid of them." We should realize that laws (rules) are fundamental to any society and should be kept."

"Also," she continued, "I want see the legislative and codifying committees kept as standing committees of senate." There is still a lot of work to be done in their realm to make effective what those committees have done this year."

As the third plank in her platform, Sarah said she planned to advocate the coordination of organizations. "I don't know how this can be done either," she said, "except in the stricter enforcement of the point system. As it is now there are too few persons in charge of the leadership of the organizations."

In conclusion, the candidate said she wanted to give the students a better realization and understanding of the foundation work that must be done before a measure may be voted upon by the Student Senate and be relegated to the College Council.

"All this year there have been misunderstandings as to when a recommendation becomes a law, etc, and I feel that this should be fully understood by the entire student body. Also, the students think that Senate is wasting its time when it is doing the mechanical work that leads up to the actual vote on the question."

CHAIRMAN OF JUDICIARY
BETTY SCHWARTZ

On being interviewed, Betty Schwartz, candidate for Chairman of Judiciary, recently stated her policy in regard to the part that Judiciary should play on campus.

She thinks that one of the two primary functions of Judiciary should be to interpret rules and regulations of the college for the students as a whole. She further stated that Judiciary should not wait until a student commits an offense and then interpret the rule only to be the individual, but instead should keep the student body well-informed. One way to incorporate such a policy, suggested Betty, is to give more facts of a case in the convocation announcements; not, of course, to the extent of offensiveness to the individual, but so as to give other students a better understanding of a particular case.

A second function of Judiciary, continued Betty, should be to give more thought to the individual case. Judiciary should have knowledge of the student's background in order to make a just decision. It possible, the personnel records should be used in investigating the student's past record.

In Betty's opinion, a case should not be completely dropped on merely stating the verdict, but there should be follow-up on the case in some instances. By this she means, for example, if a student is on restrictions for a quarter and it is observed that she conforms strictly to her restrictions for six weeks then her restrictions may be lifted on certain conditions.

To the question of what she thought about shipping, Betty replied that it was necessary in some instances, but that the phrase "liable for suspension" should be adhered to but not interpreted to mean definite suspension in every case.

Lenten Forums Are Begun At Ruge Hall

"Doctrine of the Incarnation" was the title of the address given in Ruge Hall, February 22, by Doctor James Shackleford Dauerty as the first of a series of prelenten and lenten forums.

The Rev R S Morrisey will speak on "Jesus Christ and the Material World" tonight as the second of these forums The program will be held in Ruge Hall from 8 to 9 p m.

Ruge Hall had as its guest speaker last Sunday night at Vespers Dr Robert Miller, associate professor of philosophy and religion. He talked on the Lutheran church, placing special emphasis on the prayer book used by that church.

There was an announcement made at this time concerning the business meeting of the Canterbury club, which will be held at Ruge Hall next Sunday at 6:30 after Sunday night supper there.

Winning Pictures To Be Displayed

Daphne Rowe, president of the Day Students Organization, announces that the pictures which won first, second, third places and the three honorable mentions in the recent Pin-Up Boy contest should be returned to her at once if they have been claimed. She asks that the owners leave the pictures on the desk in the Day Students lounge of the Longmire building in order that they may be displayed in the bulletin case on the main floor of the same building.

There are a few pictures that have not been claimed, Daphne said, and added that the owners should call for them by March 5 in the Day Students lounge. "We have their addresses and know where they are stationed, furthermore, we are not responsible for what happens to them after the deadline for claiming the pictures," Daphne stated.

CGA Talks Ended

Talks by the heads of the various campus judiciary bodies were given at a meeting of Sophomore council last Thursday evening. These discussions completed a series of speeches on various aspects of college government, according to Jo Ann Long, chairman of Sophomore council.

Featured on the program were Catherine Barrs, representing judiciary; Peggy Lou Thomas, residence halls committee, and Betty Alday, off-campus committee.

Sorority Chit-Chat

Visits from alumnae, birthday celebrations, parties, and after-dinner coffees mark the passage of another gala week for the residents of sorority row.

Hera Day is being observed by the members of Alpha Chi Omega. Dressed all in white the girls are setting this day apart to redouble their efforts to help others, and tonight they are planning to hold a joint chapter meeting.

Former president of the chapter, Rita Garis, class of '44, was a visitor to the Alpha Chi house last Sunday. Next week Mrs Howell, house mother, will make a trip to Birmingham, Ala, for a week's visit.

Jessie McCalla, who has been interning for the past quarter in Orlando, has just recently returned to FSC.

On hand for Alpha Xi Delta Weekend last week were five alumnae of the Alpha Omega Chapter. The guests included Nell Hawkins, Muriel Thomas, Avis Thomas, Mary Florence Fox and Virginia Page. The chapter members and their dates went to Wakulla Sunday for a picnic which climaxed their weekend festivities.

Thursday morning at 7:30 the Alpha Gamma Deltas pledged Marti Brokaw, and last Tuesday night Mrs Rosabelle Gilliland, house mother, was honored with a surprise after-dinner coffee celebrating her birthday.

Next week's program will include an after-dinner coffee honoring patrons and alumnae of Alpha Gam. With Betsy Bird, social chairman, in charge of the coffee, guests will include members of the faculty and presidents of the sororities. The time is next Monday night from 7:30 to 9, the place is the Alpha Gam house.

The Chi Omegas held an installation ceremony for new officers last Monday night at chapter meeting.

New initiates of Kappa Delta sorority will entertain the actives and their dates at a supper Saturday night After the supper, there will be a showing of the moving pictures which were taken during their week-end, climaxed by the Valentine Formal February 2nd. Rose Ann Hartwell is in charge of the supper and Lois Wilson has charge of the moving pictures.

Installation services were held Monday night at the Kappa Alpha Theta house for the newly elected officers. These are: president, Lucy Brown; vice-president, B J Singleton; treasurer, Lorraine Smith; deputy treasurer, Lydia Moore; corresponding secretary, Betsy Zurwelli; recording secretary, Jeanne Oldfather; social chairman, Marian McEwen; rush chairman, Jean O'Steen; scholarship chairman, Lavonne Black; pledge trainer, Connie Savage; Panhellenic delegate, Sue Brophy; editor and alumnae secretary, Gloria McDay; song leader, Joyce Stroberg; intramurals leader, Candy Jones.

A "Broken Heart Blow Out" was held at the Theta house in the way of an after-valentine party. Everyone wore red and white, including the pledges. There was a short program after which candy, nuts, punch, and cookies were served.

The annual Tri Delt formal dance will be held at the house Saturday night. The theme "Heaven and Hell" will be carried out by the decoration of the two main rooms. One will be the "Tri Delt Heaven" and the other Hell. Betty Ann Shiver, Franklyn Smith, and Jean Ann Ramsdell will be in charge of decoration.

The Tri Delts will also be hiking off on a picnic Sunday at the mercy of Margaret Gillis, who is in charge of arrangements.

A birthday dinner was given Wednesday night in honor of Mickey Partnoy, Sylvia Moscovitch, and Phyllis Paul at the Delta Phi Epsilon house. Mickey Partnoy's aunt, Mrs Lena Silverman from Thomasville made arrangements for the dinner.

The D Phi E's are entertaining two guests. Mrs A Barrish is visiting her daughter, Sherlee, and Mrs J Atlas is visiting her daughter, Gladys.

Formal Dances Are Highlights Of Campus Weekend Activities

Dances held the spotlight this week as well as last with sorority and dormitory formals highlighting the weekend social calendar.

Candlelight and flowers will be used to carry out the "Spring" theme of the Magnolia hall dance tomorrow night from 8 until 12. Refreshments of punch and cookies will be served during intermission. Jane Whitfield is in charge of the dance and Marion Cross, and Merry Robertson are co-chairmen of the decorations committee.

The Tri-Delt formal also tomorrow night will have as its theme, "Tri-Delt Heaven and the Den of Iniquity." Chaperones for the dance include Mrs Olive Cross, Miss Alice Gregory Dr Claud Flory. In charge of various committees for the dance are Betty Anne Shiver, Rosetta Carver, Franklin Smith, Margaret Gillis, and Dorothy Hasbrouck.

Decorations of spring flowers will be featured in the Reynolds dance which has a garden scene as its theme. Mary Lynn Bell is in charge of the dance, and Alice Stalmaker heads the decorations committee. Refreshments will be served during the dance, and during intermission a short program will be presented.

"Moonlight and Shadows" was the theme of the Alpha Xi Delta formal last Saturday night in the parlor of the chapter house. Red and white camellias and gladiolas were used with stiff lacy paper to decorate the mirrors and tables, and streamers of blue and white ribbon formed overhead decorations. Members and guests danced to the music of a five piece orchestra from Camp Gordon Johnston. Arrangements for the dance were made by Pat Tays, and Billie Kacinski planned the decorations.

Gilchrist hall held its annual formal last Saturday night in the parlor which was decorated with flowers to carry out the Spring motif. Streamers of brightly colored crepe paper hung from the ceiling around the lights, giving the room a darkened effect. Refreshments of punch and cookies were served during intermission.

The Kiss Room, the Starlight Roof, and the Jungle Room were the scenes of the Alpha Delta Pi dance last Saturday night. The college orchestra furnished music for the dance, which was part of the week-end activities planned by the chapter. Punch, brownies and cake were served during intermission. The decorations were by Frances Traxler.

Vocational Lecture To Be Given Monday

Department Store Retailing Is Subject of Talk

Miss Mabel Lanier, member of the employment department of Rich's Department Store in Atlanta, will speak on "The Department Store, A Woman'e World," Monday at 5 p m in room 303 Westcott Building. This talk is being presented under the sponsorship of the Personnel Office as one of the vocational guidance lectures given annually. The lectures are to inform the students of the latest developments in fields of work for women.

During the day on Monday Miss Lanier will interview seniors in the Personnel Office who are interested in retailing as a career. In her lecture she will explain the training program for junior executives that Rich's sponsors. Miss Lanier will also relate the different kinds of jobs that college graduates can perform in department stores.

Rich's Department Store has employed for the past few years Miss Mildred Boss, a Florida State College alumna, in the capacity as buyer of stationery and luggage for the Atlanta store. Miss Boss returned to the FSC campus in 1942 as guest speaker in one of the vocational guidance lectures.

Athlete's Feats

Evelyn Shea

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This week, our little sports genius is trying to write a column concerning tomorrow's games from the angle of the basketball and volleyball, so please bear with us while we put some more Absorbine Jr on our athletes feet.) Pun!

"Hello fellas! Allow me to introduce myself. I am King Basketball and you will be seeing me tomorrow when the Odds and Evens clash. Yep, I'll be bounced, thrown, and even aimed at the basket to say nothing of going in to ring up two points for the rival teams.

"To begin with, when the Evens are handling me, they will be striving to fill up the gaps that interning left in their team. All in all, from what I've FELT of their team this year, the Evens will produce a fast-stepping sextet. However, I will admit that the artful skill with which Babe Evans and Eloise Boyles wielded me certainly will be missed. With Even forward ANNA GIESE in possession of me I know I'll get dizzy from the altitude but MART WILSON also another Even forward will bring me back to earth.

CATHERINE BARRS, Even guard, will be intercepting me for the last time Saturday and I'm expecting big things for her. As I said before, this year's Even team should give their rivals a good run for their money . . . And speaking of rivals, this 1946 edition of the Odd basketball team will prove to be a tough nut for the Evens to crack cause after being sunk for two points by BETTY SCHWARTZ, SIS MILLER, ELAINE BROWN, NANCY WARD, and LUCY HARDING, I'm convinced that the Odds definitely have talent. Besides that I've been snagged many times by CLARICE TRUEBLOOD and BETTY GARDINER while I was traveling through the air. These two girls really have knocked me around a bit. Besides these two juniors, the Odds have the added talent of the freshman class this year. With this insertion of new blood to the Red, White and Purple team, the Odds will have no difficulty in producing a bang-up cage team with smooth handling by them of me.

"My buddy, King Volleyball keeps nudging me over here to give in so that he can get in some words about the volleyball teams this year, so I'm reluctantly turning over this typewriter to him. So long you basketball enthusiasts and I'll see you Saturday at the games. Just think, I'll be the one to get all the punishment while you cheer."

"Whew! I thought I'd never get rid of that ole' leather bag. He's the most blown-up individual I've ever met. But honestly, there's no game quite like volleyball. Why I could talk about my merits for hours. But since we're concerned with volleyball here at FSC naturally the Odds and Evens come into my ballon-inflated mind. On the Green and Gold side of the ledger, SARAH BENNETT, JOYCE GARMAN, DINK ASHTON, AND ELAINE GAVIGAN have planted my cowhide square down many a player's throat. These Evens definitely have what it takes and plenty more. With set-up and spiker man SARAH BENNETT, as the nucleus of the team, the other team players will fall right into line. All year long and especially in the class games, the Evens set me up well and I was spiked so often that Judiciary called a special meeting to discuss my peculiar case.

"As my constituent, King Basketball said, the Even basketball team was hit by girls interning, so is the case with the Even volleyball team. One of the Even's excellent players, DOT TUCKER interned this quarter and her services will definitely be missed. If the Even team exhibits the team work and general court play that the Even class teams demonstrated separately, this little volleyball believes they will win.

"On the other hand, I have had many good spikes and set-ups given me by the Odds and they certainly are not lacking spikers and all-around good players. VIRGINIA PALMER, MAE MANNING, LOIS MERIWETHER and PEGGY BECKNELL passed me over the net so often I didn't know whether I was coming or going. In my estimation, as a volleyball, the freshmen and new juniors who went out for volleyball this year helped to fill in the holes left by graduating team players of last year and ineligible players. The Odds had to start from scratch at the beginning of this sport season with few veteran players but as the class games indicated progress was made for both their games with the Evens were close. In fact, cold sweat broke out on my shoe-laced brow from worry at the end. Come Saturday, the Odds might handle me better than the Evens and in that case they could score an upset. At this point I'll stop and although King Basketball beat me to it, I'll still say, see you at the games tomorrow. You'll have no trouble finding me cause I'll have a nice clean white face . . but oh, the bruises that will follow.

DID YA' KNOW? ? ? ?

That all the interns are back on campus? Babe Evans, president of F club, Jo Guthrie, president of WAA, Skooks Lester, Life Saving Corps president, Eloise Boyles, former judiciary member, Frankie Hall, senior intramurals manager, Dot Tucker, former Junior Minstrel head and Ann Widerquist former play-night chairman, are back to complete three weeks of seminar and one more quarter before graduating.

LET'S SEE A BIG CROWD . . . .

Out to watch the first of the week-end's Odd-Even sports today at five o'clock in the pool. Yes, the campus mermaids will be vieing for superiority and I'll not venture a guess as to the outcome. It's trite to say, but let's see all you Odds and Evens out there singing "So Well It's Up With The Red and White" and "Hurrah for the Green and Gold." . . . and that's thirty for now.

Sophomores Win Top Place In Basketball Class Games

Pep rallies, tag days, and attendance at class games seem to show that Odd-Even rivalry is almost as high as during those days near Thanksgiving. Odd Caps and Even feathers are back in style as the current headgear as both teams and their loyal supporters await the big games Saturday.

After their four victories last week, the Evens will be confident of their skill on Saturday, but Sarah Bennett, Even volleyball leader, is taking no chances on her team's lacking practice or coordination. "Last year we lost all of the class games, but managed to come out on top in the Odd-Even games, so anything can happen," Sarah said. The volleyball team is as follows: Jeanne Koesy, Jean Bennett, Mary Louise Van Natta, Sarah Bennett, Elaine Gavigan, Jo Story, Joyce Garman, Dink Ashton, Dot Mims, Pep Stanaland, Marion Floyd, Candy Jones.

Odd leader, Marli Richardson, was also putting her team through some last-minute practices, but she remarked confidently, "the class games don't mean a thing, because we're going to win." Members of the Odd team are: Mae Manning, Peggy Becknell, Virginia Palmer, Virginia Goodell, Sara Lou Wells, Inez Augustine, Jo Peters, Mary Nell Goldman, Ann Seaward, Joyce Benton, Angie Marino, Happy Meriwether.

"I am very pleased with this year's team and think that we have a good chance," said B J Singleton, Odd swimming leader. "We want a big crowd to come out to the swimming meet today and see those Odds swim," she added. Team members are Barbara Irving, Betty Jane Lindsay, Anne Richardson, Camille Batten, Pauline Tuttle, Margery Holm, Nancy McEwards, Joanne Zewadski, Sis Myers, Jane Carol Levy, Dusty Rhodes

"Perfectly suited for the Even swimming team" are Danny Martin, Amelia Pavese, Anna Lou Rivers, Anne Shull, Betty Burch, Joan Boucher, Anna Horne, Marilyn Dewey, Doris Du Bois, and Carol Claus, the swimming leader. Carol sums up the Even chances by saying, "There's no doubt in my mind." Last year the Evens won swimming by several points so Carol can point out that "we did it before."

To the question, "are you going to win?" Clarice Trueblood, Odd basketball leader, answers definitely in the affirmative, "Of course, we're going to win!" With experienced juniors, Nancy Ward, Herkie White, Betty Schwartz, Mickey Chambers, Betty Gardiner, and Clarice Trueblood, plus the freshman talent, Elaine Brown, Lucy Harding, Sis Miller, Shirley Hargraves, Ethel Clann, and Jane Nightingale, on the team the Evens can look forward to some stiff opposition.

"We'll have the Odd basketball team in their coffins come Saturday afternoon," was the comment that Mart Wilson, Even leader made. "Why just look at the girls who made our team: Anna Geise, Grace Hays, Juanita Krentzman, Catherine Sullivan, Amarene Thompson, Catherine Barrs, Jean Fliess, Betty Kennedy, Alva Ray, Evelyn Shea, and Bopie Whitaker."

Golf Intramurals End Softball Takes Over

A D Pi Wins Golf Tournament With Top Score of 40

Alpha Delta Pi defeated Alpha Chi Omega in the intramurals golf tournament, played off last Friday afternoon, with a score of 40 for the Alpha Delta Pi's and 46 for Alpha Chi Omega.

Janet Boyd and Katherine Jackson represented Alpha Delta Pi, and Barbara Wickham and Irma Lee Shepherd represented Alpha Chi Omega.

In the semi-finals were: Alpha Delta Pi with a score of 39, Alpha Chi Omega with a score of 46, and Alpha Xi Delta represented by Jo Dawkins, and Jackie Nevers with a score of 46.

Those teams which entered the first day include the following: Alpha Delta Pi, with a score of 41; Pi Beta Phi with a score of 50, represented by Ann Tucker and Virginia Curtis; Alphi Chi Omega, with a score of 49; Bryan hall with a score of 54 represented by Ann Porker and Barbara Mann; Alpha Xi Delta with a score of 46; Kappa Alpha with a score of 64.

Sherlee Barish was in charge of intramural golf.

The intramural softball games are scheduled to start next Monday afternoon at 5 o'clock, according to Margaret Anne Stambaugh, head of the softball teams.

The last practice will be held this afternoon at 5 o'clock and will be the only chance for the teams to gain their required two practice points.

Fourteen teams have been represented thus far and more are expected to enter before the starting game Monday. Four games will be played each afternoon.

The following includes the teams represented, along with their Activity Chairmen. Alpha Delta Pi, Janet Boyd; Kappa Delta, Margaret Olson; Delta Delta Delta, Dottie Hasbrook; Zeta Tau Alpha, Jeanne De Bevoise; Delta Zeta, Anne Singleton; Gilchrist, Betty Gardiner; Delta Phi Epsilon, Arleen Seegle; Kappa Alpha Theta, Jeanne Gifford; Bryan Hall, Frankie Hamilton; Alpha Chi Omega, Marjorie Potter; Chi Omega, Margaret Sparrow; Sigma Kappa, Terry Johnson, and Alpha Gamma Delta, Catherine Cooper.

Margaret Anne urges everyone to come out and give their teams their full support.

The schedules for the athletic managers will be placed on the WAA bulletin board, and on one of the boards in the lower gym.

Life Saving Corps To Honor Lester

A pancake breakfast is the treat in store for the Life Saving Corps next Wednesday morning at 8 o'clock at the Sweet Shop, announced Anna Horne, acting president of the Life Saving Corps. The breakfast has been planned in honor of "Skooks" Lester, president, who has just returned from interning in Pensacola.

At the recent meeting of the Life Saving Corps plans were made to get the Corps emblems. Members are urged to turn in their money for the emblems, which will be gotten from Mrs Myrtis Kurz, head of the Red Cross in Tallahassee.

At the business meeting of IRC, also held Friday afternoon, attention was called to four new books recently purchased by the club. These are The Atomic Age Opens, by the editors of Pocket Books; America and the New World, which gives landmarks for charting American relations with other great powers in the world ahead and which is composed of a series of Merrick lectures for 1945: Germany is Our Problem, a plan for Germany by Henry Morganthau, Jr; and the United Nations in the Making, a collection of basic documents in the formation of the UNO.

Plans for Weekend At Camp Are Made

Forty people joined Outing club for a hamburger fry at Camp Flastacowo last Friday afternoon from 5 to 7. According to Tommy Thompson, chairman of the group, the girls enjoyed canoeing on the lake and games in the big cabin before the supper. A city bus was chartered to carry the group out to the camp.

Outing club wishes to tell students that there are horses available for riding at the college dairy and that bowling at the city bowling alley every Thursday afternoon is being continued as long as enough girls go to warrant the manager closing the alley to the public during the hours of 2 to 6.

Tommy says that the horses at the dairy can be rented for $1.25 an hour, and the only arrangements that have to be made are the regular ones for hiking. However the parents' permission blank must include horseback riding in one of the allowed activities before a girl may ride.

Outing club has already planned a weekend at camp during the early part of third quarter and a hayride later in the quarter.

Seniors Defeat All Comers In Volleyball Class Games

The Evens smashed through to victory in the series of class games in vollyball with the seniors holding the undisputable title of champions of the school.

While the Even cheered their two combating volleyball teams the seniors spiked and batted their way to a 32-28 victory over the sophomores. Last Saturday night's clash at Playnight ended at the halves with a score of 19-18 in favor of the sophomores, but the seniors rallied and in spite of a lack of substitutes they rolled up a winning score.

The Evens and Odds acting as spectators entered into the spirit of the rivalry by cheering and singing Even songs, being led by the cheerleaders who were scattered in the Even seating section.

Displaying their symbol of seniority, the seniors ran out to the court at the beginning and at the half wearing their caps. Their yellow suits contrasted with the green suits of the sophomores. At the half the seniors ran out to face another hard fought, substituteless period via the water cooler, and then took to their battle stations chewing gum lustily.

Refereeing the game were Miss Lois Ver Hoeven and Miss Henrietta Greenberg, assistant and instructor in physical education, respectively.

Seen on the sidelines during the game, proudly displaying one of the popular "Hello Even" tags, was the little brown cocker spaniel owned by Miss Mary Jayne Medlin, instructor in physical education.

A 25-24 victory was chalked up for the juniors in the junior-freshmen volly ball tilt Saturday afternoon. The freshmen remained ahead until the last minute of the game, when the juniors, renewing their spirit, nosed out a one point victory over the lower classmen.

Both Mae Manning and Peggy Becknell were pleased with the spirit and skill shown in the playing of their teams and admitted that there was keen competition to the last second of the game.

In the fourth Even victory of the week, the senior volleyball team defeated the juniors, 33-30, in the class game last Friday. The seniors, led by Sarah Bennett, trailed the Odds for the first half of the game, but pulled ahead during the last half, and maintained a small lead until the game's end.

The hard, overhead serves of Angie Marino gave the juniors their first scores, and the Evens were hard-pressed to pick up the balls spiked by Mae Manning, Odd captain, and Virginia Palmer. On the senior side, teamwork was concentrated in passing the balls to Sarah Bennett and Dink Aston, dependable spikers for the Evens, but the juniors still held the lead, 22-21, at the end of the half.

Jeanne Koesy, serving for the seniors, garnered the first points by which the Evens overtook the Odds at the beginning of the last half. Juniors Mary Nell Goldman and Happy Merriwether still continued to send hard spikes driving deep into Even territory, but the seniors managed to keep just a few points ahead of their closely matched opponents. The ball changed hands as both sides frantically attempted to score in the last remaining minutes, but the seniors remained on top, 33-30, as the whistle blew.

High-scoring honors were claimed by Angie Marino of the Odd team who won a total of eleven points for the juniors. Second with a score of nine points was senior Jean Koesy.

Officials for the game were Dr Katherine Montgomery and Miss Lois Ver Hoever.

Odd-Even Spirit Runs High for Saturday Volleyball, Basketball

By Jo Dunagan

Spectators at play night last Saturday witnessed the thrilling playoff of the winner's game in which the sophomores topped the seniors 46-38.

Sophomore Tommy Thompson piled up the greatest number of points for the evening. Tommy made 28 and Anna Geise, senior, followed closely with 26.

The fast-moving and exciting game brought continual cries of "guard her!" "shoot!" "get it, Tommy" "go to it, Geise!" from the crowd. Only once did silence reign. Bopie Whitaker and Evelyn Shea collided when both were moving at full speed.

Officials for the game were Miss Henrietta Greenberg and Miss Mary J Medlin.

The loser's basketball game, which was played Saturday afternoon in the gym, was another victory for the Odds. This time the juniors chalked up a 39-22 victory over the freshmen.

At the opening of the game, Sis Miller, freshman captain, Elaine Brown, high point player for the freshmen, and Lucy Harding were in as freshman forwards The outstanding feature of the freshman team was the close cooperation of the forwards. The three girls have played basketball before, but never together. They covered the floor with assurance and certainty in the first and fourth quarters during which time the three of them played together.

Substituting for the forwards were Audrey Hunt and Shirley Hargraves.

The guards in the freshman lineup were Jane Nightingale, Sis Beckman, and Fay Smith.

During second and third quarters substitutions came in for the guards. Mary Calley, Helen Looby, Jo Longdon, Joy Harper, Kathleen Barker, Pat Randolph and Ida Louise Schmid played.

Offensively the freshmen were weak, the constant shift of players on their team in proportion to the steady junior team gave the juniors an advantage, plus the fact that the juniors had a stronger defense themselves than forwards.

The officials were Miss Greenberg and Miss Medlin, who alternated as umpire and referee.

Miss Papatsos, Odd coach, said that the freshman team shows exceptional potentialities. There seemed to be a lack of incentive for the exceptional playing Saturday. The girls had been playing against each other all quarter, and this seemed just like another practice in some respects.

The high point player of the day was Nancy Ward, junior forward. Nancy played basketball with the Odds last year and totaled 25 points for the junior team Saturday.

Juanita Bowles and Lucille Jordan were the other junior forwards. Betty Swartz was not able to play. This was the first season that Lucille has played Odd basketball, but Juanita was a steady last year.

The juniors had one substitute, Betty Donnally, new to Odd basketball. She played guard. Herkie White, Clarice Trueblood, junior leader and Betty Gardner were the starting guards.

Clarice Trueblood, Odd leader, said that as a whole the freshmen and juniors had real competition for the Even team.

Education Is Forum Topic

Less Specialization Urged In Group Discussion

That education for Florida women should be more general—or liberal—than it is now was suggested by Winnie Lane and Rosetta Carver, speakers of the panel on "Education for Florida Women" held Wednesday night in the Longmire auditorium. Francee Traxler, the other speaker, contended that if education was the knowledge of what was thought in the past and what was being thought in the present, co-education should be inaugurated in the Florida state colleges so that the women could get the thoughts of the returning veterans.

This forum was sponsored by College Government Association under the leadership of Robin Hill. The speakers gathered material for their talks from General Education in a Free Society by the Harvard Committee, Experimental College by Alexander Meiklejohn, Higher Learning in America, by

FSC Students Hear Rubinoff And His Violin

Unique Renditions Played On 1771 Stradivarius In Auditorium

Artist Asks Full Support For New Baptist Hospital

David Rubinoff, noted violinist, appeared briefly at Florida State College Wednesday afternoon and presented an evening concert at Leon High School auditorium. A varied program ranging from works by Debussy and Liszt to boogie woogie, but with popular pieces predominating, was presented by the Russian-born artist during these performances.

The evening concert was sponsored by the B'nai B'rith foundation, and the proceeds will aid in the construction of a Baptist Memorial hospital in Tallahassee. Mr Rubinoff and his accompanist, Alexander Makofka, also presented an afternoon program for the students at Leon High school in the high school auditorium.

"Dance of the Russian Peasants," Rubinoff's own composition, opened the afternoon performance to a capacity audience in Westcott auditorium. This program also included "Intermezzo" by Provost, "My Buddy," and nine different arrangements of "Don't Fence Me In" by Cole Porter.

Known for his radio and motion picture performances, Mr Rubinoff has toured leading European capitals and presented numerous performances before members of the armed services during the present war. A graduate of

Alumnae College To Hold Meeting

Role of Education in Future Is Theme of Program

For the first time since 1941 the annual alumnae college, a general meeting of all Florida State College graduates, will be held on campus in May.

Miss Louise Gehan, alumnae director, has announced that this meeting will combine the regular business of the alumnae association with a program which she thinks will be of interest to the student body as well as the returning alumnae. The theme of the program this year will be the role of higher education in the years of reconversion and the future.

Included in the program will be the final concert of Percy Grainger with the college musical organizations, informal social functions, business sessions, a main speaker, who has not yet been secured, and a banquet.

Miss Gehan said that the committee hoped they could get a member of Governor Caldwell's Citizens' Committee on Education to speak to the group and tell them about his ideas as to the local edncational problems—such as co-education.

The annual alumnae college was begun in 1937 at FSC, according to Miss Gehan, and this is the first meeting since Dr Doak S Campbell became president of the college.

Prom Court Nominations

All juniors and seniors are requested to cast their nominations for the court of Junior-Senior Prom in lower Westcott today. Nominations are to be made on the basis of service to the class and to the school. Voting for the three girls to represent each class will be done all day Monday in the same place.

AAUW Offers Graduate Loan

$500 Scholarship Open to Faculty and Students

The Graduate Scholarship Loan Fund sponsored by the Tallahassee branch of the American Association of University Women, will be available for graduate study in 1946-47, Miss Louise H Manley secretary of the loan fund committee, announces.

An award, not to exceed $500, depending upon expenses to be incurred in the school selected, will be made to an applicant continuing her work in a graduate school of recognized standing provided the committee believes that she deserves the loan. No interest is charged for the first year. Three years are allowed for repayment, and the interest for the second and third years is six per cent.

The applicant must have spent the last two years of her undergraduate course in residence at Florida State College or must be a member of the FSC faculty, according to conditions set up by the committee. Faculty applicants will be considered only when no alumnae applicant is approved.

Other factors that will be taken into consideration include the institution which the student will attend; evidence of a definite aim to complete some work for a degree, preferably a master's degree; the physical and financial well-being of the applicant. Individuals

Eitner To Give Violin Recital

Miss Olga Eitner, violinist, will give a recital Sunday evening at 8:15 in Westcott auditorium. Miss Eitner has had extensive experience in recitals as a soloist with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra. She was a member of the New Orleans Symphony, and a student under the celebrated Bohemian, Ottokar Sevcik, and Richard Czerwonky.

In this recital, which is the second one given here by Miss Eitner since she came to Florida State College two years ago as associate professor of violin, she will play Bach's "Sonata, G minor." A second number will be Bruch's "Fantasia on Scottish Folk-Melodies," which is an ingenious combination of four well-known Scotch tunes. The program will conclude with five other selections: "Aus der Heimat" (Songs of Home) by Smetana; "Slavonic Dance, G major" by Dvorak - Kreisler; "La Chasse" (The Chase) by Kreisler; "Hymn to the Sun" (From the Opera, "Le Coq d'Or") by Rimsky-Korsakoff-Kreisler; and "Scherzo Tarantelle" by Wieniawski.

Graduate Returns In Dance Ensemble Appearing Saturday

Barbara Thomas, Florida State College graduate who is now a member of the Charles Weidman company, will appear here tomorrow night with the Weidman group in the two dance dramas, "David and Goliath" and "A House Divided."

Miss Thomas, formerly of Jacksonville, received her BS degree in Physical Education from FSC in 1940. During her four years as a student here she was very active, especially in the dance. She taught tap dance to FSC students, students at the demonstration school, and also to a kindergarten group.

Her activities while here were many and varied; however, they centered around the dance and the more athletic activities. She was a tap dancer for Junior Minstrels, in the modern dance group, dance chairman for May Day, and a participant in Odd Demonstration, soccer and volleyball. In addition to these activities, she was a member of the Senior Life Saving Corps, Outing Committee, Sophomore Council, F Club, Women's Athletic Association of which she was treasurer, and Spirogira of which she was vice-president.

Since Miss Thomas graduated she has taught physical education at Robert E Lee High School in Jacksonville and has been an instructor in the Institute of Dancing at Louisiana Polytechnic Institute in Ruston, Louisiana. For almost three years she has studied with Doris Humphrey, modern dancer, and Charles Weidman, and at present she is not only a member of Mr Weidman's company, but also a teacher in his school. Since her graduation from FSC in '40 she has received har MA at New York University.

Kuersteiner Elected NASM V-President

Official Music Accrediting Group Meets in Detroit

As a result of an election held last week in Detroit, Michigan, Karl O Kuersteiner, acting dean of the department of music at Florida State College, was elected vice-president of the National Association of Scools of Music. Dean Kuersteiner shall also serve as ex officio member of the executive committee of this organization.

Well over 100 colleges and universities are represented in the NASM, which is an official accrediting association for collegiate schools of music. Rollins and FSC have the distinction of being the first two colleges in Florida to qualify as members of the NASM in the 1920's since the standards for allowing entry are high so that there are many who do not qualify. It is attempted in this national group to give a broad evaluation of all the work that is carried on in the field of music, and to recognize credit where it is due, Dean Kuersteiner commented.

The president of NASM for this year is Donald Swarthout of the University of Kansas who also held this office last year. These elections take place at the annual convention of the group, who plan

Campbell Reveals Proposed Expansion Projects for FSC; Larger Enrollment Expected

President Discloses Board of Control Decisions; New Dormitory, Housing 280 Students, First on Construction List

Dr Doak S Campbell, president of Florida State College, in a convocation address which followed a State Board of Control meeting predicted a great increase in enrollment and announced expansion plans underway to provide adequate facilities.

The opening of bids for a new $450,000 dormitory which will accommodate some 280 students has been authorized by the State Board of Control. Dr Campbell, a representative of the Board, and the architect will meet in Jacksonville tomorrow morning to settle on a bid for construction of the new building which is to be located north of the infirmary and Jennie Murphree. This dormitory will be built in two sections on a style similar to that of Landis and will have a blower system which may be used in heating and air-conditioning. Dr Campbell estimated that it will probably be completed within a year.

About the middle of May construction will begin on a north wing for the Physical Education which will house bowling alleys recently purchased by the college. Next, a sound-proof music building will be built whose moisture repelent qualities will protect musical instruments. The construction of a new auditorium and plans for improving Bryan hall were also included in the Board's program.

After studying the curriculum, Board members made plans for a complete nursing school and for private lessons in aviation soon to be offered to students. Extension of library training will begin this summer.

In his speech, President Campbell told of a number of other new curricula which might be added to the present courses offered here. On the immediate horizon is the field of nursing education and medical technology. The possibilities in the field of art in all its phases are extremely challenging. A new major in Recreation is forthcoming. The development of a University Press, a psychological clinic, and many more developments should be in operation within the next five years, he said.

The Board of Control, under the terms of a past legislative act, will direct the Ringling Art Museum at Sarasota. On a special committee, appointed to work out plans for the supervision and direction of the museum, are Dr Campbell, Colin English, President J J Tigert, J Guerney, and Carl Bichell, chairman of the committee. The Board also directed their attention to the emergency housing situation at the University of Florida due to large numbers of returning servicemen.

Dr Campbell told students at convocation that: "Florida does more for the students in its colleges than any other state in the United States. For the educational program alone at FSC $920,000 is spent each year. The entire budget, including the auxiliary agencies, amounts to one and three quarter million dollars annually."

Dr Campbell also discussed the all important and highly debated subject of co-education. He said that the question ought to be settled now for the benefit of the institution. Three possibilities should be taken into consideration, said he. The first solution to the problem would be to leave the present type of organization undisturbed. The second possibility would be to make the University of Florida co-educational, and leave FSC an institution for women at the present. The third idea which appealed to the students as the best solution, by the evidence of

Mischa Elman To Play Here

Violinist to Use Prized Stradiverius Violin

Mischa Elman, world-famous violinist, will be heard at Florida State College on March 28 in a recital given on his highly-prized, more than two-century-old Stradivarius. All seats for this occasion will be reserved, but tickets will be on sale at the Bookstore for $1.25 plus 25 percent tax, beginning March 11. Although this recital is not granted on the Artist Series, students may obtain tickets for half price.

Elman, who is said by Olin Downes of the New York Times, to be "without a rival today," made his debut in this country in 1908, at the age of 17 Elman, a native of Russia, where he studied under Leopold Auer, first tried his hand at the violin at the age of three. At six he was studying at Odessa, and at 10 he was making history at the St Petersburg Conservatory. It is said that he astonished the musical world with his debut recital in Berlin at the age of 12, and at 14 captured the hearts of English royalty and society from the King and Queen down.

Education Society Honors 33 Freshmen

Kappa Delta Pi, honorary society in education, honored 33 initiates with an informal party at the home of Dr and Mrs Paul Finner on Wednesday night. The guests were freshmen who had made at least a B average in the School of Education for the first quarter.

Dr Dorothy Leahy, professor of home economics education and director of teacher training in home economics, was the guest epeaker, who gave a short talk on the teaching profession. She named the attributes of a good teacher, and also pointed out ways in which one may find out if she is choosing the right profession. Her suggestion was that the etudents work in another field during the summer so that they may make a comparison among various fields. Another suggestion was that they talk with others already in the profession and find out reasons why they think the profession is desirable.

A bit of entertainment was furnished by Mrs Finner, who read 13-year-old letters of previous initiates. It was reminiscent of older members of the honorary, many of whom are now members of the faculty. Harriette McCarter, with the help of Doris Hill and Maurine Ashton, provided informal entertainment of games and refreshments.

Burns Is Appointed Assistant Director

Mrs Louise Burns has accepted the position as assistant director of the Longmire building. She arrived here on February 27 to take over her duties.

Prior to her coming to the Florida State College campus, Mrs Burns was a welfare worker in East Orange, New Jersey. She was also, at one time, an assistant librarian in that city.

Mrs Edith Gulick, director of the Longmire building, said that it was a great relief to have an assistant to help her with the many tasks which have to be done in the building.

"It is a great responsibility for one person to undertake, and I am so glad to welcome Mrs Burns as my assistant," said Mrs Gulick.

Red Cross Drive

With a 75% membership goal among students, the Red Cross drive began on this campus last Wednesday and will last through Saturday of this week.

Students have been organized into very small groups so that all dormitories and off-campus houses can be canvassed by appointed students.

The student committee in charge of the drive has as its chairman Olive Fleming. Those on her committee include: Jane Lyles, Barbara Wickham, Virginia DeGarry, Anne McDonald, and Betty Jane Wright. Mr Jerry B Kelley, assistant professor of chemistry, is the general chairman of the drive.

Mischa Elman, Internationally Famous Violinist, Owns Rare, Antique Amati and Stradivarius Violins Valued at $100,000

By ALVERA ASHE

Mischa Elman, internationally famous violinist, who will be heard here in a recital on March 28, was once asked how he felt about having in his possession three rare violins whose total value is $100,000. The interviewer wanted to know if the responsibility of having to look out for their safety didn't give him a constant headache.

"Not at all," replied Mr Elman, who has carried his invaluable prize fiddles around with him on tour from one end of the globe to the other. "I look upon them as precious things I live with every day and as such I can't afford to worry consciously about them anymore than about the problem of life and death. They are part of my existence, along with my art, my family and the things I believe in and love. If I went in for worrying about these things everyday, you can just about imagine what a state I would be in in no time at all."

"No, I don't believe in worrying," he went on emphatically, "I only believe in working hard, having principles, and being true to one's best self and one's ideals."

Mr Elman's three precious violins not only represent a history of their famous owner's career, but have very colorful histories of their own. The junior member of the instrumental trio is one hundred and eighty-one year old Amati, one of the violinist's most cherished possessions. He received it from a Russian nobleman at the age of 12, when he was still studying at the St Petersburg Conservatory under the famed Leopold Auer. A few months later he made his professional debut with it in Berlin and first startled the musical world with his violinistic genius. He hardly ever plays it today, but would no sooner think of parting with it than with the memories of those days.

Mr Elman came into the possession of his second instrument, a more than two-centnry old Stradivarius of 1722, on the occasion of his American debut in 1908 at the age of 17 It was given to him on that memorable day by his father, who saw his son capture his first American audience with it and go on to win the acclaim of 21 succeeding concert audiences that year in New York alone. This Stradivarius had once belonged to the great Joseph Joachim, who had proclaimed little Mischa a finished artist following his European debut.

The third violin and the greybeard of the trio, is a 1717 Stradivarius and one of the most prized violins in the world It also has the most romantic history of the lot, having been presented to Mr Elman by his wife when they were honeymooning in Paris 19 years ago. It came into their possession only after a hard fight.

Mr Elman had seen the violin at the shop of the most reputable violin dealer in Paris, Caressa, and fallen in love with it at once. He made an offer for it, but the dealer told him it was out of the question since someone else had already offered much more, and added, "What a pity, it really ought to belong to you."

Several days later, not being able to keep away from the shop Mr and Mrs Elman were passing on their way to their hotel and couldn't resist walking in for another look inside. As it happened, the dealer had the other buyer in a second room. Mrs Elman couldn't stand the thought of the violin going to anyone else but her husband and offered to buy it herself. She raised the bid higher, almost to match the other's offer. The dealer ran from the room in which they were, to the room in which the other buyer was cooling his heels; back and forth he ran, until Mrs Elman came up as close as he could accept. At last, being swayed not a little by sentiment, he accepted Mrs Elman's bid. That night her happy husband player her his thanks on the wonderful fiddle.

The instrument was in the hands of a Spanish art collector before coming into the hands of the Paris violin dealer. It had once belonged to Marshal Molitor, who had served under Napoleon. Later it came into the possession of Mme Recamier, who was supposed to have gotten it from no less an admirer than Napoleon himself.

Mr Elman uses this violin almost exclusively today and will play it at his appearance here.

Contest Rules Are Announced

Play Production Included In Fields for Entrance

Requisites, regulations, and fields of activities for the Dramatic Arts Division of the Creative Arts Contest sponsored by the Tallahassee branch of the American Association of University Women were announced this week by Miss Mary Tom Colones, chairman of the committee.

The purpose set up by the committee is to stimulate interest in creative activity and to urge the students of Florida State College to participate in and contribute to the following fields.

Students who wish to enter this division may produce a one-act play, chosen by the committee to be Noel Coward's Family Album, for the stage or for radio. If it is produced for the stage, there should be enough scenery, properties, and costumes for utilitarian purposes. The play should be student-directed and student-cast. Emphasis in judging will be placed on acting teniques, mood, and atmosphere, and an award will be given for the best characterization.

No award will be given for Family Album adapted for radio. The purpose in presenting two performances of the same play is to show the flexibility of the dramatic one-act script.

Scene and costume design or model may be submitted for Family Album. An award for each will be given and the contributions will be displayed Creative Arts Week in the Augusta Conradi Little Theatre.

Scene and costume design or a model may be submitted for any play. An award will be made for one scene, one costume design, and one model in this group.

Requisites for the designs and model on which judges will make the final award include: appropriateness of design for play; originality, practibility of design, and neatness. Drawings must be matted. Models should be sturdy drawn to a scale of one-half inch to one foot.

Original one-act plays having the following qualities may be contributed. The play should have universal appeal, plot, character development, dialogue, theatrical production value, and mood and atmosphere. No two-scene one-act plays will be accepted. The playing-time should be from 25 to 40 minutes. Two typed copies, double-spaced, must be submitted to the chairman of the Dramatic Arts committee. One award will be made and the decision of the judges will be final.

A final area of competition is the fifteen minute original radio script. The basic form must adhere to the generally accepted form for redio scripts with transitional and sound effects clearly worked out. The script must be typed, double spaced, and one award will be made, according to Miss Calones.

It is the hope of the committee that the students of FSC avail themselves of the opportunity to gain experience in participation in dramatic activities and to stimulate their creative ability and interest in production.

accomplishments in the more serious music of Bach, Beethoven, Brahms, and Tchaikovsky, he has recently taken a leap into the field o. modern music, commonly called "boogie-woogie." However, of the contemporary composers, he has chosen the Czech composer, Bohuslav Martinu, to be one who can write music in "today's idiom without sacrificing the intrinsic value and beauty of the violin." Mr Elman says: "To protest today against swing and jazz is as silly as it was for our grandfathers to protest against the waltz. Swing is just a social expression of our city youth and is a good outlet for their energies and emotions. It is no more to be deplored than the breakdown dances, let us say, in the country. As for the element of jazz itself, it is the one remaining free improvisatory factor left in the whole of music, and as such as every good musician knows, holds untold possibilities for the creative music of the future . . . Serious music and popular music are two different worlds, and though one can appreciate both, they can influence, but never infringe upon one another."

phrey. They first met in the dance company of Ruth St Denis and Ted Shawn. Following a period of study at the Denishawn school in California, they became featured soloists and toured with the company in America and in the Orient.

Shortly after their return, Doris Humphrey and Charles Weidman decided to start off by themselves. They wished to put into practice some new theories of "the dance as a vital force in contemporary life" in which they found themselves mutually interested. So in 1928 they opened their own school in New York and that fall gave their first major recital. They formed a concert group of their own, gave more performances, and soon were in such popular and critical favor that they were called upon to appear with the Philadelphia Orchestra, the New York Philharmonic-Symphony, and the Cleveland Symphony, and stage dances for such Broadway successes as "Americana," "As Thousands Cheer," "I'd Rather Be Right," and the Theatre Guild's recent musical play, "Sing Out Sweet Land."

Between concert engagements, Mr Weidman teaches at his own studio in New York, where pupils have been drawn from all parts of the country.

John Martin, dance critic of the New York Times, says of Weidman: "He is basically a superb clown, at the opposite end of the scale from Chaplin; but essentially of the same stuff. There is nothing in his comedy that is merely made up: it stems directly from life and is alive with comment. If there is a gist of malice in it, it is that perhaps that makes it satire, and it is more than compensating in general glow of geniality."

Those who do not have tickets for this occasion may get them at the box office in Westcott immediately before the performance.

These grades will be sent to the students as soon as possible and they are requested to cooperate with the Registrar's office by not asking for their grades. However, notices will be sent to all those who rave failed this quarter before they return to school.

Those students having a C average who wish to register for 17½ hours may do so without securing an overload card. If they do not have a C average they will be notified when the registration cards are checked in the Registrar's office. Students having a B average must secure an overload card to register for 18½ hours.

Education Is Topic

Robert Hutchins, and various magazine articles.

"The Harvard Committee," said Winifred, "has called general education 'not instruction of a looser, less exact sort, but instruction that will cultivate rather than train, form the mind rather than fill it."

"Through specializing in colleges," asserted Rosetta, "we have ignored the great minds of past and present . . . or if we have not ignored them we have considered them not by their actual thoughts and works, but by some outline or summary . . . we draw few comparisons and wisely refrain from drawing conclusions."

On the subject of education as to knowledge of what was being thought in the world today, Frances said that she thought co-education in Florida was more of an issue this year than it was last year. "If lessons can be learned from the war . . . which can be applied to bettering the post-war world, these lessons will logically come from the men who have participated in the war. In Florida institutions no such planning between men and women can be done." "One thing is sure," she concluded, "if co-education is ever to be passed, the plans and money which are going to be expended at both schools should take that into consideration."

Winnie pointed out the similarity of the five major lines of effort of Robert Hutchins to the integrated courses required at this college. "Similarity in content, however, would not necessarily mean great similarity in methods of teaching" observed Winnie.

In Winnie's opinion Alexander Meiklejohn had the right idea of a teaching method for his experimental college. She cited the example of reading Plato's Republic along with an account of the Russian experiment in Communism. "In general they learn to form good reading habits . . . and try to study philosophy and science from the angle of such problems as the classes of rich and poor, and racial prejudice."

She also mentioned that Meiklejohn had a discussion type of test wherein a person described his thoughts and feelings when in a similar situation with one of the charectere about whom he was reading. During the questioning period after the talks, several people criticized the integrated courses for giving objective tests which only tested the facts of the study rather than the relation of the subject to life in general.

Students at the forum complained that a person wishing to graduate from college must have a major subject. One student believed that this was a definite hindrance to those who did not want a profession but did want a higher education. A student explained that a major is one of the European innovations which has been adopted by the United States, and that one of the objects of the Harvard Report was to get rid of these foreign influences which are misfits in the American system.

Another student said she saw no reason why there should be as many required courses for a major as there are now. She mentioned the course of Milton being require for an English major, and contended that if a student did not like Milton, she should not be required to take an entire course on his work. There was some controversy as to whether studying one man intensively or studying a little of each one of them was the more general education.

There was a suggestion that integrateds not be required because some students would not be interested. However, two membere of the audience said they believed that not making the integrateds compulsory would defeat their purpose because the courses were taught on the assumption that every student should know a little about each of them and that the interest in the subject would come when a student began studying the course.

One of the girls asked why there could not be a simplified course for home economics majors who planned only to have a home. She suggested that no chemistry be required and household skills be emphasized. Another student disagreed and said that she thought one could learn to sew and cook outside of college, and she thought her best preparation for being a housewife would be to get a picture of the world and the way it is run.

Students interested in riding to and from the concert in a specially chartered bus should sign on a list which is now posted on the bulletin board next to the bookstore in lower Westcott. This should be done not later than Saturday night. If the demand is great enough these special arrangements will be made, Miss McKinnell said.

22 Become Members Of Cotillion Club

Cotillion club, the dance honorary, held its formal initiation yesterday at 5 o'clock at the Kappa Delta house. At that time 22 taps were initiated.

After the initiation, a banquet for old and new members was held at the Three Torches Tea Room.

On Tuesday night all taps were required to take an examination on the names of the members and the ideals of the club before they were allowed to participate in the final initiation.

After the initiation, the new members were presented with silver pins in the form of a top hat, the club symbol.

Cotillion is now holding dancing classes every Thursday night right after dinner in Reynolds recreation room. Instruction in the fox trot, the rhumba, jitterbug, and other popular dances will be given.

Girls who are interested in learning how to dance or who wish to perfect their steps are urged to come out, according to Chris Morrison, club president.

Of course, there was no fire. And of course, the explanation was simple. The dormitory fire-alarm apparatus was being checked, and someone inadvertantly switched the fire department alarm instead of the campus alarm, with subsequent results. Within a few moments, the thwarted Sir Galahads were on their way again, and the fair Gilchrist damsels climbed back into their ivory towers unsinged.

He has won several music awards and is the author of several articles.

Content Increased In Physics Course

Dr Harold F Richards, head of the physics department, has announced a change in the title and content of the course in X-rays taught by him during the third quarter. The new title will be "X-rays and Atomic Physics", and the purpose of the course is to place more stress on the relation of atomic physics to X-rays.

Dr Richards stated that the course would continue to have the practical experimental nature that it has had during the past war years, and students will continue to have an opportunity to gain experience in operating the X-ray equipment and in making X ray tests using the flourescent, photographic and electrical ionization methods of studying X-rays. In addition he plans to increase the operation and experimental study of radium, uranium, and other radioactive material.

Dr Richards then cited the recent General Electric experiments involving the two hundred million-volt betatron, in which the betatron has been generating X-rays which take apart the nuclei of atoms in a new way, which illustrates the relation of X-rays to atomic physics.

The prerequisite to this course is the regular course in general physics.

Those interested should write immediately to Miss Manley, Box 1088, campus mail, for an application blank, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Such requests should be received by the committee not later than March 15, Miss Manley said. The blanks must be returned with the information requested by April 1.

The Graduate Scholarship Loan Fund was established here in the early 1920's, Miss Manley said. The first award was not made until 1928, however, since few alumnee of FSC undertook graduate work at that time. The fund is designed to encourage more students to enter advanced study, Miss Manley stated.

Alumnae who have received the graduate award in recent years include Mary Anna McBride, who studied art at New York University; Hazel Adams, who took courses in social work at Tulane University; Mary Mooty, who studied art at Columbia University; and Margaret Campbell, who is working toward her doctorate in Spanish at the University of North Carolina. Miss Mooty and Miss Campbell are also members of the FSC faculty.

Rules of Colleges Concerning Dancing Drinking Compiled

CINCINNATI, Ohio, (ACP) — Educators and prospective "customers" of higher education have for the first time a comprehensive, nation-wide picture of campus rules governing such matters as dancing, chapel attendance, smoking and drinking.

A compilation of student regulations is one of the features of the new 700-page "Guide to Colleges, Universities, and Professional Schools in the United States," edited by Dr Carter V Good, acting dean of the University of Cincinnati Teachers' College.

Only 27 of 107 middle west arts and sciences colleges and universities permit use of intoxicants on the campus, the book shows, and all of the 86 middle western junior colleges bar the use of intoxicants on the campus.

Three of the 63 midwest teacher's colleges permit campus use of intoxicants. Other "yes" responses to the same question, broken down into geographical areas: West, two out of 84 arts and sciences, junior and teachers colleges; South, three out of 316. Middle Atlantic, 12 out of 150.

Church attendance is required by 263 out of 967 institutions Other "yes" replies include: Smoking in college buildings, 526 out of 980; smoking on campus, 691 of 977; smoking off campus, 638 of 647; dancing on campus, 837 of 1,038.

Aeronautical Club Elects O F Sellers

Mr O F Sellers, associate professor of cello and other orchestral instruments, has been recently elected president of the newly organized Tallahassee branch of the National Aeronautical Association.

"The purpose of the organization," said Mr Sellers, "is to arouse interest in all phases of aeronautics from the schoolboy's hobby of model airplane building to actual flying instruction."

Mr Sellers instructed Navy pilots during the war at the Herbert Smart airport in Macon, Georgia. Before his arrival at Florida State College, he was assistant manager of the Macon office of the Southeastern Air Service which dealt with commercial flying and aviation instruction.

Any college girl interested in becoming a member of the association is requested to see either Mr Sellers, or Theresa Munroe, who was the first campus member to join the group.

FSC Music Professor Honored at Festival

Classical 'Suite' By Ahrendt Is Featured at Concert

The third annual American Music Festival of the National Gallery of Art, which began in Washington, D C, last Sunday, featured in its first concert the premiere of a work by Karl Ahrendt, professor of violin at Florida State College, now on leave of absence.

Professor Ahrendt's work is referred to in a clipping received in Tallahassee from Monday's Washington Post simply as the "Suite." The Post's critic, Ray C B Brown, discusses it as follows:

"Ahrendt's 'Suite,' cast in the classical pattern of 'Praeludium,' 'Sarabande,' and 'Gigue,' is a very clever rejuvenation of the forms that were standard practice in the period of Bach. The modernization has nowhere been overdone in the way of caricature, yet the old bottles have been filled with new wine. The 'Praeludium' is a charming combination of the archaic and the day before yesterday; the 'Sarabande' has a faintly Moorish flavor about its up-to-date harmonies, as though hinting at the origin of that ancient dance, and the 'Gigue,' a jolly and irresistible bit of rhythm, is made a contemporaneous jig by its Keltic humor.

The Post reports that four living composers were featured on the Sunday program—Karl Ahrendt, Arthur Begrer, Anthony Donato, and Boris Koutzen. Of the four, only the naturalized Russian Koutzen is old enough to have his name in the musical encyclopedia. The works were performed by the Gordon String Quartette.

Ahrendt is on leave of absence from his Florida State College post for further study at the Eastman School of Music, Rochester, New York.

IBS Poll Studies Student Listeners

NEW YORK — Radio listening habits of American college students will be scrutinized in a survey launched by the Intercollegiate Broadcasting System Approximately 2000 students will be asked to name their favorite types of programs, their favorite stations, their best listening times. This is believed to be the first time that the audience of college students has been systematically studied.

Following the pre-test at Princeton University, the survey will move on the nineteen other colleges which have member stations of the IBS. The survey will study listening to "outside" radio stations as well as to the IBS stations which are operated by the students themselves and heard only on the campus.

Designed to discover what students like to hear on the radio, the poll is directed by the national office of IBS in New York. The questions will be asked by student volunteers chosen from the stations of the chain.

Recital Scheduled

An organ and piano recital will be presented Friday, March 15, at 5 p m in the tower studio in Westcott. Those participating in this program are students of Mrs Ramona C Beard, associate professor of organ.

Students who will perform at this time include Ester Brinkman, Marianne Morris, Joyce Hansen, Mildred Mann, Shirley Peleaz, Sally Slater, Nell Duncan, Emma Mae Murray, Ruth Ervin, Margaret McCain, Fawn Trawick and Jane Gaertner.

Other activities by members of the music department include a concert at the University of Florida, which will be presented by Mrs Beard Sunday, March 24.

English Boy Writes to Thank Dem School For Red Cross Box Sent at Christmas

The Demonstration School of the Florida State College recently received a letter from a ten-year-old boy in Hereford, England thanking the school for a Red Cross box which he received last Christmas.

Each year the children in the public schools throughout the nation make np gift boxes which contain pencils, paper, and toys. They send the boxes to the Red Cross which distributes them throughout the foreign nations.

The letter was addressed from 29 Frederick avenue, College Estate, Hereford, England on January 10, and it was postmarked January 25. The English lad, Albert Rivers, said that he had received the box from the British Red Cross, and that it was very kind of us to think of the children over there as has been done during the war. During the Christmas and New Year holidays of 1944-1945, a U S soldier stayed with Albert's family, and last July he returned to the States. He became a great friend of Albert's father.

Albert's father had been a soldier for seventeen years and was discharged from the 8th Army which served in Africa and Italy in August, 1944. Albert wrote that his father had since died on December 5, 1945 from a wound that he received in his liver, and his family therefore didn't have a very happy time this year. He said that his mother, his brothers, who are seven and four years old, miss their father very much, and they considered him a great soldier. When he was buried be had a lot of flowers, and the Union Jack was on his coffin. The little boy said that his father suffered a great deal and was in the hospital for a whole year after he was discharged from the army He concluded by wishing everyone a Happy New Year from his entire family.

The students in the fourth grade in the Demonstration School are going to write letters to the boy individually and the entire class as a group will write a letter ackowledging his letter.

Platforms, Policies Given By Candidates for CGA Offices

PRESIDENT OF CGA JEAN COLE

With the overall policy of keeping all phases of college activity in step with changing situations, and arousing the interest of students in the need for individual student responsibility for the activities and fundamental principles of their own College Government Association, Jean Cole stated in a recent interview the main objectives she plans to work for, should she be elected president of CGA in the coming election.

Her "all inclusive policy" of keeping all phases of college life in step with changing situations would concern college activities, rules and regulations with the principle emphasis on the College Government. As an example of keeping college activities in step with the times she cited as an example the Red Cross Unit which is being organized on campus. This is an example of change from a wartime activity to a more relevant peacetime activity.

In regard to rules she stated that "rules are made to answer a specific situation and for this reason they must be constantly reexamined in the light of the present situation." In support of her argument Jean stated that the huge task undertaken by the legislative committee this year has proved the necessity of CGA's placing the proper emphasis on changing conditions in college life. Jean stressed the need for constant review of every phase of college activity to make sure that each phase is adequately serving its purpose or still has a purpose to fulfill. "The executive council is the group particularly responsible for keeping its eye on the overall picture of all that goes on around campus," she explained.

Jean indicated that one of the major functions of CGA should be to keep the student body well informed. Greater emphasis should be placed on publicizing CGA activities if the students are to be kept informed about and interested in their college government. What student officers are doing and thinking should be regularly published or otherwise made known to the student body. Declaring that "a more concentrated effort on the part of student officers to sound out the individual student's opinion" should be made, Jean advised that CGA would be more democratic if interested students would express their views to their officers.

CHAIRMAN OF JUDICIARY ROSETTA CARVER

Rosetta Carver, candidate for the office of Chairman of Judiciary, told an interviewer that she believes that an honor code, if it is to be the statement of the standards of a college campus, should come from the student body.

"Other schools with student bodies larger than ours have had mass meetings in which they have formed honor codes, Rosetta said.

"An honor code should not be thrust upon the student body by Judiciary, Honor Committee, or even arrived at in Senate meetings. Perhaps the fact that the honor code has not been the work of the student body at Florida State College is responsible for the truth that girls often come away from house council and lower court with attitudes of contempt. I propose an investigation of house council practices and procedures to eliminate that feeling of smallness so detrimental to a lasting feeling of regard for our school," said Rosetta.

"The ideal honor code is one which is renewed from time to time by the student body. Such a system of renewal at FSC would probably necessitate an amendment to our constitution, and if such an amendment is necessary, I am for it."

She continued: "The student on a college campus should have the responsibility of setting up their standards, but once the standards have been established, it is very necessary that they be adhered to. Then, every student would have a thorough knowledge of what was expected of her and she would know what she expected from others. By virtue of a tacit agreement such as this among the students themselves, we would have a more prevailing attitude of concern for the entire school society."

Pi Phi's Lead List

Pi Beta Phi led the list of sororities in scholastic standing for the quarter with an average of the chapter being 1.777. The other thirteen ranked in the following order: Delta Delta Delta, 1.773; Alpha Chi Omega, 1.771; Chi Omega, 1.756; Phi Mu, 1.632; Delta Phi Epsilon, 1.603; Kappa Delta, 1.583; Alpha Gamma Delta, 1.525; Zeta Tau Alpha, 1.496; Alpha Delta Pi, 1.484; Delta Zeta, 1.442; Sigma Kappa, 1.275; Alpha Xi Delta, 1.300.

Campus 'Home Away From Home' Records Show Visitors Are Rule of the House

Florida State College Building No 10 (better known as the Home Management house) is an English style, window-y, red brick affair that sprawls comfortably out upon Copeland street. Its five present occupants, Carolyn Bourland, Martha Nell Booth, Jane Waldo, Margaret Boliek, and Judith Alexander, senior home economics majors, are finding it quite different from Landis, and they sum it up by saying "It's like a home away from home."

Two groups of seniors move into the house each quarter and serve their turn as "cook, laundress, assistant cook, maid, housekeeper, and gardener." For several weeks they learn how a model house should be run and how to bake a cake, not broil it, as one girl once did.

Far from feeling like hermits, these girls consider themselves among the most fortunate individuals on campus. "We're never lonely because our friends love to come over and see us. Of course, we usually feed them, so that may explain it," one of the group said.

Looking over the scrapbook which was started in 1933, one finds that visitors were the rule at the house then as now. Most of the faculty have been guests many times, and signatures from Dale Mabry and Gordon Johnston are not infrequent. As one boy writes, "Oh, you lucky girls, you!" Other names include Dr Conradi and Miss Rowena Longmire.

And it really isn't hard to see why guests do come when you sink into one of the chintz-covered chairs in the green walled living room. Around you are records, new magazines, and a nice view of the small terrace that is justly famous for its Sunday night suppers. Best of all, you can imagine that a lemon meringue pie is waiting in the frigidaire for dinner.

All of which leads to a description of that all-important room, the kitchen. Spotless, gleaming, white are the words which can best describe it. Everything is in order and the use of many labor-saving devices is apparent. One of the gadgets which used to fascinate guests was the device for removing garbage by suction, called by the girls "the hog."

The kitchen opens into an equally spotless butler's pantry and then into the dining room. Each night the girls invite a guest to eat dinner with them, and the cook presides as hostess. Her assistant acts as the "host." So far this group can boast no culinary failures. They fix for breakfast every morning waffles and sausage, etc. but go to the dining hall at noon except on Saturdays and Sundays.

Upstairs are four bedrooms which can accommodate seven people. There is also another room on the ground floor for Miss Sylvia Polites, the director of the Home Management house. A long triangular room called the attic completes the top floor and is used for drying clothes, this week's laundress wails.

Judging from the evidence presented above, from comments by visitors and by the girls themselves, the house may be one reason we have so many home economics majors. As a 1937 visitor writes, "Wonderful house and wonderful girls."

FSC Represented

The annual meeting of the American Sociological Society was held last week in Cleveland, Ohio, with Miss Bernice Moskowitz, instructor in sociology, representing Florida State College.

Attending were approximately five hundred representatives from schools all over the country. Included in the papers read were several in the fields of social psychology, community and ecology, criminology, social theory, and political sociology.

At a banquet meeting of the entire society, Kimball Young, president, addressed the group.

Products Are Made In Chemistry Class

A series of individual projects dealing with commercial products and methods has been completed at FSC by students in an experimental course in first year chemistry. This Chemistry 104 class, which is being conducted on its present basis for the first time this year, has made such products as blue-print paper, liquid sulphur dioxide, which is used in the paper and rubber industries, and sodium hypochlorite, used as a bleaching powder.

Plans for these experiments, which also include the production of beryllium compounds, employed in the manufacture of steel, and of blue vitrol from scrap copper, were made by the students themselves through individual reading. Students in this experimental course are regularly undertaking such projects, which are usually carried on only by students in advanced chemistry classes, according to Mr J B Kelley, assistant professor of chemistry, who is teaching the course.

This experimental method has resulted in increased interest among the students, Mr Kelley said. Those selected for the class have had good preparatory courses in high school chemistry, and for this reason they are able to undertake special work and outside reading in addition to work included in other beginning chemistry courses.

Power Is Theme Of YWCA Camp Program

"Power" was the theme of the programs conducted by the YWCA girls this past weekend at Camp Flastacowo. Marianne Smith, former president of the club, was the leader of the weekend activities, which lasted from Saturday noon through Sunday afternoon.

The main point of the programs was to put across the idea that there is more power in the teachings of Christ than in any existing institution, reported Joyce Petty, YWCA president for this year.

A round table discussion on "Power in Activites" was held Saturday night. During this period the question of "Y" activities for next year was discussed. Also held during this weekend was a Sunday morning worship service followed by an individual meditative hour.

Those who led in planning the programs for the weekend were Marilyn Van Netta, Grace Bradley, Margaret Cockrell, Doris Hill, Joyce Petty and Miss Sara Larson, YWCA faculty advisor. Annette Norden was transportation chairman.

Alpha Chapter of Scholastic Honorary Installed by Faculty at FSC in 1935

Just as the small Phi Beta Kappa key represents superior attainment for the individual, so does the Alpha chapter of Phi Beta Kappa, national honorary in Arts and Sciences, represent untiring efforts and final success of Florida State College. The chapter was not achieved in a day, a month, or even a year, but after nine years, the ultimate goal was reached on March 4, 1935.

A group of faculty members who belonged to the national fraternity organized a Phi Beta Kappa Association on January 8, 1921, with the purpose of securing a charter for FSC. The first step the association took was to draw FSC to the attention of the South Atlantic district, in which it was included, and as a result Dr Oscar Voorhees, then the secretary of the United Chapters, visited the campus. He informed Dr Conradi, then president of the college, as to the information which should be submitted to make it eligible for a charter. This assembled material or "exhibit" as it was called, was then sent to the various chapters, and as changes took place in the college, the progress was recorded in this "exhibit."

Concrete efforts were thus employed. At first the decision of granting a charter lay with the individual districts which could accept three institutions every triennium. The plan changed, however, and it was under the new system that FSC met with success. A standing committee of six members examined the request for charter and notified as to qualification. The senate then approved and sent recommendations to the National Council, which in turn issued the invitation for membership.

In April 1935, the Flambeau announced to the campus and the world that the goal had been attained. On the front page was outlined the three days of installation with Dr Theodore H Jack, president of Randolph Macon Woman's College, as the installing officer. During these great three days the campus enjoyed the society of many prominent people who were here to honor the new chapter.

Upon being established, the Alpha chapter immediately elected Dr Edward Conradi and Dean William G Dodd to honorary membership and also elected its first officers. These officers were Dr Kathryn T Abbey, president; Dr Arthur Seymour, vice president; Miss Myrtle Dolbee, secretary; Miss Margaret Whitney Dow, treasurer; and Dr William H Rogers, historian.

The efforts and struggles thus finally evolved into the existing chapter, which is now an active influence in FSC life. It is directly responsible for the chapter of Alpha Lambda Delta, the freshman honorary on campus; for Honors Day, a day for recognizing superior scholarship, and for the encouragement of scholarship in many ways.

The Phi Beta Kappa key not only stands for superior scholarship, but also for a completed course of liberal study in the College of Arts and Sciences. To qualify for membership, therefore, a student must have 150 quarter hours of non-professional courses, major in a so-called liberal subject, and maintain an average for four years of at least 2.45. Seniors ranking in the highest ten percent of their class who meet all these qualifications are automatically elected to membership.

Students Perform In Weekly Recital

The student recital given in Westcott auditorium yesterday at 5 o'clock began with Ann Carolyn Allison at the organ playing "In the Garden" by Goodwin. The second number on the program was "Sheep May Safely Graze" by Bach-Howe, played on two pianos by Frances Duckworth and Rachel Crotwell, who also played another piano number, "Waltzes" from Der Rosenkavalier by Strauss-Singer.

Three selections composed by Debussy were played on the piano: Betty LaBree played "Girl With Flaxen Hair"; Mildred Mann played "Arabesque"; and Rachel Crotwell played "Two Arabesques."

"Atlantic Zephyrs", by Cardell-Simons, was played on the trombone by Beryl Taylor, with Miss Margaret Dunn accompanying on the piano. Eleanor Bragg and Lucille Wooten played Chalvier's "Espana Rhapsody" on the piano. The program was concluded with Margaret McCain at the organ playing "Bell Prelude" by Clokey.

These student recitals are given nearly every Thursday at 5 o'clock by students who are majoring in music and also by those who are taking music courses. They are held in the Music Annex except on the first Thursday of the month when they are held in the main auditorium for the use of the organ.

THE QUESTION IS . . .

Senior students in journalism were discussing the evidence presented in a sensational Kentucky murder case, and the question was raised whether the victim had whirled to face his attackers before turning to flee in vain for his life. A returned veteran spoke:

"I believe the man would have turned toward the slayers before running. My reason is that I once came face to face unexpectedly with a German soldier. He crouched and half lunged toward me before turning to run."

There was a pause and then the veteran pointed to his wrist: "This is his watch I'm wearing."

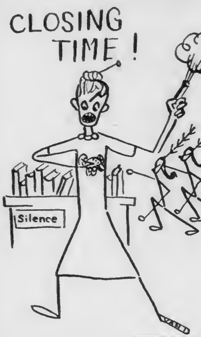
SPIRIT OF THE WEEK



• INVITATION TO DR CAMPBELL

When Dr Campbell spoke to the student body in convocation Tuesday night presenting to us the report of the Board of Control's recent meeting, the general reaction was that it created more of a feeling of unity between the administration and the students than had existed at any other time during the year. Students were heard to say that this was one of the rare times when they felt they were an integral part of the college group rather than paying guests governed by the checking in and out rules and manner of procedure posted on the back of each door.

We appreciate Dr Campbell's courtesy to the student body. We appreciate his personal interest in promptly reporting the decisions of the Board of Control. Certainly the expansion program of the University of Florida and FSC is of utmost importance to those of us who live and study at the two state institutions. Certainly we want to know more about what developments are to take place in all phases of our college life.

We are glad that Bryan Hall is going to be made livable, that there will be a new dormitory complete with equipment to combat weather conditions, that there will be a soundproof building for music majors, and we feel sure we will not go wrong in expressing the delight of the physical education majors over the prospects of a new wing for the gymnasium. All of these necessary improvements in the plant will undoubtedly enhance and increase the value of our college.

But we are not as nearly concerned with additional buildings and improvements in facilities as we are with our underlying system of education. That, too, needs an improvement and has needed one since the time the Legislature established a school for Florida men on one side of the Suwannee river, and a school for young ladies far beyond the opposite bank. New dormitories and classrooms cannot fill the gap that exists when there is segregation of men and women without the opportunity of working, thinking, and studying together except on occasional weekends which are then devoted to play. No manner of structure, no intricate curriculum, no matter how sound and well-planned, can be as valuable educationally speaking as long as an unnatural segregation exists during the period in which students are studying and forming their basic views and philosophies.

This aspect of education was not ignored by Dr Campbell in his "fireside chat," for he pointed out that coeducation was an issue now under consideration. He pointed out, also, the three possible decisions that might be the outcome, and stated that it was his sincere hope to get the final decision on coeducation as soon as possible, so that the administrations would know what to do in regard to our educational system and building problems, but Dr Campbell did not go further in taking a stand either for or against coeducation for Florida.

We feel that Dr Campbell has much valuable advice to offer concerning coeducation in view of his position as an educational leader and as president of one of the two institutions directly involved. We are sure that the people would like to know and would greatly benefit by what he has to say on this subject of wide interest and concern, even though the final decision is not his to make.

We invite Dr Campbell back for another "fireside chat."

• IT CAN'T HAPPEN HERE

In Monday's Tampa Morning Tribune a story appeared quoting Paul G Dallwig, anthropologist lecturer of the Chicago Museum of Natural History, as saying there is a danger of mankind's thinking itself into extinction.

Dallwig said, "We've become animals with overspecialized brains. That would be all right if we'd only specialize in developing enough brain power to realize the folly of our ways."

"Our days will be numbered," he continued, "if we don't spend less time splitting atoms and more time trying to relax and enjoy life."

Dallwig concluded his opinion by saying, "It would help a lot if humans would remember that they are nothing but quadrupeds up on end," and refers to the now extinct dinosaurs as "upended quadrupeds," too.

It can't happen here.

B J McLEOD

• LET'S BRIDGE THE GAP

One of the most important problems on Florida State College campus is the maintenance of a harmonious relationship between the faculty and students concerning student affairs. There is often misunderstanding on the part of each group resulting from lack of opportunity to examine critically the viewpoints of the other. We need a common meeting-ground upon which the two groups can present their opinions and judgments concerning issues pertinent to campus life. Could the answer be in some sort of regular meeting open to both faculty and students?

It is very often not understood by the students the actions which College Council takes on bills sent them by Student Senate. If it were possible for this Council to be attended by any students or faculty member who wished to attend, might there not be more compatibility of ideas and thoughts? The bridge which should exist between these two groups is non-existant.

I feel certain that after a careful bit of deliberation most of us would agree that the platforms of our student officers say so little in general that the majority of us actually know nothing of how these officers conduct the business of governing student affairs. With this sort of situation present, we cannot depend on them as planks with which to make that complete bridge that is so vitally needed.

In the opinion of the writer, the only answer can be that common meeting ground, spoken of previously, in the form of a Senate or group of this sort, where there can be that exchange of views. Will the faculty work for this cause which is so necessary at FSC? Will the students work for it? This baby belongs to both of us, and its cries can't be smothered; a definite cure must be found.

BETTY DOWD

• THAT SAME OLD APATHY

"The discussion of vital current movements and issues," one prominent educator has said, "is one of the primary means of acquiring a real education."

Such discussions, except in the privacy of friendly bull sessions, have long been neglected on this campus. Yet a few days ago three student speakers at a CGA forum spoke on a topic which is, or should be, of vital concern to every one of us, "Education for Florida Women." Important, thought-provoking views were expressed; the educational plans of great men like Alexander Meiklejohn and the professors who drew up the Harvard report were presented. Following the speeches came lively, significant discussion among the students—some 40 of them—who were present.

This was the first student forum presented in many weeks; yet from the interest shown in it, a majority of our student body is not concerned with whether or not they are presented at all. Why is this the case? Wasn't the forum publicized widely enough? It was announced in convocation and on bulletin boards across the campus. Surely we all knew about it. For some reason we just didn't go.

But, some of us say, we don't have time for things like that. We have to study. Yet those of us who attended the forum would venture to say that it was more educational, more thought-provoking than any Spanish, Biological Science or what have you we could possibly have studied during that hour Wednesday night. Could it be that grades have become more important to us than education in its broader sense?

Could it be that the educational atmosphere on our campus is in some degree lacking? Has it become unfashionable to appear interested in current movements and problems? Education, the topic of Wednesday night's forum, is a process which we are all supposedly undergoing at the present time. Apparently we have felt that it is important enough for us to dedicate four years of our lives to its pursuit. Yet most of us were not even willing to dedicate one evening to learning what great educators of our day believe we should gain during our years at college.

If our schooling has fostered, or at least failed to prevent, our lack of interest in current movements, even though they vitally concern our lives, it is time for a period of self-examination. It is time for a re-weighing of real values in education.

In This Our Time . . .

National Affairs—

A threatened nation-wide telephone strike was averted when the United States conciliation service accomplished an agreement leading to wage increases from $5 to $8 weekly. The agreement came just 25 minutes before the 6 a m deadline Thursday and was too late to prevent walkouts and picket lines.

President Truman's personal intervention in the deadlocked General Motors strike was asked by the City of Detroit today as Labor Mediator James F Dewey flew to Washington to report on the stalemate to Secretary Schwellenbach. The city's appeal to President Truman to intervene in the strike was in the form of a resolution adopted and forwarded to the President by the city council. The resolution asserted that the strike most seriously affects the whole economic life of the city and has occasioned increases in city costs in many departments.

Two railroad unions yesterday set March 11 for a strike that could paralyze all railroads, but presidential intervention will at least delay the walkout. Three hundred thousand members were ordered to strike on March 11, but they said, "We will go along with the President as we have always done, if he invokes the National Railway Labor Oct".

Foreign Affairs—

President Truman reaffirmed yesterday this nation's full support of the United Nations Charter. He said: "The United States expects to support that charter. It expects to defend that charter. It expects to expand and perfect that charter. And we are confident that all the other United Nations expect to do the same."

The Iranian War Ministry said last night that Iranian troops had been stopped by the Russians 60 miles east of Tehran, as they moved in to take three estern towns which Soviet officials had said they were evacuating last Saturday. At the same time a message from Iran's premier, now in Moscow, declared he would not accept any Soviet demands contrary to Iran's interests. He said he would protest orally to Stalin himself on Russia's delay in evacuating the country.

Coastal batteries fired on French warships carrying more than 20,000 French troops as they lay off Faiphong harbor awaiting Chinese permission to land the forces in Northern Indo-China, on March 6. (A later dispatch from Chung[illegible]ng said the Chinese Central News Agency reported five French Warships had bombarded Chinese troops at Haiphong in a landing attempt, and that both sides had suffered casualties in a brief but hot exchange lasting until noon, when the warships withdrew. An ammunition dump ashore was set afire.)

The Students Speak...

By LA FERNE QUINN

In the light of the coming CGA elections it might prove interesting to look into the reasons why candidates are elected.

The question asked to students in the dining hall, in classes, in front of the Longmire building and in generally browsing about the campus was, "How do you select the candidates you vote for?"

"The best way to select candidates is to talk to them and vote for the one who plans to do what you want done and has ideas that seem best to qualify them for an office. I think too few people pay attention to the candidates' booth."

Sis Myers, junior

"I vote for people I know provided they're capable, of course, and if I don't know them I vote for a person whose name I am familiar with through campus activities, because I think that is good evidence that they are active."

Pat Hornot, sophomore

"I select candidtaes by whether or not I think they are qualified by what they have done before. Usually you havs to know the person or something about them. If you don't it is better not to vote at all."

Mary Jo James, freshman

"It is not true that I vote for candidates because of the shape of their nose or if they have crooked teeth or not. I have a different reason for each candidate, and with me it's something intangible."

Katherine Jackson, senior

"I don't think knowing their platform has too much to do with it, because the platform for the whole campus is just about the same. The object is to serve."

Margaret Winton senior

"I look over the names and see if there are any I know and if there is one I know and think she would be good for the office I vote for her. If I don't know anyone I ask my friends about their choice."

Rosemary McCay, freshman

"I select the candidates by their ideas, purposes, and past experiences that qualify them. The way I select candidates isn't a bit intriguing, I don't know why you ask."

Catherine Sullivan, sophomore

"I select candidates according to how well they have filled past offices and what their abilities and platform are. I think that there should be a greater percentage of voters in order to have a more efficient College Government Association."

Janet Robertson, sophomore

"I count a lot on Senate — where people go and what they say when the get there, because I feel that people show their interest in college government by going to Senate and taking part in the discussions. This is not my whole basis for selection of candidates, but it counts a lot. I also notice what they say when you talk to them, their speeches, and sessions with them in the candidates' booth. Also what you know about them from hearing people talk about their past experience."

Mary White, junior

"I always vote for the one who is the most dependable and from what people tell me generally, if I don't know them."

Betty Blakemore, freshman
